I would like to express a sincere thank you to all my friends and neighbors for their cards and visits during my stay in Belleville Hospital. Also to Dr. Stuart Dunn and the nursing staff of 3rd floor South for their kindness.

—Vera Rowse.

After being in SOS. for two weeks, I would like to express my sincere thanks to my friends and neighbors who called, sent cards and flowers. Also to the Girls' Auxiliary for a beautiful basket of flowers, and to Dr. Ross Hall and the nursing staff of 3rd floor South and corridors on the 2nd floor for their kindness and thoughtfulness. Thank-you all very much.

—Mrs. Ethel Hall.

I would like to thank my many friends, neighbors, and relatives for the cards, flowers, and visits while I was in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. Also to Dr. Ross Hall and the nursing staff of 3rd floor South for their kindness while I was in the Belleville General Hospital and since returning home.

—Charlie Ross.

We would like to express our heart felt thanks to those who called on the late Mr. Alan Hall while a patient in Belleville General Hospital, especially Dr. Ewpson and nurses on 3rd East. Also to friends and neighbors for their many expressions of sympathy, acts of kindness, floral tributes and cards. A special thanks to Rev. Lawrence Neddow, Mr. Ross Bush, Mr. R. Rush Funeral Home, Sewed.

—Mr. John Farrel and family.

CNR District Manager Heard By Traffic Club

An explanation of the newly established "customer research and traffic" group, the purpose of which the Canadian National Railways endeavour to maintain a low-cost yet highly efficient transportation system, highlighted an address by Gordon Pollock, manager of the Rideau district of the St. Lawrence district of CNR, to the Quinte Traffic Club on Wednesday at the club's meeting was held at Jim's Place on Highway 2 east.

In an effort to increase efficiency and obtain new customers the CNR has developed a customer research service to determine what the marketing potentials and costs in various areas for various products may be. This information is correlated and analyzed into a form that which can be used by a traffic manager to determine the feasibility of the moving into new market areas, the speaker said.

Coupled with this service is an examination of total distribution costs for a customer including such aspects as freight rates, packaging costs, loading and unloading costs, warehousing, inventory level and flexibility. Other types of equipment are introduced to provide more efficient service in one of these areas the speaker said.

Mr. Pollock was introduced by Ralph Plumpton and thanked by William Old. Following his address an interesting question and answer period took place. Superintendent Bill Phillips conducted the meeting, which was a fairly large turnout. The club meets the second Wednesday of the month.

FLEMING PLEADS

ments and asked why Mr. Fleming hadn't done so.

Responsibility in these matters is with the government and is always with the government," Mr. Benidickson said.

DEBATE ASSISTANCE

The item currently up for debate is $28,400,000 for additional payments under the Vocational Training Assistance Act, which act, passed last year, permits the government to pay 75 per cent of the cost of new vocational training schools built by the provinces.

It has been under heavy attack from the CCF's New Democratic Party group.

HITS AT 'SPREE'

Walter Pitman, a high school teacher from Peterborough, before becoming the first NDP member in the Commons, said the plan was "a wild, spending spree" entirely misdirected.

"One of the most fantastically misdirected programs ever conceived on the North American continent," he said.

Douglas Kiker, a teacher in Port Arthur schools, before voicing that seat in 1957 for the CCF, said the program "has gone off the rails."

The purpose of the plan should have been to build completely technical institutions such as Ryerson Institute in Toronto, instead the province, especially Ontario, were putting up schools with general courses as well.

SEES NO NEED

Mr. Fisher said there is no great need for courses in woodworking, metal work, auto mechanics and so on, for children between the ages of 14 and 18 years.

"What I believe this is where most of the money for Ontario is going"— to provide the opportunity for schools offering this general training."

John Pallett, parliamentary secretary to the prime minister said the plan "is designed to help the young people of this country to take their position in the society of the future."

He knew of no responsible person in the education system in any of the provinces who criticized the project.

Study Co-op Meat-Packing

TORONTO — Following a recommendation by its 29-man Board of Governors, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture is planning a study and information conference of interested Ontario farm groups to present the facts about co-operatively owned meat processing operations. This conference will offer as completely as possible, an analysis of the meat-packing industry in Canada and particularly in Ontario.

The OFA plans to invite experienced personnel from different parts of Canada and the United States to present documented statements on the subject so that all persons attending the conference will have an extensive picture of the meat-packing industry, financing, post of operations, profit margins, markets and so on.

The meeting is planned for Toronto during the week of April 14th and invitations will be sent soon to farm organizations in Ontario who are vitally concerned about meat-packing.

Uses Water To Churn Cream Into Butter

SIDNEY, Iowa (AP) — Farmers in northwest Iowa can't get their milk to market because of snow-clogged roads.

One farm wife is meeting the situation by using her washing machine to churn cream from her milk into butter.

Mrs. Peter Steensma, who lives on a farm near here, first tried a 15-gallon batch but found it was too much for the washing machine. Now she's using the cream in 10-gallon batches.

RUSSIA AGAIN

kin declared Russia would accept a ban only with a national inspection system—each of the nuclear powers policing its own area.

The Soviets for months have contended that detection instruments are so far advanced that a sneak nuclear blast can be detected from thousands of miles away, and Gromyko is reported to have told Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Michael Home earlier in the week that the Soviet Union would not accept foreign inspectors to verify compliance with a test ban treaty.

Attempt Made To Open Safe At Local Plant

Police are investigating an attempted safe robbery at the Coca-Cola plant located opposite the fair grounds.

It is believed that it was the work of professionals. Entry was gained by climbing on the top of the building and entering through a window which was located near the ceiling.

An attempt to enter the upstairs part of the double safe, had been made but the thieves were unsuccessful in opening it, although they managed to open the door of the safe.

To their disappointment they discovered that this part of the safe was merely a chute to the safe in the downstairs. An attempt had been made on the downstairs safe, but entry was not gained.

Police are still investigating the theft which occurred sometime during the night on Wednesday. It was discovered by employees on Thursday morning when they arrived for work.

Richardson Rink Wins 2nd Game For Scotch Cup

FALKIRK, Scotland (CP) — Canada—represented by Ernie Richardson rink of Regina—scored five in the first end to wallop Sweden 11-7 today and become the only unbeaten rink in the men's curling championship.

It was the other game of the second round of the double round robin series. The United States tied Scotland for second place in four-team standings by beating the Swiss 10-1.

The Richardsons rolled to the easy victory after a miss made in the Canadian rink, playing the draw game for the first five ends, put the U.S. in the lead. Then a measure on the 11th end gave Skip Ernie Richardson his record.

Sweden now is winless in two games.

Richardson defeated the United States champions in the first round.

Changes in School Organization Outlined

Shifting of population densities along with the fact certain schools are designated as senior or junior buildings will result in changes in school organization for next September, according to L. A. Kelly, public schools superintendent.

Changes in school organization expected to be put into effect following the summer holiday period are as follows:

Avondale School — Small, but steady growth in school enrolment in this area requires the board to take the first step to-wards setting up junior, and later primary organization for this building. Commencing in September, Grade 3 pupils from this area will attend the Queen Mary School. The remaining enrolment will be the same as for the present year.

Bayside School — The number of kindergarten children in the area east of Herchimer Avenue will necessitate the acquire kindergarten classes to be operated in Grove View and Harry J. Clarke Schools, if negotiations are now in progress. Grade 3 pupils from this area of primary children cannot be accommodated in the Bayview Public School, and for a limited period until conditions permit the remaining Grade 3 pupils will be waiting for the opening of the proposed school on the Haig Road.

Harry J. Clarke School — As has been previously announced this building has been designed and built to serve as a senior school and its facilities are built to serve this purpose; however, the immediate need will be too high for primary children and some items considered desirable for plans for children will be omitted from classrooms. Until such time as the accommodation has been built, a primary group will attend in one of the wings.

Hillcrest — Two years ago increased enrolments required the removal of primary pupils from this building so that it might function as a junior school. Commencing in September 1969, a number of Grade 5 and 6 children will be added to the intervention of College Street and Dundas Road will commence attendance at the Prince of Wales School.

Holy George School — The survey of school facilities at the time of the 1959 annexation indicates the eventual desirability of consolidating senior school organization at the King George School. Further steps will be taken this year when all grade 8 pupils go to the Parkdale, Prince of Wales and Hillcrest school after they have been assembled in this building. By September 1962, home economics and industrial arts rooms will be ready for use, and it may be decided that the remaining handicraft classes for the north and north areas of the city will meet here.

Parkdale School — This building will open at the first of September with all classrooms filled. Provided the first year pupils of the kindergarten will operate here.

Prince Charles School —Little change is expected here, except that the number of classrooms next year will be used, and that all grade 7 and 8 pupils now in the Queen Mary-Prince Charles district will attend this building. Kindergarten and primary children attended Queen Mary School.

Prince of Wales School—The second positive step toward establishing this building as a junior school will be taken at September 1962. All grade 6 children will now attend the King George School and this building will begin to take over some of the junior responsibilities of the southern part of the Hillcrest district.

Queen Alexandra School — The organization will remain relatively unchanged.

Queen Elizabeth School — Little change may be expected except that a somewhat larger number of grade 7 children will now attend the Harry J. Clarke School.

Queen Mary School —Senior school organization will be formulated somewhat as this building takes in the Grade 8 children from Avondale and gives up all grade 7 children to the Prince Charles School.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Winston Churchill Schools — Little change will take place, except that a further movement toward junior organization as a larger number of Grade 7 children attend the Queen Alexandra and Harry J. Clarke Schools.

Careless Driving Charge Is Dismissed

A charge of careless driving against a Trenton man was dismissed in county court yesterday court here Thursday afternoon by Magistrate Jackson.

Gerald Fox appeared several weeks ago charged with careless driving following an accident at the intersection of Highway 401 and North Front Street.

The case had been remanded several times and yesterday argument was heard between R. Graham and Robert Temple for the defence and Crown. Mr. Fox had pleaded not guilty.

The accident involved cars driven by Mr. Fox and Const. Thomas Lawless of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The magistrate said that due to the shabby condition of the highway at the time, there was no blame to be attached to Mr. Fox operated his car in a careless manner.

Fiction Most Valuable

"Keep on reading historical books. They are far more educational."

This is the exhortation of a letter writer in another newspaper, engaged in a controversy with another reader on censorship.

This is a familiar theme. There are many people who regard novels as frivolous. But, if the proper study of mankind is man, it inevitably follows that all the most important books are fiction. Nobody knows any specific human being thoroughly enough to be able to dissect with accuracy all his motives, to outline his doubts and misgivings, to describe his hopes and fears. History will tell us what, with the passing of the years, has come to be generally accepted as the facts of past events. But factual history books can do little more than guess at the motivations of the men and women who played major roles in these events. If we have a historical novel, we may get a brilliant analysis of possible motives, but there is no assurance the author is guessing correctly. Why mix the few known facts with such a large quantity of fiction? The work of pure fiction is much to be preferred, although it may, perhaps, might be pardoned for saying it must), be given an authentic historical setting.

Examples are easy to come by. For instance, one can learn how a communist thinks by reading Lenin's "State and Revolution" or, if it must be a historical book, Trotsky's monumental "History of the Russian Revolution." But we can learn this almost as well by reading Ilya Ehrenburg's "The Fall of Paris" and much more besides, for here is one communist who is no fanatic but who judges with compassion. And Mikhail Sholokhov's "The Don Flows to the Sea" will not only teach one how a Cossack feels, but also will provide more than adequate proof that many of the stories we hear about Russian censorship are as far from the truth as the stories Russians read about the West in Pravda.

The man or woman who confines his or her reading to historical books, believing they alone are educational may learn many facts — and still know little of real value.

U.S. Foreign Aid Program

President Kennedy has submitted a $4,878,000,000 foreign aid program to Congress. Congress is expected to cut the amount — as usual.

This tendency of Congress should not be construed as niggardliness. Many members have sincere doubts as to the effectiveness of the program — and indeed there is ample evidence that in the past vast sums have been misused. In a program of such an extent it would be a miracle if there were not so. Even after the foreign aid programs are pared by Congress, and when full recognition is made of the fact that the U.S. is by far the wealthiest country the world has ever known, the amounts given to assist other countries provide a picture of unequaled generosity.

The amount requested by Kennedy this year is $72,500,000 more than he asked last year. Last year's requested amount was slashed $891,500,000, yet Congress still provided $100,000,000 more for military aid than Kennedy is seeking this year. It is thus clear that Kennedy is putting increased emphasis on the need for economic, as distinguished from military aid.

It is precisely this economic aid which some Congressmen consider open to question. If used to enhance a country's ability to provide for its own citizens, it can do immense good. But, particularly in South-East Asia, in Laos and in South Viet Nam, there have been disturbing stories about the misuse of the funds by small ruling cliques. In such cases this aid defeats its primary purpose, the prevention of the spread of communism, serving to make the poverty-stricken masses more discontented, instead of to reduce their hardships, and thereby, their susceptibility to communist propaganda.

What, No 99-Year Lease?

An interesting case passed through the English law courts a short while ago involving a 38-year old gardener who was charged with being $3,000 in arrears for wife and child maintenance.

The magistrate hearing the case ordered the defendant, who earns $26 a week, to pay off the arrears at the rate of 10 cents a week. This means the wife and child will receive this valued support for the next 81 years.

This must surely qualify as a most outstanding case for long range security benefits, even for the English.

Strictly Personal
Let Us Talk About Taste For a Change

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I commend to your attention an excellent advertisement by Tiffany & Co., which appeared some weeks ago, headlined "Let's Talk About Taste."

The ad began with a declaration of policy: "We at Tiffany's set our own standards, in taste, based on good scientific principles."

It went on: "The unfortunate truth is that fewer and fewer people seem to have an understanding of taste . . . But an overwhelming number think they have, probably because they confuse their personal preferences with taste.

"They say 'I like this' or 'I don't like that,' not realizing that this has nothing whatsoever to do with taste. It is only meaningful if their judgment is based on some knowledge of esthetics. Otherwise they are only expressing their own personal preferences . . .

"Contrary to what you think, taste is not to be acquired; one is not born with it. It is the result of discipline in the realm of esthetics. And one can learn it only by diligent and conducting study, plus much attention."

It is, of course, true that some individuals have a greater aptitude for esthetics, just as others have a greater aptitude for mathematics or for music. But, the great majority of us can acquire a good deal of taste even without any special aptitude for it, if we are interested enough. Many, unfortunately, will not bother to do. Instead, they fall back on their pet personal preferences . . .

"We will not carry anything we don't honestly like, even though there may be a demand for it, if such a thing is not esthetic standards. We un, doubtedly lose a good deal of business because of this, but we promise with this principle. But we will not sell what we consider popular taste. We believe it is just as wrong to sell bad design as it is to sell counterfeit bills."

Some readers may find this ad snobbish or overbearing. I find it refreshingly honest and candid. Admittedly, Tiffany's is a "quality" shop and can afford this haughty attitude. But the ideal of taste is the right, and deserves to have its opinion on "taste" listened to and respected.

When most people shrug off esthetic standards by saying "It's just a matter of taste," they are merely indicating their own laziness and lack of discipline. Taste is a skill to be developed, not a gift to be accepted, any more than professional wintesler will quickly tell you.

Giant Jewel Box Planned

Fort William Times-Journal

Canadians soon are to have the world's largest jewel box containing specimens of more than 70 per cent of the world's known minerals. The jewel box, which will be a giant one, is to be built at the Royal Ontario Museum in the University of Toronto. The collection will include precious nuggets of gold, crystal clusters, blocks of silver and colored minerals which will be enhanced by dramatic lighting effects. Diamonds will be in a darkened gallery.

The exhibit will illustrate the variety and richness of the raw materials that make up the earth's crust, and the part they play in modern life. Museum officials say that collections of mineral specimens, and examples of minerals in all parts of the world make use of its department of mineralogy.

Canadians of all ages will find the exhibit especially interesting as mineral prospecting has become a popular hobby and many "rock-hound" clubs all over the country.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR EARL L. DOUGLASS

REVITALIZATION

Have you ever gone to bed with a day and come to the end so exhausted that you felt all you wanted to do was to crawl into bed and sleep the clock around? Then suddenly exhausting disappears. You are filled with new strength. Vitality and zest have again laid hold upon you. You have been revitalized.

This is a phenomenon of nature for which we can indeed bless the Good God. When energy is exhausted at one level, suddenly new reservoirs are tapped, new sources opened up. The life, which was dark as a moment becomes light. The mind which was overcast and discouraged becomes hopeful. The life which was broken is healed. We feel like the lame man healed by the Apostle Peter, who "leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple walking and leaping, and praising God." (Acts 3:8).

This phenomenon of revival is something on which we can depend. It is not at just what it will come or how it will manifest itself, but the capacity is there. When all seems lost, the possibility of victory dawns, and the discouragement of hours like thunderous as sunset into insensibility, we suddenly raise our heads and to the world about us is full of brightness.

We have been revitalized. The capacity for revitalization is part of our natural endowment. But behind it all is the loving, gracious hand of God.

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all" (I John 1:5), all closer together. And they

Through the initiative and foresight of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Canadians will be able to show their appreciation of the gallant stand being made by their Australian cousins, through the gift of a Hurricane fighter plane. The gift will be an all-Canada one, and the National Executive, remembering the generous response with which members responded to the call for $150,000 for a hospital ship in 1940, has undertaken, in the name of the Order, to send the plane overseas.

The 1942 muskrat season for the district north of Nos. 7 and 14 highways will open this Saturday, it was announced this morning by Lands and Forests Inspector, Mr. Herb McCabe. Prospects for a good fur season for this district are bright, with exceedingly bright according to Mr. McCabe who adds that the snowfall of mild winter was favorable for the population of muskrats next year.

Costumes designed not only for their utility and comfort but for their style, "flair" which they gave the spirit, were introduced at the fourth annual fashion show of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary held in the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday, in shades that rivelled the flowers of Spring, in styles that were casual or conforming to occasion demanded, and within every accessory and costume detail blending perfectly, the fashions were presented by local firms according with the Auxiliary and were modelled by charming Belleville young ladies.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DULL, DRAB DAYS

When, as sometimes happens, drab days roll by, one after another, with no sunshine break between, any one of us is apt to feel just a little gloomy, not up to our best. We crave companionship, the meeting and greeting of a sit such times that the cheerful person's premium value is appreciated by those who are strong and whom discouragements and "dulls" and days" do not upset and disturb.

We can appraise the fine personality best when the clouds are heavy and the sky.

Then we can best appreciate the friend, or associate, who is strong and unmoved when trouble comes. The fact is we often do not give enough credit to those who mean the most to us. We are apt to discount them until we find ourselves in the fog. Then we see their light and move their way.

The dull, drab days draw us together. And they help us to understand human nature better, and to live more wisely when the sun comes out.

From every emergency comes good. The dull days are backgrounded with a full experience of the gifts of others. And some of these gifts have been bitter ones. But all were taken in good heart and by what each was worth.

And, after all, we gain happiness in proportion to our ability to appraise the values in this life.

If we try to trouble and try to find joy in living problems, when they come to us, we are liable to experience depression and heart failure.

The dull, drab days come to us as teachers. Just bear in mind that the sun still shines right above these clouds!

In the troubled heart there may always be hidden the courage to keep up one's spirit, and "the red badge of courage."

Sympathy For Toronto

Winnipeg Tribune

Gina confesses she loves Italy more than Toronto.

This calls for sympathy. Although it must be difficult for Canadians to think of Toronto in terms of love, we should at least not gloat over a rejected suitor.

It was only in 1960 that Toronto with jubilation announced that Miss Lollobrigida was to make her home there. Indeed, at that time, the affair seemed a trifle one-sided. Indeed, Gina appeared a modest if not retiring personality. Her movements were muted in contrast to the reckless and tasteless avowals of Toronto promoters. They placed her ahead of the swine section of the Royal Winter Fair as a "prospective citizen" and in her personality they saw an opportunity to add some grace to a sprawling metropolis dominated by the rugged aridness of the Rockies.

Though Gina's stay in Toronto was brief, it is now known that her international film commitments would keep her away from home for months at a time. Things hadn't quite reached the stage where the Toronto papers could report "Local actress wins $1 million Hollywood bid," but no doubt they would have got around to it.

Now, fully in the spirit of unregimented but reclaimed Its own, the beautiful brunette and sometimes-citizen of Gina Rome she announced "I'm 100 per cent Italian. I love Italy." And with that Toronto's rhapsody ended.

Welensky Needs Taming

Montreal Star

One of the consequences of the new British proposals for the Central African Federation is that they have smoked out Sir Roy Welensky, its prefabricator. Roy has announced that he will protect "his" federation by force if necessary. This gets things fairly well into the open. The Federation, on his own admission, is not his, never has been, and we suspect, never will be.

Welensky loves the Federation of his inchoate territory more than he loves Africa. Although natives outnumber whites by 24 to one, the legislature which he helped to create gives native members out of a total of 59 only 16 seats. On the other hand, there are sound and efficient reasons for keeping arthritis from disabling us.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is peptic ulcer the same as one in the duodenum? My husband has suffered for 11 years but the condition is still present. He is not getting any better. I know he has a mild anemia but won't give him any medication for this. He is 47 years old and weighs 108 pounds. I have wondered if he could be helped. — Mrs. R.G.

To Your Good Health
Some Staph Germs Develop A Resistance to Drugs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the danger of staph infection? Is it true that it is dangerous for pregnant women or the mother of children who have had the infection to be attended? How can one know when one is over the infection? — Mrs. G.T.

A staph (or staphylococcus) infection is very particularly different from any of the common infections we encounter; with this big exception — certain strains have developed resistance to the antibiotic "wonder drugs."

Keep in mind, however, that there are differing strains of this family of germ. Some yield more readily than others.

The staph germs tend to linger on the skin and in the nose. They are responsible for a good many boils and (in) of that nature. They do not, however, cause some specific problems, such as scarlet fever, measles, liver disease and so on.

Once a person may pick up staph germs from someone who is infected, but this is not likely if he takes the usual precautions about things as keeping the hands clean and disposing of used dressings, etc.

Thus there is no reason why a pregnant woman or mother would in any way harm her baby by caring for it, even though there has been a staph infection in the family.

In general, we can assume that after a staph infection has healed, the body has managed to rid of the germ. I say "probably" because it is possible for people to be "carriers" of the germ without getting an active infection themselves. But there is no practical way of identifying these people.

This possibility, however, is one of the very good reasons for avoiding antibiotics as a caring for newborn babies and of refusing to accept platoons of antibiotics for minor colds or slight bystow harmful germs.

What's what, I and I meant It at least in part to keep people from wasting money on illegal drugs. On the other hand, there are sound and effective drugs for keeping arthritis from disabling us.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have written that there is no cure for arthritis, but treatment do you recommend? — F.B.S.

Mrs. Molner's answer: Arthritis is a term that has come to mean different things to different people. To some it is simply a stiffness of the joints. To others it is pain. To still others it is deformity. Some people have a mild anemia but won't give him any medication for this. He is 47 years old and weighs 108 pounds. I have wondered if he could be helped. — Mrs. R.G.

THE PACKSACK

Small boys who hate water in basins and bathtubs display a new extraordinary affection for water in puddles. And the prime thing in puddles, as in attractive they are. Now that the puddle season is at hand, it is interesting to watch boys at a school so that you can stand in the window and observe the phenomenon.

The normal unit of small boys in any route to or from school is usually four or five. They go marching in close order. The unit of five, proceeding in tight formation, body to body or shoulder to shoulder, consistently rotates, as the electrons of the atom are said to do. Each help leading one instant, another the next, the leader sometimes walking backward, for the moment. They gyrate as they march, and when they come to a puddle, some principle of physics, particularly that of momentum, hits unit. The five fall in line, single file; and with a whoop and a holler for world Communism.

Instead of use, not only in the West but in Russia and the neutral lands, can only pray the Lord to deliver us from such men.

The March meeting of the Belleville District Council was held at Christ Church Parish Hall with the president, Mr. P. Pickering presiding. Members present included Mr. Walker, Mr. L. Andrews, Mr. R. D. Arnold, Mr. F. J. Lancaster, Mrs. P. Gelsthorpe, Mrs. D. McDonald, Mr. H. Oecomore, Mr. D. Stewart, O. Cubmaster Mrs. Mercier, Mr. J. Burley, Mr. J. Grower, Mr. Heard, Mr. D. Kennedy, Mr. L. Morrison and District Commissioner Mr. M. Maw. Representatives from 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 8th, 9th, 15th, 16th, 19th, C47 were also present.

Mr. L. Andrews gave the treasurer's report and also as chairman of the swimming was happy to report that 81 boys, of which 36 were beginners, attended last Saturday's "Y" swim. He requested that more help is needed for supervision.

Mr. P. Gelsthorpe reported that all groups are shaping fine for the training with a slight weakness showing on the new uniform side. He also gave a lengthy report on the quota. Registrations are coming in for the Bayonaise Camp. Mr. Lancaster suggested that all groups register as early as possible so as to be sure they will get the dates they desire. This is on a first come, first served basis. Guide have accepted. An invitation to a combined Sunday service on May 27th.

Mrs. P. Gelsthorpe, president of the District Committee, reported that the Bridge Street Ladies' Scout Auxiliary served lunch to the Scouters at a Scouters' course. The officers of the 18th Belleville Parkdale Scout Auxiliary were installed at their February meeting. The District Committee executive will hold a joint meeting with the executive of 3rd St. Michael's Scout Auxiliary to complete plans for their annual pot-luck supper to be held at St. Michael's auditorium on May 3, at 6.30 p.m., to which all Scout Auxiliary members of Belleville and district are invited to attend.

All Scouting publicity must go through Mr. H. Oecomore, 13 Chalkland Crescent, Belleville, and Mrs. Dave McDonald, Box 122, Belleville, before it is submitted to the press. A good job was done on the past Sunday on Scouting by J. Devine and D-C Maw on the radio. Mr. H. Oecomore expressed appreciation to the Ontario Intelligencer and radio CJBQ for their wonderful co-operation and support in publicizing Scouting in the district.

District Commissioner M. Maw moved that the following be accepted: Linda Jones, ACM, Fred Ethier ACM, Albert Clark ACM, all of the First; G. Fox ASM 11th, A Globe SM 19th; Ray Dearborn ASM, Mrs. Reid, ASM, both of Avondale; to the district staff, K. Jenkinson DSM, Fred Latham, training. Alf Murray, Rover Skipper, and Joe Whittle, attended the Rovers' conference at Brampton, Ont. Scout week was a success. One box has been recommended to attend the patrol leaders' conference to be held in Scotland this coming summer. A committee has been formed to select a representative to attend the Greece Jamboree. There was considerable discussion on dates for cub-scout camp-o-ree. Members should be present if they wish to voice their opinion on this matter. The District Council meets every second Monday of the month.

Mr. W. O. Wallers, chairman of the 1961 annual "Scout Get-Together," reported that he and his committee held a meeting recently and completed plans for this gal-a event. The dinner and dance will be held on Monday, April 30th, at Club Canara. Dinner will be from 6.45 to 9.00, dancing 9.00 to 11.00 p.m., with the Carl Gilbert Orchestra. All tickets $2.00 on first come first served basis, and cash on ordering tickets. Mr. Lew Andrews, WO 2-0080, is in charge of the tickets. Last year's get-together was a great success and it is anticipated there will be even a larger turnout with only 300 tickets available. Wives, Scouters, committeemen and Rovers are all invited on a the same basis. There will be a turkey dinner and prizes. Dress will be uniform, shorts optional. It is hoped that the groups will help offset the cost of the tickets for the Scouters, as they do give a lot of time and effort to the boys, and this is the night to show a little appreciation, and a big "thank-you" must go to them.

Heart Disease Costs Canada Over $80 Million Annually

TORONTO — There are more than 1,400,000 Canadians suffering from some sort of heart disease. More than 30,000 of these are seriously disabled. The Ontario Heart Foundation calculates the total annual economic loss due to heart disease in Canada at over $80 million.

Research to combat this disease has brought important new knowledge towards understanding many of the factors that contribute to heart and blood vessel diseases in 1961.

With high-speed photography and a new technique for introducing X-ray opaque dye directly into the coronary arteries that supply the heart muscle, scientists are now able to take split-second movies of the blood flow through the arteries. The films pinpoint disease areas, opening the way for more specific forms of treatment.

Blood vessel surgery using a microscope holds promise that one day the coronary arteries and their small branches may be successfully replaced or repaired.

Surgeons have developed new techniques for repairing or replacing weakened or obstructed arteries with patches and grafts made of dacron and other synthetics.

New drugs that dissolve clots within blood vessels are being tested in the hope of combating strokes, heart attacks and other disorders caused by abnormal clot formation.

The Ontario Heart Foundation is currently administering research projects at Queen's University, the University of Western Ontario and through the University of Toronto at the Best Institute, the Toronto General Hospital, St. Michael's Hospital and the Toronto Western Hospital as well as the extensive research program at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Heart research has already provided the knowledge needed for a vaccine to prevent heart attacks, proven rheumatic fever, control most cases of high blood pressure, repair damaged heart valves, correct congenital defects through heart surgery, develop heart-lung machines and perfect drugs which reward blood clotting.

The current annual death toll from heart ailments in Canada is 69,878 — almost as many as all other diseases put together. National Health Week, March 11th to 17th, is the time to remember the hundreds of Canadians working daily for the future health of all Canadians. It is also the time to reorganize one's family's health program and resolve to take all the preventive measures to safeguard all year round.

National Health Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada, is now in its 19th consecutive year.

Apart from the estimates, the legislature Thursday also heard Lands and Forests Minister Spooner introduce a bill which would, in effect, require Trans-Canada Pipe Lines to pay about $250,000 in land taxes dating back to 1958.

Mr. Spooner explained outside the legislature that the company has refused to pay taxes on parts of its Mag which traverse unorganized areas having a school section. The company contends the areas are not municipalities.

Company Beats Spring Breakup In Moira River

The Beaver Construction Company has beaten the spring break-up in the Moira River.

During the past winter the Montreal firm has been laying a sanitary sewer main in the river bed immediately to the north of its Canadian Pacific Railway bridge.

To allow for the necessary rock excavation coffer dams were required to hold out the river and one of the requirements of the firm's contract was that river obstructions be removed prior to the spring break-up.

During the past two weeks the firm has been working overtime to speed completion of the river crossing project.

The earthen coffer dam in the river has now been removed and the annual spring breakup of the river is apparently still some days away.

Bridge Street East, between Front and Pinnacle Streets has temporarily become a one-way street as the south lane of the street was blocked off yesterday to prevent any accident resulting from the possible collapse of the debris left by the fire at the Ben Sabo block.

City Engineer Malcolm Thornbull stated the burned out debris was filled with ice and with warmer temperatures now prevailing there was danger of the debris collapsing onto the street.

The engineer expected the street barricade would remain in place until something was done about cleaning up the debris.

Members of city council on several occasions since the fire have urged further precautionary measures along the Bridge Street block pending cleaning up the debris from the fire

St. Joseph's PG Plans Easter Tea

The March meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council of the C.W.L. was held in St. Joseph's (Parish) Hall. Mrs. V. Muldoon, the president, welcomed the ladies and the opening prayer was led by the director, the Rev. J. J. V. Buckley.

Mrs. E. Hillsig, education convener, read a list of scholarships and bursaries which are available to Belleville students. A copy of this list may be obtained from Mrs. Hillsig.

A report by the Hospital Parish was burnt out recently and a motion was passed that cash donations from the Council be made.

The annual communion breakfast will be held at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Sunday, April 3 after the 8 a.m. Mass. Members may obtain tickets from the executive until March 20th. There will be no tickets sold after that date.

Mrs. H. Clarke, spiritual convener advised that there are 13 study clubs and several C.P.M. groups active in the parish.

CITIZENSHIP FATHER

The Civic Action committee of the C.W.L. has sponsored the father of a family for citizenship. The family, because of illness, was unable to raise the amount necessary for the application. It was noted first the C.W.L. is the first organization in Belleville to do this.

The annual "Easter Tea" will be held in the April at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The "Tea" will be convened by Mrs. H. Carr-Brant and the hospitality committee.

The April meeting will be a nomination meeting. Members are asked to fill in the nominating form and return them to Mrs. G. Walsh, 28 Woodland Acres, no later than March 30th. The nominating committee includes Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. J. Canty and Mrs. M. Barker.

A previous motion, made at the June, 1959, meeting, was rescinded and now reads "That a High Mass will be said in the Parish Church at the request of St. Joseph's Council for any deceased lady of the Parish".

Father Buckley presented another in the series of "Truth Tapes". The doctored contained the ten-word fault of husbands, the ten words faults of wives, the dangerous years of marriage and "My Lap is Empty".

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be With Shower

FRANKFORD — A miscellaneous shower was held March 12 at the home of Mrs. Walter Stewart with Mrs. Bob Schriver as co-hostess in honor of Miss Helen Hall, daughter of Mrs. Edna Hall and the late Mr. Fred Hall.

Pink and white streamers with white bells decorated the living room for the occasion. The honored guest's chair was decorated with pink and white streamers and underneath was a large white wedding bell.

During the evening the ladies composed a bride's book after which contests and games were enjoyed.

After opening her many gifts, Helen thanked her relatives and friends for their kindness.

'Immigrants' Needs' Told At WMS Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held Tuesday afternoon, opening with prayer by the president, Mrs. W. M. Barlow.

This being the season of Lent when individuals "give up" certain things for that period prior to the celebration of Easter, a fitting and timely verse from the World Christian Digest was read by Mrs. Barlow, entitled "What To Give Up For Lent".

"Give up grumbling . . . Instead in everything give thanks; give up ten or fifteen minutes in bed . . . instead, use that time to pray; give up looking at people's worst points . . . instead concentrate on their best points; give up speaking unkindly . . . instead let your speech be generous and understanding; give up your worries . . . instead trust God with them; give up hatred or dislike of anyone . . . instead learn to love; give up concentrating on looking at newspapers . . . instead study your Bible; give up a few dollars each a week . . . instead visit some lonely or sick person; give up criticizing . . . instead count your many blessings".

Mrs. H. Yorke reporting for the Welcome and Welfare Committee said that the hospital patients had been made during the month past. Sunshine also reported that having visited otherwise "shut-in" members of the church.

The topic for discussion of study at this meeting had to do with "The Immigrants Needs' Section", and was in charge of Mrs. W. Mantle and group, and began with Mrs. W. H. McConnell reading Matthew 25 from the Gospel of John 4-7-11. Mrs. F. Douglas led in prayer.

Mrs. Mantle introduced the subject of immigration as "the importance of a friendly 'hello' and a friendly smile as newcomers come to the land, giving them some reassurance that here is someone who is interested in their welfare and a friend whenever needed".

Mrs. D. Elvidge took the listeners on a imaginary visit to the Immigration Department Office giving an account of the many ways in which the Canadian Government assists and guidance to the immigrant, such as those who are helping them understanding Canadian ways; obtaining work and finding a home; with the reuniting of loved ones soon and we are not sure how, especially in cases of illness with which to contend. Their problems are legion and a kindly helpful attitude by all is sincerely appreciated by them.

Mrs. Mantle introduced Mrs. F. Parsons who discussed "absorbing the immigrants" Canadian Citizen people are heard to remark, especially in days of more than normal unemployment that immigrants take jobs away from Canadians" and that work and in addition, bring with them much of value in the cultural field; in business in industry and in science as well as in many other ways.

Listeners were reminded that to put oneself in the place of the immigrant would be of immeasurable help in developing the proper attitude. Mrs. Parsons ended her talk with the reading of a lovely poem "The Touch of the Master's Hand".

MUSICAL INTERLUDE

Just prior to the beginning of the study period, a pleasant musical interlude was enjoyed by everyone when Mrs. Ivan Rollins and Mrs. Mantle accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. Boyce, kindly favored with a duet "How Great Thou Art".

At the close of a pleasant and interesting meeting, members enjoyed a social half-hour over a cup of tea.

Portraits of Scandinavia Charm Large Audience at Collegiate

Meeting with every artistic requisite; perfect in composition; deeply interesting in subject and surpassingly lovely in color content were the enchanting "Portraits of Scandinavia" as presented last evening at the Collegiate auditorium by the co-photographers, Curtis Nagel and William Moore.

Curtis Nagel, who was introduced by Joe Knudsen, Mr. Gerald Shatzel, and who in turn introduced William Moore, is one of the most accomplished film-lecturers, added greatly to the delightfulness of the colorlogue by his running commentary. Prior to his photographic work in the film field, he was co-producer of the epic film, "Thor," which won an Academy Award. For five years in succession Mr. Nagel won the Oscar. With his assistant, Mr. Moore, they have produced 16 colorlogues.

SCANDINAVIA

Scandinavian portraits is one of the most delightful things ever produced by man, portrays Denmark, Sweden and Norway in all their charming beauty bringing back to reality the days of the Vikings, those intrepid sea rovers of the world.

These three countries, backed by Switzerland mountains, topped with eternal snows are the homes of 16,000,000 happy people, among whom are many quaint villages and towns, and fair cities that are delightful to remember. About 22,000 Scandinavians are living in Canada, many of whom retain their artistic talents, and lovely customs.

Beginning with Denmark, at its capital, Copenhagen, the film view opens with the beautiful flag, a white cross on a red background. Then the flame of the royal guard is seen in the breeze. The city is spotlessly clean and noted for its beautiful parks, gardens and its old castles, especially that of Elsinore Castle, with battlements and towers with cannon pointing over the distant valley. Shakespeare's tragedy, "Hamlet" was laid in Elsinore Castle, to mind that this is where Hamlet met his father's ghost. Shakespeare's tragedy immortalized.

The former King, Christian, was interested in architecture, and planned beautiful buildings, with streets as wide, and massed with bicycles. About 500,000 cycles and scooters are owned by the natives and to see these literally filling the streets each one has a right to ride's destination, and occupation, loaded sometimes with two passages, fills one with wonderment how accidents appear to be so few.

The changing of the guard at the castle was most picturesque; the soldiers in their pale blue trousers, dark coats and tall fur hats marching in perfect step, everyone matching the height of his companion.

BEAUTIFUL HARBORS

Other scenes included Copenhagen's beautiful harbors, and canals which wind through the city; the grand costumes of the people; the chimney sweep with his bundle of brushes; a tall slim lad, who could be carefully set aside on the top of chimney ledge before beginning his dusty work; she shopping centre with each store having its own specialty; the open air dice hanging outside, so one could see at a glance the many jewellery stores were by their golden crowns, the boot store by the giant boot, and the millinery store by its hat.

Copenhagen is also noted for the beautiful gardens, with lovely flowers; sandy beaches filled with bathers and life guards watching the sand bathers more than the water bathers. Other scenes were of the Danish folk dances, resembling quadrilles; the modern square dance; but with more colourful clothing, with reds predominating.

In Denmark's oldest city of Ribe, the storks build their nests high up on the tall chimneys and towers returning to warmer climes during the winter.

GROTESQUAL ART

At Frogner Park, were shown the works of the sculptor Vigeland whose grotesque works depicted human evil tendencies; the tree of life, and the mounment of human figures writhing and squirming their massed ways to the top of human endeavour.

African Slides Enjoyed at WI Meeting

Wednesday, the members of Canniton-Cordyville W.I. were hosts to the members of Park-hill W.I. at a meeting which was held in the Canniton United Church at Canniton. Those present, 74 in all, were treated to a repast that was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

After the tables were cleared away, Mrs. Sellwood, president, called the meeting to order and introduced the speaker, Mr. Harry Whitton, who showed pictures of his summer spent in Africa. The colourful films were only surpassed by the interesting yoking words of the speaker which spoke of the great variety of these people, which he has so devotedly taken to his heart. Those men left feeling grateful for all the blessings enjoyed each day.

Mrs. Silsworth thanked the speaker and gave him a cash honorium, which he assured would be put to a good use.

The Parkdale ladies expressed their thanks for an enjoyable evening.

Shrimp Fiesta

Shrimp Fiesta needs only a green vegetable or a generous salad as an accompaniment. It's easy and delicious. Shrimp, shellfish, onion, green pepper and condensed cream of mushroom soup combine with garlic, parsley, pimiento and flavored biscuits.

¼ cup snapped onion, 3 tables spoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup, undiluted, 3 tablespoons milk, ½ pound cooked shrimp (approximately 1 cup), 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, 1 teaspoon Heinz Worcestershire Sauce, 1½ cups grated sharp cheese, package directions for rolled biscuits), 1-3 cup chopped pimiento, ½ cup grated Canadian cheddar.

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Sauté onion and pepper in butter until tender. Add soup and milk, a ingredients, heat. Pour into 2-quart casserole. Roll biscuit dough into 12 rectangles. Spread with shrimp mixture, pimiento and cheese. Roll lengthwise, jelly-roll fashion, and cut into 1-inch slices. Place on top of shrimp mixture. Bake 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

MOUNT PLEASANT—RAWDON

RAWDON—The March meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church Women was held at the church hall on Thursday afternoon with 24 ladies, several pre-school children, and the pastor the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, in attendance.

The president welcomed the group and Mrs. Don Knight presided over the program. Mrs. Garth Foulds was organist. Mrs. Marguerite McMullen read the Bible lesson and the meditation was centred on the theme, "What is the task of the church?" The Unit 4 & 5 catechism says "The Church is called to worship God, to watch over and care for all within her fellowship, to preach the gospel to all mankind, to minister to the needy to wage war on evil and to strive for right relations among men." Mrs. Robert H. Hoard contributed a vocal selection. The convener Mrs. Knight presented the chapter on "Family Life" which told of the difficulties of family life since 1939, the high cost of living, and the increase of crime. Canada's population has increased by 7 million and approximately 25 percent of the population moves annually. Every church member has a job to do in helping to make a better world. Mrs. Knight read a heritage of home life along with actual hardship, yet from such homes came many noble women of character with strong faith and convictions to carry on through.

Mrs. Grant Hubble read the story of, Frank' Edwards and Mrs. Ross Pound read two. Later he found a home in a suburban residence and met the men and women in 18 Unit, ed Church Homes for approximately 600 senior citizens are over 70 years of age.

Mrs. Milford Wrightman conducted the business period. Minutes were read by the secretary Mrs. Will McAdam read the list of members and Mrs. Ernest Brownell read 14 in the treasury. Mrs. Gordon Linn gave an outline of the work of the Presbyterial meeting and Mrs. Kenneth Weever announced that Mrs. Robert Hoard and Mrs. Robert Hoard and Mrs. Percy Mills were delegates.

At the close refreshments were served by Mrs. R. Spencer Mrs. F. Sarles and committee.

FRANKFORD UNITED

FRANKFORD — Unit 1 of Frankford United Church Women was held at Mrs. Jack Reid's home on March 9 in the afternoon with 25 members present.

Mrs. S. Lewis, president, welcomed the members. Psalm 117 was read. Mrs. Jodd read the Scripture, Psalm 96 and Ephesians 2:5-8 and Mrs. Reid led in prayer. Mrs. Preston Chase led in meditation, followed by prayer by Mrs. Lewis.

Mrs. P. Chase gave a talk on the dues. Mrs. F. Rabel gave suggestions and readings for the coming year. A pot-luck dinner and quilting will take place later in March in Rose Lowery Hall.

Mrs. S. Lewis received a vote of thanks for a get-well card.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Carlie Bennett and convener and included a reading, "Lent," by Mrs. C. Bennett; Mrs. A. Silsbe gave the study book, Signals for the Sixties: reading, "Explaining the Day" by Mrs. H. Scott; Morrow: reading, "Peace Out of the Storm" from "Hasten the Day" by Mrs. H. Scott.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the committee.

'Mothers, God's Architects' Says Guest Speaker at CWL

By VERA WINSTON

Nowadays there's a wide variety of coats, from capes to Chesterfields and in a variety of fabrics that are right for any weather, fair or foul.

Water-repellent wool jersey that is also crease-resistant is the fabric of this coat that would be a highly useful travel companion.

Cut on simple, fluid lines, it would be right for almost any type of figure. It comes in pale blue with two tones of blue for the border trim.

Kinette Club Plans Future Special Events

TWEED — The Tweed Kinette Club held their regular dinner meeting at Tweedsmuir Hotel on Monday evening with president Kathy Moffat in charge.

After the business session final arrangements were made for the Kinsmen Zone Ladies' Night Dinner Dance to be held in Stoco Manor Hotel, Saturday, March 26th, Kinette Ellen Monaghan is the convener.

The Tweed Kinettes, along with the Tweed Hydro Electric System are sponsoring a "Home Showtime" to be held at St. Carthagh's Hall, Monday, April 11, at 7.30 p.m. Tickets are now on sale from all members of the Tweed Kinette Club and Kinette Helen McCallum is convener of this affair.

Kinette Margaret Johnston is in charge of the spring rummage sale to be held in the Memorial Hall on April 27 and 28th.

Kinette Margaret Rupert gave a report on the Perth Winter Carnival on March 3, in which Tweed's Snow Queen, Joan Dorman, had entered along with her court Misses Dorothy Hubbard and Lorraine Hardwood. Miss Dorman and all of her court members were awarded $25 by the Perth Kinsmen Club Commerce. Misses MacLean and Lockwood will be presented with $3 each on behalf of the Tweed Kinette club for acting as hostesses to both at the runners-up.

The next club meeting is being held on the April meeting.

Draw prizes were won by Ruth Crawford and Eileen Monaghan.

WI Holds Successful Conference

STIRLING — On March 7th, West Hastings District Women's Institutes entertained at a district conference at Rivar Valley school kitchen with 36 members in attendance from seven branches — Chesterton, Percy-grove, Stirling, Tweed, Sidney South, Wallbridge and there were 14 members of Rivar Valley, the hostess branch.

Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada conducted the conference based on Institute procedure. The arrangements were in charge of the district president Mrs. Percy MacMullen and she displayed various posters in keeping with Institute work.

The guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Roy Bush, a past district president and the brench presidents Mrs. Kenneth Myers.

The delegates provided their own box lunch at noon. Mrs. John Keene and Mrs. Philip Conley served a variety of relish trays and coffee at noon and at 4 pm, fruit bread and coffee was served.

This was the first conference of this nature held in this area and those in attendance were well pleased with the venture.

UCW Units Discuss Coming Events

DESERONTO — A combined meeting of the two units of the Deseronto United Church Women was held in the Sunday School rooms in March 8th. Mrs. Luther Gayjord had charge of the devotional period, and had as her main theme, "Living Moment By Moment."

The president, Mrs. Gaynor Rendall, took the chair for the business period. Coming events for the year were discussed and planned. These include a St. Patrick's tea in March; rummage sales in May and November; a strawberry social in June; a picnic in August; a turkey supper in October and a bazaar and tea in December.

The program committee was asked to send for more literature on Christian citizenship study.

An interesting film with sound was shown, "Beyond the Bell," after which the members were divided into groups to answer questions on the film.

Thirty members were present. The next joint meeting was set for May 17 at 2.30 p.m.

Tea was served by the committee in charge.

Is the Family a Dying Institution Study Conducted at UCW Meet

The Afternoon Unit of College Hill U.C.W. met in the church on Wednesday afternoon with the Unit leader, Mrs. A. Dobbens, in charge. The meeting opened with the theme hymn followed by devotions, closing at Mrs. A. Greenwood and Mrs. E. Neal.

The theme of devotions was based on Lent with "steadfast" as the keynote. The speaker drew attention to the fact that "Jesus steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem" knowing what the future held for him but that it was what God had planned.

He pointed out how far some people are from being steadfast in their duties to the church when so many trivial things get in the way of fulfilling the church duties.

Mrs. Dickson at this point welcomed all present and asked for the roll call. Fourteen sick calls were reported. The regular business was attended to and the social convener reported the final plans for the turkey supper to be held March 21st; also a wedding to be catered for. Contributions were also brought in for the Dorcas quilt.

It was announced that this Unit would be hosting at the County Home on April 18th.

At the conclusion of the business session, Mrs. C. Bailey conducted the study period, the subject "Is the Family a Dying Institution?" "When family life in the church appears united and harmonious, the outside picture is no' so encouraging with the divorce rate the highest since 1946 and crime increasing at an alarming rate.

Every church member has a job to do even if it is only a word or look that may influence some person or people who must labor over the affairs of Canada. A responsibility of the turn of this century was the family gathered around the table for a period of devotion and family worship. Today's home life, with all the material distractions, leaves too little time for meditation and spiritual influence.

"If the family fails to teach the meaning of love, concern for others, Christian principles then it has shirked its primary duty. Spiritual values, above, beyond and outlasting material standards of living; are essential."

At the close of this period, refreshments were served during a social half hour, by Mrs. A. May and Mrs. G. Jenkinson, bringing to a close an enjoyable afternoon.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I am a bachelor and I love to cook and bake. I read your column every day and have gleaned many good recipes from it. There are a few questions I would like to ask you about making a butter sponge:

a) Should one cream butter and sugar until the crystal form of the sugar has disappeared? b) How long do you spend creaming butter and sugar by hand and how long by electric table mixer and at what speed? c) Is six to seven minutes long enough to beat egg whites? d) How long do you beat egg yolks? e) How many strokes of the spatula should one use in folding in dry ingredients into egg whites? f) Into butter sponge? I would very much like to have a recipe for a good trifle using sherry. If you have one I would appreciate it if you would be so kind as to pass it on to me. I would realy like to bake a trifle sponge for my baking so if you have any other hints on trifles you appreciate, them. Thanking you for all the good recipes you have passed on to me through your column — "Bachelor".

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY

ANSWER:

Your letter delighted me because it is such a comfort to hear from anyone — particularly a man — who seeks perfection in his baking. I gleefully insert for the edification of some readers that a butter sponge is an English term for plain 2 or 3-egg butter cake. Eggs in a sponge cake, as Canadian cooks think of it, as butterless sponge cake. Answers are in order of your asking. a) Yes, 10 minutes. Five to seven minutes at high speed. b) Ten minutes at medium speed. c) Don't count strokes — but use minimum number to incorporate dry ingredients until all flour disappears.

ENGLISH TRIFLE:

Use sponge cake (about standard size or 24 store-bought lady fingers) for the cake part of trifle. Cut cake in fingers, soak cake or lady fingers in about 4 ounces of sherry (or orange, juice). Carefully arrange in glass bowl. If desired dot with red jelly or black currant jelly. Pour over chilled

CUSTARD:

Two cups milk, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Spread 1 cream currant jelly. Scald the milk. Mix the cornstarch, sugar and salt and add to the hot milk, stirring until smooth. Cook for about half an hour in double boiler, until the yolks of cornstarch remains. Stir in the beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Cook a few minutes longer, constantly, until the cass thicken. Chill. Garnish top with floret unsweetened whipped cream and dot prettily with dabs of currant jelly. Serves 8.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. J.M — He should call a halt to acting as best man at weddings.

Andrew M.— I can't turn my friends down. It's a great honor.

Mrs. J. M. — Enough is enough. Andy's acted as best man eight times since last June, and now a new request is in for this coming June, I want him to refuse it.

It's true he's a natural for the part. He's tall, handsome and extremely popular. But he's still a college student, earning nothing, and the whole rigmarole is expensive, with the expenses paid by me each time. He must hire formal clothes, this time a navy-blue tuxedo!

He must act as escort to the maid of honor he gets teamed up with, taking her home and all. And to top it all, there's a wedding gift to buy!

He'd do better to spend his weekends studying, saving money and dating girls he picks himself. Too often a best man never a bridegroom at this rate!

Andrew M. — Here we go again. Each time I'm invited to act as best man for one of the gang, my folks carries a pity about the $30 or $50 it costs, and about how my studies will suffer. Sh, fails to see the compliment extended to me, and its value as an investment in lifelong friendships.

As an example how shortsighted she is, she doesn't object to my spending $15 on a casual weekend date. I'd rather pay dates like that and save up for big occasion, like a pal's wedding. I can't turn Bill down for his big day in June. It means everything to him to have me up there with him. As to girls, his fiancee promises me a bevy of beautiful sorority sisters to pick from.

True, I'm not getting the A's my mother would like to see, but I'm getting by okay. All a boss wants to see is a diploma, nor a report card.

The Council: We agree with Andrew that it's hard to turn down a pal who leaders such a flattering appointment, but we also agree with Mrs. M. in feeling enough is enough.

Since "best men" is supposed to represent the groom's closest buddy, how can Andrew be chosen pal to so many home of the bridegrooms, we suspect, come because, in all, looks good in formals! Evidently he's an accomplished host, as they say he knows it. And he likes the attention. Turning him into best man is, furthermore, a sure-fire way to get him to attend the function. Invited as an ordinary guest, Andy might refuse to come.

The way things look now, Andrew is turning into a professional best man. He's set him a chance to strut, a nice people from his books and acquaintances and a plenty of vitamins for his hungry ego. But it proves that he's not indispensable to the role. Most of those bridegrooms, we'll wager, could have had someone else in the striped pants.

In all fairness to his parents, himself and his friends, Andy should limit his acceptance of best man jobs to one or two people with whom he has established a close, perhaps lifelong, bond. This would be the sincere approach. Unless the bridegroom is that unique category, Andy should beg off certain sacrifices to keep him in college. She has a right to expect him to use these precious years constructively. Out lasting by okay" in school isn't fair return if he has the ability to do outstanding work.

So stop saying yes to every bid, Andy. Choose the harder course of sweating over a term paper. Don't kid yourself. Some bosses do care about marks!

COYNE TO APPEAR

TORONTO (CP)—James E. Coyne, former manager of the Bank of Canada, told reporters Thursday he has accepted an invitation to appear before the royal commission on banking and finance when it holds hearings in Ontario, Mr. Coyne resigned the governor's job last year after a well-aired policy squabble with the government. He now lives here.

Eastminster UCW Plans Future Events

At the March meeting of Eastminster U.C.W., announcements were made concerning the many activities that the ladies plan to undertake. The first of these is a family dessert and coffee party scheduled for this month, further details of which will be in coming events in the church bulletin and on radio. This is a new venture and it is hoped will receive the support of the church and community.

Members also made of catering to two dinners; a spring rummage sale; the packing of the bale for overseas relief; the chicken barbecue in June and the fall tea and bazaar to be held in November.

BOWLING LEAGUE

For recreation the ladies are forming a bowling league to meet each Tuesday morning at ten o'clock at the bowling alleys of the shopping centre. The week of April 23rd will be the week for Eastminster ladies to visit the elderly people at the County Home.

The recipe books compiled by the U.C.W. have been received and were displayed at the meeting. Said to have proved brisk as the ladies crowded around to read the many varied and delicious recipes composed by the men and women of this district.

The business meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. N. Arrendell and the worship service was conducted by Mrs. Morden and Mrs. M. Irwin.

PANEL DISCUSSION

A splendid panel discussion on all phases of "Christian Citizenship" was given by Mrs. F. Morden, Mrs. L. Kline and Mrs. L. Hawken in the conclusion of the discussion, a list of various church committees was read, and individual units and members volunteered to take charge of these projects.

The unit under the leadership of Mrs. Morden served lunch during the social period which concluded the meeting.

EDDIE'S PLANT

The spicy flowers and leaves of the native plant of Eddie's area are added to salads, and are known as Indian cress.

Day of Prayer Service

SHANNONVILLE UNITED HOLY TRINITY ANGLICAN

Approximately 40 women from the Shannonville United Church circuit and the Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Shannonville gathered recently in the United Church in Shannonville for the World Day or Prayer service.

This service takes place annually the first Friday in Lent and was printed in 1070 languages and used in 145 countries.

This year the order of service was prepared by two women in Uruguay, South America on the theme, "God's Love for the Whole World".

Mrs. Asa Cook, president of the Shannonville United Church Women opened the meeting by welcoming all.

Preceding this prayer service Mrs. Cook conducted a short business period.

Mrs. Cook opened the service with the call to worship taking the form of responsive reading. Mrs. Vance presided at the piano as the congregation sang, "O Love of God, How Strong And True!"

The "Act of Confession and Penitence" was led by Mrs. Francis McCullough, of Lonsdale United Church, followed by the singing of hymn "Love Divine All Loves Excelling".

The "Act of Confidence and Assurance" was led by Mrs. Reg Galbraith of Shannonville United Church and the "Act of Thanksgiving" by Mrs. Don Vance, Shannonville United Church was followed by hymn, "And Speak to Me That I May Speak".

The "Act of Intercession" by Mrs. Clare Weese, Melrose United Church. Mrs. Weese prayed for peace; Her Majesty and leaders of the nation; for our own country; for the families; for the needy and for the whole Christian church.

Mr. Douglas Steven gave a brief address, "If God Knows All, Why Pray" His said "Prayer was like a circle, from God to man then back to God".

Mr. Steven closed his address with prayer.

Special music was provided by Misses Marion and Frances Kant singing, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus' accompanied at the piano by Miss Diane Osborne.

Mrs. Sidney Fitzgerald, Shannonville Holy Trinity Church took charge, Mrs. W. Rose and Master Kent received the offering which was dedicated by Mrs. Fitzgerald.

The offering this year will go to help the world's refugees, to produce Christian literature for the non-English speaking people in Canada, for women and children in developing countries around the globe and through the John Milton Society and C.N.I.B. to produce more literature in braille.

After the hymn, "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord, is Ended", Mrs. Fitzgerald pronounced the benediction.

At the conclusion of the service the ladies were invited into the church hall and Mrs. Galbraith and Mrs. Vance with their assistants served a dainty lunch.

Mrs. Grant McLaren, on behalf of the visiting ladies, extended a vote of thanks to the Shannonville ladies for their hospitality.

The next regular meeting will be held April 9, taking the form of a quilting.

Painting Can 'Re-shape' A Room to Your Liking

You can reshape a room as you repaint it. Ceiling too low? Raise it. Room too narrow? Widen it. Or too square? Lengthen it. You can do it with paint — the right color paint.

A small room will look larger when painted a light color, particularly a light, cool color, such as pale blue, lilac, aqua, or blue-green. These colors will recede, making the walls seem farther apart, thus making the room itself appear more spacious.

To increase the size illusion, always paint the woodwork and trim the same color as the walls.

On the opposite side of the coin, deep hues are most flattering to large rooms. Even a sparsely furnished, barn-like room will look friendly and inviting when its walls are penciled a deep, warm hue, such as burnished gold, copper or burgundy red. Woodwork can be painted white or a contrasting color in a spacious room, and should be as it's exceptionally decorative.

What about a long, narrow room — or hall — that resembles a bowling alley? You can make it seem much wider and squarer in shape if you paint the two side walls a light color and the narrow ends a deeper hue. This effect can be achieved by using a tint and shade of the same color, or by combining light and dark contrasting hues. For instance, you could use shell pink and rose or shell pink and turquoise.

DUO-TONE EFFECTS

Even a room can be a real "square". You can create more interest in a box-like room by making one wall the focal point. Select the wall behind the room's most important furnishing. Paint this one wall a contrasting color, or a lighter or deeper shade of the other walls. You might paint one wall bright gold and the remaining walls grey or pale yellow or a deep golden tone.

To make a ceiling look higher, paint it white or a very pale color which is much lighter than the walls. If you wish to make a high ceiling seem lower, use the reverse technique: paint the ceiling a deeper color than the walls.

Attractive features in a room should be accentuated. For example, to spotlight a handsome fireplace, paint it a color that contrasts with the surrounding walls. Or to call attention to a handsome painting, paint the frame a color that blends with the painting, but contrasts with the background wall.

When you wish to divert attention from unattractive features such as pipes and radiators, paint them the same color as their surrounding walls. They will fade into the background.

PAINT SELECTION

If you are going to do your own painting, here's a quick guide to the selection of the proper paints to use on the various surfaces.

New Plaster Walls — two coats of latex paint (also called water-thinned, plastic, rubber base) or one coat of primer sealer followed by alkyd flat enamel.

Previously Painted Plaster Walls —one coat of either latex or alkyd flat. If new paint is yellow or pink, it's advisable to use a coat of pigmented primer sealer first.

Wallboard — seal with one coat of primer sealer, then follow with latex or alkyd.

Hardboard — first seal with latex enamel undercoater, oil or alkyd based primer. Follow with topcoat of choice.

Plywood — seal with penetrating resin sealer, close it too coat is to be varnished. If top coat is wall paint or enamel, use pigmented resin sealer.

Previously Painted Woodwork — gloss or semi-gloss enamel. If color is being changed from dark to light, use enamel undercoat first. . .

New Siding Gives Home 'Face Lift'

Improving an old home with new siding is an investment that can pay big dividends in appearance and protection. Proper planning and the selection of materials plus attention to detail will assure satisfaction with the completed job.

Here are some suggestions pertinent to this important home improvement job that could help home owners considering re-siding this spring:

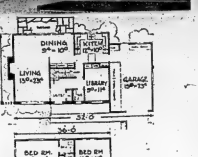
Use competent and experienced workmen. It will pay to deal with an established firm in your city.

Select a siding with one of the modern finishes for lasting low maintenance. For example, manufacturers of that old favorite, asbestos-cement siding, report that new plastic and baked-on enamel finishes are available on this material that will last for years with practically no maintenance cost to the homeowner.

Choose your colors carefully by harmonize with your roof and environment. Most modern siding is now available in a host of colors. A recent survey, for example, showed that asbestos-cement siding comes in more than a hundred shades and hues and that new manufacturing methods insure almost permanent colors without fading for this sidewall material.

Consider having the siding applied in a manner that will accentuate the horizontal shadow line. Ask your applicator about it.

If new gutters and downspouts are to be installed, have them in place before the new siding is put on. This will prevent damage by storm water.



Ask your contractor to explain the several corner treatments possible and choose the one you think is best suited to your house.

BUYS U.N. BONDS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—West Germany, a non-member, announced Wednesday it will buy $10,000,000 of an emergency $200,000,000 United Nations bond issue. The West Germans are not eligible for UN membership because they are considered part of a divided single country but they maintain a permanent observer here.

HOME OF THE WEEK

So very attractive with its beautifully styled exterior, large picture windows, and overhanging roof, this is a home that commands respect. As you walk through the vestibule which includes a coat closet, you enter a huge living room featuring a wonderful fire-place. Included in the L-shaped living-dining area are built-in china cabinets and buffet. Now going into the large, well-planned kitchen and down a short hall to the stable library with closet and storage space and with adjoining laundry, you will see that this design is planned for easy accessibility to all rooms. A large family will like the convenience for four bedrooms upstairs plus the cedar closet and second bath.

Standard Builders' Blueprints costing $97.5 are available in Canada for this Design No. 77 (Ontario residents add 3 per cent sales tax).

Now available at this Newspaper Office is a new Design Book entitled "Home Planning Guide", price 50c. This Book contains over 50 selected Designs, including 1 story, one and half storey, 2 storey, and split level, plus useful information, on Building, Interior Decorating, and Landscaping.

Families Aim At Up-Dating Bathrooms

One of the most common problems in home improvement concerns the bathroom in the older home. With outdated fixtures, and a cold layout, this bath.com can be seriously inconvenient for growing family.

Often a family should really have two bath rooms if children and adults are to enjoy the privacy dedicated by modern, active living. The answer, of course, is modernization and, where possible, addition of a small bathroom.

Bathroom modernization can vary from just the essential replacement of old fixtures to a complete change, including wall and floor coverings, lighting, and room layout.

In the first instance, there is much improvement to be gained simply by removing old fixtures and installing modern ones.

The old bathtub can be replaced by a modern tub, in color or white in one of many attractive contemporary styles.

NEW LAVATORIES

In choosing a new lavatory, there is a wide variety of possibilities in the pedestal type, one can choose a model with wide ledgeroom on either side of the bowl which is convenient for "grooming and placing toiletries.

Another type of lavatory is the cabinet model. No longer does this kind of installation have to be custom-made. Well-known manufacturers offer each unit as part of their standard line.

Where bathroom modernization is more extensive, the homeowner has a wealth of possibilities in considering fixtures and accessories. Consultation with a plumbing contractor will give the home owner an idea of how many variations exist.

VARIETY OF TUBS

Tubs can be recessed or corner models; they can be of the luxurious square type, where the tub cavity is on the diagonal and the corners form handy seats.

Instead of one sink, the utility of the bathroom can be upgraded by two pedestal - type sinks or two drop-in sinks built into a countertop. Another possibility, which presents itself by re-arranging the fixtures, is a much larger sink than was formerly used.

Perhaps, at first review, there seems to be no aviable space in the older house which could be converted to a second bathroom. Consultation with a plumbing contractor may prove otherwise. Often hall areas can be diverted, transferring wasted space into a bathroom.

Busybody Invades Privacy

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—The old woman who lives next door steals behind a tree on her lot and listens when we chat with visitors in the summertime. Winter and summer she comes to my door and walks in. She irritates me more than the seventy-two-year itch. She sits down and begins asking personal questions.

If I refuse to tell her what she wants to know, she walks up to me and shakes her hands or finger in my face, with the finger occasionally hitting me in the face.

I found out that she goes to the neighbors and tattles everything she hears and multiplies it.

When she comes to the door once and finds it locked, she comes back later. She just does not take the hint to stay away. —HELP! HELP!

DEAR HELP!—My grandfather used to ask nervy questions of us teen-agers and then say, "You see, I have no business of my own!" So it is with the O.W. And she has not grown gracious with the years!

Privacy is your right. No reason at all why you could not keep at least the storm door or screen door locked.

Several other ideas occur to me: Turn tables and ply her with questions; put up a measles sign; threaten to call the police; tell her such fantastic stories that she realizes she is being ridiculed; serve her cold tea.

Perhaps the best one is to have raffle tickets for her to buy every time she comes. Keep forcing them on her. I think of no way of reasoning her into staying home short of sending a lawyer's letter, and I don't think you want this.

DEAR DORIS:—I am separated from my husband, from whom I expect to be divorced in about six months. I do not have any children and I recently met a man who has asked me to go out with him.

I do not consider it proper to go out with another man while still married, but my girl friends say I am just being old-fashioned. What do you think? —PERPLEXED.

DEAR DORIS:—I am fourteen, and I chum with three other girls my age. It seems that whenever we get together, we talk about others' faults. Is this natural? Can you suggest a cure? —GOSSIP.

DEAR GOSSIP:—It's human nature, the bad side of it, to pull other people apart as a way of sounding superior. If we were sure of ourselves we wouldn't have to indulge in such unkindness.

The cure is to have something better to do. Can you skate, or ski, or hikewalk? Join the nearest "Y" and get into some fun.

Sunday School Lesson

The Growth of Greed

BY ROY W. SMITH

Progress is a wonderful thing. We can pay almost any price for it, if it is real, and still find it is a bargain. But it is highly important that we remind ourselves from time to time that growth and progress bring with them increased moral and spiritual demands.

A friend of mine tells the story of his parents who lived in a beautiful relationship with another farm family, whose house stood beside the creek a mile down the road. Both families attended the same church, held generally to the same creed, and lived, for the most part, for the same ideals.

Now it happens that the wife in the first case determined to have the nicest-flower garden in the city. And the second family decided to grow their own chickens, and therefore took a dozen of their "best layers" in to town with them, to the delight of all parties the two families secured houses that stood alongside one another. What a happy coincidence.

Within a week, however, both families discovered that the problem of living within a feet of one another was entirely different from the problem of living a mile apart, especially if flowers and chickens are involved. And within six months they were refusing to go together to the same church.

Moses laid down a strict law when he said that no man was to covet any other man's possessions including his wife. And what he meant by possessions in the desert was considerably different from the possessions one might accumulate in the settled agricultural life of the

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 18: "The Sin of Greed." Exodus 20:17; Mark 10:35-45; Luke 12:13-21.

Then, one day, the father of one family found it advisable to retire, and move to the city miles away. This seemed to require the second family to make the same move six months later.

Promised Land. And for that reason, the later revision of the law which was made inside the Land includes the fields among those things which were not to be coveted.

This is to say that with the growth and development of the nations, and the ownership of fields, new problems were created over which old laws must be applied.

Within the space of the last 30 years the United States has become a world power—the unchallenged leader of the Western nations in the struggle with the communist powers.

This has an unprecedented burden upon the American state department, but it also lays an unprecedented obligation upon the average plain American. Greed takes so many different forms after it crosses state lines, as anyone knows who has lived for even a short time amid the oil installations of the Middle East or Indonesia.

Someone has said, rather wittily, that you cannot get a picture of either ears until you get it in oil.

To cover our neighbor's field is one thing, and to cover our neighbor's oil field is another matter, and yet much the same.

GREED AND GODLINESS

There is an old saying to the effect that cleanliness is next to Godliness, to which might be added that greed is next to ungodliness.

It has been the greed of the colonial powers, and particularly of colonials, that has produced the cancer of colonialism. And it is colonialism that has provided the communists with their most effective weapon against the western powers.

It is probably true that the British government has been the most enlightened colonial power in history, and the nations she left behind her when she withdrew to her "tight little isle" are the best governed, and the best prepared for democracy of all the new nations.

But it has been the greed that has gone along with colonialism that has proved to be the most dangerous enemy the British have faced. And it has been the greed of British corporations, and British individuals, that has created 90 per cent of the animosities with which democracy must now begin to deal.

Planting Blends Garage, Driveway Into Home Scene

The garage and its driveway can be a very attractive part of the home landscape. A home garage looks box-like when there is no foundation planting to blend the structure into the landscape. The garage requires a foundation planting the same as the home, and an otherwise beautiful property often can be spoiled without it.

This is also true of driveways, which could be made much more delightful by planting perennials, shrubs or ground covers as a border. Visitors get their first impression of a home as they come up the driveway, whether it is a long or short drive.

The homeowner would do well to consider, planting the home garage as part of his improvement program. It may require only a few flowering shrubs or evergreens at the front corners where the garage is at the extreme rear of the property.

Usually where the garage is part of the house, the house foundation planting includes the garage, the planting being an extension of the former. Sometimes a couple of climbing roses or other vines one on each side of the garage doors will do.

In cases where the sides and rear of the garage are visible from the rest of the property a few evergreens and flowering shrubs, or a low tree whose branches may extend over part of the roof, when combined with lower shrubs will tie the structure into the landscape.

Any plants that will keep the garage from looking like a sore thumb will help.

There are two solutions to planting a driveway.

The first is to make two long narrow beds and plants permanent shrubs, both evergreen and flowering.

Floribunda roses make a splendid border for a drive as do numerous other flowering shrubs, such as azalea, spirea, forsythia or any one of probably a hundred or more shrubs that do well in your neighborhood climate.

Another solution to make the drive more attractive is to plant the beds with perennials. Thus you can have the early-flowering perennials followed by those that flower in the summer, such as delphiniums and

NOTHING TO PREVENT ONE FROM THINKING

As a splendid healthy hobby, fishing and gardening have much in common. Both take one out into the open air and sunshine; both offer a little easy exercise and both are relatively inexpensive, and you can spend as little or as much as you please. But where these two hobbies are most alike, however, is in the advance planning, thinking or dreaming we can do about them.

The snow may still be a foot or three feet deep outside right now; but there is nothing to prevent us poring over a Canadian seed catalogue, ordering some new varieties and planning just where we are going to put them. And this planning not only results in a better and far more interesting garden, but it will give us lots of fun right now.

It is well, however, to have a pad and pencil ready and to jot down just what we are going to add and where and when, so that when spring does arrive, and there is a natural rush to get outside, we will have this new information right at hand.

BE SURE AND ADD SOMETHING NEW

In our garden planning, it is most important that we add something new to both the flower and vegetable line. It is several years since we have really gone into the matter of garden varieties, we might be amazed at how much improvement has taken place. There are far bigger, showier and more colorful flowers today than there were a decade ago, or in the case of those very popular annuals like zinnias, marigolds and petunias, even a couple of years back. Plant breeders have been busy all over the continent and the best of their productions have been under constant test in the All-America trials, which, of course, include several trial gardens in Canada as well as in the United States. At these trials, winners are selected each year and you will find any of these a most valuable and interesting addition to any garden. Usually these All-America selections are listed separately in the seed catalogue, especially the current winners.

EARLIER AND HARDIER TOO

Not only are these new varieties and types much better than the old in color in the case of flowers and in flavor with vegetables, but there is another improvement of particular interest to us in Canada. Many of the newer flowers and vegetables are hardier or quicker growing which means that we can safely plant them in our northern gardens and they will mature and bloom well before frost.

There are things like tomatoes, melons, cucumbers, zinnias, asters and all sort of other semi-hardy varieties, that our grandparents couldn't possibly have grown, that are perfectly hardy today. They are even growing a certain type of very hardy corn right up within a few miles of the Arctic Circle.

INVALUABLE ASSISTANCE

No doubt it is possible for an expert to follow a new and complicated play without a program but such a feat is not generally recommended for the average person. It would be just like visiting a country one had never heard or read about. And gardening without a good Canadian Seed Catalogue would be just as unsatisfactory. To build a house, one must know something about the size, shape, color and special use of the materials in construction, and what goes with what and when. To create, develop or build a good garden we need similar and even more detailed information, and the seed catalogue is where we will find it.

When we plant, how deep to plant and how far apart—how big the plant will grow, when it will bloom or be fit for use —how to protect it from insect and disease—what sort of location, sunny or shady—rich or poor soil, etc. etc. Answers to all these questions will be found in the catalogue, and the information will be specially tuned to Canadian climate and other conditions. There are lots of beautiful flowers, and some (but not many) tender vegetables that will do well in Florida or Italy, but will be a failure here. These, however, will never be listed in a Canadian Seed Catalogue, or offered by a reputable Canadian Seed Merchant.

Most gardeners are string savers—but for a very good reason. Good stout string will be needed for marking the vegetable rows—and lots of soft string or twine will come in handy for tying up tall plants, vines, and so on.

Nicholson Homes

Imagine owning a home like the Glenora for less than you are now paying in rent! Nicholson Self-Help Homes have solved the workingman's housing problem with designs and plans usually found only in expensive homes. It has 3-bedrooms — a "step-saver" kitchen, and a 12' "pantry-wall" — plus loads of additional storage.

You can buy the Glenora — or any Nicholson home in the Basic stage, the Completed Package — or Livable Stage — so there's bound to be one to fit your family's budget!

3 TYPICAL STAGES OF COMPLETION—

The BASIC STAGE

This stage includes the home erected on your foundation, the exterior painted, the shingles applied, windows in place and exterior doors hung. Inside the home 2x4 partitions are in place.

Supplied, but not installed: 5/16" firply underlay, 2" wool insulation for exterior walls, 3" wool insulation for ceilings, ½" gypsum wallboard, all joint filling materials, corner beads, inside doors, closet doors, hardware, interior paint, trim and mouldings.

THE COMPLETED STAGE

Wiring is installed and we supply the heating package, plumbing package, kitchen cabinets, finish flooring in hardwood or tile, lighting fixtures, bath wall tile, medicine cabinet, and pre-fab chimney package.

READY TO LIVE IN STAGE

The heating and plumbing packages are installed. The insulation is installed and the wallboard is ready for taping.

Nicholson Homes can be bought in the Basic Stage or more. Delete items from succeeding stages as you choose. Extras such as foundations, storm doors and windows, and pumps can also be added under the Nicholson Home plan.

NO SALARY REQUIREMENTS

NO MONEY DOWN

Here at last are homes a workingman can afford! Build your Nicholson Home anywhere — the town or country. If you own your lot free and clear, no down payment may be necessary. But whether you own your lot or not, come in and talk to us — all you really need is a good credit rating.

SELF-HELP HOMES ARE FOR FAMILIES WHO ARE WILLING TO DO SOME OF THE WORK THEMSELVES!

Our skilled workmen build the home you choose on your lot—preferably on your foundation. All the heavy and complicated work is done for you. You buy in the stage of completion you can afford and do the finishing work yourself. All labor and materials are included in the one mortgage — red tape is cut to a minimum.

SELF-HELP HOMES ARE CUSTOM BUILT BY A DEALER YOU KNOW—TRADESMEN YOU TRUST!

Nicholson's believe that a workingman in a home of his own with monthly payments he can afford is a good credit risk. Come and talk over your housing needs with us. Chances are we'll be able to tailor a proposal to your budget.

Magdalen Islanders Have 20 Times as Much Weight In Electing House Member

OTTAWA (CP)—A vote of a fisherman in the lonely Magdalen Islands, carries 20 times as much weight as that of a resident of the bustling Toronto suburb of Scarborough in electing his member of Parliament.

The sparsely-inhabited Ile-de-la-Madeleine, federal constituency in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the exploding suburban riding of York-Scarborough represent opposite ends of the population spectrum in parliamentary representation.

The 1961 census figures for federal electoral districts, issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show a population of 12,478 in Ile-de-la-Madeleine and 250,232 for York-Scarborough.

These figures compare with the national average of 69,823 population for each of the 265 parliamentary seats based on Canada's total population of 18,- 238,247 at June 1, 1961. After the last census in 1956 the national average was 60,682, based on a population of 16,080,791.

HALIFAX PASSED

The maximum growth of the suburbs in Canada's two largest cities has resulted in the two - member Halifax constituency losing its place as the most populous riding. It now is surpassed by the single-member ridings of Scarborough and Montreal-Mercier.

The Halifax riding increased its population to 233,864 from 124,913. York-Scarborough rose from 119,186 in the 1956 census count rose to 225,723 from 197,- 943.

Canada's only other two-member constituency is Queen's P.E.I., once whose population declined slightly to 45,842 from 43,425.

Ile-de-la-Madeleine, whose population in 1956 was 11,556, retains the distinction of being the least-populous constituency in each census.

The suburban boom is reflected further in that five other ridings now have populations of more than 200,000. The Montreal riding of Jacques Cartier-Lasalle rose to 183,146 from 121,- 931 and Laval to 183,437 from 117,325; the Toronto area constituencies of York South to 216,- 405 from 127,591 and York West to 187,604 from 110,650; and Edmonton West jumped to 150,257 from 108,778.

The new census figures are expected to be a principal guide, though not the only one, in determining the next major redistribution of parliamentary seats.

Reports Hotel Facing Another Strike Denied

TORONTO (CP)—Angus MacKinnon, manager of the Royal York Hotel, Thursday reports that the strikebound hotel faces a second strike are "irresponsible."

Mr. MacKinnon was commenting on reports that the hotel's nine operating engineers, members of local 976 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, plan to walk out in a walkout and plan to organize a mass labor campaign against the hotel.

The strike was called after the conciliation, Wednesday of a conciliation hearing headed by Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan. A strike against the CPR hotel by the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC) is in its 11th month.

"I can't understand what these reports are all about," the hotel manager said. "Magistrate Hanrahan hasn't come down with his report yet and I don't know what's in it. I've talked to our negotiating team and they couldn't tell me either.

"These reports are irresponsible. They should at least wait until they see what the judge has to say."

ASK WAGE BOOST

John Parker, business agent for the union, said the engineers have asked for a 10-per-cent wage increase over the present $2.50 an hour base rate and a half for Sunday work.

In addition, he said, the engineers want all the benefits that all members of the Hotel and Club Employees Union be returned to their jobs.

He said the strike awaits only the magistrate's filing of his report and official approval from the union's international executive and the locally 1,400 members.

If the strike were called, he said, it would shut down the hotel's air compression system and heating, elevator, electric and leave emergency power equipment without men to run it.

Earlier, a union spokesman said the engineers would invite every union in the Metro Toronto area to participate in picketing the hotel. He said they intended to ring the hotel with as many picket shifts at a time, and planned to call a conference of all unions serving the hotel in an attempt to cut off all its supplies.

Undercover Officer Says He Was Told High Official Received $2,000 at Party

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial police undercover man said Thursday he was once told a high OPP official received money from a Toronto gambler for tip-offs on impending police raids.

Const. George Scott of the OPP anti-gambling squad said sources of the information was a former OPP Const. Robert Wright, wife Mrs. Dorothy McDermott and Vincent Feeley on trial for conspiracy to obtain information from the Const. Scott that it was not his duty to divulge.

Const. Scott, giving evidence for the second day, said Wright told him OPP Deputy Commissioner James Morrison had received $2,000 at a party from Isadore Sharp, a Toronto gambler.

He said Wright, former OPP Const. Carmen Lawrence and himself met at the Earl French Club in May, 1960, while he was working as an undercover agent.

Lawrence told him he and Kenneth Lamorie, both members of the anti-gambling squad at the time, were each making a $500 month for supplying protection, he said. Lawrence said they got $250 each from McDermott. He identified Lamorie from "patches"—betting boards under police protection.

During a later telephone conversation, he continued, McDermott told Wright a $1,000 debt for supplying information (Const. Scott) to provide advance tips on gambling raids.

In yet another telephone conversation, monitored by OPP Sgt. John Anderson, head of the anti - gambling squad, McDermott complained to him about his customers being questioned by police during raids.

In earlier testimony, Const. Scott said Wright told him John Cronin, former head of the anti-gambling squad, had collected $100,000 for advance tip-offs. At the time Wright said he made $20,000 as Cronin's "partner on the street" he added.

He said he has to make $30,- 000 and he said, "You'll make it," Const. Scott told the court.

He said Wright also told him McDermott and Feeley posed as inspectors when the present OPP office building here was under construction, obtained the serial numbers of desks in the anti-gambling squad offices and had keys made "for them.

They also posed as telephone company officials to obtain accounts of anti-gambling squad officers so they could check on calls. The disguises calls they made, he quoted Wright as saying.

He said Wright told him: "They said they had to do this because there was many undercover men at work."

Const. Scott said he received $50 from Wright and $40 for expenses from Wright, who bought the constable was helping provide tips on raids at Niagara Falls and Cookville.

Fire Spanish Sailors for Strike Against Bacon and Egg Breakfasts

VANCOUVER (CP) — The captain and officers of the 10,- 000-ton British freighter Banffshire have won the bacon-and-eggs battle.

They had threatened to quit the ship after 15 months of hunger strike, who protested bacon and eggs for breakfast and demanded a change. Cooks were not dismissed.

The others were dismissed Thursday. They will remain on board here until arrangements can be made for their return to their homes in the Canary Islands.

The hunger strike began seven days ago when the 15 Spanish and two Greeks refused to eat the cooking of British chef Cuthbert Griffiths. They said bacon and eggs is the meal except for occasional picketing ventures.

Griffiths said:

"I signed on this ship under British articles and I'm cooking British food."

A Spanish vice-consul and representatives of the Seafarers' International Union earlier indicated there was no justification for the strike.

Captain Murdo Macleod and his officers told a representative of the owners, Banner Shipping Company, who flew from London to investigate the dispute, they would leave the ship if the strikers did not depart.

The representative, E. C. Miller, had the men dismissed. They immediately set up picket lines around the ship, carrying banners proclaiming in Spanish and English:

"Just a Second"

"Which pen is your pen-pal in?"

"We demand proper food and treatment. We want to eat like people, not pigs."

When the ship was picketed, with the aid of members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, longshoremen stopped loading the vessel with grain intended for Communist China and boilermakers stopped working in the engine room.

Captain Macleod said the strikers will be returned to the Canary Islands in "a day or two." He said the strikers will leave the ship even if he has to lock them off.

"I'm a strong Scotsman," he said.

Court Reserves Decision on Kendall Appeal

OTTAWA (CP)—W. C. Bowman, Ontario director of public prosecutors, said Thursday that a mass of circumstantial evidence clearly establishing that Arthur James Kendall killed his wife in a lonely Bruce Peninsula cabin in August, 1952, and disposed of her body.

He made the statement shortly before the Supreme Court of Canada reserved decision on an appeal by Kendall against his conviction at Walkerton, Ont., last October of the capital murder of Helen Robson Kendall.

Mr. Bowman said evidence given at the trial by Mrs. Kendall's five children and other evidence showed that Kendall wanted to get rid of his wife so that he could live with another woman.

He asked the court to uphold lower court decisions condemning the 51-year-old accused to be hanged April 17 and to reject Kendall's appeal for a new trial on grounds that the jury which convicted him was misdirected by the trial judge.

DISPUTE CONTENTION

Mr. Bowman rejected argument by Charles Dubin of Toronto, counsel for Kendall, that the evidence of the three children should not be believed.

Mr. Dubin contended that Mrs. Kendall disappeared the three children, Ann, Margaret, and James, were 9, 11 and 12 respectively, in 1952, told police they had gone back to their home. However, at the father's trial nine years later they testified that he took them with him into another room.

Then on the dawn of the ballot The Daily Mail's opinion poll had the Conservatives ahead. This, together with Liberal gains in the Blackpool by-election, helped to keep the City machines into overdrive.

Wandering Wolf Cindy, Five Of Her Eight Pups Head For Sanctuary in Algonquin

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Cindy, a wandering timber wolf, heads for sanctuary today in the wilderness of Algonquin Park.

With her go five of the eight cubs she bore along the road as she followed her Mitchkiling master back and forth across the country.

Now, she and her pups and the pups' father — a German Shepherd named Lucky—are in the animal shelter here. Lucky will be returned to his master when he comes from Sudbury to claim him.

Cindy and the pups will go by truck to the domain of Dr. Douglas Pimlott, biologist with the department of lands and forests in Algonquin Park.

Dr. Pimlott, who heads one of the first wolf research projects ever undertaken in North America, is a man who scoffs at the condemnation of the wolf as a savage animal.

"Pure fiction," he says. "It's contrary to everything we know about wolves. Although, to tell the truth, what we do actually know about them is very little."

He has three more years to go on an eight-year field study on a detailed plan for wolf control and management and Cindy will help him.

MISSED DEADLINE

Cindy and the pups were seized from John McGovern of Hull, Que., who claims he found the animals "wandering on the streets" of Dawson Creek, B.C. Mr. McGovern had been given a deadline which to get the wolf out of Ontario jurisdiction.

He failed to make it and, in the meantime, Cindy had pups.

McGovern said three of the pups—two in Sudbury and one in this area.

Said Norm Patrick, district biologist for the provincial government:

"We didn't mind keeping an eye on one man with a wolf pack; we do object to keeping tabs on several men who would probably own the pups and their offspring."

McGovern was convicted Wednesday in Sudbury under the Wolf and Bear Bounty Act of unlawful possession of a wolf and fined $10. Cindy and her pups were ordered sent to the Algonquin wildlife sanctuary about 200 miles north of Toronto. Nothing was said about the other three pups.

HIRED ACROSS CANADA

Cindy, Lucky and McGovern came a long way together. From Dawson Creek they hitchhiked 2,100 miles to Hull, then thumbed another 500 miles southwest to Windsor.

There, Cindy was hit by a car while his animals back to B.C. after the Canadian Exhibition at Ottawa. He had planned to take a job and "that way I could have kept Cindy and the pups because for sleigh dogs," he said at the time.

At his hearing, McGovern said he was getting paid for television and radio appearances with his pets and had a contract with a Toronto amusement company.

But he didn't have enough money to pay the $10 fine.

The magistrate remanded it and gave him a suspended sentence.

Britain Liberals Elated At Success in Election

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's Liberal Party is dancing on air after a sweeping byelection victory in the Conservative stronghold of Orpington.

Liberal candidate Eric Lubbock obliterated the Torys' lead of 14,760 in the last election and headed for Westminster with a sensational majority of 7,855 votes.

This contest is bound to go down as an Agincourt in the annals of British parliamentary history with their 1956 Torrington victory, there is every chance they may be in line for a new general election.

Premier opinion polls given the election a fiery Conservative candidate Peter Goldman but the Liberal Party would give him a good fight.

Then on the dawn of the ballot The Daily Mail's opinion poll had the Conservatives ahead. This, together with Liberal gains in the Blackpool byelection, helped to keep the City machines into overdrive.

Later bookies mounted in Orrington, a commuters' suburb 40 miles south of London, when it was learned that Heath had sliced into the Tory vote in Middlesbrough Middlesbrough East byelection, a seat safely retained by the Labor Party.

The three byelection results—two near misses and one solid win—have given Liberal rally flagging Liberal hopes that they can achieve an effective number of seats in the next election.

But similar if not so spectacular Liberal gains in the "little election" of 1958 were shattered in the 1959 general election when the maverick Tory voters returned to their fold.

They will swing again.

British byelections seldom favor the party in power and always reflect a local "protest" vote against the Socialists and Conservatives.

Observers think it would be foolhardy to take any sweeping predictions on the basis of the present ballots, especially since the Tory-Liberal fight was won by a particularly difficult seat.

The Liberals however, who had not been seats in the 630-seat Parliament, will find it difficult to restrain their hopes from rising in the days of Macmillan and Lloyd George will be heard and feared throughout the land.

And, with at least five more byelections pe ed in, Britons have found an admirable longshot to bet on in the lull before the flat-racing season opens.

Prime Minister Denies Any Steel Complex Commitment

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Thursday denied "completely and absolutely" that the federal government has made any commitment for a Montreal firm in connection with a $300,000,000 steel complex near Quebec City.

The prime minister was peppered with questions by opposition MPs, which Speaker Roland Michener said were out of order, during question period.

Shouts of "shut up," "that's none of your business" and "you're a disgrace" echoed from opposition benches.

Frederic Bourget (L—Levis) asked Mr. Diefenbaker whether the government had made any commitment to the steel firm before it was forced to defend it in a luncheon in Quebec City last Monday. Paul Leclerc, the Montreal president of Sulphur Converting who announced his firm's intention to start work immediately on the steel mill.

Mr. Speaker said the question was out of order.

Cripple Jailed For 3 Months As Smuggler

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Valerio Dragoia, 36, of Fort William was sentenced Thursday to four three months in jail for smuggling goods from the United States, including a wheelchair he used.

Dragoia was given the alternative of a $200 fine but said he could not afford to pay it.

The invalid since an automobile accident eight years ago, had been arrested Monday in a ploy was "in the negative, contrary and absolutely."

WASTING TIME

The prime minister added that the type of question being asked by the opposition "indicates the attitude of the opposition is to waste time."

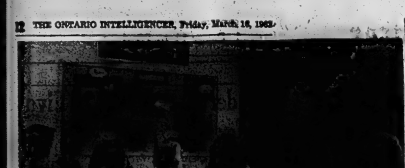
"ought to attend to the job of running the country."



Mr. Diefenbaker said the question was out of order, and some of them were impertinent. Although the Speaker had ruled them inadmissible, the opposition continued to press them.

"The business of the House is being held up from day to day," said the prime minister. Then to the Speaker and said: "I shall not go any farther."

Speaker Michener said members of the opposition had to be credited with discharging their duties. Some of them Liberal MPs pounded their desks, taking the Speaker's remark as supporting their position.

The questioning started with Mr. Bourget asking Mr. Diefenbaker if he had been invited to a luncheon in Quebec City last Monday. Paul Leclerc, the Montreal president of Sulphur Converting who announced his firm's intention to start work immediately on the steel mill.

The Speaker said the question was out of order.

Grammar Stumbling Block For Pupils Learning French

By JACK HUTTON

(Dr. Wilder Penfield, the well known neurologist, recently suggested that children of English and French-speaking families exchange homes every so often to promote bilingualism.

Today young readers of Teen-Age Canada submit their views on one of the most widely-discussed questions in Canada.)

Canadian teen-agers want to speak conversational French in order to understand their own country better — but many feel an over-emphasis on grammar is a stumbling block.

That, at least, is the message which I read out of letters I've received from 35 teen-agers in the last month.

About one month ago we asked in the column whether you felt the teaching of French was worthwhile in your opinion. Here were the results:

All 35 teen-agers said they felt they were getting too much "book-larnin'" and not enough actual practice with the language. Each said he or her someday wanted to speak the language.

Each one suggested that it might have helped to start earlier. Several said they were lucky enough to have had an early start — and figured it helped them immensely.

A TREND

I don't believe we can conclude that our little survey proved anything, but it is at least a trend. Typical of the letters (which I enjoyed very much) was this one from Jim Baker, 16, of Calgary, Alta.:

He wrote: "I was delighted to see that someone actually cares about what teen-agers think. The learning of French is something close to my heart and I'd like to tell you why.

"Two years ago when I started French in high school I liked it but couldn't see any particular use for it. Then I got the chance to spend three weeks travelling around Quebec during summer holidays.

"That really opened my eyes, or ears if you want to be correct about it. For the first time in my life it struck me right between the eyes that here were other teen-agers in my own country — and I couldn't talk to them.

"Sure, I could say 'bonjour, merci' and all that. But when it came to a simple thing like ordering a meal I was tongue-tied. I haven't been back there yet. But when I do, believe me, I'm going to get a lot more out of it."

A reader from Victoria, B.C., who signed herself "An Enthusiastic French Student," wrote: "I am lucky enough to be in a class which has taken French since Grade 5 on an experimental basis.

EXPERIMENTAL

"We have, therefore, had an extra three years to learn to read and speak the language . . . I would like to see French started even earlier, perhaps Grade 1 or 2 — conversational French at this early age, with French grammar in a later grade."

Sandra Smith of Toronto agreed. "I think that the teaching of French should begin in Grade 2 or 3 as a compulsory subject," she wrote. I do not mean that they should be taught all the proper grammar, but conversational French is very necessary today.

"We in high school need much more conversational French than we are now getting and a little less 'book-larin'. When confronted with giving a small composition or carrying on a conversation we're tongue-tied, trying to think of the correct way to say it."

Roy Howes, 18, of Halifax, N.S., had an idea echoed by several others: "Why not," he asked, "organize more summer trips into Quebec by high school students? I learned more French there in one summer than I had in three years of high school."

Our conclusion: Canadian teen-agers are just as aware of the bilingual problem in Canada, if not more so. I'd suggest looking around for inexpensive records that might help you.

Your best buy in language familiarization course originally designed for the U.S. Department of Defense is now available for $5. It offers two records with two hours of basic pronunciation and conversation.

Write Educational Services, 1730 Eye Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C., if you're interested. This is the best French language aid I've seen yet at this low price.

AT LAST

Joan Charles, 13, of Vancouver, B.C., threw me a bit of a challenge this week. "You're always criticizing the hit parade," she wrote, "What do you think of Midnight in Moscow?"

Glad you asked that, Joan. To be honest, I think that Midnight in Moscow is the first glimpse of sanity I've seen in the hit parade for a long time. But I'm a sottie for anything with a Dixieland treatment.

BRAINTEASER

Marcia Greaves of London, Ont., was prompted by our recent brain-teasing column to send in this problem:

"If you drive a post every foot for three yards how many posts do you erect?" The answer is a simple one if you mark the posts on a piece of paper and remember to start from the first one. You'll wind up with 10.

Metals, NE Beaten in Hoop Tilts

Belleville teams in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League found the going pretty rough on the road last night.

Crawford Metals took a 87-48 defeat from the Picton Prospects in Picton while Northern Electric lost a 80-38 decision to the RCAF Flyers in Trenton.

The Crawfords trailing 30-22 at half time and with scoring ace Teddy Batchelor held down in the scoring department, Picton went on to register the upset.

Don Taylor paced the Picton scorers with 15 points while Hopkins hit for 13 and Butler for 11.

Batchelor had only 12 points for the Crawfords but it was still a top team mark. Don Skinner collected 10, Larry MacDonald nine and "Soup" Campbell eight.

RCAF moved ahead of Northern 19-13 at the half way mark in their game and widened the gap in the second half.

Mahoney led the Flyers with strong 20-point performance. McNichol was next in line with nine points.

McMillan and Nesmith hooped 10 points apiece for the tallend Northern Electric crew.

Curling Bodies Do Little For Game

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The Dominion Curling Association and the International Olympic Committee are peopled, for the most part, by old codgers whose active athletic days belong in the dim past. And each organization stumbles along in its own near-sighted approach to amateurism.

Each is shocked at the suggestion that athletes should receive compensation in any form for their athletic skill. Yet, curling is leaving amateur sport wide open to under-the-table payoffs.

A week ago the DCA came up with a code of ethics—borrowed, incidentally, from the Ontario Curling Association which has tried to enforce it since 1920. It didn't take a definite stand but a motion went through to the effect that it will be voted upon in Brandon, Man., next March when the DCA meets in annual session again.

LIMIT PRIZES

Here's what the code says in part:

"An amateur curler may not play in a curling competition with the hope of accepting directly or indirectly money or its equivalent as a prize, testimonial or compensation, or accept a prize for any one event of a retail value exceeding $150 or $600 per rink and of a nature making it readily convertible into money.

"An amateur may not receive compensation directly or indirectly for giving instruction in curling, either orally, in writing, by pictures or other demonstrations to other individuals or groups . . ."

Anyone breaking these rules is not eligible to play in amateur competitions. This, in essence, is the same as the Olympic amateur code, and no one is naive enough to believe this hasn't been abused and will continue to be abused by amateurs around the world.

SPONSORS PAY

In other sports that have both amateurs and pros—such as golf, tennis and so on—this may be okay. But, at least, these sports are doing something to promote their games. One can't say the same thing about the DCA and its provincial associations.

These people sit back and make the rules while commercial sponsors pick up the tab for promotion of curling. Every worth-while bonspiel from St. John's to Kamloops has prizes donated by insurance companies, jewelers, tobacco and whisky companies and big-chain grocery stores.

Name it, and you'll inevitably find that big financial corporations are sinking money into the promotion of curling—and, of course, their products.

The Canadian curling championship has been promoted since 1927 by a tobacco company. You won't see signs at the venue saying so. The man who pays to get into the area would be led to believe this is strictly a DCA show.

BACKED BY WHISKY

A couple of years ago a grocery chain decided to go into the business of promoting women's curling on a national level.

On the international scene, the world championship among Canada, Scotland, the United States and Sweden is backed by an association that bottles grog. This has the blessing, and nothing else, of the DCA.

None of the governing associations in these countries has put a nickel into it. The DCA, the Royal Caledonia Curling Club and the ruling associations of the U.S. and Sweden will have representatives on hand.

This is similar to the Olympics. The host countries spend uncounted millions of dollars getting things ready for the thousands of athletes from across the world.)

Then the IOC steps in to take over.

Yanks Unbeaten in Six

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees have stretched their winning streak to four over Cincinnati Reds by beating the National League pennant-winners in their first meeting since the two world series.

Mickey Mantle provided an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning as the world champion Yankees boosted their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday with an 8-5 victory over the Reds.

It was the Yankees first victory over National League competition and maintained the only unblemished record in the exhibition standings, while pushing the Reds into last place among National League clubs with a 1-3 mark.

The Yankees collected nine hits, rookie shortstop Phil Linz stroking three for two runs batted in, while Bud Daley, Roland Sheldon and former Red Marshall Bridges checked Cincinnati on six hits. Frank Robinson's double was the Reds' only extra-base blow.

RIGHT BEHIND TANKS

Chicago White Sox remained right behind the Yanks in the American League standings, stunning Baltimore third straight game for a 3-1 record by edging Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 10 innings.

Boston Red Sox beat San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 11 innings, Washington Senators walloped Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4, Kansas City Athletics beat Minnesota Twins 7-3, Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles Angels 7-3 and Houston Colts beat Cleveland Indians 4-2.

Games between New York Mets and Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Phillies and Milwaukee Braves were rained out, Baltimore Orioles and St. Louis Cardinals were not scheduled to play.

Al Smith's third hit, a double, leading off the 10th inning, led the White Sox' winning run when Joe Cunningham singled him home against the Tigers. Rookies Larry Wilson and Bob Tillman hit three-run pinch-hit homers in the ninth as the Red Sox tied it and went on to beat the Giants in the 11th when rookie Dick Hoblitzell wild-pitched Ed Bressoud home.

HIT HOMERS

The Senators continued their long-distance clouting with Dale Long hitting two homers and Joe Hicks one against the Dodgers, who retaliated with Tommy Davis' third round-tripper in three days and cost pitcher Larry Sherry.

The Athletics stuck for five runs in the second-inning—three on a Manny Jimenez homer—as they handed the winless Twins their sixth defeat, 7-3.

Home runs by Bob Will and Ken Hubbs carried the Cubs to their triumph over the Angels as Glenn Hobbie became the first Chicago pitcher to go five innings. The Colts were outhit 7-6 by the Indians, who used Mel Roach's homer for all their runs, but were able to score three times in the sixth for win. No. 2.

PRICE LEADS FIELD

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Dick Price, 43, of Marblehead, Mass., won two out of the first three races Thursday in sailing of international Finn monotype yachts for the North American championship. Price was given a total of 3,133 points in second place was Bruce Kirby of Dorval, Que., with 2,837.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago crept closer to the league's scoring championship Thursday night when his team was edged out by the first-place Montreal Canadiens 6-5.

Hull potted two goal —his 43th and 46th—and moved to within two points of Andy Bathgate, the New York Rangers centre who holds first place with 81 points.

Stan Mikita of the Hawks also strengthened his position, getting two assists for a total of 71 points, good for fourth place. He is two points behind Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who managed to get nothing but a penalty in Boston Bruins 4-0 shellacking of the Wings.

The Pepsi's after a somewhat lengthy layoff re back to the hockey wars here tomorrow night taking on the Lindsay Lumbermen in the first game of their intermediate "A" first round playdowns.

The Lumbermen are reported to have added strength to the club that eliminated Kingston and threaten to give Lamirande's big red squad a tough time. The teams play the second joust in Lindsay next Friday.

President Jim "Snipe" Matthews and his Boosters are staging a big "Prize Night" with a barrelful of valuable prizes and two or three hundred giveaway door mementoes.

Assuming the Pepsi's take the round, they will meet some topflight opposition in the next round of the playdowns. They will clash with either Meaford or Collingwood, and both of these clubs are rated as senior calibre. Game time here tomorrow night 8.30.

Tonight in what could be a rollicking rollaroun battle the junior "B" McFarlands tangle with their foemen from Kingston in the third jousting of the Eastern finals series.

The youngsters played heads-up hockey the last time the teams met here to defeat the Frontenacs but lost the second fill in Reddenville. They'll have to go all out tonight and if their shooting eyes are good and their rifles on target they should pull out with a key victory.

And every Friday night before junior, senior or, any other nine o'clock tilts, the boys of the City Departmental Puck-Propeller League have at it.

There is good natured but keen rivalry between the league's triumvirate, the Police Department, Fire Department and the City Public Works.

Inspector Clare Hayes, who watches over his cellfillers with a loving but careful eye, has the boys on the best behavior. If they win the league title, he says, he may sponsor an entry to the next world tourney. After what Galt did, the inspector figures his brass-and-blue stand a chance.

Fred (Tumba) Smith has his hose-curlers on the bit. The popular (a bit thin) redhead is not overwhelmed with two losses and claims the fire-eaters will be in there in the playoffs.

Clare Hayes buckos are on top with won-one-tied-one mark. Monday they meet the smokies and Coach Harold (Peter Gunn) Reid has the boys ready. Tonight the Works tangle with the Fireboys.

Out Shirley way Bert Bastedo and Russ Kirk have their Legion "C" peewees en route to a championship. The youngsters are rolling along having defeated Frankford, Brighton and Bamorah.

Right now they are in the Ontario semi-finals, meeting the Bradford team in Marmora Monday night at 6.30 in the first game of the series. Wednesday they play the second game of the home-and-home series.

Bert has a fine young team out there in Doug Patterson's ballywick. They are well-balanced, well-coached and if spirit and desire are the requisites, they should bring home the titular bacon.

Blank Wings, Habs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, who'oft didn't were plac, sailed down to second place in the National Hockey League Thursday night and Chicago Black Hawks, who lost, are sure of third.

But, the night's action, in which the Hawks bowed 4-3 to Montreal's league leading Canadiens and the inoffensive Boston Bruins suddenly turned ferocious and blanketed Detroit Red Wings 4-0 in their own rink, left one two questions unanswered.

The Wings were left with the position of catching New York Rangers, currently two points ahead of them in the battle for second place and the NHL's last playoff berth. And an assortment of Bruin players were trying to figure out how to check Bobby Hull closely enough to stop him from scoring 50 goals or more.

The Hawks' blonde bomber went into Montreal needing six goals to reach 50—from records held jointly by Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion of the Canadiens—and with six games to play.

HULL SCORES TWO

Under close scrutiny practically all evening, he still managed to score twice, something he had never done before at the Forum, and left himself five games in which to get the four goals he needs to tie the record.

Boston's victory meant that Boston—not the lontngest team in NHL history. It snapped their 30-game winless streak and ended that record safe with the New York Rangers of 1946-47 and the Black Hawks of 1950-51. Chicago's loss left the Hawks with 71 points and five games to play. They can no longer overtake the second-place Leafs, who have 83. But coach Rudy Pilous said in an interview before the game started that all the Hawks wanted now was to give Hull the scoring record.

NEAR ANOTHER MARK

If he gets a goal in his next game — at Toronto Saturday— Hull will also equal the Geoffrion-Richard record of having scored in nine straight games.

Reg Fleming of the Hawks got two goals and Murray Balfour one.

Dickie Moore scored two goals for Montreal, including the winner in the third period. Jean Beliveau added number two and Geoffrion and Claude Provost got one each.

In Detroit, goalie Bruce Gamble came up with a 31-save effort for his first NHL shutout. Johnny Bucyk and Murray Oliver, one a rising Detroit players, got the first and last goals of the game respectively.

The loss, Detroit's second in two nights, abruptly shifted the focus of the battle with the Rangers. Instead of being on level terms with a game in hand, the Wings now are two points down and both have four games left to play.

Macs Must Be Up For This One!

Coach Gordie Bell will be seeking more balance on the attack and better all-round clearing in their own zone when he and his Belleville Macs cut against the Kingston Frontenacs here tonight.

This will be the third game of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals. The set is tied 1-1 and veteran observers feel that the best-of-seven series will likely go six or seven games. The Macs won 4-2 here a week ago and lost 6-3 in Kingston Monday.

Kingston coach Denny McLeod said a week ago here that "the Macs can be beaten if you stop their first line", and playoff scoring statistics to date indicate that he is not far from wrong.

Belleville has scored 23 goals, and allowed the same number. But, of the club's 23 goals, the first line of Pete Watson, Don Hunter and Dave Smith has 15 of them.

Hunter, playing his best hockey of the year in the past month, leads the way with eight goals and four assists. Watson had four goals and six helpers while Smith owns a three-end-seven mark.

The next high men on the list is Bob Boyle, with three goals and two assists. Forwards Garry Hall, Billy McGuire and Gary Duvall as well as defencemen Gerry Reid, Paul Zakos and Ted Rowland have failed to score a single goal in the series.

The Macs could be in serious trouble unless some of these boys start to score.

Coach Bell also expects to give goalie Tony Parker a real tonight and will likely use Ron Dulmage in the nets.

It's a tough series and this lead game tonight will put the pressure on the comfortable spot.

Game time is nine o'clock and a crowd of over 1,000 is expected for the first time this season.

Golf Tourney Washed Out

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) A torrential downpour Thursday washed out the first round of the $20,000 St. Petersburg Open Golf tournament late and a blazing six-under-par 66 by Frank Boynton of Corpus Christi, Tex.

PGA officials said the closest challengers, which struck after 75 per cent of the players had completed their rounds, wiped the slate clean. The first round will be played over today and the are to take part in the two-day tournament will be set back one event.

Boynton, who toured the PGA circuit in 1960 but failed to win enough money to retain his playing card, was the only player to break par on the Pasadena Golf Club course. He had a 34-32 and was one stroke ahead of Jack Fleck, Iowa pro who won the U.S. Open in 1955 and Jerry Steelsmith of Tulsa, Okla.

Fleck had a 35-32 and Steelsmith a 34-33.

ARMY SKIERS MEET

QUEBEC (CP)—The annual Canadian Army ski championships are to be held at nearby Camp Valcartier Saturday and Sunday, Some 85 entries from army establishments in Canada and four from the British Army are to take part in the two-day competition.

Canadian Rink Wins Opener

FALKIRK, Scotland (CP)— Canada's Ernie Richardson rink from Regina piled up a 4-0 lead in the first two ends of play Thursday night and went on to defeat the United States champions 11-5 in the first round of the men's world curling championships.

In the other first-round match, Scotland—with Willie Young's Falkirk rink—shocked some draw mastery — downed the tournament's warm favorite Rolf Arfwidsson's Swedish team 13-4.

Two rounds in the four-team double - round - robin tournament were to be played today and subsequent rounds, will be held at the Haymarket rink in Edinburgh on Monday and Tuesday.

Winner Take All' in Canada

Galt Hurls Challenge At Swedes

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — Len Gaudette, general manager of the Galt entry in the world hockey tournament, says he will challenge Sweden or Sweden is a winner-take-all exhibition in Canada next week.

Gaudette announced the move Thursday night following receipt of offers from four different Canadian centres to stage the game.

Officials of the championship-bound Swedish national team did not comment immediately.

Sweden scored 17 goals in one game for the second time in the tournament to crush Britain 17-0 Thursday night at Denver. Four players each scored three goals — Nils Nilsson, Per-Olov Hardin, Uno Ohrland and Ulf Andersson.

Two each were tallied by Sven (Tumba) Johansson and Ulf Sterner, who also assisted on five goals. Sterner, Johansson had a goal and three assists in the shut-a-minute onslaught that left British goalie Ray Partridge exhausted at the end.

Finland came from behind with five goals in the second period to beat West Germany 5-3 in the other game scheduled in the championships first division. Husky forward Heino Hull scored three goals for the Flanish team which is coached by a Canadian, Willy Wirkkunen of Port Arthur, Ont.

Australia completed its consolation schedulled with a 6-2 triumph over Denmark that marked Australia's first win in international hockey victory ever. In another consolation game Thursday sailed by The Netherlands 6-2.

Sweden has victories over Canada and the United States, the other two countries in the title, its string of five straight wins and needs but one more victory and a tie in two remaining games to clinch the championship.

Canadian Indoor Meet

Records Will Fly Here

WINNIPEG (AP) — Broken records are expected to litter Winnipeg Arena Saturday in the wake of the Canadian indoor track and field championships here.

Canadian champions will abound among the 150 entrants in the annual assault and will be battling a strong contingent of United States competitors in finals of the events, scheduled by the sponsoring Royal Canadian Legion.

Special thrills are anticipated in the open pole vault event, with George Davies of Arizona going against J. D. Martin of Oklahoma.

Gaudette holds the world outdoor and West Germany pose no obstacles to Sweden's breeze to the championship.

DENY IS WORRY

Meanwhile, claims that the Galt club is the worst in regression Canada in world competition in several years, were strongly denied by Canadian officials.

"Galt is as good as Trail Smokeaters if not a little better," said Jack Roxburgh, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"I can't take anything away from the Swedish club. They're a good club and on that one night they won the Canadian Red. I think Canada could win eight out of 10 games against them."

Roxburgh said he was disturbed and disappointed by the performance of Canadian Canadian club absorbed against the Swedes and the conduct of a few of the players. Canada had seven of the 11 penalties handed out.

Miss Hoffman is expected to get stiff competition from teammate Joan Bamford and Judy Haslam of Saskatoon, whose sister Eleanor holds the Canadian outdoor record of 2:16.

Men's track events are likewise studded with stars, topped by the Toronto East York team of miler Bruce Kidd, Bill Crothers in the 600-yard event, 16-year-old Dave Bailey in the halfmile and big Rod Wallingford in the two-mile event.

Kidd will be running against Toronto Olympic Track Club's Jim Irons in the mile while Crothers' top competition is expected to be provided by Bill Frazier of the University of Iowa and Jim Fischer of the University of Minnesota.

MOTORISTS IN THE KNOW RIDE ON DOMINION ROYAL TIRES

Mr. Hal Cotton hockey scout. Has keen eye for talent. Could be the country boy he's looking for. Has a hunch Needs a car that will stand up to 28,000 miles a year. Has to be a car who must have tires with "extra" performance.

The Master Touch

You can tell a master of the game by the way he performs when the heat's on. "So-so" players will under pressure.

Same with tires. When the heat's on during hours of high-speed driving, Low Profile Dominion Royal Masters run cooler . . . last longer because they flex to a lesser degree.

You enjoy greater stability, easier steering. Premium quality Dominion Royal Masters give you premium mileage, traction and braking power. And elegant styling gives your car a "Gran Turismo" flair.

If your business or pleasure calls for extra long mileage or if you just want the safest, best looking tire you can buy—don't settle for less . . . give your car the "master touch" . . . buy

Second World Triumph for Canada

Jackson Wins Men's Skating Crown

By LOYAL GOULD

PRAGUE (AP) — The 1962 world figure skating championships entered their final stages today with Canada proudly wearing two crowns and aiming for a third.

The Canadians wrote a new page in the book of figure skating history. Aces Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont., won the pair title Wednesday in a performance that could only be surpassed by Donald Jackson's unprecedented triumph in the men's singles Thursday.

Jackson, a 20-year-old skating wizard from Oshawa, Ont., emerged as the world's best free skater in the men's singles in international competition. He became the first Canadian to win a men's single world title.

And today 16-year-old Wendy Grieve of Toronto moved up in her attempt to capture the ladies crown.

GAINES ON LEADER

In third place after the first two compulsory school figures Thursday, she had the top score in the third figure today, enabling her to take over second place and close ground on pace-setting Sjoukje Dijkstra of Holland.

Miss Dijkstra still led with 561.7 total points but Miss Grieve was a close second with 560.1.

Jackson, acclaimed by a crowd of 18,000, excelled in a triple Salchow, triple Lutz, double Axel and in a dazzling array of fancy footwork.

This brought him an unprecedented seven perfect scores in one performance.

His marks for artistic impression were 5.9-5.8-5.9-5.9-5.9-6.0-5.9-5.9-5.9 and for technical merits 6.0-6.0-5.8 - 6.0-6.0-5.9-6.0-6.0-6.0.

RALLIES TO WIN

Jackson rallied to overtake Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia who led earlier in the competition. Divin, Olympic silver medal winner in 1960, was unable, however, to match Jackson's daring and imaginative performance in the free-style skating.

Alain Calmat of France was third with 2,200.7 points while Donald McPherson of Stratford, Ont., was fourth with 2,172.2.

A French pair, Christine and Jean-Paul Guhel, led after the four compulsory figures in the dance event. The couple had 187.4 points. Canadian dance champions Virginia Thompson were fourth.

Wings Turn Back Teeps

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Red Wings did all their scoring in the third period Thursday night to defeat St. Catharines Teepees 3-1 in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-finals.

The victory was Wings' third against one loss. The other game ended in a tie.

Sixth game will be played in St. Catharines Saturday night and the seventh, if necessary, here Sunday afternoon.

Neither team was able to score in a fast-moving first period but Jack Stanfield put the visitors ahead at 16:30 of the second on a play started by John Brennan at the St. Catharines blue line. Rookie centre Jim Peters drove the Mohawk crowd of 3,610 their first opportunity to break loose when he tapped in Ron Harris' pass just past the mid-way mark of the final period.

Paul Henderson 4-1, Marlboros now meet the winners of a series between St. Michael's College Majors and Whitby Hawks.

Penalty Shot Legal Says Prexy

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Thursday a penalty shot awarded Wednesday night to Andy Hathgate of New York Rangers was "perfectly legal."

Hathgate, the league's top point-getter, scored on the shot to give his club an important 3-2 win over Detroit Red Wings.

Sid Abel, coach of the Red Wings, sent a telegram to Campbell about the call.

Referee Dan Deacon from Detroit said Abel had protested against the decision of referee Eddie Powers in giving the shot to Hathgate, but Campbell said Abel "only asked for interpretation of the application of the rules" under which the penalty shot was awarded.

Powers awarded the shot after Detroit goalie Hank Bassen threw his stick at a New York player. Campbell said the referee's report showed Hathgate was the player fouled but other reports said Hathgate's linemate, Dean Prentice, was the victim.

Campbell said Abel's telegram "didn't mention Prentice."

"Further, he says there is no such thing as a protested decision in the NHL.

"No matter what happens, the game as it is played on the ice is the official result. There is no such thing as a protested game, no matter what the reason."

Hull Beats Soo 4-2, Ups Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, the Johnny-come-lately contenders for first place in Eastern Professional Hockey League, added another two - point barrier between them and second-place Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers Thursday night.

The Canadiens met the league's bottom-place club and picked up an easy two points, defeating Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 6-2.

The victory boosted Hull-Ottawa's point total to 77, three points ahead of the Beavers. Both clubs have played 63 games.

Thursday night's score was no indication of play. Sault goaltender Rod Edwards turned into a one-man defensive corps as he stopped 35 shots, many of them labelled "great."

The Canadiens spent most of the season cousting in third place, recently got involved in a first-place scramble with the Beavers and Kingston Frontenacs, and now hold a strong hand.

At the Belle

"Colossus of Rhodes"

Giant Spectacle from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Rory Calhoun Heads Cast.

The trend in movies today is toward the spectacle picture peopled with thousands of actors, with its action played against massive settings, and with plots highlighting scenes of tremendous conflict.

One of the most spectacular of all is the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer special, "The Colossus of Rhodes" which adds a story of adventure, romance and intrigue, heroes and villains, the revolt of tortured slaves and tumultuous conflict in the days of the 3rd century B.C. when treacherous forces plotted to make the nation Island kingdom of Rhodes, near Asia Minor, a vassal of the Phoenician Empire in their attempt to gain supremacy over the Greeks, and rule the Mediterranean.

Filmed on a massive scale on locations in Spain, in color and cinemascope, the picture stars Rory Calhoun, the lovely Italian actress Lea Massari, and other noted European stars in a cast of thousands. It was directed by Sergo Leone, who recently directed "The Last Days of Pompeii."

"Two Little Indians", a new and very funny Tom and Jerry Colorfun cartoon is exhibited on the same program. On Sunday and Saturday matinee audience, Five Color Cartoons will be exhibited in addition to the regular program. Performances begin daily at 2.00, 7.00 and 9.00. Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Bullwinkle Show Will Be Leaving NBC Next Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It is like that a brash and offbeat cartoon program, The Bullwinkle Show, will be leaving NBC next season. And that will be good news to the network department of continuity and censorship (that's television-ese for "censorship").

It has had nothing but trouble with the irreverent creators of the show, Hay Ward and Bill Scott, who take delight in treading on sensitive toes.

The program, which naturally appeals to children, is a delight to those adult viewers who like "inside" humor—particularly inside show business.

The Bullwinkle boys started poking fun at Hollywood, calling it Dizzy Waller's Land. Early in the season, lawyers for Cecil Kirby of the Cecil Percy Moore Show, formally notified them to "cease and desist" using the name "Kurwood Derby" for a magic hat. They invented a new character, Mr. Peabody, who's got quick angry reaction from the U.S. Patent Office, pointing out Smokey Bear was a trespassed, copyrighted property of the Forestry Service, to be kidded.

But worst was a sequence that slipped by the censors in which they cooked, for Thanksgiving dinner, a peacock. And a peacock is NBC's proud, unfunny symbol of color shows.

The show may be a headache to NBC, but its sponsor loves it. And because the sponsor has a lot of money to spend for other shows, it won't have any trouble finding a new home for Bullwinkle next season.

Beatrice Lillie To Visit O'Keefe Centre in April

TORONTO — Toronto's Beatrice Lillie returns to Toronto—and her first visit to O'Keefe Centre—the week of April 9th. She hasn't been back since she jam-packed the Royal Alexandra ten years ago.

After 48 years in show business she is still a one-woman phenomenon. Alone onstage, the audience soon believes there are dozens of people in the theatre—as she plays all the parts, sings all the songs and throughly entertains them with the intimitable satire which has brought her world-wide acclaim.

Miss Lillie will be onstage for one entire half of the show and the other half will feature the Canadian premiere of the colorful and sensuous Roberto Iogle-sias and the Ballet Espanol. Only five and one-half years old, this company has already danced to remarkable audiences all over the world.

BELAFONTE RETURNS

By popular demand, Harry Belafonte will return to O'Keefe Centre for two weeks, April 30 to May 12. His show will be similar to the last visit to Toronto with considerable additions to the repertoire. As before, he will bring with him Miriam Makeba, who captivated Toronto audiences in her own right. They will be accompanied by the Vocal Five.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, March 17.

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Tendency is to go all out, all or nothing. This applies to celebrating, eating, drinking habits. Key word for day should be Moderation. You'll be happier tomorrow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Good day to sum up assets, liabilities, to "trim off fat" as far as possessions are concerned. No need to let things pile up just for sake of owning them, you'll feel better once house is in order.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) No time to go backwards, look to future. Be willing to take a chance. Be versatile. You have recently not been satisfied with your progress...today could see you "breaking through," coming into your own.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Emphasis on what you spend, what you "take in." Keep wary eye on money....to be sure you are not "taken in." Common sense is order of the day....otherwise, there could be embarrassing situation later.

Leo (July 23 to August 21) Public relations improve. One who previously opposed you, apt to turn favorable. Accept friendship....maintain sense of humor. Be usual gracious, charming self.

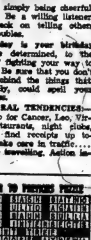
Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 23) Not case of anyone attempting to deceive you. But tendency is to fool yourself. Try to see personal events as they exist...not as you wish they could be.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Result in romantic area should not discourage you. Extreme sensitivity leads to useless brooding. You are able to outgrow some of your friends, associates....and they could be resentful.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Tending of good inspectress. If you wait too long...opportunity flies by. Today good for putting across ideas, action. "Luck" can ride with you, after discouraging start.

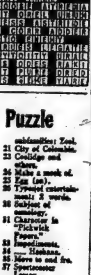
Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Loved one apt to appear in confused state today. Ride with storm! Do not become involved in argument....maintain attitude that everyone has a right to "off days." Be willing to give in....and you will have happier day.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Cycle begins moving up. Day should be good for relaxing, short journeys, visits. If you try "clever play", you could come up with blank. Plan ahead.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If question of speed....or taking it easy....choose latter course. No time for fear....but this Saturday best utilized for rest, building energy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You help yourself most today by helping others. This applies even to simply being cheerful, smiling. Be a willing listener. Hold back on telling others your troubles.



If today is your birthday you are determined, to the point of fighting your way to success. Be sure that you don't leave behind the things that, ultimately, could spell your happiness.

GENERAL TENDENCIES—Cycle up for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Restaurants, night clubs, theaters find receipts up tonight. Take care in traffic...or while travelling. Action indicated.

Constitutional Cloud Over Islands of West Indies Has Caused Disappointment

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — The constitutional cloud over the sun-lit lands of the West Indies has caused disappointment, if not despair, among British officials who had pet their hopes on the now-defunct West Indies Federation.

With the departure of Jamaica and Trinidad, the two best-off partners in the 10-colony alignment, colonial officials here are faced with charting a new course for the islands left behind.

When the federation was formed four years ago it seemed that many of the deep-rooted problems that lay behind the tourist-lodder image of the sugar-and-spice islands of sun, sun and fun would be effectively tackled.

But when Jamaica and Trinidad decided to go it alone and each seek independence within the Commonwealth, they took with them more than three-quarters of the federation's 3,153,000 population and much of its sparse resources.

SELF-RULE AUG. 6

Ruemler—Morman Manley of Jamaica, here for the recent conference that led to dissolution of the federation, said his new attitude does not represent a "change of face." An ardent supporter of the federation in the outset, he later told his people that if they wanted to quit he would "lead them to independence." They voted, in a referendum, for self-government.

Independence day for Jamaica will be Aug. 6. The date for Trinidad has not been set.

Two possible alternatives now present themselves—none too visionary to remain within the realm of immediate possibility, the other a poor man's alliance viewed with trepidation.

The latter suggestion centres around a federation of the remaining eight colonies led by Barbados, largest of the group.

This, said Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling recently with a certain degree of reservation, represents a "promising development." And it probably is the scheme the British will have to go along with for the time being, at least.

However, colonial officials—once bitten, twice shy — are known to be wary of rushing into the new agreement. Maudling, replying to a question in the House of Commons, said: "I agree on the desirability of moving ahead quickly . . . but having seen one federation in the West Indies collapse I would be very unhappy about settling up another, until I was confident that it would last."

The eight islands, generally, are small and poor. They compete among themselves for markets and their people are strongly individualistic. The unemployment rate is high and many of their most capable people are lost through emigration.

The second, grander, suggestion would bring together all the British islands, the French and Dutch territories in the area, mainland British Guiana and British Honduras and possibly Puerto Rico, a United States protectorate, under a sort of joint protectorate. This would involve a joint agreement on responsibility among the territories concerned and Britain, the U.S., France and Holland.

FEAR RED INFLUENCE

It is a fascinating proposition but the feeling here, and in some other quarters, is that the situation has evolved in so many countries co-operating in the administration and guidance of the territories at this stage in their development would be labor.

The Maudling has said that the question of a wider organization, particularly on the economic side, must be kept in mind and the minds because fragmentation in this area is admirably to be avoided if possible."

In this context he no doubt is worried, as always, about possible Communist influences undermining the efforts of the new governmental setup.

The main problem confronting the federation of islands stretching in an arc for more than 1,000 miles from mainland Venezuela to off-shore Venezuela was the inherent imbalance of wealth, development and population among its members. A new, smaller federation would certainly need extensive financial FEDERATION PROBLEMS — The breakup of the West Indies Federation has created constitutional problems among the Islands of the Caribbean Sea. Jamaica and Trinidad have decided to seek independence separately in the Commonwealth.

Now two alternatives are being considered for the Islands. One is a federation of the eight remaining colonies — Barbados, Antigua, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia and St. Vincent.—

Another is a joint protectorate of all the British islands, mainland Honduras and British Guiana, the French and Dutch territories in the area and prosperous Puerto Rico, a United States protectorate.

and technical assistance from Britain for a long, long time.

Besides Jamaica, Trinidad and Barbados, the federation had included Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia and St. Vincent.

JAMAICA RICHEST

Most of the islands were settled by Spaniards in the 16th century. Then British, France and The Netherlands moved into the area and claimed the best. Barbados, first settled by the British in 1627, sometimes is described as being "more English than England."

Jamaica, as the most prosperous, has been helped recently by new industry and investment from outside but still the unemployment figure hovered between 14 and 20 per cent. When Britain's new immigration laws came into effect the flow of manpower from the island will be slowed and the problem will become worse.

One unfortunate aspect, as far as Jamaica and the others are concerned, is that those who will be mainly skilled-laborers.

MANY WOMEN WORK

Even the opening of new factories and an £11,000,000 budget this year for Jamaican roads, hospitals and houses—of which Britain put up £570,000—does not keep the labor demand in step with the supply. Thousands of women, in an island where the illegitimacy rate has risen to 65 per cent, are forced to seek work to provide for their children and this helps depress the market for unskilled workers.

But whatever the eventual outcome for the Caribbean islands, mainland and island, there are many pressing immediate problems.

The various services set up by the federation—the University College of the West Indies, the Caribbean meteorological service and various organizations concerned with research, agriculture, health and communications — must be maintained.

Maudling says he will set up an interim organization to run these and Jamaica and Trinidad have promised their help until a permanent arrangement for their neighbors can be made.

TOMORROW: Barbados seen as leader of new federation.

Israel, Syria Fight 7-Hour Border Battle

Midnight Israeli Raid On Outpost Starts Fight

CP from Reuters-AP

TEL AVIV — Israel and Syrian forces fought a seven-hour ground, artillery and air battle near the Sea of Galilee early today that ended with a United Nations-arranged cease-fire on the tense frontier.

It was one of the biggest flare-ups in five years for several years. Israel sent bombers to attack Syrian artillery which opened fire on an Israeli village after an Israeli ground raid on Syrian outposts near the frontier.

At least two Israeli planes joined the battle and one Syrian plane, reported to be a Soviet-made, MiG-17 jet, was shot down into action.

The fight changed Israel attacked with tanks and four were destroyed. But an Israeli spokesman said no tank was in action and the "tanks" actually were trucks disguised as land mines.

Israeli staff officer said five Israelis were killed, six severely wounded and others slightly hurt. He said the Israeli raiders counted the bodies of at least 50 Syrians, though the Syrians claimed only 15 of their soldiers was killed and five wounded.

The Israelis said they captured one Syrian.

Two civilians were reported wounded in the village of Poston on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, which was shelled by the Syrians. There was also some damage to both Poriah and Ein Gev.

The battle began about 10 days of Syrian-Israeli hostilities on the area, where the Syrians have charged Israeli armored boats have been "violating the demilitarized water zone" to open fire on Syria positions.

MADE MIDNIGHT RAID

Fighting started when the Israeli ground force made a midnight raid on Syrian outposts which they said had been firing boats on the Sea of Galilee Friday.

According to an Israeli announcement, the Israeli troops occupied the posts and said they demolished their fortifications.

Syria's broadcast said the Israelis were repulsed.

Shortly after the raid, the Sea of Galilee was the scene of Syrian searchlights and bursts of artillery fire directed at Poosh and Ein Gev.

Then Israelipianes were sent in and attacked the Syrian artillery, the Israeli announcement said.

Say Algerian Cease-Fire Coming Tonight

PARIS (Reuters)—An Algerian cease-fire is expected to be proclaimed simultaneously today in Algiers and on-wide radio-TV broadcast by President de Gaulle and by Moslem insurgent leaders from their Tunis head-quarters.

Sources close to both delegations in the French Algiers resort town of Evian said all but the final details of the truce had been settled and that the announcement will follow a final meeting there today.

Attack on Algerian Pharmacies Campaign to Paralyze Economy

ALGIERS (AP) — European killers struck at pharmacies throughout Algiers today in what appeared to be a systematic campaign to paralyze the economic power of the city.

Agents of the terrorist Secret Army Organization fighting to keep Algeria French gunned down six Moslem pharmacy employees in a series of lightning raids. All pharmacies shut down and notices were posted saying not even emergency service could be assured.

The pharmacy slayings spread further chaos throughout Algiers, already half-paralyzed by a transport and gasoline dealers' strike. The pharmacy attacks resembled the seven army killings of five moslem three weeks ago. There has been no mail delivery in the city since then. Letters are distributed at movie theatres.

Harassed police officials reported 30 terrorist attacks in Algiers, all but one aimed at Moslems, in the last 24 period were killed and some wounded.

MAN AND WIFE ASPHYXIATED IN BRANTFORD FIRE

Son of Liberal Member for City

BRANTFORD (CP)—A man and his wife died of asphyxiation when fire broke out in their 1½-storey here early today.

The victims were George C. Gordon, 50 - year - old son of George T. Gordon, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Brantford, and his wife, Marjorie, 48.

Gordon was found in the hallway outside his bedroom. His wife died in bed. A pet beagle was found dead beside the bed.

Cause of the outbreak is not known but it is believed to have started in a piece of living-room furniture.

The blaze was discovered by a passing motorist, who tried without success to rouse the Gordons. He hurried to a nearby nurses' residence but the phone was out of order. The motorist had to drive to the fire hall to turn in the alarm.

The Gordons' 23 - year - old daughter, Lynn, was spending the night at a friend's home.

The Gordons are survived by three other children—two sons and a daughter, all married.

Prime Minister Blames Liberals For Delays

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night accused the Liberal opposition in Parliament of deliberately blocking passage of the government's supplementary estimates.

"We have quite a bit of legislation we want to bring before Parliament," he said, "but we cannot do it before the estimates have been passed."

Mr. Diefenbaker said estimates usually are passed within two or three days after presentation but the current list has been before the House 16 days.

The government wanted "full discussion and consideration" but the opposition was resorting to repetition rather than new arguments.

In Ottawa, the Commons passed the government's request of a $40,000,000 supplementary appropriation for the federal-provincial vocational training plan Friday night. The House reverts to discussing legislation Monday.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there is "a small group of Liberals in the House—the rest are out discussing public affairs in various parts of the country."

The prime minister made the statement in his address to the annual convention of the Quebec Progressive Conservative Association.

QUEBEC LIBERAL IS EXPELLED FROM COMMONS

Claimed Deputy Speaker Partial

OTTAWA (CP)—Persistent refusal to withdraw a charge that Deputy Speaker Paul Martineau gave a biased ruling led to expulsion from the Commons Friday for Quebec Liberal Alexis Caron.

The MP for Hull was ejected by the remainder of the day's sitting—two hours and five minutes—on a vote of 84 to 34, Progressive Conservatives overwhelming 19 Liberals and five members of the CCF-New Democratic Party group.

Those who are useless will not continue in their positions and authority."

Caston singled out no individuals but he had particularly biting criticism for the revolutionary defence committees.

These groups—with representation in every city block in all factories and on farms—are responsible for watching their neighbors and co-workers for signs of counter-revolutionary conduct.

The premier said he talked a few days ago with several women who complained they had been humiliated in public and treated as counter-revolutionaries when they actually supported the regime wholeheartedly.

Some people, he said, "think they are new revolutionaries than anybody and have the right to mistreat and humiliate others. There are people who have created chaos in the organizations of the party itself, mania for putting and taking and their abuse of authority.

"The political apparatus is the backbone of the revolution, it is there that we have to take the most care, where we have to have the greatest vigilance so there will be no scoundrels nor persons taking advantage."

Cuba's Revolutionary Heads Abusing Authority -- Castro

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro charged today that Cuba's revolutionary leaders are abusing their authority, mistreating the public and creating general chaos.

Sweeping changes must be made, he said.

The revolution needs a revise all the revolutionary machinery and all the political apparatus that the revolution do away with the errors and abuses, and to gain good performance," the bearded leader declared in televised address monitored here.

Those who are useless will not continue in their positions and authority."

Castro singled out no individuals but he had particularly biting criticism for the revolutionary defence committees.

Officials Ponder Coincidence Of 2 Plane Disappearances

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Striking coincidences and unexplained circumstances in a pair of fatal flights of two big planes taking American military help to Communist-threatened South Viet Nam led the owners of the planes to raise these possibilities:

2. Sabotage of one or both planes.

2. Possible kidnapping of one or both pilots and the disappearing aboard, mostly trained American jungle troops.

But the Flying Tiger Line stressed it has no evidence of either possibility. Colombian Line was not ruled out.

One plane, carrying secret military cargo, crashed and burned while landing in the Azores, killing one man. The other, a passenger plane with 107 persons, is missing out of Guam.

The identical 1049-A Super Constellations left Travis Air-Force Base, Calif., at 9:46 p.m. Wednesday. Both were bound for Saigon on flights for the United States defence department. Both mysteriously hit trouble in a few hours later, though they'd taken different routes.

The Federal Aviation Authority and Civil Aeronautics Board opened investigations.

Company officials, are puzzled by failure to receive any distress signal from the vanished plane which was flying at 16,000 feet in r ew of good weather.

The plane carrying cargo crashed and burned at Adak, Alaska, at 4:14 a.m. Thursday. The airline said it was said the craft was making a ground-controlled approach and undershoot the runway.

'Battle of the Stopwatch' Key Issue in Chrysler Strike

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Not only are the issues not settled in the four-week strike of 9,000 Chrysler of Canada; it's not clear the two sides are agreed on the issues are.

The big production - building walkout at one of Canada's automotive big three, labor calls it the "battle of the stopwatch," meaning it has to hustle more for the same pay as in the other two firms.

Management says it wants only something that is basically comparable to settlements made by the United Auto Workers (CLC) in the plants of General Motors and Ford.

ACTION BY GOVT. ON RAIL STRIKE THREAT AWAITED

Engineers Announce Strikes April 2, 3

MONTREAL (CP)—The question of possible action by the federal government was in the forefront today in the face of a threatened strike on Canada's two biggest railways in little more than two weeks.

The sudden crisis was thrown into the holiday weekend by 4,500-man Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (Ind.) said it will go on strike against the CNR Monday, April 2, and against the CPR 24 hours later unless its contract demands are met.

There was no immediate indication of how the government could act to head off the rail strike beyond putting pressure on all parties to try to work out an amicable settlement before the rapidly approaching deadline.

During the last railway crisis, involving 110,000 non-operating employees, the government rammed through Parliament an emergency bill to compulsorily arbitrate that delayed a scheduled strike for six months.

That dispute was settled before the government-imposed deadline.

VOTED STRIKE ACTION

The engineers previously had voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action if necessary against both the CNR and the CPR. The result of the strike vote was announced Feb. 15, but the strike deadline was set then pending further talks.

O. J. Travers, assistant chief of the union in Canada, said both railways "remained adamant" in their refusal to grant the union demands.

"It seems as though we always have to come to the point where we're in now before we can get down to real negotiations," he said.

"We hope the railways will take a realistic view now and talk cold turkey with us."

The strike threat against the CPR apparently caught officials there completely by surprise. The CPR and the union recently had been reported on the verge of a settlement.

Mr. Travers said the stumbling blocks in both negotiations centre on complicated work-rule changes. Adding to the confusion is the fact the union, the CNR and the CPR have implemented as of Jan. 1 the recommendations of a two-year conciliation board.

Engineers now earn between $4,000 and $6,000 a year, according to the union.

Army in Charge In Riot-Torn Guatemala City

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The army held this riot-torn Guatemala city under virtual martial law today as opposition mounted to President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes' regime. Army troops chased two guerrilla bands in the hills.

The army seized control of the city on Ydigoras' orders following five days of street fighting and other violence that left 20 persons dead and more than 200 injured. More than 100 persons were reported arrested.

Brazil Contends Close Inspection Not Necessary

Blasts Can Be Detected Over Great Distances

GENEVA (AP)—The United States appeared almost certain today to come under heavy pressure from several non-nuclear nations in the disarmament conference to suspend its plans for a series of nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere starting next month.

Brazil has taken the lead among the eight-power middle bloc of the conference in arguing that, even without an international inspection system, atmospheric tests could be stopped now because they are detectable over great distances.

At the heart of the developing struggle is President Kennedy's announcement to go ahead with atmospheric tests in late April unless Russia signs a test ban treaty providing for an international inspection to prevent cheating and to discourage secret test preparations.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told U.S. State Secretary Rusk privately last Sunday in the Soviet government will not accept international inspection for a test ban, Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov announced the position at a press conference Friday. He contended national inspection systems were sufficient to police a treaty banning testing.

SEEN AS TURNDOWN

U.S. officials regarded the Soviet declarations as a flat public rejection of Kennedy's terms. But they said the president's offer remains open.

The position developing among the middle bloc of nations, however, threatens to make this more than a U.S.-Soviet issue. If the stand taken by Brazilian Foreign Minister Francisco Clementino Santiago Master finds support, U.S. diplomats fear it could pose a challenge to winning a acceptance of the American test policy.

Santiago Master said Friday night he believes Russia and the United States can make progress if agree ton a suspension of nuclear tests in the air, probably based on the United States starts its new series. Modern detection methods, he asserted, make it possible for either side to police a test suspension in the air without any international inspection international machinery, could be set up.

The conference was in recess for the weekend after three sessions devoted largely to ceremonial openings Wednesday.

Great Day for Patrick O'Conner, Dancing Jig on 100th Birthday

COLDWATER, Ont. (CP) — Patrick O'Conner has good cause for dancing the Irish jig today.

The spry centenarian has been delighting his fellow patients all week with his Irish ditties and jigs at a nursing home in this town 15 miles northwest of Orillia.

Patrick is a confirmed bachelor who was born on an Orillia area farm on St. Patrick's Day in 1862. His parents came to Canada from Cork.

His favorite pastimes are walking television and reading. He does both without the aid of spectacles.

C of C Looking For New Office

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is again looking for new office quarters — for about the fifth time in little more than a decade.

Reports are that the building on Pinnacle Street in which the Chamber is presently located is to be torn down and the Chamber of Commerce has been given notice to vacate.

But Chamber of Commerce secretary Earl Dicknoother says he has been unable to find a new location.

"I've looked everywhere, and so far haven't been able to find anything suitable," he said.

The local Chamber has had location troubles since the fire at the Chamber Hone building on Front Street.

Since the fire the Chamber has been located at city hall; at the Kiwanis Centre, and at a Campbell Street location before moving to its present office.

Van de Vooren Innocent Victim In Car Accident

Mr. Frederick Jan Van de Vooren, of Belleville, was an innocent victim in a three-car accident Wednesday at the corner of Charles and Dundas Streets, and has since been charged with careless driving and impaired driving as was stated yesterday in the Ontario Intelligencer.

The two charged as result of the accident is Benedict William Cirtwill, R. R. 1, Lansdowne, who yesterday in city magistrate's court had his case enlarged until March 30th.

Police reported Mr. Cirtwill was southbound on Charles Street when his brakes failed as he tried to stop at Dundas Street. His car struck a vehicle being driven west on Dundas Street by Mr. Harvey Langhurst of Belleville. The impact swung the Longhurst car into the path of an eastbound car driven by Mr. Van de Vooren. Property damage to the three vehicles was $300.

The Ontario Intelligencer regrets any embarrassment which the error has caused Mr. Van de Vooren.

Rosicrucians To Celebrate Ancient Rite

The re-enactment of a ceremony that began in ancient Egypt over 40 centuries ago will be the highlight of a local Rosicrucian concave to be held here March 20th.

According to Kenneth Campbell, master of the Rosicrucian Order, Sulinja Prakash, A.M.O.R.C., the ancient Egyptians, from the time of Memphis to the Ptolemies, New Year began their New Year on or about the time of the vernal equinox when the sun, on its journey, crosses the celestial equator and enters the zodiacal sign of Aries, which always occurs on or about March 21. This was considered the beginning of the New Year and was symbolic of new life.

SYMBOLIC FEAST

The opening of the New Year is celebrated, states Kenneth Campbell, by a symbolic feast in which the participants partake of simple foods correspondent to concentrate the elements of Nature, such as: salt, corn, and unfermented wine juice.

At the Rosicrucian Order, AMORC, a non-sectarian but philosophical fraternity, maintains that its traditional origin occurred during the reign of Amenhotep IV, in 1350 B.C., the Order seeks to incorporate this ancient New Year beginning with a ceremony, though non-religious, that embraces the allegorical significance of the age-old Egyptian rite.

FISCAL PERIOD

March 21 is also the beginning of the fiscal period of all Rosicrucian Orders, Chapters, and Pronaos throughout the world; and the date is marked by the installation of new officiallatie and administrative officers.

Retired Couples With Money: Spend It, Save It or Invest It

By THOMAS COLLINS

What a couple can do with its money if the husband a and wife retire at age 65 with a $5,000 nest egg.

Spend it. The couple has a, say, $5,000. It also has a retirement income of $1 less $200 a month. It can figure that the first five years of retirement, or up to age 70, will be the best. So the couple enjoy themselves. They split the $5,000 in five equal parts, and the $1,000 each year (or $183 a month) to live it up with trips, winters in the sunshine, etc. Then there are many variations to this tune, such as splitting the money over a life's expectancy of 15 years or so to increase the yearly income or blowing it all in one grand trip around the world. Only you can considered prudent. But it's fun.

Take it with you. The couple can go to a reputable funeral home and make all arrangements in advance. There's a rule saying they can't have gold-plated caskets if they choose, but it would be rare, but think what excitement there'd be in 100 years when somebody excavated them.

PEACH OF MIND

Put it in the bank. Interest on savings accounts in normal commercial banks now runs up to 4 per cent, usually paid semi-annually or quarterly. The couple can put their money here with peace of mind and annually can draw it out simply by walking up to the counter.

Put it in a savings and loan. Here the couple can get a little more interest here — up to 4½ per cent, payable quarterly or semi-annually. But it's different from city to city, as the interest rate does, but usually the couple can get it back at no cost whenever they want it.

There's a second third here, too. If the couple selects an "insured" savings and loan.

Buy an annuity. The retired couple can go to a life insurance company and buy an annuity typed of annuities for cash. The annuity guarantees payments of so much per month for life, the amount depending on the ages of the couple and the sum of money put into it. A common type of annuity is one that returns no cash value on death, thus enabling higher monthly payments.

Buy mutual funds. This gets into what is known as "investments" as contrasted with "savings". The couple buys mutual funds from investment houses, brokers and, in some cases, banks. A mutual fund is usually a collection of stocks or bonds, or both. A share in a mutual fund is a share in the package of these stocks and bonds, that may cover 100 or more industries. The managers of the fund are constantly buying and selling in an effort to enhance the value of the shares or to increase the income from them. These managers are "pros" in the business of investments, while the normal couple or lady may stock and bonds is an amateur. Therefore, the theory is that by spreading the investment over many industries and getting professional management, the normal investor is in safer waters. Return ranges up to about 5 per cent. The money invested increases or decreases as stocks go up or down.

Quinte Driving, Riding Club Directors Meet

The first regular meeting of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club Board of Directors was held Thursday evening in the Bridge Street office.

Gerald Vance acted as chairman to get the meeting started with a major item on the agenda, the appointment of officials.

Phillip Stewart was appointed president at which point he took the chair for the remainder of the proceedings.

Vice presidential posts were appointed to bring the board up to its required ten members with a unanimity. Ballot difficulties from city to city, as the interest rate does, but usually the couple can get it back at no cost whenever they want it.

3 PE County Youths Injured, Car Hits Tree

Admitted to hospital with possible concussion was Grant Miller, 19, of Miller, passenger in the car driven by James Miller, 20, of Lake Ontario. Martin suffered a possible broken arm, while a second passenger, Robert Brewer, 20, of Hillier, had a broken foot.

Wellington Police Chief Bert Marvin said the car was southbound about five miles north of Wellington when it left the road, travelled a considerable distance along the ditch and crashed head-on into a tree. The car was a complete write-off.

The accident occurred about 2:30 this morning.

The injured youths were taken to the office of Dr. R. A. Thompson of Wellington for treatment and were later taken to Trenton hospital.

Const. Haight county, still unconscious, was taken to hospital by Alcantor's Ambulance of Wellington.

W. C. Murdock, U.C. Minister, Dies in Hospital

In ill health for the past two and a half months, Rev. W. C. Murdock, 179 Bridge Ave., Belleville, died today in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 83rd year.

Mr. Murdock had been living with his daughter and son-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. M. G. McFarlane.

Born at Murray River in Prince Edward Island, Mr. Murdock was the son of the late Rev. John and John Murdock, and lived at Georgetown before coming to Belleville ten years ago. His wife, the former Alice Maude Roberts, pre-deceased him in 1948.

A graduate of Dalhousie University, Princeton Theological College, New Jersey; Pine Hill Theological College, of Halifax, and of United College in Winnipeg, Mr. Murdock was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in May, 1906, in the state of New Jersey.

His first pastoral charge was at Tyne Valley, P.E.I. He re sponded to the missionary call for Western Canada and went to Melfort, Sask., in 1908.

Following 17 years' ministry was served in Western Canada. In 1925 at the time of the Methodist Union, he became minister with the United Church of Canada.

During his ministry he served at Tyne Valley, P.E.I.; Rosthern, Manitoba, Sask., Melfort, Sask., Elrose, Watson, Canora, Lanigan and Netherhill, all in Saskatchewan.

Mr. Murdock retired from the ministry in 1946.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. M. G. (Flo) McFarlane of Belleville and two sons, Clarence of Toronto and Reginald of Montreal. There are also grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon with service in Tabernacle United Church.

BATTLE

sor hand cannot be expected to do a job as quickly as a man who works on only one hand of the clock.

Ron W. Todgham, Chrysler consultant, says the real issue is "the determination of the union to force upon our company an attitude of a relationship from that granted to our competitors by their UAW locals — in other words an attempt to put Chrysler of Canada into a position of being uncooperative with the rest of the industry."

He tackles the union, too, on their demand for a cooling-off wents. The UAW has settled for three-year pacts with the others with, of course, no strikes intervening in return for concessions.

"Our union has not," Todgham, "is holding our for a one-year contract—the only one in the bunch—and the right to strike in the second year of a two-year contract with the right to strike in the second year of a two which is really no better than a one-year agreement."

WANTS SHORT LEASHON

George Burt, Canadian UAW director, puts it this way:

—"What has happened at Chrysler is that—as certain industrial relations experts have been supertimposed upon the plant and have destroyed the relationship between union representatives and foremen in day-to-day arrangements.

"This stopwatch has become a gun those whit-kids have placed at the workers' heads."

Burt says the fair day's work for a fair day's pay is all that the union is seeking in any a collective agreement which is generally comparable to the pattern established in the industry.

Most of the 3,000 strikers work at the passenger car assembly plant. Key office and maintenance personnel have also been affected.

The strikers are losing about $50,000 daily in wages.

Union officials say they are handing out $75,000 a week in strike pay but still have to raise funds for special cases of hardship among strikers.

IN MEMORIAM

EMERSON — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mary Emerson, who passed away March 18, 1961. Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother, Far better than we can know; In life we loved you dearly, And still we do so now.

—Sadly missed by husband Robert, son, daughter, son-in-law, daughter Gladys and husband.

MORRIS — In loving memory of my wife Martha Morris who passed away March 18th, 1957. A cheery smile, a heart of gold, She suffered much, but bold. A friend to all, her last would give a hand to help a friend.

—Her husband.

SMITH — In loving memory of dear father, Harry Smith, who passed away March 17, 1957. You're not forgotten, father, dear, Though death did part us. As long as life and memory last, I will remember you.

—Always remembered by son and daughter-in-law.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry Smith, who passed away March 17th, 1957. What words can express how we miss you,

Dear Dad, in the same old way;
Your smile, your voice, see you smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
Dad, dear Dad,
Cherish him with care;
Guard him well, keep the heartache
Till you see his vacant chair.

—Ever remembered and sorrowed by daughter Margaret and son-in-law Gordon.

HALLMOND — In loving memory of our dear sister, Mry Ella May Hallmond, who passed away one year ago, March 18, 1961.

There's no one could forget the day,
Dear sister, one year ago today
We were told you'd gone to stay
For his memory is our keepsake,
With us it will always be.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by wife Ethel, son-in-law, daughter, Audrey, son-in-law, Don.

CARDS OF THANKS

It is hard to find words with which would express our deep gratitude and appreciation to all. Kind and thoughtful during our and bereavement in the loss of our husband and father, Our heartfelt thanks to Reverend Ingram for his comfort in their prayers, letters and cards of sympathy, flowers and gifts of food. Also for the kindness and thoughtfulness. We would like to express our sincere thanks to the doctors, nurses, and attendants who were so kind and helpful to the late Clarence Hallmond, he was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Thank you all.

—Mabel LaRue and family.

If West Indies Federation Rises From Ashes Barbados Will Likely Become Leader

By LESLIE BRUNTON
Canadian Press Correspondent

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP) — The West Indies Federation arises from the ashes of the one wrecked by withdrawal of Jamaica and Trinidad, it is expected Barbados will become leader and capital.

The new federation would group together the eight remaining members of the original. Known as the Little Eight, they are Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, Montserrat, St. Vincent, Dominica, St. Lucia, Grenada and Barbados.

Several men have been mentioned as possible leaders of the new grouping. Sir Grantley Adams, 63, prime minister of the old West Indies Federation since 1958 and prior to that premier of Barbados, is considered a possible choice.

MAY PICK LEADER

Some observers say that if Sir Grantley is not picked as prime minister, he will be named governor - general. Others feel a natural choice for prime minister is Errol Barrow, 42, premier of Barbados and an RAF veteran of the Second World War.

Mentioned in some circles is Prof. Arthur Lewis, world-renowned economist and principal of University College of the West Indies. If he does not become prime minister it is expected he will be drafted as economic planner for the new nation.

He has already drafted a report suggesting that Canada, Britain and the United States be asked to provide $7,000,000 annually to the new federation for an indefinite period.

Talk of forming the new federation began shortly after Jamaica voted last September to seek its independence. The vote came just about a year before the federation would have been declared a self-governing member of the Commonwealth.

TRINIDAD FOLLOWED

Following Jamaica's decision, the government of Trinidad decided that it too would withdraw and seek independence. This spelled doom for the federation, brought into being in 1958.

The British government has agreed to liquidation of the existing federation. This was announced by Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling who mentioned that the Little Eight wanted to form a new grouping and said the proposal would be studied carefully.

During his unsuccessful "save the federation visit" to the Caribbean in January, the Little Eight told him what they had in mind.

On the granting of independence to Jamaica next August, the existing federation would be dissolved. An eight - member cabinet — one representative for each unit of the new federation — would be appointed to legislate by decree until a parliament could be elected.

Parliament would consist of a cabinet of six members, a lower house of 17 elected members and a senate of 16. The federation would have a governor-general and each unit would have a lieutenant-governor.

The original federation has been administered by an 11-member cabinet, a 19-member lower house and a 9-member house of representatives. A governor-general appointed by Britain has the power to veto certain legislation.

The Little Eight would seek the status of self - governing dominion within the Commonwealth by Jan. 1, 1963, providing the U.K. guaranteed security and a customs union.

The new union would operate on a budget of up to $50,000,000 by the end of its fourth year. This would be made up of revenue from income tax, import duties, postal services, court fees and currency profits. The amount would be used to provide federal services to a total population of 1,350,000.

The original federation has a population of 3,153,000 but the federal government operates on a budget of $13,000,000 because its powers are limited.

The new federation would attempt to carry on services already provided by the federal government. For instance, it would operate the two passenger-freight vessels Canada gave the federation. The ships would continue to ply among 11 British possessions in the Caribbean area.

An effort would be made to see that existing federal civil servants do not suffer as a result of the transition. Some are expected to be absorbed by island governments. Others are due for retirement and substantial severance pay might be provided for those who could not be placed immediately.

The existing federation owns no buildings. The space it occupies here is rented from the Trinidad government and would revert immediately to that government.

Can Not Verify Rumor Tip-Top Building Sold

Rumors that the Tip Top Tailor building at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets has been sold have been current in the city for the past week or so.

However, the reports could not be verified.

Mr. Earl Wilson, local manager of the Tip Top Tailor store, said he "wouldn't be surprised" if the building had been sold, while J. S. Fletcher, manager of Household Finance Company, whose firm rented space on the second floor of the building, also said he had heard the building had been sold.

The recent move of the Household Finance office, however, had been contemplated for some time and had no connection with the possible sale of the building.

General Trust Company of Toronto has been handling the building.

The Tip Top Tailor building at one time was occupied on the ground floor by the Standard Bank, while the income Tax Department occupied space on the second floor.

Maple Syrup Makes Debut On Market

Maple Syrup made its appearance on the market this morning with two of the dozen vendors present selling it at $5.40 a gallon, or $5.00 if the purchaser brought his own container. A small quantity of maple sugar was also available and sold at 15 to 25 cents a block according to size.

A good variety of apples was also on hand for the prospective buyer with prices ranging from 50 cents a basket to $2.50 a hamper. Potatoes sold at 50 cents a basket or $1.75 a hamper.

Eggs were available at 50 cents a dozen for extra large or 45 cents the dozen for large. Chickens were selling at 50 cents a pound.

One stand of flowers graced the market with a dash of color and good-sized 'mums of various colors were being had for half a dol'ar a bunch.

Some vegetables, notably turnips and cabbages, were offered for sale at 50 cents a basket for the former and 10 to 15 cents a head for the latter.

Honey sold at 50 cents a comb or 35 cents for a two-pound tin.

Home baking was also available to the market shopper with a wide variety of cookies, cakes and pies being offered at varying attractive prices.

C. K. Herz New President Of Bata Shoe

TRENTON — It was learned today that C. K. Herz, vice-president and managing director of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Ltd. had been appointed president of the Canadian section of the world organization.

Mr. Herz will also assume a directorship in the Bellcamp, Maryland branch of the operation and will head a new regional grouping, which will include all Bata operations in Canada, the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

Bata Engineering and Xent Shoes Ltd. will be operated as separate divisions within the organization.

Taking charge of the shoe manufacturing company in Canada and recently appointed managing director will be Karel Vytopil.

Mr. Herz has had 30 years of experience with Bata in the Far East, Europe and Africa. He comes to Canada from Rhodesia, where he has held the post of managing director.

Mr. Vytopil arrived in Trenton that same day as guest of honor at a management course dinner at the Trenton Country Club last Wednesday. The banquet was attended by 130 key men of the Bata organization.

Bursting Water Main Causes Heavy Flooding

TRENTON — Around 4.30 p.m. yesterday, a large water-main on Queen Street, near Joseph Street, burst, flooding the immediate area within minutes.

F. W. MacDonald, who lives at 304 Queen Street, told a reporter, "I was sitting in my kitchen looking out at the street. Suddenly I saw the road heave and the water come out like a geyser. I couldn't believe my eyes."

The force of the initial burst of water made a hole six or eight feet across the pavement. Queen Street lawns in the vicinity were miniature lakes. Cellars were flooded. Kids waded around the area in rubber boots visiting about the hope that it would freeze and provide a community skating rink.

By 5.45 p.m., utilities workmen had restored a semblance of order. Town residents had been switched over to filtrated river water, which ordinarily is supplied by the RCAF Station.

An official at the filtration plant said later that he had been besieged by telephone calls from frantic householders.

The official went on to put it: "You never miss the water 'till the well runs dry."

Cause of the break in the main has not yet been established. It is expected that town men will have completed repair work to the main, some time today.

Street Lighting Up to Council Says Utilities

TRENTON — Just who is responsible for street lighting in Trenton? Members of the council, after considering requests from some citizens that more lights be installed, decided for the streets in front of their homes, surgeon to Mayor James MacDonald that the opinion of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission be asked.

Accordingly, the mayor approached the commission on the matter.

"No," said the commission, "it's not our responsibility, let the council put up the cash and the lights and we'll put them there."

One resident had suggested that a new fluorescent light in front of some woods would go a long way to solving the lighting problem in the area.

The controller-chairman of the commission was that a new fluorescent light at the citizen's corner would give rise to dissatisfaction with the older lights on the street. In fact, in the opinion of Jim Page, utilities manager, a light in front of the citizen's home wasn't necessary.

Another suggestion made by the mayor was that a centre light in the middle of the road at Tripp's corner. This, he said, would assist the traffic officer on duty to do his job more efficiently and safely. Again, the commission threw the decision back into council's lap.

Commission chairman Charles Hillen was adamant. "It's strictly up to the council to decide which streets need more lights and which streets don't," he said.

its position one hour, 20 minutes, out of Guam.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said "chances are getting slimmer every minute" that any of the 107 persons aboard would be found alive.

Search planes today reported sighting five partially submerged objects in the western Pacific, along the scheduled route. No persons were seen in the immediate vicinity.

The U.S. destroyer Brister was dispatched to the vicinity of the objects. The joint rescue centre at Agana, Guam, said the Brister is expected to reach the area at dawn Sunday. A KC-97 tanker ordered to circle above the objects until the Brister arrives.

The propeller-driven plane, with a crew of 11 Americans carried 93 U.S. passengers and three South Vietnamese, bound for South Viet Nam. The army men were reported scheduled to join the U.S. forces bolstering the South Viet Nam government's fight against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

After fruitless flights Friday, officials tripled the search area and pressed nearly 100 planes and nine ships into systematic criss-crossing of more than 250,000 square miles of calm Pacific waters.

McFarlands Will Hold Practice

The blowing of a gasket on one of the compressors at the mechanical arena shortly before six o'clock last evening forced the cancellation of the Junior "B" game between the Kingston Frontenacs and the Belleville McFarlands. Quick planning on the part of the engineers repaired the damage and the ice plant was soon in operating condition.

The senior game between the Lindsay Club and the Pepsi's will be played tonight as scheduled and a game will be substituted. There will be loads of prizes, no parking fee at Exhibition Club and there will be other surprises. This is a playoff series and the winner is a team that could go through to a championship.

Cordi' Bell, coach of the Junior McFarlands, in an effort to keep his team in shape for the playoff series, has called a practice for Sunday afternoon and every member of the team is requested to be on hand. The boys will start the period at one o'clock. The series will continue on Tuesday night in Kingston and the teams will be right back at it at the local arena on Wednesday night.

Municipal Heads to Meet With Minister

TRENTON — If Trenton's municipal government heads don't succeed in convincing the Ontario department of highways that a second bridge across the River Trent would be a "connecting link" between Highway 401 (via Sidney St.) and Highway 33, (Dundas St.), it won't be because they haven't tried.

Clerk - comptroller O. F. W. Larry said yesterday that on March 21, Mayor Norman MacDonald, town engineer Eric Aldersey and "probably" Elmer Sandercock, MPP for Hastings West, "would meet with Highway Min. W. A. Goodfellow, minister of highways, in Toronto, on the matter. Mr. Sandercock will be asked to accompany the Trenton group.

If a bridge across the river, at the suggested Ford St.-Baptiste St. location, could be constructed as a connecting link, the Ontario government would pay 50 per cent of the cost of the project.

Sermons Directed To H.S. Students

There is a great need for the Pulpit of this modern day to reconcile religion and science. Scientifically minded adults are having difficulty with the Bible in its scientific references. They cannot reconcile the two. High school students are learning about outer space, modern astronomy, modern biology, modern physics, but when they come to Sunday School or Church on Sunday they are transported into a strange world. The strangeness does not affect them from the quarter of spiritual truth and its application to daily living, but scientifically they walk in a different world. The people who walk through the Bible do not seem to share their scientific ideas or speak their language.

The student often questions his parents about what the Church believes about science, and what is the interpretation of the Bible as it relates to the creation and other matters in which science is involved, and is always answered by the same answer,

Bridge Street United Church the Minister, the Reverend Harry M. Davis, will, for the next three Sunday evenings of the Lenten Season, seek to help high school students and adults with these problems in a series of three sermons. First, the Bible and Science; second, God and Science; third, Religion and Science.

Canadians Are Fortunate

A copy of "Labor Research," published by the Canadian Labor Congress, contains some interesting information on price trends in Europe and America, Canadians, who have heard much about spiralling prices here, may be surprised to learn that they are amongst the most fortunate in this respect.

Between 1953 and the third quarter of 1960, the Canadian consumer price index rose only 11 per cent, the same as that for the U.S. Of 20 countries, only four, Belgium with a rise of 10 per cent, and Portugal, Luxembourg and Switzerland, 8 per cent, are listed as having a smaller increase. West Germany, about whose stable economy so much has been written, reported an increase of 14 per cent. The United Kingdom's increase was 21 per cent, France's was 34 per cent and Turkey's was a shocking 126 per cent.

It is worth noting that three of the four countries where the consumer price index rose less than in Canada had a much lower increase in the wholesale price index from 1953 to 1959. The Canadian increase was 5 per cent, Belgium's was one per cent, there was no change in Switzerland and Portugal's declined one per cent. Italy's wholesale price index dropped in the period, yet its consumer price index rose 16 per cent. On the basis of these figures, Canadian retailers do not appear to have done badly by their fellow-citizens.

Another interesting point is that between 1953 and 1959 the prices of consumer goods in Canada rose only 6 per cent. It was the increased cost of services, 17 per cent, which aboved the consumer price index higher. Of 13 countries, only for the U.S., 5 per cent, and Switzerland, 3 per cent, are smaller price increases for goods shown. In West Germany the increase was 11 per cent, in the United Kingdom 16 per cent and in France 28 per cent. In services the price increase in Canada was exceeded by that of all 13 countries except the U.S., Switzerland and West Germany, all with increases of 14 per cent against our 17 per cent.

While we sometimes think of the widespread possession of tangible goods as being a sign of a high standard of living, the richer the country the larger proportion of consumer expenditure which goes for services rather than goods. For instance, in the U.S. 54 per cent of the total expenditure by consumers is for goods and 46 per cent for services. There is a great difference in Canada, where 62 per cent of the consumer's money goes for goods and only 38 per cent for services, but we are still in second place among 13 nations listed. In the United Kingdom goods take 73 per cent of the total, services 27 per cent, in West Germany it is 76 per cent for goods and 24 per cent for services and in Austria the proportion spent for goods, 80 per cent, is the highest listed.

And, if it is any comfort to the housewife entering the supermarket, the people of only two other nations, of 13 listed, the U.S., and Sweden, spend a smaller proportion of their total outlay for food. In the U.S. it takes up 30 per cent of the consumer expenditure, in Sweden 31 per cent and in Canada 32 per cent. The Austrian spends 52 per cent, the West German 46 per cent and the Frenchmen 44 per cent. Of course, they are all famous eaters. But the spud-eating son of Erin puts 41 per cent of what he earns into his stomach.

"I See It Coming"

Janice Levron keeps mumbling, over and over again, "I see it coming, I see it coming, I see it coming."

Janice is seven. Last Saturday afternoon she was a member of a happy New Orleans family of five. Saturday night she was the lone survivor. A crippled U.S. Army plane, abandoned safely by its six-man crew, crashed into her home. Her father, mother and two little brothers were killed.

This type of accident will grow more frequent as the years pass, unless some means is found to avoid it. Many a pilot who could have parachuted safely has given his life to guide his falling plane away from built-up areas. But this is not always possible, and in any case a better method, one which does not condemn the pilot to death, ought to be sought. Would it be beyond the capability of science to devise an apparatus which could blow the plane to bits after the airmen had abandoned it? This, we suspect, would be fairly simple; the trick would be to make any such an apparatus explosion-proof in the event of a crash landing.

But Janice, mumbling "I see it coming, I see it coming, I see it coming," should provide the incentive for scientists to work on the problem.

Election Speeches Tend To Come in 'Packages'

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Happened to notice that election speeches, like just about every other commodity these days, come in what are commonly called "Packages".

Perhaps it's simply a matter of self-defence — it being impossible to grind out a new and different political pitch each time — but both Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson have evolved a speech written to a strictly stylized formula.

Each leader has developed a set of phrases which they use and re-use, what has become known as "The Speech." Neither is just any old little old one-shot speech, the kind that the majority of politicians use for most of the run-of-the-club circuit speaking dates.

The Diefenbaker speech is a very special product that almost actually "grows" from week to week, month after month.

Lend an eye and ear to the Prime Minister's.

He delivered the original mini version when this continuing battle of the election campaign first began, back in Penticton in Vernon, B.C. after last September's two-week "postscript" session of Parliament had closed.

LABOR SAVER

And he has been revising and re-writing what essentially is the same speech ever since as across the country, ever since.

With it, he has mastered the labor-saving technique of using, what for a better name, might be described as the "Handy All-Purpose Speech."

Initially, he built it with interchangeable parts so that components could be substituted to meet changing circumstances and conditions:

Now, from platform to platform, new statistics can be incorporated . . . meanings reshaded and the speech shifted in line with developing situations . . . in fact the whole thing updated and brought up to the moving perspective of emerging issues.

This makes it difficult, if not infrequently impossible, for the Opposition to "catch" him out when the Liberals want to return the fire, they discover that the range, trajectory, calibre of ammunition, even the target have changed.

But it works both ways, with Liberal Leader Pearson shifting ground and presenting an always fluid political battle front for the Tories to shoot at.

Basically, the Diefenbaker speech has eight main worked-out and interchangeable parts, the Pearson pitch, six.

THE PARTS OF A PACKAGE"

The Prime Minister's speech "package" contains:

1. The Government Record; Bright, in the glitter of promises made and promises kept;

2. The Liberal Record; Dark, with the Pipeline, Closure, and the old C. D. Howe "Bureaucracy";

3. The Liberal Future; Darker, with the Liberals "Dealing in 'Gloom and Doom;'"

4. Personalities; Light, if stinging quips, always good for laughs, about "Mike, Pick 'n' Paul — Mixers, Smoothers and Diminishers";

5. International Scene; Left open for inclusion of last-minute bulletins from Washington, London, Paris, Bonn, sometimes even Moscow;

6. Foreign Investment and Nation's Good, and regularly getting better, with everything on the upswing nationally;

7. The Election; For nonsense, always a carefully-worded reference to timing, to give it a non-political, non-partisan mediacy, or an easy feeling of over-riding truth, as the current situation seems to indicate;

8. The Joke or Anecdote; True and usually humorous stories from personal political experience to emphasize a particular point. The recent Liberal misuse of the "Whitehoot Soog" for weeks has been a prime ministerial favorite and oddly, just the mere mention of the name "Pickersgill," with or without a wisecrack is a sure-fire laugh.

MIKE'S MIXTURE

Now what about the Pearson pitch?

His speech "package" comes in six interchangeable components:

1. The Situation; A mess rapidly getting messier.

2. The Prime Minister; Helpless with indecision.

3. The Economy; Big deficit, heavy unemployment.

4. The Election; Call it now if you dare;

5. International Scene; Canadian "image" blurred, prestige low;

6. The Slogan: "Had enough?"

And there, basically, are the two speech "packages," as they have been used by the rival Parliamentary leaders on campaign platforms during every election these past six months.

Both try, and usually succeed, in giving one the basic points a bright. If not always exactly new twist each time they deliver the "package."

This gives it the element of news, gets it into the newspapers and on the air.

Giving it that news-making twist must tax the ingenuity of the political speech-writers for most of the men around both Diefenbaker and Pearson are making speeches that essentially are only variations on the leaders' themes.

The true test of oratorical greatness comes when the long Fall-through-Winter rehearsal for the election campaign ends and the final speeches are made to hit the hustings in earnest and for real.

Then, with as many as four or five major speeches to make in one of those busy, crowded campaign days in the major centres of population, the Prime Minister and the Opposition Leader will be put to the ultimate test of providing new, fancy, appealing and news-making wrappings for the same old speech "packages."

The "local jobe" — some humorous reference to a strictly regional situation or issue — is usually the solution to this sartorial difficulty.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

MARCH 17, 1962 . . .

St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland, is expected to have died 1501 years ago today—in 461—although another authority says he died in 466 and still another says he died in 493 at the age of 122. Little is known about the date and place of his birth. He is said to have been born in Britain and to have been sent by the Pope to Ireland.

1943 — American forces captured th. Pacific island of Iwo Jima from the Japanese.

1955—Hockey fans in Montreal rioted in protest against the suspension of Maurice Richard of Canadiens by the National Hockey League.

Civilization

Hamilton Spectator

Other people's brand of civilization must puzzle the Eskimos of Northern Canada—and small wonder. Canadian missionaries of polar bears and other native subjects have so much demand as folk art that a phantom factory in Buenos Aires which copies the Bible is almost them and stamp them "Made in Canada".

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CHRISTIANITY AND TOLERANCE

The proud boast of the followers of Jesus for the first few centuries after his crucifixion was that they were different from other people. They rejoiced in the fact that they did not share the world's sin — that they were set apart to a holy use in the providence of God. The word "saint," meaning set apart, was applied to all church members in the early days of the Church's life. To be a Christian meant to be different from the pagans.

There is a way in which no one can ever be a Christian unless he is willing to be different from everybody in the world if need be. Nothing is so popular in the modern world as tolerance; yet a reading of the Bible from beginning to end fails to disclose that tolerance is anywhere regarded as a particular virtue or enjoined upon believers. The Bible is not interested in getting people to bear with each other, but in getting them to agree with the purposes of God; and if agreeing with God destroys their agreement with each other, the Bible is silent on the matter of a remedy.

The Bible does bear preachers today you would think that Jesus came for the sole purpose of making people tolerant; yet it was the gentle Master Himself who solemnly declared that he had come to set the members of households against each other in the interest of the highest truth.

Not tolerance but truth is the core of Christ's message. Satisfactory living begins with fidelity.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 17th, 1942.

Throughout the world Irishmen remember Saint Patrick's Day for two reasons, the influence upon history of the saint and the reason in which the anniversary appears.

Saint Patrick gave freely of his great gifts to Ireland. He served the people as few people have been served. His record of missions and as a bishop are unique and is probably unequalled by that of any other religious leader. He possessed administrative genius and courage, a blending not at only a missionary could spend it. The history of the Saint Patrick holds in Irish history is due to his character and heritage as Irishman and to the abiding relations he had with the Irish people. He helped to mould the course of Irish history and world history.

The Irishman at home and abroad has a deep love of hospitality. In this part of Ontario are many of the Irish race. Irish societies are proud of their indelible mark on the character of the generations that people of this province. Here they have been among the great builders and the marvel public men. Throughout Canada Irishmen, as the filled important posts of the highest honor. Throughout the world it is the same. In Britain and Canada found nearly everywhere. They are loyal to the land in which they dwell, and yet feel the glow of their pride in the green island of Erin, whence they or their ancestors came. Ireland is not large but it has had a potent influence upon civilization and culture.

In these days when practically every one travels, and accidents are of frequent occurrence, we never know when we might be an accident victim. Oh I don't like to think of accidents as being something that happens to someone else, no matter how good a driver, or how careful you are, either driving or as a pedestrian, you may some day be involved in an accident. You may be in need of immediate medical or surgical attention, and in no condition to answer vital questions, or give the information a doctor should have about you.

Medication Alone Is Not Enough for Sinus Sufferer

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

A young woman writes that she is having a miserable time with sinus allergies almost continuously. She has been pinned down to four severe allergies — house dust, cats, ragweed and June grass.

She has tried just about every hay fever remedy in the book, but since having a lingering cold a few months ago she has had scant relief from any of the medications.

What, she asks desperately, can she do?

We'll omit some of the other causes of sinus misery and stick to hers — which is not an uncommon type.

First, the sinus membranes can react just as the nose does to an acute infection such as the hard cold. It becomes boggy, congested, inflamed, with a mucous discharge. With the sinus involved, the result is pain.

Add the stubborn cold and its aftermath to the irritation of the allergies, and you have the misery combination. Several inflammation leaves the membranes only a little more than usually vulnerable to new colds or to other transient germs.

The answer is to attack the problem piecemeal. The victim of moderate hay fever, either by vacationing in a pollen-free area, or by moderate use of antihistamine drugs, often keeps past the season without too much discomfort after the acute the affected membranes return to normal.

But in a case like today's, it isn't that easy. You cannot expect medication alone to be successful.

At least, however, knowing this, you have already half the battle. Cats can be avoided. The others, problems are not as easy.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a girl of five who has quite a lot of hair on her upper arms. Can anything be done for this? I'm afraid if it keeps on she will be a terrific amount.

Mrs. H. P.

That's probably a family characteristic and a perfectly noticeable, of course, if the child is brunette. There is no more mature appearance of hair on her face and trunk. I would doubt that a glandular problem is involved. A session with your doctor should settle that question readily.

To J.V.: Foods rich in milk (and cheese) some of the leafy green vegetables are the richest sources of calcium; greens, mustard greens and collards top the list. Broccoli, cauliflower, chard, beet greens and spinach are farther down the list in their order, but they are still good.

"Don't Quit Because Of Arthritis," is the title of a booklet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 196, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10c to cover handling and postage.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It was a sad day for that industrious entomic instrument, the pipe organ, when the radio and TV producers decided to use it as background music for their scarey, hamstrung and villainous moments of the drama. No other type of instrument can quite achieve the shivers the organ can.

This, of course, is due in some measure to the long and almost total association of the pipe organ with religion. There has always been something solemn and portentous about its presentation. No matter how unlifted we have been by the singing of great hymns to the thunderous accompaniment of the organ, there remained fixed in our minds the funeral tone in which many religious observances turn, not only at funerals. And the sombrely murmuring pipe organ, deeply muttering, or weirdly humming, with its dark tone, is the last word in very essence of that funeral feeling.

Pre-Christian temples are said to have had primitive pipe organs. They were used in Christian churches as early as 900 A.D. By 1600 A.D., the pipe organ had reached practically modern dimensions. A long and noble history with no commercials, until lately.

"I See It Coming"

Janice Levron keeps mumbling, over and over again, "I see it coming, I see it coming, I see it coming."

Janice is seven. Last Saturday afternoon she was a member of a happy New Orleans family of five. Saturday night she was the lone survivor. A crippled U.S. Army plane, abandoned safely by its six-man crew, crashed into her home. Her father, mother and two little brothers were killed.

This type of accident will grow more frequent as the years pass, unless some means is found to avoid it. Many a pilot who could have parachuted safely has given his life to guide his falling plane away from built-up areas. But this is not always possible, and in any case a better method, one which does not condemn the pilot to death, ought to be sought. Would it be beyond the capability of science to devise an apparatus which could blow the plane to bits after the airmen had abandoned it? This, we suspect, would be fairly simple; the trick would be to make any such an apparatus explosion-proof in the event of a crash landing.

But Janice, mumbling "I see it coming, I see it coming, I see it coming," should provide the incentive for scientists to work on the problem.

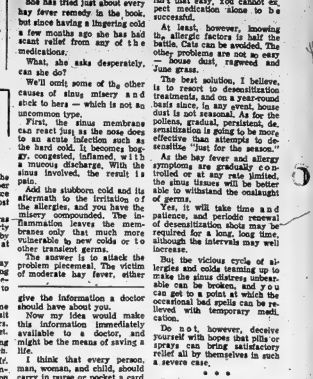
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GENTLE VOICE

The value of an instrument is appraised by its tone. There are violins worth thousands of dollars, but only the lover and interpreter of violin tones could distinguish this value from a much more showy instrument. And that is true also in a man's or woman's heart by looking at him or her.

But you can tell works of truth from the sound of one's voice. Some voices are like the heart.



There is a gentle voice which is the real evidence of a great soul.

The gentle voice is like the mild, mellow breeze from offshore on a summer's night when the gold of the moon plays among the diamonds across the waters.

It is many, many years since my mother went away, yet there are sights in the stillness of my room when I can again hear that gentle voice as it speaks through laughter or tears. It was always low, sweet, and full of understanding.

The throat with its matchless modulation of cords can never compete with the gentle voice which is able to vibrate love in a heavy heart.

A Lift for Living

Suspicion Is Weapon of Evil

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At some time in our lives all of us have undoubtedly been "taken in" by trusting too much. Perhaps we have put faith in the promises of a supposed friend only to have them prove false. It may be that in childhood we have idolized some hero and later found that our idol had feet of clay.

Yes, we all know the chagrin and sorrow of being taken in by believing too much.

But how about shutting ourselves out by believing too little? I wonder if we ever do know how many opportunities we have passed up because we lacked faith.

I would venture the assertion that in the long run more loss and misery have been caused by believing too little than by believing too much.

THEY WERE UNBELIEVERS

Think of Our Lord's own Nazarene neighbors. They had seen Jesus grow up. Then He went forth after His baptism to His ministry of teaching and healing. The reports of His mighty work were carried back to His own community. But His neighbors never profited much by His presence. Why? When He returned in His own neighborhood, they would not believe Him. They said, "Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not His mother called Mary?" They were suspicious of what Jesus was doing. They thought His power must be due to some devilish genius. Then the gospel adds: "And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief."

My conviction is that the attitude of Jesus' Nazarene neighbors is now afflicting us. While, of course, there is need of guarding against overconfidence, the more immediate need is to beware of being oversuspicious.

For one thing, suspicion distorts the vision. In these dangerous times we must keep our eyes open to the very real evils which beset us. But to keep our eyes glued on the gloomy prospects of life is about as sure a way of impairing our vision as to be always looking at the sunny, pleasant side.

The suspicious person prides himself on being realistic. He is the self-called "clever enough to see through" the pretensions and falsehoods of others. But when we are always trying to "see through" others we do not really see them.

Suspicion tends to give an exaggerated idea of the evils. And that is just what the evil forces desire. If one opponent in a struggle can get the other down, the ahead of him, he has begun the process of overcoming. The best way to check the weeds of evil is to cultivate the fruits and flowers of godliness and brotherhood. The scriptural prescription is: "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

We have a saying, "Love is blind." It sometimes is. But fear and hate are blinder.

Failure Rate With Women Twice As High

CALGARY (CP) — Women are a pretty gamble these days when it comes to completing a parole successfully, says Mary Louise Lynch, only woman member of the National Parole Board.

"The failure rate with women is twice as high as with men. Perhaps it is because the majority of women prisoners are drug addicts who normally are very difficult to rehabilitate.

"Drug pedlars know these women and if they catch them in a lonely, weak frame of mind, off they go again."

Some 60 to 65 per cent of women prisoners are drug addicts, Miss Lynch said. The remainder are in mainly for shoplifting or accomplice. Few are there for capital offences.

A women on parole is under the same set of rules governing men. For example, they must seek permission from the parole officer to move, marry or make any major purchases.

Miss Lynch admitted her role on the board was not for the "soft-hearted touch."

"I'm not a softy do-goody. I'm tough and sometimes harder to convince than the men."

Miss Lynch, a graduate of Dalhousie University faculty of law, was appointed to the five-1960.

Women's Activities

WALLBRIDGE U.C.W.

WALLBRIDGE — The Wallbridge U.C.W. held their monthly pot-luck dinner recently with a good attendance.

After the dinner the regular meeting was held with 18 members present. The president, Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson, opened the meeting in the usual manner with the worship program committee chairman Mrs. Phillips, gave a reading, "What is Thy Church." Scripture was read from Corinthians 1 by Mrs. Douglas Bacon. Mrs. Laurence Ketcheson read a story of the church and the community and also conducted a question and answer period. Mrs. Harold Garrison gave a reading on "Thanksgiven Fo Community Life Around A Church."

During the business period Mrs. Allan Shopper, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and noted that there were three new members, making a total of 26 members on the roll.

A quilt top was presented by Mrs. Sam Nicholson and this will be put on at the next meeting.

Plans were made at this time for the World Day of Prayer service. Mrs. Morley Phillips closed the meeting with prayer, member parole board Oct. 1.

Zion UCW Hold Fine Afternoon Tea

RYLSTONE — The members of Zion United Church Women held a successful afternoon tea in the auditorium of the church, at Petherick's Corners, March 14th.

Guests were present from Rylstone, Springbrook, Hoard's Stanwood and Wellman's Corners organizations of United Church Women. The church was well filled, and though the roads were not the best the weather was ideal for the occasion.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin, president and Mrs. Douglas Ingram were seated at a table near the altar. The tea table was covered with a lovely lace tablecloth on which was a beautiful bouquet of daffodils flanked on either side with green tapers in crystal candlesticks.

Mrs. Irwin opened the program and briefly welcomed the guests. Mrs. Doug. Ingram read the devotional reading. Prayer was given by Mrs. Jack Watson and Mrs. Ernest Petherick gave the Scripture reading.

Mrs. Ralph Wellman from Springbrook U.C.W. presented an Irish piano solo "A Little Bit of Heaven", Mrs. Carleton Rowe, Stanwood, read "Busy Life, Busy Wife", Mrs. Will Rutherford, Spiritone, read "Brotherhood of Man", Mrs. Craig Watson, Wellman's Corners, gave a beautiful rendition of "In a Monastery Garden" on the piano.

Mrs. William Petherick, Zion U.C.W. called all ladies who were born in March to come to the front. They were: Mrs. Gerald Broadworth, Mrs. Ralph Wellman and Mrs. Fred McKeown, Springbrook and Mrs. Robt. Wallace, Wellman's Corners. The age had just passed her 80th birthday).

These ladies sang a verse of "My Wild Irish Rose" and were joined by the audience in another verse. Mrs. W. Petherick conducted a contest on "Ireland" while Mrs. Walter Byrnilon played Irish music on the piano.

Mrs. Clayton Thompson of Hoard's Station, vice-president of United Church Women of the Cobourg Presbytery was introduced by Mrs. Bill Petherick, who also presented Jan Wells with a beautiful corsage from the hostess society. Mrs. Thompson gave a most interesting and humorous talk about the new organization, United Church Women, taking as the subject of her discourse: "There Is No Turning Back."

Mrs. Howard Arnold voiced appreciative thanks. Mrs. Maurice Brunton and Mrs. Bill Petherick sang a duet, "Count Your Blessings" with Mrs. Walter Brunton as accompanist.

Mrs. Walter Brunton, and Mrs. Arjmer Petherick gave a duet, "Dance of the Fireflies".

Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, minister of Zion Church closed the program with a few words of commendation for those who had taken part.

Dainty refreshments, consisting of muffins, cheese, cup cakes and tea were served by the hostesses, after which the tables were cleared, and the table in the Sunday School room were well patronized by the visiting ladies.

To make flowers look their sparkling best, rinse them on top of an old straw cloth, to prevent them from falling off the vase and leaving board cover.

Cancer Society Talk Given at WI Meeting

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mrs. Reg. Barber opened her home for the March meeting of the Mountain View Women's Institute while Mrs. L. Wallbridge assisted as co-hostess. There were 25 members and five visitors present.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the president, Mrs. W. Barber. Mrs. Allan Wallbridge was appointed delegate to the officers' conference to be held at Guelph in May. The nominating committee was appointed and those on this committee are Mrs. S. Barber, Mrs. E. Hall and Mrs. W. Nightingale. Mrs. C. Spring gave her report on the district directors' meeting which was held in Picton last Saturday.

The topic for this meeting was "Health," and the convener of the program was Mrs. Donald Hall. Miss Mildred Hall, vice-president of the Cancer Society, Belleville Branch, addressed Mr. and Mrs. W. Woolmore Goodwin who showed films by the American Cancer Society, after which Dr. Sally Clapp completed the film slides shown.

Mrs. W. Nightingale expressed appreciation to Miss Hall and presented them with a small token of appreciation from the Institute.

An auction of homecooking was held with Mrs. C. Barber as auctioneer.

Mrs. W. Barber thanked the ladies for her kindness and the meeting closed after which refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed.

Catholic WL To Hold 'Harvest Tea'

Following the mission, Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League met at the Rosary School for the regular meeting, with the president presiding. Mrs. E. McGuigan was the invocation.

Thank-you notes were read and a cheque presented to Father Maurice for the parish by the treasurer, Mrs. Elard advised that the Separate School problem of Oconcia would be discussed at a joint regular meeting of the d'arent school committee which is the meeting later in March at St. Michael's Academy.

A thank-you note was also read from a new Canadian family asking for a chevrue received, and for Citizenship sponsorship, as well as an invitation to attend at the Courthouse when citizenship is granted.

Five wettes were also given assistance. A letter of complaint is to be sent to the CBC by the convener of Radio and Television regarding a play on T.V. A Communion breakfast will be held on April 1st for mothers and daughters.

The convener for the "Harvest Tea" and bazaar advised that the conveners for the various booths have been appointed. The theme is "A successful year is a result of good plans his work, and works his plan". Tickets will be on sale on the main draw.

Next month is for sewing, material, binding, thread, will be accepted and put to good use.

Mrs. Darlington introduced Father Malcolm Daniel, O.F.M. who spoke briefly urging all to be promoters and promote the mission.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

On Thursday the two O.S.D. Girl Guide Companies had a special visitor at their regular meeting. American Girl Scout Visitor Observer Mrs. J. Burglund, who has toured Western Canada and is now in Ontario was much impressed by her first visit to a dead Company.

During her trip through the prairie provinces and the North West Territories, the Exchange Visitor noted, although she had witnessed one other such Company in Manitoba, members of which were Indians and Eskimos, that, in spite of their handicap, the knowledge of Guiding shown by the O.S.D. girls was remarkable.

Mrs. Burglund and her husband, after a six-day briefing in Washington D.C., Mrs. Burglund was assigned to the western provinces, and a co-observer to travel by airways and by Maritimes. The team is scheduled to report back to the American Capital the second week of April.

Following the Guide meeting Miss W. Huffman, an O.S.D. teacher and Guide Captain, showed some of her colour and visiting ladies, which included Mrs. M. Haig, Quinte Area Commissioner and Mrs. L. Demeza. Earlier in the afternoon, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, at whose home the Senior Girl Scout Captain was guest while in the city, was hostess to Mrs. D. Stewart, Division Commissioner and Guide personnel, who thoroughly enjoyed conversing and exchanging ideas while comparing methods of teaching.

SAME IN U.S. AND CANADA

Basically, Guiding is the same on both sides of the Border; with regulations varying to suit the need of the location. The American girls are taught to be more independent which enables one leader to take charge of a larger Company; Mrs. Burglund explained to the Senior Girl Scouts, the counter-part of the Senior Guides in Canada, town, Alexandria, Minnisota, a 100 per cent co-operation from the city officials, the police and schools, who provide free bus service.

The visitor wore a green uniform and had conferred with Guiding heads on both Provincial and Dominion level; she was sponsored by the American National Guiding Council.

Mrs. Burglund left Belleville on Friday to go on to Cornwall, Ontario and will then conclude her journey in Toronto by attending the Lady Baden-Powell Rally.

School at Geneva Teaches Finer Points of Innkeeping

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Geneva, Switzerland — While the bearded and be-ribboned chevaliers of the Chaine des Rotisseurs were holding their annual gastronomic get-together here, the world's most modern and succeed them were busily going about their apprenticeship a few blocks away.

They were the students of Vieux-Bois, the Professional School of the Swiss Society of Chefs and Restaurant Owners, about half of whose 19,000 members are also hotel owners. Nearly all of them send their children to one of Switzerland's many such schools to learn the proud bantse of Swiss gastronomy and innkeeping.

In the event you didn't know it, the words "Swiss trained" and "Swiss managed" work magic in hotels and restaurants throughout the world. They represent the one sure key to success always desired and usually superior establishment. Those are comparatively few of the schools outside of Switzerland — only one of real note in the United States, for example — and a certificate from a Swiss school is about as secure a ticket to lifetime employment as a degree in engineering from M.I.T. or Yale.

But if you're thinking of dropping in for a quick course in shoffler next time you're in Switzerland, we want to warn you that the intense study and work hours are exactly the reverse from 6 A.M. to 10 P.M. Only half the 30 or so pupils are non-swiss, and the school is booked through 1964 anyway.

The 10-year-old school is operated by M. and Mme. Eugene Cholley, who also run a similar establishment in Zurich. It is situated in a fine old mansion adjoining the United Nations Palace, and its student-operated restaurant is a favorite luncheon spot for the staff.

The students, 17 to 20 of whom live in the school and keep their rooms neat in a fashion more closely associated with hotels than with schoolboy dormitories, range in age from 17 to 30. The courses begin in May and November, and run for six months. Students completely maintain the school, including housekeeping and food service, for about 12 days each, with a "service" to a "cuisine" routine.

Study subjects range from such esoterica as accounting and law to matters of more pleasure that are the hotelier's business: food preparation, dietetics, wine, service and even tourism.

Last any frivolous applicants expect this to be great sport. the school's brochure warns that "Vieux-Bois aims above all to give its pupils a knowledge of theory and practice that will enable them to face the difficulties of life, and inculcate in them a sense of responsibility." As everyone knows, the life of a hotelier is nothing if not fraught with the difficulties of life and laden with responsibilities.

Cholley, tabbered as into the school's role, declares that where a class in civil law was going on, the very manager, the emloyo Excellars respectfully rose.

The discussion seemed to be about the composition, a second cook may be entitled to if he cuts his finger with a carving knife in the kitchen on his day off after the union contract has been signed, there's always time enough to worry about this than the flustered law professor.

WELL EQUIPPED

On the blackboard was scrawled a lesson in basic German. The mantle of what was once a fireplace in back of the room was covered with representative wines and champagne bottles. Charts around the walls variously described types of cigarettes and tobaccos, delineated the cognac and shampagne districts of France, illustrated fruits, and separated the fish of the sea from that of the lakes, cagily emphasizing "the most important fish to the hotelier."

It is fitting that pupils from a Swiss school should go forth to all the world as hosts, for Geneva is the great host city of Switzerland and the world. Its history is so entwined with that of the nation that it has been of a Swiss, than an international identity.

Former residents to whom there are monuments, for example, include Jean Jacques Rousseau, the great French philosopher; Martin Luther, who led Reformation; and John Calvin, the English Protestant theologian made Geneva their headquarters. Even today the most impressive monument of all, however, is the one to the Duke of Brunswick, who accidently died during his visit to the city but leave a dubeq bequest for the purpose of filling the square, across from his hotel with a rococo tomb for himself.

The city displays considerable interest, however, in the restored square square reminiscent of Rome, the bistros are Parisian, the cafes Viennese and the Victorian architecture of the Geneva factor. Lake Geneva, it's oddly like upper Fifth Avenue.

But there is always one factor that sets Switzerland apart. Never too far from anywhere, Gervie, Dog Lake or exception, the sky is serrated by the white images of the Alps and the Jura, as massive as symbols of security and eternity on which no other people, of the world can fall back.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . I hope that so many requests from me at this time do not seem greedy . . . Could you supply me with a good recipe for either buttercroft tarts (nuts and no fruit) or butter tarts (with raisins and nuts) in which the filling remains soft and barely set . . . Could you suggest how to produce coffee flavored waffles . . . since we are now trailer fans and spend a great part of the summer on wheels, I would very much appreciate unbaked cookie or small cake recipes . . . another recipe I would like to try but cannot believe it would work. I would like to produce a baked Alaska cake with a layer of strawberries as well as ice cream under the crust topping — Molly C.

SATURDAY
(St. Patrick's Day)

Jiggs' Dinner (see Thursday) (Corned Beef Brisket with Carrots and Brussels Sprouts); Hot Mustard Sauce (see Thursday); Celery Hearts Stuffed with Green-Tinted Cheese (Tuesday); Green-Tinted Lemon or Lime Meringue Pie; Tea.

ANSWER:

CO I have mailed to you three releases giving butter tart recipes that have appeared in this column in the past three years. Try each one. I am sure you will find the filling texture you are seeking.

COFFEE WAFFLES DE LUXE:

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 or 2 tablespoons instant coffee, 2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups sour milk or buttermilk, 4 eggs, well beaten, ¾ cup melted butter or margarine or salad oil.

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine sour milk and eggs and add to dry ingredients. Beat with a hand beater or electric beater at high speed until smooth. Stir in melted butter or margarine or salad oil. Bake in a preheated waffle iron.

One of our readers, Audrey F., has sent to me her version of Chocolate Chippers which I believe will be exactly right for you.

AUDREY'S CHOCOLATE CLUSTERS (unbaked):

Mix together in large bowl ½ cup rolled oats, 3-6 tablespoons cocoa (amount depending on how strong you like chocolate), ½ cup wheat germ, ½ cup skim milk powder, 2 cups an mixture of chopped nuts (preferably walnuts but peanuts are cheaper), raisins and coconut. Boil for one minute, 1 2-3 cups white sugar, ½ cup water and ½ cup margarine. Then stir into dry mixture and drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper to harden. This usually takes several hours but once hard they never soften.

As for the Baked Alaska using strawberries, the thick meringue acts as a complete insulator. Put fresh or thawed fresh frozen strawberries on top of the block of ice cream which is on a base of cake! Completely mask all with very stiff meringue at least ¾" thick. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for about 2 minutes — barely long enough to brown meringue to a deep gold.

Day of Prayer Services

TWEED — A large number of women from Tweed and surrounding area assembled on March 9th at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to form another link in the unbroken chain of prayer encircling the world on its annual Day of Prayer.

The order of service consisted of the call to worship led by Mrs. D. Sinclair of St. Andrew's. The hymns and responsive readings throughout the service were in harmony with the theme and purpose of the World Day of Prayer, stressing the love of God.

Leaders from the various churches were as follows: Mrs. Frank Thompson, of St. Andrew's Anglican; Mrs. V. Sinclair of the Salvation Army; Mrs. D. Purdie, Pentecostal Church and Mrs. E. Hodgins and Mrs. Arris, St. John's United.

Mrs. A. G. Allen sang a lovely vocal selection, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say," while Mrs. Garrett-Morton presided at the organ.

The program was prepared by Mrs. de Svetogorski and Miss Cavalliero both of Montevideo, Uruguay, South America. The former is the widow of a professor of music and has shared greatly in the work in Prison House, while the latter is a deaconess and director of Christian education in Crandon Institute and is responsible for the weekly Methodist radio hour.

The theme this year was "God's Love for the Whole World" and the special address was given by Mrs. D. Purdie of the Pentecostal Church.

FIRST NUN

Marie Morin, the first native-born Canadian nun, was born in Quebec in 1640, taking the veil in 1662.

MOIRA — The World Day of Prayer service for Trinity Thomasburg charge was held at Moira United Church at 2.30 Friday afternoon with 45 ladies present.

Mrs. Bill McMullen, of Eggleton United Church Women, opened the call to worship with the theme, "God's Love for the World" with Mrs. Lauder Vandervoort presiding as pianist and all sang "O Love of God."

Mrs. Lewis Keller, president of the Anglican Church Women's group, presided over "Confession" and Mrs. Pentecost, while Mrs. Harold Morton, president of Thomasdacre Baptist Church Women conducted "Act of Adoration and Assurance." Mrs. Howard Cook, of West Huntingdon U.C.W. was leader for "Act of Dedicating," while Mrs. Bill McMullen was for "Act of Intercession".

Prayers were given by Mrs Warren Harlow of Eggleton U.C.W. for "Her Majesty and Leaders of the Nations"; Mrs. Russel Sills for "Our Own Country"; prayer for "Families" by Mrs. Lewis Morton, Thomasburg; prayer by Mrs. Harold Morton for "the Needy"; for "the Whole Christian Church," by Mrs. Donald McIlmoy.

Mrs. John Wallace of West Huntingdon Presbyterian Church, gave an address on, "Prayer" and Mrs. Gordon Foster contributed a solo, "God's Love That We'll Never Forget."

Mrs. Marjorie Thompson and Mrs. Jean Thompson gathered the offering which was dedicated by Mrs. McMullen. All sang, "The Day Thou Gavest Lord Is Ended".

Alpha Lambda Holds Panel Discussion

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda chapter, Beta Sigma Phi sorority was held recently at the home of Mrs. K. Drury.

The evening's program entitled, "People," was arranged and conducted by Mrs. N. Gordon.

A panel of four members discussed several thought-provoking questions in an effort to determine better ways to foster a deeper understanding between the peoples of the world. This included discussion of ideas on how to overcome prejudice and bigotry. Views were expressed as to how effective the United Nations organization was thought to be, as a means of promoting greater understanding between nations.

Several interesting points were made regarding travel with an open mind rather than with preconceived ideas, and the importance of education.

Following this pleasant program Mrs. J. Hayman conducted a short business meeting.

Refreshments were served by hostess Mrs. E. Drury, and co-hostess Mrs. R. L. Whitney.

A further meeting of Alpha Lambda took place this month, members spent a most enjoyable evening bowling before proceeding to the home of Mrs. N. Desmond for a short business session.

Refreshments were also served by hostess Mrs. Desmond and co-hostess Mrs. J. Hayman.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I recently went to dinner at the home of an acquaintance. After greeting me at the door, my hostess waved me in the direction of the living room. I didn't know a soul there, and had to introduce myself when I entered. I'm not stuffy about social conventions, but I do think she should have made a stab at making us feel at home. Don't you agree? — Miss M.K.B., Trenton, Ont.

Answer: No matter how busy she is greeting guests, a proper hostess always introduces a new arrival to a few guests, at least, so she won't feel like a lump on a log. If a hostess can't break away to perform this courtesy, then she should delegate some one else to act for her. It's not necessary to introduce a late guest to everyone, but she should be steered into a lively conversation at the start. After that, she may make her own way. "Good manners don't just me1 can do the honors for her.

HOPE

What would the future hold
If it wasn't for Hope—?
A simple faith and a trust in God
And a tiny spark of Hope.

A tiny spark of Hope
That kindles a fire of Love,
Without these we ne'er would find the road
To that best Abode above.

A narrow path and a road so rough,
And a hill so steep to climb,
But with worthy Trust and a bit of Hope
And we'll reach the heights sublime.

Trouble will come and trouble will go;
We'll have our share of sorrow;
But we'll hope and pray, we'll trust and obey,
And look for a brighter tomorrow.

Next, EDINBURGH—Princes Street, John Knox' House, Palace of Holyroodhouse, Hrwbatite Abbey. Full day excursion to the Trossachs and Loch Lomond.

Peter Gomery To Visit John Street School

Peter Gomery, Field Secretary for the Ontario Association for Retarded Children, headquarters in Toronto, will visit the John St. School on March 20th and address a general meeting that evening at 8 p.m.

Mr. Gomery is one of the few paid executive members representing the 78 schools and associations in Ontario. As Field Secretary for O.A.R.C. he makes regular visits to these schools assisting with problems of organization and campaigning.

Mr. Gomery was born and educated in Kingston, Ontario. He was on the staff of CKWS Radio and T.V. as news director, then with the Thomson chain of broadcasting stations for three years. After serving in the field of public relations with the Bell Telephone Company, he accepted his present post in July, 1960.

The Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children looks forward to Mr. Gomery's visit and is sure his address will be of interest to the many people of Belleville and district interested in the work in mental retardation.

Week of Evangelism

This Sunday, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church will begin a week of "Teaching Out For Christ" services. The guest minister will be Rev. M. Morden, Secretary of the Board of Evangelism of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.

This series of special meetings is part of a nationwide outreach campaign called "Simultaneous Evangelism" in which the Baptist churches of Ontario and Quebec are now engaged. It includes 75,000 Baptist Churches throughout North America who are co-operating in a five-year program called Baptist Jubilee Advance which this year emphasizes Evangelism.

The Victoria Avenue Baptist Church invites the people of this area to share in this special outreach program during the week of March 18 to 23.

DO YOU HAVE...

—a marital problem

—trouble with your children

—difficulty in budgeting your income

If so, the Children's Aid Society can be of help and invites you to talk it over with one of the members of the family service department staff. You will find them sympathetic and understanding of your problem and desirous only of helping you to help yourself. There will be no obligation on your part and you may terminate the contact at any time.

The Society's offices at 68 Moira St. West are open from 8.30 to 5 o'clock Monday to Friday each week. For your own convenience it is suggested that you telephone for an appointment. Your call will be treated with complete confidence.

In Belleville this service to families is supported by the Belleville United Appeal.

Kinsmen Plan Method of Raising Funds

TWEED — The Tweed Kinsmen have a novel way of raising funds and their latest venture is "The Sinking of the Titanic". On Tuesday afternoon of this week a 1950 Meteor car was driven out on Stoco Lake and launched on the ice and its future will be watched with great interest from now until break-up at the lake.

Kinsmen distributed tickets at their Monday night's meeting and purchasers will be given the opportunity to guess the exact time when "The Titanic" will disappear into the icy waters. A timing device has been attached to the car so there will be no dispute.

Gordon Fraser of the Department of Lands and Forests states that the break-up in Stoco Lake offers a real challenge. March 1st, 1957, was the earliest date on record that the break-up occurred, and statistics reveal that the ice could disappear any time from April 8th to April 22nd, so there is a wide range of suggestion for those purchasing "Titanic" tickets. At any rate, there should be renewed interest in Stoco Lake for the next few weeks, as substantial cash prizes of $50, $25 and $15 are being offered for the three closest scores.

Missionaries to Talk of Their Work

MISS E. PATTERSON, Reg. N.

REV. M. K. TAYLOR

Of the 33 mission fields of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, two of these will be represented next Sunday at the Alliance Church, beginning the annual Missionary Convention, by Miss Ruth Patterson, Reg. N., and the Reverend M. K. Taylor, returned missionaries from the Congo and Indonesia, respectively.

Miss Patterson began her missionary career under the Christian and Missionary Alliance, seventh in Protestant missions, having 980 American and Canadian missionaries serving overseas, with an allocation of four million dollars. In this, its 75th year, the Alliance is endeavoring to increase this sum so it can continue its pioneering in behalf of Christianity.

For one year Miss Patterson spent her time in Belgian homes and schools, obtaining a knowledge of the French language, and the customs and culture of the country. She assisted in the 60-bed Alliance hospital in Kisangani, and recently conducted a nurses' training school in which a number of Congolese girls graduated as nurses.

Mr. Taylor has completed one term in Indonesia in the Kota Baru district in West Kalimantan, where much of his visitation to the heathen villages was done by trekking as no motor was available.

Both are bringing many curios and native costumes, as well as slides of the work in these remote places.

Be Positive Stop Lights Are Working

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

If you've ever trailed a car with dead stop lights, you probably developed a small case of the jitters. And chances are the driver of the offending car didn't realize that they weren't working.

Few motorists actually check their stop lights — but, of course, we should. A traffic summons (or sometimes, a smashed rear end) often serves the first notice that these safety signals are inoperative.

If only one light is dead, the bulb, socket, or wiring is to blame. If both are out, it's likely that either the stop light switch or fuse will prove to be the culprit.

Incidentally, the opposite can occur, too — that is, the stop lights may remain lighted even when the brakes are released. In such cases, a faulty switch is generally the cause — all though insufficient pedal clearance or dragging brakes can also do it.

J.S. writes: "Two new high temperature thermostats have been tried by a mechanic, but my engine keeps running cool and gas mileage is low. The car seems to have plenty of pep, though."

(A) Usually, low engine temperature is due to a defective thermostat or an inaccurate temperature gauge. In the case of the former, gas mileage also suffers. If the gauge is to blame, high gas consumption must, of course, be due to some unrelated condition.

From Mrs. D.R.: "My brakes grab in damp or wet weather. After several visits, the dealer blew out the brake dust, but I'm still having the same problem although applying the brakes several times does stop the brake-grabbing action."

(A) Some linings are especially affected (more than others, that is) by wet weather. Grease, oil or fluid on one or more linings is another common cause of grabbing. In either case, new linings will prove to be the best cure.

I.G. asks: "Road shock is transmitted to the steering wheel of my '58 model with power steering. Mechanics can find no linkage play, front end looseness or other steering defect. What is your advice?"

(A) Check up on tire inflation, spring action and shock absorber control.

Mrs. V.H. writes: "What causes radio static which seems to increase when I press down on the gas pedal. A static remover kit I purchased hasn't helped.

(A) Looseness somewhere in the coil to distributor cable connection is often the reason.

ask henry

Henry invites letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter he receives. This week's winner is Mrs. I. Mowat of Victoria, B.C., who receives a copy of "How Life Goes On," by Irving Zeichner, published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry:

I'm 8 years old and I'm going to skip a grade and so is the rest of my group. I am a very sloppy writer. What should I do?—SLOPPY

Dear Sloppy:

Get special tutoring from your mother. Write big so you can form your letters easier. But I have to credit you that it isn't every kid who would want to improve his writing. Nice going.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:

I have a pesty, 7-year-old sister who really gets me nervous. I am 13 with a room of my own, but Cynthia refuses to stay in her own room. She brings her dolls in my room and pulls everything out when I try to keep the room in good order. What can I do with her?—WORN OUT.

Dear Worn Out:

You can't throw your pesty sister away; She comes into your room because it is in "good order" as you say. Hers is probably dull and messy.

Why not spend a Saturday fixing up her room real pretty? (Make her help you.) Then she will stay in her own room and leave your good-ordered room alone.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:

I am a colored man. In our community there lives an Italian grocer who has a little boy 5 years old. The boy has lived among our people all his life and I believe he is one of the happiest kids in this city. He plays and fights with his chums and when his parents get him something new, he is not satisfied until he shares it with them.

He eats at their home, rides their bicycles and plays there most of the time. His parents know where to find him.

Don't you think that this is a solution to the race problem in America? Let the children associate and the question is solved.—RACIAL NEGRO.

Dear Loyal:

You've got an excellent idea. If a cat grows up with a dog, they don't even notice that one purrs and the other barks. But the parent does not. There is the trouble with adults and the way they run this world.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:

I am 12½. Every time I am invited by a girl to a show my parents won't let me go because they think I am too young. They let me go at night last year.

Please tell me if you think I'm too young to go at night.—MAD.

Dear Mad:

Your parents probably let you go last year because it was a special occasion or they wanted to have some peace and quiet around the house. You are too young, your parents are right because they've gone through it. When you are old enough, the boys are supposed to do the asking, not the girls.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:

I've got a son who gets mad easily. I am sure he didn't get it from me. Please give me some advice because I am sure he will follow it if he sees it in the paper.—MRS. G. A.

Dear Mrs. G. A.:

FRANKFORD—On Tuesday evening, Frankford Public Library had its annual business meeting.

Chairman, Mr. Reg. Simmons called the meeting to order. Miss Marjorie Forbes gave the minutes of the annual business of 1961 and also the last board meeting and financial report.

Business items were discussed. The Circulation Report for 1961 shows non-fiction, 50; fiction 1,731; boys and girls, 2,681, making a total of 4,502.

Reeve Frank Rabel conducted the nominations which culminated as follows: chairman, Reg Simmons; librarian, Miss Marjorie Forbes; secretary treasurer, Miss Marjorie Forbes; board members, Reeve Frank Rabel, the Rev. C. Judd; principal George Mosley, Bill Arnott, Reg Simmons, Mrs. Charlie Bennett, Mrs. Mary Patrick, Miss Kathleen MacAuley and Mrs. Delbert Smith; auditor, Bill Arnott.

Chairman, Reg Simmons, thanked all Board members and librarian for their cooperation for the past year. The librarian thanked the Board members for their help and work. The Library has been newly decorated.

A number of books written by Sir Gilbert Parker, (a former Frankford resident) have been donated to the library.

Inquires About Boarding School

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am very interested in sewing, cooking and other things that a girl or housewife should know about. I want to be an experienced housewife when I am older. I am also interested in sports and dancing.

I have heard that those things can be learned at a boarding school. I would so much like to go to a girls' boarding school for at least a year. My mother thinks it would be nice too.

What other things do girls learn there? Do they also learn and study there like they do in grade schools? How old do I have to be to go there?

Do you know where there are any boarding schools for girls in Canada?—T. F.

DEAR T. F.:—Yes, there are boarding schools for girls in Canada at high school level.

Sometimes they are a good thing. There is a give and take with other girls. The classes are smaller and girls who find learning hard get more help. Where mother worries about daughter, it may be a good thing to be away and with a less worried and more matter-of-fact teacher for a while.

Otherwise, home is happiest. You can usually get just so much in the way of cooking and sewing at the classes in your own high school. Mother and Dad want to meet the boy friends; mother can help when it comes to learning cooking at home. You can try out your dishes on the company.

There are church sponsored boarding schools which your minister can tell you about. And when you leave high school, if you want to make a career of Home Economics, you can attend MacDonald Institute at Guelph.

Write for their calendar. For a list of boarding schools, write to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Education Division, Ottawa, for the pamphlet entitled "Private Academic Elementary and Secondary Schools in Canada".

(Doris is a trained social worker and can direct you to skilled help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and allowing one month for a reply.)

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A proud mother sat in a well-known Chicago restaurant the other night and added another "big moment" to a well-stocked collection.

Mrs. Robert Hull, Sr., was special guest at the function of son Bobby, dubbed the "Golden Jet" by National Hockey League sportswriters, with a 100 per cent endorsement by rabid Chicago fans.

Bobby centred a "family line" at the dinner. Flanking him were his mother, and pretty wife Jo Anne. Bobby, Jr., who recently celebrated his seven-months birthday was at home listening to the baby-sitter's bedtime stories.

The entire Black Hawks squad was present with their wives, officials and guests. Some 300 enjoyed the festivities.

The highlight of the banquet was the presentation of the Hawks annual "Most Valuable Player" award.

In other years the winner has been selected by one of the most famous "fan-bodies" in sport, the Chicago Black Hawks Standby Club.

This rugged body of Hawks loyalists usually occupy part of the top tiers of the Chicago Stadium, an edifice that can sardine-pack over 20,000 fans if the occasion demands.

The "Standbys" are fiercely loyal to their beloved Hawks. And at times, it has been reported, they add tangible encouragement to their verbal artillery.

A few dead fishes, an octopus or two, an occasional firecracker, numerous articles of footwear, like shoes and rubbers, with the feet extracted of course have been known to sprinkle the ice surface when the Standbys" disagree with opposing players or actions of official verdicts.

Be that as it may. This year the Hawks players decided to take matters on their own hands and select and honor the MVP through their own opinions.

And so it was that those of the 300 guests who were not Hawk players held more or less baited breath when a top Hawk official drew the name from an envelope.

The name? You guessed it. One Robert Marvin, Hull.

As every National Hockey League fan knows, particularly those who swear allegiance to the Hawks, Bobby got away on the wrong foot at the start of the current season. He could not get untracked and it was sometime before he swung into the familiar stride that has made him one of the most feared shots in the big time.

He finished a poor second to the Leafs' Mahlovich in the mid-season voting for the mythical "half-time" all-star squad.

But a brilliant resurgence that has carried him to the second spot of the league scoring race (at the moment two points behind the Rangers Bathgate and within four goals of tying the Richard-Geoffrion record of 50 in a season) should swing the voting tide and gain for him a well-merited spot on the 1961-62 first all-star team.

Hull was presented with the handsome MVP trophy (see picture on the sport pages) while teammates, wives and guests stood and shouted their approval.

Mrs. Hull, senior, recently returned from Chicago where she spent a month with Bobby and the missus, had another "great moment". She said she had seen every team in the N.H.L. play in Chicago, sitting on seat edge and instantly "rooting" for a Hawk victory.

Speaking of the goal-getting record, she said "Bobby said he is going to try awfully hard. He got a big pale against the Hawks Friday but with the pressure is on. It won't be his fault if he does not make it" she said.

Swedes Reject Terriers Challenge

Galt Meets U.S. Sunday

By CARL FLETCHER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Sweden is expected to sweep past West Germany tonight and complete an all-winning conquest of the 1962 world hockey championships.

The Swedes, already conquerors of the United States and Canada, nudicked Norway 12-2 here Friday night. Now only the German block undefeated Swedish's path to its first world title since 1957.

The United States moved into second place in the eight-country championships division by trimming Switzerland 12-1 at Denver. Sweden leads with 12 points while the U.S. has 10. Canada, idle the last two days, has eight points with a game in hand.

Sweden is 8-0 in the won-and-lost column and needs only a tie against the Germans to nail down the title with 12 points. The most likely Canada and the U.S. can finish with is 12.

The 5-1 U.S. record undoubtedly will be matched by Canada's defending champions after they play crippled Britain tonight.

BATTLE FOR SECOND

The tournament's windup game Sunday between Canada and the U.S. would then be a battle for second place—assuming Sweden defeats West Germany. The Canada-U.S. contest will be televised by the CBS and CBC.

Should an upset of fantastic proportions occur, and the German trip the Swedes, Gali Terriers would have to defeat the U.S. by a big margin to steal any chance of retaining the title for Canada.

In the event of a points-tie the highest goal spread—the difference between goals scored and goals allowed—will decide the winner. In the compution only the scores of the games played among the first five finishers will count. The Swedes have the edge in that department, too.

Sweden has completed its games against the other four top clubs and is 29-3 in the scoring column—a differential of 21. Canada, with the U.S. still to play in the top five, is 25-7, a differential of 18.

Of course, these figures would go by the boards if West Germany replaces Finland in fifth place since only two points separate the fifth and sixth spots.

DECLINE CHALLENGE

Sweden turned down a challenge for a rematch with Galt in a winner-take-all-the-guarantee contest in one of four Canadian cities. Leo Gaudette, general manager of the Canadian club, had issued the challenge and offered to play the Swedes next Monday or Tuesday in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Ont., or Toronto.

Rudy Pilous, Swedish delegation leader, said Friday it would be impossible to play in Canada because the club is flying home Monday.

Arne Stromberg, Sweden's personable coach, said Friday night: "We didn't play our full potential against Norway." Nevertheless the Swedes were leading 6-0 before Norway could get a goal.

Lennart Haggroot, 22, the sensational Swedish goalie, wound up with 19 saves and a one-hitter over the last eight eyes when struck by a rebounding puck in the second period.

Haggroth made several spectacular saves in the second period when Norway outscored the Swedes 5-1. It was Norway's best performance against the big three, having lost previously 14-2 to the U.S. and 16-1 to Canada.

NILS LEADS ATTACK

Nils Nilsson led the Swedish attack with three goals while Ulf Sterner and Sven Lundvall scored two apiece.

Nine players scored for the U.S. in the romp over Switzerland. Reg Meserve, Oscar Mable and Ken Johannson led the scoring, each with two goals.

The U.S. peppered Swiss goalie Rene Klemer relentlessly and he came up with 50 saves—45 in the last two periods. It was a high for the tournament.

"We're ready as we're ever going to be for Canada," said U.S. coach Connie Pieban afterwards.

In the consolation round Japan virtually wrapped up the Group B title with a 20-2 trouncing of The Netherlands while Austria crushed France 10-1 to clinch second place. Mavericks Takashima paced the Japanese attack with five goals.

Signs With Patterson

'Nobody Is Good As Me'-Liston

NEW YORK (AP)—"I don't think there's nobody in the world as good as myself."

Charles (Sonny) Liston, dripping confidence and contempt, said that comment on his fight next summer with champion Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight boxing title.

They signed a contract Friday for the fight, which could be the richest in history. Promoter Tom Bolan predicted a gross of at least $6,000,000.

The live gate and ancillary rights, which include closed-circuit television, radio and movies. There will be no live TV.

Bolan, president of Championship Sports Incorporated, said New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Washington and Seattle, Wash., are under consideration as the site, to be picked by Patterson.

The champion will also pick the date and announce it within a month. It will not be earlier than June 18, nor later than Sept. 30.

"Seattle has offered us a $1,000,000 guarantee to hold the fight in connection with the World's Fair," Bolan said. "We will explore all possibilities and take the one giving us the best deal."

Liston signed for 12½ per cent of the gross, Patterson gets 42 per cent of the live gate and 35 per cent of the other rights; plus the right to dictate time, place and plans for a return match if Liston wins.

Liston gets 30 per cent in a return match, with Patterson's cut to be negotiated later.

Liston already is a 7-to-5 favorite in the scheduled 15-rounder, Patterson said the odds don't bother him.

"The odds were 2 to 1 against me in the second Johansson fight. I hope to make the experts look bad again."

Patterson said he expected to weigh about 191 pounds, four pounds heavier than he did in his last title defence against Tom McNeely of Boston in Toronto last Dec. 4. Liston's last outing was on the same date, on the other half of a closed-circuit TV show in Philadelphia. He weighed 212½ pounds in knocking out Albert Westphal of Germany in the first round.

AUTO AVERAGE

There are 83 automobiles per 1,000 people in western Europe compared to 339 per 1,000 in the United States.

Habs Play Rangers

Leafs, Hawks Tilt Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadiens needing only a conclusive win or two more series over second-place Toronto Maple Leafs to clinch a fifth straight league title, are at home to fourth-place New York Rangers in an other game tonight.

In other games Sunday night, Montreal will be at Boston and Toronto at New York.

GETS MORE CHANCES

Pilous says Hull is being moved to the point on power plays, where he will get "more chances to rifle his shot, but won't have to skate as much."

The 30-goal record was set by centre Maurice Richard of Canadiens in 1944-45 and equalled by Bernie Geoffrion, also of Canadiens, last season.

Hull also will tie another record—one for nine consecutive games—held jointly by Richard and Geoffrion if he gets a goal tonight against Leafs.

He currently has scored at least once in each of his last eight outings.

TAKES EARLY LEAD

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. (AP)—Frank Boynton, a young Texas golfer just a bit too long hitting but ill luck on the tournament trail this year, changed his iron play and grabbed the first-round lead Friday in the $20,000 St. Petersburg Open.

Boynton shot 65 in the rerun of Thursday's washed - out first round to lead the field of 160. Mike Krak of Morgantown, W.Va., turned in a 66 over the par-72 course to take second spot.

Junior Game Postponed!

The Belleville - MacFarlane - Kingston Frontenac junior "B" hockey game scheduled for Memorial Arena last night, was postponed when a breakdown occurred in the ice-making machinery.

The teams meet in Kingston next Tuesday in the third game of the tied one-all series, and back here Wednesday for the fourth tilt.

Canadian Rink Wins Over Seats

FALKIRK, Scotland (CP)—Ernie Richardson's family rink from Saskatchewan Friday hammered Scotland 20-4 to take a 3-0 lead in games in the double round-robin series for the world curling cup here.

Fourth round of the series is in Edinburgh Monday.

Richardson's rink is the only unbeaten quartet at the championships.

In the other third-round match Friday the United States whipped Sweden 13-8. After three rounds the U.S. is second to Canada with 2-1 record. Scotland stands at 1-2 and Sweden has been blanked 0-3.

Richardson's one-sided victory over Willie Young's Scotland rink set his second record of the day. Four hours earlier Richardson set a scoring record by trampling Rolf Arvidson 19-7—the highest score recorded in Scotch Cup play.

ATHLETIC STAR — Honor graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Jim Green, son of Mrs. Ethel Green, 292 Coleman Street, now attending Queen's has been one of the university's outstanding athletes. Jim won the Ontario-Quebec Amateur Boxing Tournament two years in a row in addition to being the intercollegiate light-heavyweight champion in 1960-61 and 1961-62. He is shown above receiving the Jack Day Trophy after being named "most valuable player" on the Queen's boxing team.

Our Wendy Big Threat

Dutch Girl Seems Headed For Title

PRAGUE (AP) — The stage was set today for a blonde Dutch girl to block Canadian and Czechoslovak domination of the 1962 world figure skating championships.

Sjouke Dijkstra, 20-year-old daughter of an Amsterdam physician, headed for the ladies' single title after winning Friday's compulsory school figures.

The only skater in a position to stop her in today's free skating is Wendy Griner of Canada.

Miss Griner, a blonde, 18-year-old skater from Toronto who has taken the Canadian singles title for the last three years, had 1,267 points to 1,312 for Miss Dijkstra after the compulsory figures competition. The Dutch girl had seven first-place votes to Miss Griner's two.

However, free skating is Miss Griner's strong point.

Eva and Pavel Romanov of Czechoslovakia clinched the ice dance title Friday night by coming from behind to upset the French favorites, Christiane and Jean-Paul Gubel.

Earlier in the meet, Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont. skated off with the pairs crown and Don Jackson of Oshawa took the men's singles. The Jelineks are natives of Prague.

COME FROM BEHIND

The Romanovs, a clean-cut brother - and - sister team who started dance skating only three years ago, won the free dance in a convincing manner from the Gubels, who led after the compulsories.

Third place went to Canada's Virginia Thompson and William McLachlan while the British team of Linda Shearman and Michael Phillips was fourth.

McLachlan, who reached his 24th birthday only a week ago, is vice-president of a Toronto construction firm. His partner is a brown-haired 18-year-old who was born in Montreal but now lives in St. Catharines.

The Canadian pair topped the Gubels in points but fell to third place on the judges' votes.

The Romanovs won with 318.80 points and five first - place votes. The Gubels had 318.23 points, along with three first, a second and three thirds in the voting while the Canadians had 317.13 points, one first place vote, and four seconds.

Paulette Doan of St. Thomas and Ken Ormsby of Toronto finished fifth followed by another Canadian couple, the brother-sister team of Donna Lee and John Mitchell from Vancouver.

In the ladies competition Austria's Regine Heitzer was third after the compulsory figures, followed by 15-year-old Petra Burka of Toronto.

Crothers Captures Race

CLEVELAND (AP) — Little Tom O'Hara, big John Thomas and a Finn who wasn't even invited to compete provided the thrills in the final United States indoor track meet of the season Friday night.

Bill Crothers of the University of Toronto captured the 1,000-yard run as expected, but Bruce Kidd, also of the University of Toronto, was upset by Bob Mack of the United States in the two-mile event.

O'Hara, 19-year-old sophomore from Loyola College of Chicago, ran the fastest indoor mile in history on a 12-lap track (4:02.8) and broke Wes Santee's meet record of 4:04.6 in the Knights of Columbus meet.

Most of the 9,622 fans at Cleveland Arena stayed at the end to watch Thomas, six-foot-five ace from Boston University, try to clear seven feet, two inches in the high jump. Thomas couldn't make it, but his seven-foot jump erased the meet standard of six feet, 9¼ inches set in 1953 by Ken Wiesner of the U.S.

FINN WINS VAULT

The Finn who caught the fancy of the crowd was pole vaulter Risto Apkio, who cleared the bar at 15 feet, 7½ inches without the controversial glass-fibre pole. His winning vault erased the meet mark of 15-feet, 6 inches by Don Bragg of the U.S. in 1960.

Crothers captured his run in 2:11.6 after a strong duel with George Kerr of Jamaica, who wound up two-tenths of a second off the winning time.

Kidd, 18, ran out of steam and limped home in fourth place in the two-mile run. He was 40 yards in front with two laps to go.

The Toronto East York Track Club finished third behind Fordham and Michigan in the open two-mile relay.

POPULATION SURGE

The population of Latin America by 1975 is expected to rise to 200,000,000, compared to 217,000,000 for the United States.

Towering Figure

Little Bobby Shantz Shows Surprising Spring Form

NEW YORK (AP) — Little Bobby Shantz is a towering figure at Houston Colts' baseball camp, where he has turned up the most impressive report card among 20 pitchers seeking jobs with the new National League club.

Making his second appearance of the spring, the 36-year-old southpaw, plucked from Pittsburgh Pirates in the league's expansion draft, hurled six shutout innings and allowed only three scratch singles as the Colts belted Boston Red Sox 9-1 in an exhibition game Friday.

Shantz, most valuable player in the American League when he posted a 24-7 won-lost record for Philadelphia Athletics in 1952, has a career record of 109-86 and an earned run average of 3.48 for 14 seasons. He had a creditable 6-3 mark with a 3.34 E.R.A. in relief with the Pirates last season.

Chicago White Sox and Chicago Cubs continued win streaks, each taking the fourth in succession. The White Sox defeated Kansas City Athletics 10-7 for their sixth triumph in seven games and the Cubs edged San Francisco Giants 8-7.

Cleveland Indians walloped Los Angeles Angels 10-2, St. Louis Cardinals beat Milwaukee Braves 9-3, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 5-0, Washington Senators kept Minnesota Twins winless with a 5-2 victory and Baltimore Orioles belted Los Angeles Dodgers 9-4.

Rookie Bob Farley and Floyd Robinson each drove in four runs for the White Sox. The Cubs scored five runs in the first on a two-run homer by Billy Williams and a three-run shot by George Altman.

Mack Jones hit his fifth homer but it wasn't enough for the Braves. Curt Flood drove in four Cardinal runs with a single, double and homer. The Indians rapped the Angels for 14 hits with Ken Aspromonte getting three and Bobba Phillips collecting a triple and single.

The Reds beat the Mets on home runs by Frank Robinson and Gordon Coleman. Harmon Killebrew tried to lead the Twins to their first triumph in seven engagements with his third homer and two singles, but the Senators came up with five runs in the eighth inning.

The Orioles won their first game in five starts with five runs in the eighth inning on key singles by Earl Robinson and rookie John Powell.

Goyer Back in Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A torrid race for the third and final playoff position in the Western Hockey League's South Division continues to heat up tonight when Los Angeles, Blades and Vancouver Canucks 8-2.

The Blades exploded for three goals in the final period to entertain the 9,000 fans who turned into a third-place tie with San Francisco Seals.

Edmonton Flyers edged Spokane Comets 3-2 in overtime and Seattle Totems beat Calgary Stampeders 6-1 to reclaim second place from Calgary in the Northern Division.

Willie O'Ree paced the Blades' attack with two goals. Gerry Goyer, Stan Maxwell, Ralph Backstrom and George Konik added the other four. Maxonr and Duane Rupp answered for Vancouver.

Billy McNeill scored the winning goal at 5:09 of sudden-death overtime as first place Edmonton moved six points ahead of the Northern Division opponents. Ed Joyal and Don Poile scored the o r Flyer goals. Lachance and Gerry Brisson connected for Spokane.

Mac White Rink Loses At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Sid Smithers' rink from Galt Friday night won the Ontario Curling Association's Tom Bowl championship for mixed rinks, taking an easy 14-3 win over Clyde Robertson of Hanover in the final.

The Galt foursome earlier downed Doug Sarra of Belleville 12-5 and Mac White of Belleville 13-7.

No More Interviews Says Maris

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Roger Maris, New York Yankees' home run king, says he's emphatic no more interviews because stories written about him have put him in a bad light, the Kansas City Star reported Friday.

When Kansas City Athletics played the Yankees Wednesday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Joe McGuff, The Star's baseball writer, said Maris told him:

"I'm not going to give out any more interviews. I went out of my way last year to give interviews to everybody. Sometimes I spent as much as an hour and a half in the dressing room after a game talking to writers. And what happened? They wrote a lot of stuff about me that wasn't true."

Goalies, That Is

Plante to Coach Swedes

By LAURENT CHIASSON

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Plante, the man who revolutionized the art of goaltending in the National Hockey League, said Friday he is "very happy" about an invitation to instruct Swedish netminders this summer.

Plans for a trip to Sweden are not completed, said the 33-year-old Montreal Canadiens' goalie, "but if they want me, I'll go."

The invitation was made earlier this week by Arne Strandberg, coach of the Swedish national team at the world hockey championships currently being held at Colorado Springs, Colo. Strandberg described the Canadbre of Swedish goalies as poor despite the sensational performances of Lennart Haggroth in Sweden's upset victories over Canada and the United States during the tournament.

GO BEFORE TRAINING

"I'd like to go as close to September as possible—just before we (Canadiens) start our training camp for next season," said Plante in an interview.

Plante said he doesn't know what classification of players he would be instructing, but he figures the job would require about two weeks.

"I've already got a list of about 30 different things that I could show them," he said. "But I won't know exactly what type of instruction they need most when I get there.

"I've been told, though, that the rope goaltenders frequently use limit their bodies to make saves. They seldom use their hands and I think this is a mistake."

What about the wandering style and the protective face mask he introduced in the NHL?

"If Swedish players dump the puck forward as much as they do in the NHL, sometimes, then a goalie has to go out of his net," said Plante.

HEAVY SKATE LAST

"But a goalie must be able to skate fast if he's going to start wandering. Otherwise he'll be trapped."

Plante figures the mask has gained so much popularity, it may someday become a permanent fixture for goalies.

"Some Swedish goalies now use masks. But they're like a big shield and not nearly as efficient as the usual one."

Plante said about 500 handmade copies of the mask have been made and sold in the last two years.

"If enough of them could be turned out, I think they'd sell like hot cakes," he said.

Gale Gordon to Be Neighbor On Dennis the Menace Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's a new Mr. Wilson next door to Dennis the Menace.

Actually, he may be a new neighbor to Dennis, but he's an old friend to any TV watcher. Replacing the late Joseph Kearns on the Sunday night CBS show is Gale Gordon, the spec of apoplexy.

Gordon's fits of frustration and temper have become a television institution, along with Perry Como's letters and Chester's limp.

So accomplished is Gordon's art that he has appeared regularly on more TV series than any other performer—by far. He was Eve Arden's irascible principal in 130 outings of Our Miss Brooks. He has had running roles in My Favorite Husband, The Danny Thomas Show, Jack Benny's show and Pete and Gladys.

He even had his own series, The Brothers, with Bob Sweeney.

IT REPLACES KEARNS

"When Joe Kearns died, the producers of Dennis the Menace said, 'get Gordon'."

"I've already done two with Dennis," said Gordon, who showed up for lunch with a make up black eye (you can guess who gave it to him).

"I'll do six more to finish out this season. After that, I don't know. I'm under contract to Tony Owens for a pilot I did with Roberta Sherwood and Bert Brewer sons—it will be shown on the Donna Reed Show. If it sells, and Tony Owens thinks it will, I'll be doing that one. If not, I could return to Dennis. Either way, I'd be happy; they're both delightful shows."

Gordon will be introduced as the brother of Mr. Wilson, who has gone over for a while.

"I won't be as imitation of Joe Kearns, who I knew and liked for 30 years," said Gordon. "That would be insulting to him and impossible for me."

Admittedly the role comes easy to him. He has been playing explosive windbags ever since he stumbled on the characterization on the old Fibber McGee and Molly radio show as Otis Cadwallader, Molly's old boyfriend, and Mayor Latrivia.

Does he ever tire of playing what he calls "stuffy blowhards"?

"Not as long as they keep paying me," he said. "And since I never explode in my own life, it provides a good release."

Astrological Forecast

For March 18

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to Apr. 19): Don't take anything for granted today. Spell out what you mean. This applies to business as well as personal relationships. Listen to and follow spiritual advice.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Might be a fine day for family journey or adventure of the mind. Don't let yourself "rise" emotionally. Get up and utilize physical and mental energies.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Don't check your impulses today. Tendency to follow emotion . . . instead of intellect, could prove costly. Take time to listen to experienced advice.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Your moods are changeable. Depend upon personal ability rather than expect others to do perfect work. Consider the human element and don't depend on "luck."

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 23): If family member presents problem, judge with care. It is easy to condemn, but this accomplishes little. Be gentle with advice; otherwise, near future may bring cause for regret.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Fear or unknown accomplishes nothing. Avoid needless worry. Other wiser heads can be trusted. Do not permit pride to throw you off course. Listen to admirers.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Not particularly favorable for attempting strictly routine tasks. Best for gathering with friends for discussion group . . . to express self through challenging project, exchange of ideas.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Personal publicity likely now if you have recently completed a project, or are presenting result to public. Excellent for exhibitions, spreading word, airing views.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You gain much through words of spiritual advisor. You may feel restless but be wary lest you waste creative energy. Don't brag . . . be modest . . . maintain sense of humor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Make some resolutions, practical enough to be kept. Otherwise, you slide backwards into old habits, unhappy. Take spiritual inventory . . . it may be later than you think.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A gay greeting could do wonders . . . people ordinarily regarded as "touchy" respond with enthusiasm. The heavy hand accomplishes little . . . the "light touch" reaps rewards.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be willing to accept personal criticism. Do not ask for frank, honest opinions . . . unless you really expect them. Listen carefully. Avoid arguing. Gain from what others offer. Suggest.

If today is your birthday much artistic ability shown in some that you have "eye" for design . . . this could apply to engineering, architecture and the fine arts. On another plane you have ear and eye to appreciate talents of others. You could make an excellent creative critic.

General Tendencies: Today fine for entertaining and being entertained. Nothing too serious apt to be accomplished . . . but there are dramatic "sounds" made and, early news reports may indicate a climax of some sort in international affairs.

For March 19

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Pushing too hard today you could defeat ultimate purpose. Conserve energy, rest. Don't press luck. Watch employer-employee relations.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good day to experiment, try out new ideas. Shelve old methods. Be willing to spend in order to gain profit. Luck rides with common sense.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Tendency is to seek praise, appreciation for work well done. If it is not immediately forthcoming, do not despair. You may be in for pleasant surprise later.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): If you have choice of travelling or staying close to home . . . choose the latter. Connections may not be as good as expected. Double check reservations and appointments.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Recent neglect of a sound savings account or budget may come to your attention. Don't pinch pennies but secure your future. Be less lavish . . . more practical.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Cycle up, but an unusual situation today could cause you to do double-take." Be prepared for new methods, surprising statements from those you think you know.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Don't be secretive. If put on the spot, best golley is to tell the truth. This eventually brings gain. Don't flb to help others.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Inspiration is provided by friends, loved ones. You can be stimulated by discussion of ideas, problems. Key should be "versatility." Feel free to express opinions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Responsibilities today must not be shirked. Key is pacing. Do what you can to the best of your ability. Accomplishment will prove rewarding.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Favorable lunar aspect to your sign brings ideals into focus. Ambitions, hopes not so far from reality as you might think. Get to heart of matter . . . follow through.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Key is diplomacy. You gain by being considerate. You cannot expect "victory" through force. Examine all sides of question. Reinstate old friendships.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Attend to "paper work," but check all documents that you sign. Delay agreements, if practical. Rely on personal judgment, not the word of glib talkers or phony experts.

If today is your birthday . . . month of April could be outstanding, while year in general should be one of planning, preparing for change, travel, new opportunity. You gain most by expressing new ideas, being independent in thought, action.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Leo, Virgo, Libra. Superficial methods, approaches will not fill the bill. Tendency is for critical examination . . . do not attempt by exaggerate. Opposite points of view "collide." Watch for fireworks.

COMEBACK CUT SHORT

BOSTON (AP)—Calm, counter-punching Don Fullmer decided to Demarest's comeback and title shot aspirations Friday night with a unanimous 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, weighed 162 pounds, one less than his Newton, Mass., foe.

Demarest, who had won six straight after returning to the ring, had hoped to beat Don and get a shot at big brother Gene Fullmer, National Boxing Association middleweight champion.

Take 3-2 Lead

Flyers Upset Baby Habs

MONTREAL (CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers scored twice in the third period to upset Montreal Junior Canadiens 3-2 Friday night and take a 3-2 lead in games in a best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final.

Niagara Falls now can wrap up the series by winning the sixth game on home ice tonight.

The win was the first for the Flyers on Montreal ice in regular-season and playoff play.

Left winger Wayne Maxner led the Niagara Falls attack with two goals and captain Bob Knibbs scored the other.

The score was tied 1-1 going into the third period. The Flyers then scored twice in the early part of the last session before Montreal could reply with one. The Flyers outshot Canadiens 124-in the last period and 36-30 for the game.

The game featured wide open and clean play with only two minor penalties awarded by referee Lloyd Ferguson.

Niagara Falls relied on persistent forechecking to keep Canadiens bottled up in their own end and Maxner's two goals resulted from defensive lapses by the Junior Habs.

Russia Agrees To Another Try For A-Test Ban

Canada's 7-Point Plan Put Before Conference

GENEVA (CP) — Canada today outlined a seven-point plan to break the East-West deadlock on disarmament and urged the big powers to make a "further effort" to agree on a nuclear test ban.

External Affairs Minister Green, listed the "real" for the new moves in Canada's first major speech to the 17-power Geneva conference on disarmament, which opened last Wednesday.

After the session Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin announced Russia's readiness to join the U.S. and Britain in negotiations on a test ban.

He proposed at a press conference that the three nuclear powers form a subcommittee of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The Soviet declaration seemed certain to revive active work on a test ban, which has been blocked in stalemate for the last week.

Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, making the announcement at a press conference, made clear Russia would like to have France join in. The Paris government is boycotting the disarmament conference, however.

The United States was reported to have told neutralist nations at the conference it is determined to resume testing in the atmosphere next month unless Russia changes its policy and agrees to true quality.

WORK BEHIND SCENES

State Secretary Rusk and his aides, working behind the scenes over the weekend, urged diplomats of the middle group of nations to persuade the Soviets to accept a test ban treaty providing for international controls against cheating.

The Russian showed no sign of relaxing their opposition to foreign inspectors on their soil. Zorin reiterated the main Soviet condition for a test ban treaty —that any ban be policed only

Pope John Creates Ten New Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John created 10 new cardinals today and at the same time spoke generously of the "sacred slavery" being established in vast regions of the world.

The Pope addressed a secret consistory of 20 members of the College of Cardinals, who concurred in his new appointments to their ranks. It was the first in a series of ceremonies that will culminate in a public consistory March 26 in Basilica Thursday at which the Pontiff will announce broad-brimmed galero—the hat symbolizing the cardinal's rank and power of the church.

The appointments raised the Sacred College to an all - time high of 87 members.

Of the 10 new cardinals, three are Italian and two are South Americans. The others are British, Spanish, Portuguese, Belgian and Syrian.

The prelates elevated included Msgr. Ildebrando Antoniutti, 72, Italian, nuncio to Spain, and Msgr. Joseph Lemaitre, 86, Italian, nuncio to Portugal, both

Canadian Housewives With Ration Books in Hand Go Shopping

HAVANA, Cuba (Reuters) — Cuban housewives went shopping with ration books for the first time today.

Country - wide rationing, announced by Premier Fidel Castro last week, is aimed at beating back the scourge of inflation that hit Cuba hard last year, the last 8 months.

People in Havana, where the shortages are most acute, will have three-quarters of a pound of meat each a week, one chicken a month, half a pound of fish every two weeks, five eggs a month, 3½ pounds of potatoes and two ounces of butter a month and 1¾ pints of milk daily for every five adults.

Country folk, who grow most of their own food, are not rationed.

Cuba is the world's biggest producer of sugar, of which Cuba is the world's biggest producer. was 19 per cent below the target set for that date.

PRE-ELECTION CAT-AND-MOUSE GAME CONTINUES

Prime Minister Alone Knows Time

OTTAWA (CP)—How long will the cat toy with the mice before he pounces?

That the cat will, in fact, pounce before too long is a foregone conclusion in the game now being played by the government and opposition groups in the Commons.

The only question is when the government, whose back-bench supporters have been doing a considerable amount squeaking of the opposition, will decide it is opportune or that it has been provoked too far by the opposition and call the general election expected this year.

Controversy between government and opposition forces in the Commons in the last few weeks has grown steadily to a point that surpasses the bitterness of the celebrated 1956 pipeline debate.

Cries of "sit down," "shut up," and "keep quiet" are being hurled daily by the Conservatives to the Liberals, but the Conservatives say it is no worse than they had to endure when the Liberals were in power.

COMPLAINING MINISTER

The Liberals now are countering with accusations the government is trying to shut off debate—the same complaint the Conservatives made in the latter days of their sojourn in opposition, and especially so after the former Liberal government employed the debate-limiting closure device to force the Trans-Canada Gas Pipeline bill through the Commons.

Veteran parliamentary observers say the atmosphere now on the eve of the coming election is not very different from what prevailed just before previous elections when both parties of House were convinced of good chances of electoral success.

The government is closely guarding its election intentions. The date is determined by Prime Minister Diefenbaker alone, and he is playing the cat-and-mouse game with relish.

Knowing him to be a formidable campaigner and master arbitrator of campaign issues, the Liberals are employing every available opening to needle and wheedle.

While preparations are going ahead for the usual series of conference rooms of the finance department on the 1962 budget, the Liberals are demanding assurances there will be no interruption prior to the election. The government refuses to say whether there will or will not be time. "When it comes, it is almost certain to be a vote-attracting one.

CUBAN DEFECTS

GANDER, Nfld. (CP) — A Cuban airliner, the crew of Cuban Airlines plane left the Aircraft here Sunday night and asked immigration officials to apply for his entry into the United States. The unidentified man, believed to have been the pilot, was the 16th Cuban airliner crew member to defect here since last fall.

C of C Asks Health Board To Oppose State Medicine

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce appealed to the Hall royal commission on health services today to oppose "socialized medicine" in Canada.

No clear evidence has been presented, it told the commission, that there is any deficiency in Canada's health system that would justify the introduction of state medicine.

It claimed that Canadians can be provided with health care "second to none" by strengthening and modifying the existing voluntary insurance schemes. Those unable to pay the premiums should be subsidized by government.

10,000 Residents Facing Wall of Water if Dam Bursts

QUEBEC (CP) — More than 10,000 residents of the Chaudiere River Valley will face a wall of water 15 to 30 feet high if the Gouin Dam at Lake Mag-Antic bursts.

And the big dam holding back the water of Lake Megantic 115 miles southeast of here is known to have a dangerous fault in it.

The waters of the Chaudiere flow from the lake down the flatlands of the valley to the St. Lawrence at nearby Levis.

The valley has been plagued by floods since 1740, when settlers built their homes at the river's edge because it was the only transportation route to the St. Lawrence and civilization.

A massive flood in 1927 inundated towns like Beauceville, a centre of 3,600 residents 45 miles southeast of here. Photographs show five - ton chunks of ice floating in the main streets.

The dam was built of earth late to control the spill from Lake Megantic, source of the year by the Appalachian runoff. For the last three years, a dam was gone to the flood-threatened areas along the Chaudiere to weaken the ice with dynamite before the spring.

The 100-man team Sunday completed five miles of dynamiting. Charges are placed not

Free Enterprise Flourishes At Moscow Peasant Market

MOSCOW (AP) — A winter day's visit to the Moscow central peasants' market shows how a small survival of free enterprise is a major factor in feeding well-to-do Russians.

In a sprawling district of government-built sheds, peasants charge city dwellers whatever the traffic will bear for privately raised produce.

The skilled worker who gets 80 rubles ($88.88) a month can seldom afford to splurge at the private market. A large percentage of the shoppers arrive in private automobiles. On a visit there are only 23,000 in all of Moscow.

This is the biggest and best market in the food-short Soviet Union, but it makes a dismal impression on Western visitors.

Still, it's much better than Soviet state - run stores where prices are fixed but supplies of meat and other goods are often lacking.

Meat also was scarce at the peasants' market.

Fresh fruit and vegetables fell only a few smallish cucumbers were available at half a rouble.

Smallish apples were offered at 1¾ roubles a pound and pears at 3½ roubles. There was an assortment of nuts and dried fruits.

The milk and dairy products section had fresh milk. Large quantities of cottage cheese and sour cream were packed into customers' own containers.

In a special building, a long queue waited for potatoes, scarce this winter, at 25 kopeks (28 cents) a pound. When available in state shops these sell at 10 kopeks.

By official estimates, nearly half the Soviet Union's fresh produce and much of its meat come from private plots tended by peasants from collective farms. The government has threatened at times to liquidate the peasants' market.

FRONDIZI ORDERS GOVT. CONTROL OF PERON AREAS

Peronists Win Many Key Posts

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's President Arturo Frondizi today ordered federal control in all provinces where Peronists won in Sunday's country-wide congressional and provincial elections.

The president will name civilian or military leaders to head the government in the provinces where followers of Peron gave the president and his government a sharp setback in Sunday's election of governors, congressmen and some members of congress.

Should the president continue federal control past May 1, when he is officially due, Sunday are to take office, the action would have the effect of nullifying the results of the election.

Latest unofficial returns showed that followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron won more than 30 seats in the national congress and 10 governors' posts including that of Buenos Aires province, which is second to the federal government in political power and prestige.

Frondizi acted at about 5 a.m. after advisers said pressure from chiefs met with interior Ministe Alfredo Vitolo to consider whether to form a military junta to deal with the crisis.

The military leaders called on Frondizi to intervene and declare martial law. Minister of Vitolo, who had mapped the strategy of Sunday's election, Vitolo also reported to the president on his resignation, but government house sources said Frondizi had not decided whether to accept it.

The action was needed for a working majority in the 192-seat National House of Deputies, officials said. Returns so far showed:

Jackie Kennedy Takes Ride On Elephant

JAIPUR, India (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy, who loves to ride horses, had her first elephant ride today on an animal equipped with fake tusks.

The American president's wife rode about 50 yards in the ceremonial howdah of Raja Amber atop a 500-foot rocky hill just outside this Rajasthan desert town.

Sharing the ornately decorated howdah with her were her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, an Indian official and the Indian elephant driver.

The elephant was a 35-year-old female named Bibbi Jan. It had been fitted with tusks, an old tourist custom at the amber fort, which is closed to the public.

Mrs. Kennedy said Bibbi Jan loved the elephants she bulls.

Real Fighting Will Begin Now Declares OAS

Strike Secret Army's First Show of Strength

ALGIERS (AP) — The cease-fire in the Algerian War went into effect on the stroke of noon (6 a.m. EST) today, ending 7½ years of savage warfare between France and the nationalist rebels.

Even as the cease - fire became official, the French Army and police were massed on the alert to combat the Secret Army Organization, pledged to keep Algeria French.

The cease-fire officially came into force in the fifth month of the eighth year of the bitter struggle that cost more than 200,000 lives.

But there bloodshed threatened before Algeria gains independence as the underground Secret Army Organization (OAS) flatly proclaimed: "Now the real fighting has begun."

As the first wave of strength, the secret army called a general strike in Algeria's major cities for 24 hours and urged Europeans to remain indoors.

Terrorist attacks struck at the Algiers despite reinforcements of French troops sent to the city. Gunfire and explosions rang through Oran. Authorities gave no casualty figures.

Oran, a right-wing stronghold, had all communications cut with France by secret army saboteurs, it was reported. All planes were said to be stoned as European rallied to the secret army's strike call.

CANCEL FLIGHTS

Air France and Air Algerie cancelled all flights from France to Algeria because airport personnel in Algiers and Oran joined the general strike.

Carrying forged orders, rightists in Oran carried away 3,000 rifles and machine-guns and 200 bazookas in a truck-trailer from an army arsenal.

In Algiers, frightened Moslems erected barricades of stones at the entrances to some southern suburbs, fearing attacks by secret army commandos.

President de Gaulle, acknowledging there will be "last obstacles" to be cleared up, brushed off the terrorist threats by "straying chiefs" and "criminal adventurers."

DETAILS OUTLINED

Details of the peace accord were not published immediately with their call for:

1. Creation of a 12-man provisional executive to run the country under a French high commissioner during the interim period until an independent Algerian government takes over. The executive will have four Moslem nationalist representatives and eight "neutral" Moslems and four Algerian Europeans.

2. A self - determination referendum—sure to approve independence—to be held several days to name an Algerian parliament within three to six months.

3. Gradual withdrawal of

Diefenbaker Requests Provinces To Give Views on Export of Power

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today asked the provinces for an expression of their views on the export of hydro-electric power.

Mr. Diefenbaker was opening a meeting of nine of the provinces with Ottawa's government to discuss a national power grid. Quebec is not attending.

"In the course of this meeting the federal government will welcome an expression of the views of the provinces on the export of power as well as on long - distance transmission generally," Mr. Diefenbaker told the closed conference.

His remarks were contained in a text of notes for his opening remarks, issued to the press before delivery.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that the National Energy Board had passed several years ago "makes express provision for the export of power, provided that the power is surplus to Canada's needs and that the price shall be just and reasonable in relation to the price charged."

Mr. Diefenbaker and Resources Minister Dinsdale will discuss the latter phrase with what is expected to be a one-day meeting of provincial premiers.

Premiers Bennett of British Columbia and Roblin of Manitoba are the only provincial premiers present. Mr. Bennett said Saturday he expected the meeting that there is "no argument that we should have a national power grid."

A power grid is envisaged as a means of long-haul transmission of electric power from distant generating sites or as the interchange of power between different regions.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbia was prepared to co-operate fully in providing power.

Strike Secret Army's First Show of Strength

PARIS (AP)—Today's cease-fire ending the Algerian rebellion came after 2½ years of almost continuous warfare for France.

Between France's declaration of war against Nazi aggression on Sept. 3, 1939, and the Algerian cease-fire, France enjoyed only 102 days of peace. This was the gap between the end of the fighting in her Indochina colonies and Nov. 1, 1954, the date of the first organized raids by the Algerian rebels.

On the morning of Nov. 1 several hundred Algerians with rifles attacked police raids in the Aures Mountains of Eastern Algeria and at more than 20 other cities on Algerian territory.

French schoolteacher Guy Monnerot, 26, and his 24-year-old wife were the only Europeans among 1,000 passengers riding in an ancient bus when it armed men surged across the road, and shouted:

"Send out the Frenchman."

A flood of machine - guns fire cut down Monnerot and his wife. A Moslem passenger who attempted to save them died with them.

250,000 FALL

They were the first recorded dead of the rebellion. More than 250,000 were to fall.

As France slowly came to recognize she was caught up in a merciless guerrilla war, military reservists were called up, savage reprisals were carried out, a long list of governments fell, and finally the Fourth Republic toppled in 1958 when de Gaulle returned to power.

Then the major uprising of the rebellion, near Philippeville,

WOLF BOUNTY HIGH IN ALBERTA

If you are a wolf hunter on the loose, there's some lucrative sport awaiting you in Alberta.

According to information received in the city there is a wolf bounty in the Alberta foothills of $75 per scalp.

Near High River, Jim Cartwright of the 'D' Ranch, recently had two head or cattle killed and eaten by wolves and two cows badly chewed, during a recent cold snap.

Cartwright has offered $150 per wolf to hunters for each wolf killed on his ranch.

Mr. Cartwright is the rancher who purchased the E.P. Ranch of 3,950 acres owned by the Duke of Windsor. This ranch adjoins the Cartwright property and was bought for $192,000.

Recommendations of the commission to the federal government should be rejected in preserving the freedom of the individual and opposing the introduction of a "socialized medicine' scheme in Canada."

The chamber added that no further, general expansion of social welfare programs should be undertaken "until the full impact of the present programs be, coming apparent. Canada's existing social welfare program was "by a nearly well balanced."

Most Canadians can well afford to protect themselves against the cost of sickness, said the chamber, by indirects it advocated financial assistance by government "if the expense of the illness is clearly beyond the means of the individual."

To help what it termed "the second category of indigence"—people normally self-supporting who may be faced with medical expenses of catastrophic proportions, the chamber recommended relief under the income Tax Act.

Bruins See Hockey Game In Toronto

All twenty five members of the Bruins team in the Sixth section of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association were taken to Toronto on Sunday to watch the junior playoff game in Maple Leaf Gardens. The genius coach, Gerald B. Hyde, accompanied all of the boys' fathers including Ronald Case, Stanley Reston, William Lorrain, Grant Hickle, and Victor Allen.

Following the game a short visit was made to the Ontario Museum before returning home.

First Break In Moira R Ice Seen

The first break in the river ice in the lower Moira occurred over the weekend as a small amount of water in the west bank just above the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge.

The break was not by any means a big one, but indicates that the capacity of the break-up of ice in the lower Moira is beginning to gradually loosen away.

Should the break-up quickened current of the river was beginning to flood over the ice at the point where it enters the bay, streams emptying into the Moira will soon force a complete break-up of the ice in the Lasker's dam into the downtown part of the city.

Ice on the bay still presents a solid sheet but ice fishermen have the task of the first ice pending spring break-up and most of the fish shanties have been dismantled.

B. Templeton, Trenton, Heads Purchasing Body

The Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario met on March 14th in King-ston. Ken Hicks, assistant supervisor of design and drafting, Aluminum Company of Canada, gave a talk on "Blueprint Reading". Mr. Grady discussed basic symbols usually used to identify welding qualities, machining requirements and the most pertinent factors relating to the requirement of a blueprint. These symbols are recognized internationally, making a blueprinting a universal visual language. President Ted Whitney for the Canada Company commented that Purchasing Agents in general would be well advised to create more interest in the art of blueprint reading.

The speaker was introduced by Bud Oswald of the Aluminum Company and thanked by Dave Willis of Jenkins Machine and Mr. Howard White, chairman of the nominating committee announced the slate of officers for next year.

Scouting activities

BY ANNE M. McDONALD

The Boy? was the general theme of the "Executive Committeeman" meeting held at Tabernacle United Church on Saturday where delegates assembled from many points in the Quinte region, representing 13 District Councils.

Mr. L. R. Griffith, Regional Commissioner, opened the conference with a few welcoming remarks to the delegates, and introduced the staff conducting the various sessions. Mr. Griffith stated in part that the prime purpose of the meeting was for "The Boy." Every boy from age eight to a young man of 18 is a potential member of the Boy Scouts of Canada. The aim of the movement is to develop good citizenship among boys by developing character. Finally, said Mr. Griffith, "We are here to share experience, knowledge and to help each other do a more effective job as team members in this game of Scouting because you took the time to see that is was being played by the rules of the game."

Provincial Field Commissioner Mr. Peter Wilson addressed the assembly on the "Aims of Scouting," informing them that we are sending the boys home to carry out the Ontario Quinte region. Mr. Wilson suggested that we review the Chief Scout's recent thoughts on Scouting as applied today, and in the light of Lord Powell's book, "educate the lad in a practical way to fit him for coming years."

"The Role of the Council," by Mr. Griffith was the next talk. The role of the Council is to form the story behind the boy. It is the story of the Council helping every boy to live and better for him, and the results of the Council's work, and their Program of Activities.

The delegates enjoyed a banquet in the evening, with Mr. P. Wilson as chairman, Mr. Harold Cruickshank, Deputy Provincial Council, as chairman, "Introducing" welcomed the delegates and guests. Introduction to Mr. Cruickshank, Lancaster, proposed by Mr. Griffith, Deputy Provincial Commissioner for Training, Peterborough, and B. Leader, Provincial Commissioner Training for Peterborough.

SHOWED SLIDES

Mr. W. A. Bending, Assistant Regional Commissioner of Quinte Region spoke on "District Council Organizations", giving his history and showing slides. The Constitution of the District Organization boiled down to a one hour show, with the District Commissioner being "Mr. Scout" within the District Council Group. Mr. Bending's talk was appointed by the Provincial Commissioner with the responsibility to local authority. Slowly the organization on the District level began to take shape. Then there was a definite move to give the non-uniformed person a place in the District Group Committees that came into being, and local associations were given more responsibility and authority. However, it wasn't until 1947 that the commissioner, of the local association and the District Commissioner began to work as a partnership within one District. There is a tremendous role on the District level for men with no technical experience with the Scout Program. The District is a service organization, under the Leadership of the President, the Service team consists of the District Officers, the District Commissioner and his staff, the Chairman of operating committees plus additional elected members. In closing Mr. Bending said "Once again let us set as our aim for "1962" of completing the mandate of all the sub-committees within our District Councils.

NEEDS GOOD MEN

"Recruiting Manpower" came under discussion by J. Atkinson, assistant to the Executive Commissioner, Provincial Council for Ontario. Because the Scout movement is growing it needs more good men. If the Association is to continue as the largest of boys' work program of this nation, then we must interest an increasing number of the highest calibre business and professional people. A willingness and a desire to help advance the Scout movement is the prime requisite of a member's role. A member cannot have children in the movement nor must he have been a member himself as a boy, as long as he is interested. He should be willing to advance as a whole. Some people are not able to spend their time working with a small group as a group representative, and because of their business commitments and activities their interest is much broader, and should be used in that way.

Mr. Atkinson specified that the primary work of a president of council is allocating the work, and having control of the reins. He should not be doing the work of a chairman as this has a tendency to break down the committee system. If a chairman is not doing a job he should discuss this matter with his executive and appoint someone else. The uniform representative should have a knowledge of what is going on in Council so that he knows the Scouters informed, and he in turn should keep the Council informed.

A question and answer period followed each talk.

Lunch was served by the ladies of Tabernacle Church.

WORKSHOPS HELD

During the afternoon, workshops and operating committees were conducted. There was a session on "Badges, Honors and Awards," presided over by D. McKinley District Commissioner, Picton; "District Commissioner and J. Atkinson, assistant Executive Commissioner, Ontario headquarters on "Publicity and Safety"; by G Harris, president, Port Hope District Council and P. Serrin finance chairman, Port Hope "Public Relations and Annual Events" by Fred Nelson, Campbellford, and A. Evans; RCAF Trenton, D.S.M. "Executive Committee," by J. Atkinson, Ontario headquarters "Organization," by G. Thompson, D.C. If a chairman is not doing a job he should discuss this matter with his executive and appoint someone else. The uniform representative should have a knowledge of what is going on in Council so that he knows the Scouters informed, and he in turn should keep the Council informed.

A question and answer period followed each talk.

Lunch was served by the ladies of Tabernacle Church.

'Manure Spreaders' Win Victoria and Grey Trust Cup

There was fun and enjoyment and a celebration of St. Patrick's Day at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday when the annual Victoria and Grey Bonspiel was held with sixteen rinks in competition. Different from other spiels the competitors were not battling for with the honors going to the "Manure Spreaders", a rink of farmers from "Away Out" who incidentally showed suprising ability on the ice to win the top honors of the day. The rink was composed of Everett Black as lead, John Catherwood as second, Lloyd Sheppard as vice and Dr. F. G. McGorquodale as skip.

The boys grew a couple of decades well worn jeans decorated with many prize ribbons and slouch hats showing a touch of Irish, while the rinks were decorated with Irish ribbons. This was a colorful rink and drew many comments of praise from the large gallery that watched during the day throughout the day. The idea of the rink originated when they had a ball and showed that curling can be fun in every way of the word.

This rink was not the only one that dressed for the occasion. A rink of Belleville firemen, Fairman, Harold Mott, Joe Mott and Ralph Ellis appeared with mortar boards and flowing gowns of their faculty. A rink of veterans of Field Company, Wilbur Fox, Doug Anderson, Jim Hall and as skip were brilliant yellow sweaters with a large snamrock on the back. Other rinks were skipped by Hugh Murray, Pete Acton, Murray Ralph Ellis appeared with mortar boards and flowing gowns of their faculty. The "Manure Spreaders" carried well from top to bottom and were presented with the handsome trophy and accompanying prizes ably presented by Bud Trill, manager of the Belleville office of the Victoria and Grey Trust Company. Bud, due to a recent operation was unable to compete but he had praise for those who did curling in charge and Murray Coburn, the ice man for the evening, general chairman in particular. He also expressed thanks to L. Wilson, Jr. who so ably conducted the draw.

BELLEVILLE RINK SECOND

In second place with three games won were a rink of Steve Plintoff, Jack Lomas, Ken Benn and Bill Caslt with Mr. Benn throwing last rock. This rink took the hard way to win the three games by having to win it on the last end in their first two games. A rink of Jim Cavendale, Russ Boots, William Stewart and Morris Booth, the last two named from Oshawa won the two-game high closely followed by Bruce McKenzie, Vic White, Steve Bakey and J. C. Hoskin of local rinks. A Trenton rink of Dr. Bob Patrick, Don Bell, Tom Hetherington and Herm Chambers won the one-game high with a rink of Bill Campbell of Toronto, Arnold Wolfenden, a former member of the Quinte Club, Jack Hamilton, Ken Dustin and Max Whyte were runners-up in the one-game high.

The high consolation prize was won by a rink of Dave Brown, Cliff Neil, Ernie Jones and Ev Gowsell and second was a rink from Trenton of Charles Johnston, Bob Phelps, Bob Shields and W. McDonald. As usual the consolation section of the club catered for the refreshments served and no one went away from the table hungry. The cheese table was particularly patronized during the day and the visitors were impressed with the fine arrangements made by the lady curlers.

Following the curling a delightful evening of card curling games, bridge was enjoyed at several tables, while others were interested in talk over old times and the events of last curling game. It was a well organized and successful spiel and the curlers expressed their appreciation ward with happy memories of a day spent at the Quinte Curling Club.

West Glad, Arabs Jubilant Over Algerian Settlement

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Algerian cease-fire today brought a sigh of relief from the balance in the Arab world, relief among the neutrals—and a rush for the sidelines by the leaders of the new Algeria.

The end of the armistice in the bloody North African rebellion was tempered by refusal of the underground organization Secret Army in Algeria to respect the cease-fire and to step up European a terrorist organization promised to do all it could to sabotage the cease-fire.

The Algerian rebel premier Youssef Ben Khedda, hailed the cease - fire has not brought peace to Algeria.

"There are still enemies of peace there," he said.

He cited "groups whose interest it is to sabotage the peace," obviously referring to the secret army.

GO ON SPREE

The people of Tunis went on a spree until the early hours of this morning. Cars, jubilantly sounding their horns, made a wrong way up one way streets as the crowds trooped through the city.

President Habib Bourguiba said the cease-fire marked the end of a heroic struggle by the Algerian people against the "forces of tyranny and despotism."

In Washington, President Kennedy said the United States supports the cease-fire and the mutually beneficial solution and welcomes the agreement."

Premier Khrushchev fired off a telegram to Ban Khedda declaring that the Soviet Union's relations with it.

Indian Defence Minister V. K. Krishna Menon, in Geneva for disarmament conference, summed up the general sentiment in the underground.

"Now, with this, I begin talking of real peace in Algeria and West Berlin," he said.

Jordan's Foreign Minister Ismail Mazerbah declared:

"This is a moment of great rejoicing for . . . every Arab."

The United Arab Republic President Nasser, at times a critic of the French since the Suez invasion of 1956, said the cease-fire raises the possibility of a rapprochement between France and the Arabs.

In Geneva, Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said:

"We are very pleased . . . we hope that it will be possible now to work out a lasting solution."

IN MEMORIAM

BARRIAGE — In loving memory of a dear father, Alfred Barriage, who passed away March 19, 1960.

The thanks gates were open wide,
A gentle voice said come;
He heard and recognized him,
He calmly entered home.
—Sadly missed and loved by daughter Kathleen and son-in-law, Ben.

BARRIAGE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Alfred Barriage, who passed away March 19, 1960.

We who loved you, sadly miss you
As the years pass by,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Memories bring you nigh.
—Inserted by wife, daughter, Mrs Nellie Barriage and husband, and Mrs Ethel Barriage.

CRUIKSHANK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Cruikshank, who passed away March 19th, 1959.

Meet you still with love sincere;
A day that comes with sad regrets,
A hope that never forget.
—By wife, family.

WAR'S HISTORY

where more than 100 European wars with, was put down after hundreds of Moslems had been killed. The French national assembly voted "special powers" for Algeria, the first in a series of legislative attacks on the rebels which proved of no real effect.

Early in 1957, as the rebellion continued relentlessly, Brig.-Gen. Jacques Massu was sent into the Casbah of Algiers to root out the "nest" of agitators; His tactics gave rise to charges of prisoner tortures, some of which were confirmed.

May 13, 1958, marked the beginning of the end for the fourth republic and cleared the way for De Gaulle's return from political limbo.

De Gaulle pushed through a new constitution giving him virtually dictatorial powers and reluctlessly forged ahead with plans to give Algeria self-determination.

TRY TO UNSEAT

In January, 1960, the European settlers mad, a desperate try to unseat him. But de Gaulle crumbled their street barricades with 'a stern call to order in a radio-television address.

De Gaulle attempted what no other French leader before him dared—publicly announced negotiations with the rebel leaders. The talks failed but de Gaulle remained in power.

The president then went to the country and received an overwhelming "oui" vote for his Algerian program.

Once more Algiers rose against de Gaulle. The April, 1961, putsch of four generals was quickly beaten and de Gaulle went his negotiations for more talks that finally cleared the way for a cease-fire.

The provincial government yesterday ordered preparations for immediate evacuation of communities like Beauceville, St. Joseph and Valley-Junction in case of such an emergency.

Despite 40 - degree temperatures this week, the level of the river has remained constant. Breakup is expected in late March or early April as usual.

However, Megarbane probably will head for the hills if there are heavy rains or winds high enough to pressure a breech in the dam.

Two Ottawa People Hurt In Accident

Two Ottawa people were injured Sunday morning as the result of a two-car collision accident on Dundas Street West, in front of the residence of E. J. Buckler.

Police reported that an eastbound car driven by Thomas Allan McCumber of 19 Fourth Street, Ottawa, went out of control while attempting to pass a second vehicle. The car spun around and struck a tree located on the north side of the road.

Mr. McCumber and his wife Betty were taken to the Belleville General Hospital where they were treated for injuries and released. Mr. McCumber received a bruised forehead and bruised left shoulder while his wife suffered a sprained finger.

D. C. McWhirter also attended the scene of the accident.

Mr. McCumber's was thrown from his car while Mrs. McCumber was reported to have been thrown into the back seat.

Damage to the car was estimated at approximately $200.

Mr. McCumber has been charged with driving without a driver's licence and for driving a motor vehicle bearing 1962 markers, which were not issued to him.

Airman Killed East of Station, Car Hits Pole

A Belleville man was fatally injured early this morning on Highway No. 2 about one-half mile east of the main gates at the RCAF Station, Trenton, when he lost control of his car and struck a hydro pole.

LAC William John Beckett, 26 of 30 Strachan St., Belleville was dead on arrival at the air force station, died as the result of being crushed when his car landed on its top.

Const. T. J. Lemmins of the Belleville Ontario Provincials Police detachment who investigated the accident, said the car went out of control striking a hydro pole on the south side of the highway, at the east gate of the Trenton airport.

After striking the pole, the car was flipped into its top and skidded for some distance.

Constable Dr. J. G. Stock who attended the scene of the accident, pronounced Mr. Beckett dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Beckett was born at Bruce Mines Ontario and worked in Sault Ste. Marie before joining the RCAF at Deseronto, Air Force.

Surviving are his wife and family.

The accident is reported to have happened about one o'clock. It is believed Mr. Beckett was returning home when the accident occurred.

Peronists 43; Conservatives 8; National and Popular Democrats 4; Christian Democrats 2; other parties 3.

Unofficial, incomplete returns in the popular vote gave the Peronista a lead of 1,600,000 over 327; Frondizi's Intransigent radicals 1,715,447; Peoples Radical, 1,600,000.

PERONISTS JUBILANT

Jubilant Peronists earlier had hailed the outcome as a "re-turn" for the party leader, ousted by the military in 1955.

After the voting trend became clear, Ricardo Balbin, Intransigent Radical party issued a warning that the country's territory would cause chaos in Argentina.

Balbin himself was not present, but was reported following the returns by telephone from exile in Madrid.

At midnight, the four-year-long state of siege, lifted for election day, went back into effect.

Peron followers captured the biggest prize at stake—the governorship of Buenos Aires Province, site of Argentina's largest industrial center. Andrea Framini, 47-year-old labor leader who favors a hands-off policy to Cuba.

Frondizi candidates were running far behind in the key interior province of Cordoba. The government also conceded defeat in San Juan Province. Frondizi's sole consolation was a strong showing and perhaps victory in Mendoza Province, the House of Deputies.

The election returns showed the voters were disturbed about the economic crisis gripping Argentina.

Ald. R. Temple Buys Property On Bridge St.

The Samuel Hibberd property at the corner of East Bridge and John Streets has been sold to Alderman Robert Temple, it was learned today.

Mr. Temple will take possession in September. The property contains eight apartments.

The big East Hill residential property was originally owned by the Ritchie family and was later owned by the late Dr. A. Hibberd, father, being purchased by Mr. Hibberd.

former apostolic delegates to Canada.

Others were: Archbishop Raul Silva Henriquez, 54, of Santiago, Chile; Archbishop Leo Joseph Suenens, 57, of Malines - Brussels, Belgium; Father Alfred Michael Brown, 34, Irish master - general of the Order of Preachers. Also known as The Dominican Magr. Jose da Costa Nunes, 81, Portuguese vice - chamberlain of the Holy Roman Church; Magr. Antonio Bruno, 72, Italian, nuncio to Belgium; Magr. Gabriele Acacio Coussa, 64, Syrian, pro-prefect of the Vatican's Oriental Congregation, secretary of an eastern patriarchate, and Abbot Martino Abbarede, 70, Spaniard, prefect of the Vatican library and member of the Benedictine Order.

MESSENGER LEAVES

As soon as the Pope had read the list of new cardinals, pontifical messengers set out to bring them official notification of their elevation to princely rank.

Pope John did not reveal the identity of the three cardinals that he has secretly "in pectore"—in his heart—but in the consistory of March 29, 1960, he announced that he had made such selections.

Vatican sources had thought he had chosen the three cardinals today. The secret prince of the church is usually elevated to be prelates in Communist-dominated lands who would be in danger if Cardinal rank were known.

In his address to the consistory, the 80-year-old ruler of the Roman Catholic Church expressed confidence over the condition of the church in countries where he said it is suffering trouble and sacrifice and elementary-human freedoms were lacking.

Pope John, now well-established as a pro-coexistence, announced that on April 18 — Holy Thursday—he will consecrate as bishops the 31 members of the college who now serve the curia, the papal curia. This in effect will eliminate a somewhat inferior rank in the college of bishops, that of its members episcopal rank.

He said:

"If we agree to have further negotiations we are ready to hear any proposal that may be put forward, but our position was stated quite clearly in our statement of Nov. 28."

Zorin, however, coincided with information from Western delegations that the United States and Britain have finally agreed on concessions to offer Russia in order to break the deadlock objections to international inspection.

ICE OFFER TUESDAY

The offer probably will be made Tuesday. It is understood the Western proposals would reduce the number of inspection trips which Soviet scientific-national inspectors could make around the Soviet Union. Much secret activity now would be eliminated from any inspection at all.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home returned to Geneva for a weekend consultation with London with Prime Minister Macmillan. A U.S. diplomat said they believed Macmillan had been in touch with President Kennedy on selling down the concessions.

The United States, Britain and Russia held nuclear test ban discussions negotiations in Geneva last summer but broke three years until the talks reached the complete deadlock and were adjourned Jan. 29.

A main point of disagreement has been the Western insistence on hard-and-fast provision for inspection on any test ban. The Soviet Union charged that the West was more interested in espionage than in inspection.

4H Calf Club Names 1962 Officers

The Belleville 4-H Calf Club held its first meeting last Wednesday evening at the 4th line Sidney. Community Centre with 16 present.

6 Conservative Women Named To Attend Meet

TRENTON — Six Trenton Women have been appointed delegates to attend a workshop convention of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association at Peterborough at the end of this month. The workshop is being sponsored by the Central Women's Advisory Committee of the association.

Taking part from Trenton will be Mrs. Evelyn Wessel, president of the Trenton Women's Association; Mrs. E. Anderson, second vice president; Miss Vera Barman, treasurer; Mrs. Gladys Williams; Mrs. Mildred Reid and Mrs. Edith Keller.

Ontario premier John P. Robarts will be the special speaker at the event, and former premier Leslie Frost and Mrs. Frost will be in attendance.

On Friday, March 23, the Trenton association will meet in the Orange Hall on Ontario Street where Lee Grills, MP for Hastings West and Elmer Sandercock, MPP for South Hastings will be guests. A social evening has been planned.

Feet Injured Attempting to Halt Car

TRENTON—On Friday, Willfred Joseph Wilkinson, 109 Shuter St., Trenton, sustained injuries to both feet when he attempted to bring his rolling car to a halt.

Police say that Wilkinson backed his car out of the garage on his property; got out of the vehicle to close the garage door and turned around to find the car backing down the driveway. Mr. Wilkinson attempted under the car as he was attempting to open the door on the driver's side.

RUSHED TO TORONTO

Ten-year-old Gary Gillespie, the son of Mrs. Marjorie Gillespie of Castleton, was rushed by ambulance to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, Sunday, following an accident in the village, which is north of Brighton.

Police say that the young star was driving his bicycle along the main street when he was struck by a car driven by Hayden Ferguson, R. R. 1, Baltimore, Ont.

The extent of the child's injuries are not known at this time.

Trenton Wins Pee-wee Game Over Napanee

TRENTON — In Saturday's all-day Pee Wee tournament at the Trenton Community Gardens, the Trenton Pee Wee All-Stars came through with a nine to one victory over Napanee, to win the Cup Board Marine trophy.

Picton bested Campbellford, 2 to 1 in an exhibition game to start the day's events off.

Winners in the semi-finals were Trenton, with 7 to Preston's 5 Napanee, with 6 to Gananoque's 4, and Preston with 5 over Peterborough's 0.

St. Patrick's Day Bonspiel Is Staged

TRENTON—St. Patrick, who probably wouldn't have known a curling stone from the Blarney Stone, was honored by a one-day open bonspiel at the Trenton Curling Club on Saturday.

While high-links were the order of the day, the curling "irishmen" managed to get in some excellent curling.

Sixteen rinks, from Trenton, RCAF Station Trenton, Belleville, Kingston, Stirling, Colborne, Picton and Napanee participated.

High three-game winner was a Belleville rink, skipped by Quinte president Bob Lanning, with Dave Duffy as lead; Alan McCallum, second and Bill Riley, third. Points - 33.

Three-game runner-up was a Kingston rink, skipped by Ken Richmond. Points: 31½.

Two-game winner was a Trenton rink, skipped by Les Platt, with another Trenton rink, skipped by Archie Smith, being the runner-up.

Both teams chalked up 26 points, but the honors went to Platt's rink, when he bested Smith in a single rock throw.

One-game winner was a Trenton rink, skipped by Dr. H. C. Hallett; with 19½ points; runner-up was a Napanee rink skipped by Jim Burton, with 18 points.

Prizes were presented by Country Club president Jim Duncan, members, guests and visiting curlers and their wives were entertained by the committee, headed by club manager, Bruce Gardy.

The Trenton Industrial Curling League bonspiel will be played this coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at the local club.

The last weekend of the month will see another men's bonspiel the first Wednesday of April a closing mixed event and on April 13, presentation of this series will go on to the one will take place at a club-dinner dance.

Book Mileage Is Good

According to the annual 1961 report of the Corby Public Library local citizens are wearing out books to the point of either retirement or repair at the rate of 6,550 a year. This would appear to be , at first glance, a large number, which it is, but when compared to the number of books which were loaned it appears relatively small. With the total number of books loaned out amounting to 355,447 the percentage of books requiring repair or retirement comes to a mere 1.8 per cent.

With 10,493 members, the average number of books loaned per member comes to almost 34 copies in the year. The juvenile members would appear to outnumber the adult members by a ratio of almost 2:1 although the adults appear to be reading more than the youngsters, about four books to three.

Most revealing of these statistics and figures provided are those which pertain to the selection of books by category. The most popular type of book was the biography, followed by useful arts and history. These, in turn, were followed by requests for books on the fine arts, travel and literature. Science books were eighth on the popularity poll, just behind the social sciences and ahead of philosophy.

Before the community starts to feel that its members are developing into a studiously serious clique it should be pointed out that fiction was still in greater demand than non-fiction, 94,596 volumes to 53,912, to be exact.

All of which proves what? Well, if we might be permitted to go out on a sociological limb and start applying an analytical saw to that portion nearest the trunk, we might arrive at the following analysis.

Local citizens, at least those who read, first seek some escape from their everyday lives through the medium of fiction. A small segment of this group then appears to seek some way or guidance towards self-improvement and development through the reading of biographies and volumes on the useful arts. The former might be interpreted as the result of a subconscious desire for advancement in the sociological strata of our civilization and the latter as showing a desire to improve their physical skills.

For the few that pursue knowledge on history we might determine a possibility of complacency in that they wish to remind themselves of the "good, old days" or, on the other hand, a desire to learn from mistakes of past misdeeds in the firm resolve to attempt to create a better world.

To conclude, a library is a most interesting place with many avenues along which an individual may allow his mind to wander. If you think not, just look what can be derived from a set of figures in an annual report.

Conscripts Organize

From Algiers comes a story of the highest significance.

Conscripts in the French Army, as distinguished from the professional soldiers, have formed a secret organization. Its aim — to checkmate officers who may order their men to mutiny now a cease-fire is declared in Algeria.

There are cells of this secret organization in every unit in Algeria, it is said.

The report makes sense. One would not expect French workers to take kindly to the authoritarian regime which would almost inevitably follow if the rightists in Algeria had their way.

One wonders, though, whether General de Gaulle will recognize his true friends. As a professional soldier himself, it may go against the grain to learn that men in the ranks are making plans to arrest their officers if they believe this necessary.

Great Minds

Adlai Stevenson has suggested that Yuri Gagarin and John Glenn Jr. work together on "some hazardous yet exhilarating space project." He says they "could scarcely emerge from this experience with all the wells still drawn down."

A couple of weeks ago, a simple Russian peasant was inspired by almost the same spirit here displayed by the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. He named his new-born triplet sons Yuri, Gherman and John, after the first three men to orbit the earth.

I have made a great discovery. What I love belongs to me. Not the chairs and tables in my house, but the masterpieces of the world. It is only a question of loving them enough. — Elizabeth Asquith Bibesco.

Intelligent Dolphins

UNESCO Features

The scene of ships sailing for days out of sight of land, the arrival of a school of dolphins, circling and gambolling in the vessel's wake, is a pleasant diversion. These friendly sea creatures are capable of remarkable feats; they can swim great distances at astounding speeds; they can leap high into the air and dive to greater depths than practically any other mammal, deftly avoiding obstacles which they cannot in fact see.

Sailors recount how dolphins will follow ships for miles, apparently without the slightest effort, regardless of the churning waters around the propellers.

These exploits have intrigued scientists and researchers who feel that a study of these animals may add a good deal to man's knowledge of navigation and underwater detection. A research unit set up last year by the United States Navy at its research laboratory at China Lake, in California, where air dolphins have been submitted to all sorts of tests to study their reactions.

Experiments have shown that the animals can detect very small objects and distinguish between fish of different sizes. Their "radar", in fact, is far more sensitive than the most highly-developed instruments produced in electronics laboratories. They have also the acute sense of the direction of noise but are able also to detect obstacles which do not emit any sound at all.

The tail of a dolphin, it seems, plays the same role as a plane's propeller, which explains why the animal's swimming mechanism is very different from that of a fish.

Scientists state that a dolphin has a brain comparable in size and complexity to that of a human being, and that it has much more intelligent creature than the larger species of apes.

Zim, Zis, Zil Changeover

Chicago Tribune

The job of removing Mr. Molotov's name from the Soviet landscape, which began several years ago after his first bounce, is being pushed on orders from Moscow. We wonder what this means for Soviet cities are so fortunate (or maybe unfortunate) in matters now small as to own a Zim automobile.

The big Zim plant in Gorky, whose name stood for Zavod Imeneyi Molotov — "factory named for Molotov") has long since been renamed and is turning out Chaikas instead of Zims. The chaika, or seagull, is an fairly safe ground politically.

When the Zis plant (named for Stalin) suddenly shifted to making Zils (named for the late anti-Stalinist engineer, Likhachev) the future wasn't so great a problem. Only the top party brasses owned Zises, and it was a simple matter to declare that they looked too much like Packards and Cadillacs and replace them with Zils. But the Zil plant has been under the party totem-pole and more numerous to boot, probably easily afford 4,000 rubles per car. Maybe he can turn out Chaikas and just paint over the Zil nameplate. Maybe he can get a windshield sticker saying "Chaika? I like Nik." Or maybe he'll just have to follow the old rule into the Moscow river and vow never to mix politics and gasoline again.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL V. DOUGLASS

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH

We do not know who wrote the Epistle of James but whoever he was, he was a practical soul. Apparently he had become annoyed over the fact that so many people were professing a great deal as regards their religious faith and then living the same kind of life they had always lived. In other words, James complained that some Christians were long in their profession and short in their practice. They claimed to believe many Christian truths and principles which they apparently took not the slightest interest in putting into practice.

"Be ye doers of the word," wrote James, "and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass, for he beholdeth himself and goeth his way and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was . . . But a doer of the work . . . shall be blessed in his deed."

No one probably ever lives up completely to the highest and best that he believes. We never are hundred per cent in our life's examinations. But we are urged by Christ himself to seek perfection. We may not attain it — in fact we are pretty sure we shall not — but only if we try for perfection will we achieve any satisfactory result whatsoever.

Let us not be afraid to profess much regarding religious faith, but let us be diligent to see that we put into operation the faith we profess.

To process upwards of 16,000 pounds of milk daily and to manufacture the equivalent of 15 large cheese per day, is the winter production record for Sidney Town Hall Cheese and Butter Company factory at Wallbridge, one of the two cheese factories in Hastings County to operate throughout the winter months. The decision of the Wallbridge factory officials to continue operating during the winter, has met with the popular approval of district patrons as is indicated by the fact that milk is received at the factory after having been transported upwards of forty miles.

Robbers entered the town warehouse of the Trenton Sock Factory and stole 100 feet of leather belting, several hammers and crow bars. The thieves were discovered today. Chief Bess reported to local authorities today that a police radio that the value of article stolen was set at about $100.

Ceremony perpetrated claim that because of highest prices received by Canadian cheese makers, it is almost impossible for them to secure enough cream to manufacture butter. The creamery boards stated they did not think the farmers realized what had been fair to the farmers who for years had been producing cream, which was later made into butter. A bonus of 30 cents per hundred weight had been provided for farmers sending milk to city dairies and 40 cents per hundred pounds for milk sent to condensaries.

Sixty years ago, March 17th, 1872, the first church was built by the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. It was dedicated by the Rev. Principal Snodgrass, D.D., of Queen's University, Kingston, and the sermon on that occasion was preached by him. At the afternoon service the sermon was preached by the Rev. Prof. McKerras of Queen's University. The musical portion of the services under the direction of the Choir was excellent. The result of the new pipe organ added greatly to the service. The church was burned 34 years ago, and with it went the beautiful sounding chimes which were heard every Sunday with the exception of Christmas Day. The building of the present church was commenced immediately. The Rev. J. A. Seymour, M.A., S.T.D. is the present minister.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DETACHMENT

Were it not for the fact that a higher power than ourselves rules our destiny, some of us would probably be the world's sad figure indeed.

It is the same higher power that we owe our ability to detach the best of ourselves from the worst. The part of us that directs days of distress we may find a source for our souls.

The real leader detaches himself from the worries and petty irritations that seem to beset him about him.

Take the least of us, if we look all of our troubles with us everywhere we went (and don't forget that troubles multiply from themselves) we would soon stumble from their load and become useless to ourselves and to everybody else.

The world's many an ex-active work. He takes his problems one by one. He brushes aside the pesky, barking "camp followers," so inaugurates the real big problem and then puts his entire mind upon a plan, crystalizing that plan into a decision and then going on to the next task.

If any of us would have a measure of happiness, this lesson must be learned — we must detach ourselves as we go along. We must see the one thing in our lives that does not belong and cut it out of the world. . . .

When we go out into our new day we have no idea as to what it is going to be, no idea as to the exact nature of our contacts. But from some of them we are sure to gain. Our ability to detach ourselves from the unimportant will be the thing that will have most to do with our successful day than anything else.

Detachment from disappointment — what an art!

Extremism Breeds Extremism

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When we fear or dislike a group, that group always seems more united than it really is.

The enemy always appears monolithic to our eyes — a solider, uncracked wall of hostility.

But such is generally not the case. We are coming now that the so-called "right-wing radicals" are disagreeing and quarrelling among themselves; it may not be long before Mr. Welch is unhorsed as leader of the Birchites.

The same is true on the left. There is considerable evidence that Khrushchev is fighting a political battle with the extremists in his own party. The communists, too, are split into dissident factions.

It is hard for outsiders to recognize this, for every group tries to present a united front and to conceal its inner feuds. For example, reading a number of Catholic journals as I do, it is easy to detect differences and conflicts within that Church; but those non-Catholic writers (especially if anti-Catholic) tends to believe that the Church is actually much broader and autocratic than it really is.

All revealing, indeed, spring from internal cracks hardly visible to the outsider's eye; what seems to be a stable government or Monday is a government in crisis by Friday.

Such facts have more than a psychological or historical importance. They explain many political tools. One reason (a strong one) why we tend to dislike the right-wing radicals in the United States is the obvious fact that they copy the left-wing radicals in the Soviet Union.

The more raucous, the more militant, the more aggressive, the more irresponsible we become in our approach to world problems, the more we tend to unify the Russians around the core of their own extremists.

If Khrushchev can represent a moderate viewpoint within the Russian government — and there are sound indications that he does — then we are only weakening his hand in our belligerent flag waving. If the right-wing radicals came to power here, there is little doubt that their opposite numbers would arise from the left-wing hierarchy.

Extremism always breeds extremism, just as hate breeds hate and war breeds more war. This is the basic reason the human race has not yet learned — inside the individual nations, who apparently believe that the Sermon on the Mount is for "sissies" — the assumption and edification of children, not to be taken seriously by adults.

The supreme irony, of course, is in some of the extremist groups is that they have the colossal gall to call themselves "Christian patriots," while repudiating everything their Savior stood for.

Should Look for Allergy In Cases of Adult Acne

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman 30 years old and from time to time I have suffered with cystal acne. Besides blackheads, oily skin, enlarged pores and pimples, I had cysts on my face, back and neck.

An excellent dermatologist tried everything known. In addition to the usual treatments (diet, sulfa's and medication, soaps, etc.) he experimented with antibiotic shots, hormones, the "tar-cream" treatment and others. Nothing worked.

One day a girl friend mentioned that her brother had severe eczema when he was a baby and the pediatrician prescribed a diet free of eggs, butter, butterfat and the like.

I didn't have eczema, but I did have a skin condition. I stopped eating eggs and switched to nonfat milk. Unfortunately it is almost impossible to stop eating all foods with eggs, milk or butterfat, but I do my best.

Once in a while in an unguarded moment I eat an egg or two. A few days later a cyst appears. Otherwise my skin remains clear and for the first time in years I can wear a low-backed dress. With a minimum of make-up, I know how thrilled I am with these results and do know others will be, too. Please print this along with my comments. — Mrs. S.B.

Gladly. It's an instructive letter — but I want readers to get the basic lesson from it. The lesson is not that eggs and/or butterfat often cause acne!

Acne is primarily a skin problem of adolescents, due to excessive oil secretion by the skin at that age. It usually subsides with time, aided by proper skin hygiene.

When acne persists past adolescence or if it is very severe, it may be a sign that something in the food you eat is causing the trouble. Chocolate and sea foods also can bring out acne. Foods rich in vitamin mixtu'r's are containing iodine may also be at fault. This is why I point out that the reason why I keep reminding readers that I do not favor a "daily iodine ration" for everyone people must even avoid iodized salt. And there are numerous others.

Yet it must not be assumed that all acne cases are allergy. A great many are not. And, in passing, I point out that the emotional tensions of adolescence, and they are often severe, do have a role to play with acne. How does this work physiologically? I don't know, but every doctor has observed that it happens.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard a person say he was alcoholic and not know it. Is this true? Would there be any signs to look for? — Mrs. E.

No, no signs to look for — other than the really important one! When a person depends on alcohol, and thinks he has to have it, either all the time or at various periods, he's an "alcoholic." There are, for example, people who drink every day but mess up their lives by occasional binges, or week-end drinking. They are alcoholics, too.

Note to S.B. and D.S.: No, I do not send collections of information on medical subjects to high school students for their reports. For the purpose of the assignments is to give you practice in finding such data for yourself in the libraries.

UN Received Poor Press

Swedish Information Service

During the fight in Katanga there was a period when press faced a very difficult task, the reports from the scene being extremely confusing and sometimes directly misleading. The Stockholm Dagens Nyheter observed in a recent editorial. One reason for the confusion, the paper mentioned, was the fact that the Katanga regime conducted an often very skilful and sophisticated war-time and was spreading false information and misinformation via the Katanga radio and willing intermediaries in West European capitals. Another reason was the inability of the United Nations to present effectively its version of the events. (In a recent issue of the New Statesman, a London weekly, a former member of the UN Committee on Public Information wrote: "Over the years that I worked over the world . . . There can be no doubt whatever that again and again the UN was presented in the worst possible light in many newspapers.")

By GREGORY CLARK

The man eating the peanuts was a typical, steel-grey-haired, crew-cut business executive. He wore a smart grey suit and expensive shoes. He caught me two or three times watching him from the aisle of the club car as he calmly munched his way through peanuts from his cupped hand.

He chewed them slowly and thoroughly, with obvious relish. When he tossed, crumpled up, the empty paper sack onto one of the seats in the club car, it bounced and ran across the aisle. I picked it up and put it on my ash tray. He smiled at me, thanks, got up and came and sat beside me.

"Sorry I can't share my peanuts," he said.

"You enjoyed them", I remarked.

"They're my lunch," he said. "Except at business luncheons or dinners, I don't eat. I haven't eaten anything at noon except a ten cent bag of peanuts for three times without fail.

"It satisfies you?" I enquired.

"Lunch," he said, "is the most over-rated institution in the modern social set-up. It wastes valuable time in my opinion. It's an overstuffed ne, an office worker, who has no need for the food of a laborer, and makes me sleepy. It invites dawdling, with tiresome companions. At, say, $2 per lunch, 200 lunches per annum run up to over $400, which pays for a lot of life insurance for me."

I noted, however, that he smelt of peanuts.

Prominent Catholic Layman to Give Talk

A special joint meeting of all Belleville units of the Catholic P.T.A. will be held on Wednesday evening in St. Michael's auditorium. A leading Catholic layman, Mr. Edward J. Brisbois, will speak on the role of the "Separate School" in the Ontario education system.

A native Canadian, Mr. Brisbois is a member of St. Anselm's Parish, Leaside, Ont. He has the rare distinction of being a Knight of Malta and is a member of the Serra Club. In addition to being chairman of the finance committee of Metro Separate School Board, Mr. Brisbois holds the same position with the planning board, Town of Leaside. He was also a director of Metropolitan Educational Television Association and vice-chairman of United Appeal for Metro Toronto in 1961.

As the meeting is open to the public, everyone is welcome.

Hydro Workers Taking Vote on Strike Action

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hydro Employees' Union is conducting a vote to determine whether its 9,000 members should strike against the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to enforce wage demands.

However, union president Kealey Cummings indicated Saturday that if the vote favors a strike the union may negotiate again with the commission.

The union executive sought the go-ahead for strike action following its rejection of a majority conciliation board report. The report offers a two-per-cent wage increase in 1961 and another two per cent in 1962.

The union is seeking an eight-per-cent wage increase over two years, plus some changes in its present agreement with the commission.

KNOW BY MARCH 27

Results of the strike vote are expected to be known by March 27 and once the vote is counted, "We'd want to re-enter negotiations with the commission," Mr. Cummings said.

He said if negotiations again bog down, the union would approach the provincial minister of labor by interview.

"I can't see any final action for two or three weeks," he said.

It was reported Saturday that if the threatened strike is successful, it could close down industries and make idle thousands of workers across the province.

However, C. B. C. Scott, the commission's assistant general manager in charge of personnel, said that in event of a strike Hydro is organized to keep power flowing.

He said the commission can call on the 3,000 members of its managerial and supervisory staff to supply power to all its customers which include 350 municipalities and rural systems.

COULD LEGISLATE

Mr. Scott said that to avert a strike the Ontario government could pass legislation imposing compulsory arbitration.

However, Labor Minister Warrender said the province has not yet moved to intervene in the dispute and would not do so until the two principals found it impossible to reach a settlement among themselves.

Mr. Scott said the majority conciliation board report last month offered an equivalent of five cents in 1961 and another five cents in 1962.

He said the present average salary of workers is $2.50 an hour plus fringe benefits of more than 80 cents an hour.

JUDGE FILMS

NEW YORK (AP) — Film Daily's poll of critics and writers has named The Guns of Navarone as the best motion picture of 1961. Following in order behind the adventure film to complete the "ten best" category were: The Hustler, Breakfast at Tiffany's, Fanny, West Side Story, Judgment at Nuremburg, The Parent Trap, Exodus, Splendor in the Grass, and The Mark.

Residents of Binghampton Accept Salt Substitution as A Bitter, Tragic Accident

By TOM BENTON

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Shirley McPeek is a calm, slow-spoken woman who loves children.

She lost two at birth but then came Gay, who will be four in August. With her husband, George, she eagerly awaited the arrival of another.

Barry John McPeek was born March 2. His mother fed him regularly with hospital formula for the first six days of his life. Early on the seventh day he died.

In a weekend that most of this city's 75,000 residents will not soon forget, six other babies in Binghamton General Hospital joined Barry in death.

Of the seven, six had been fed from batches of formula in which somebody salt had been dissolved instead of sugar.

In the week of grief and soul-searching that followed discovery of the salt-laden formula, Binghamton has found strength in the tragedy and suffered division and frustration in its aftermath.

Mrs. Robert Walker, a slender young woman who still hasn't figured out how to tell her three-year-old son, Mike, that baby sister Debra Ann isn't coming home, decided after a week that enough had been said.

"It's over with," she said. "We don't want to talk about it any more."

Debra Ann was the third baby to die on Friday, March 9. Three more died the next day and one last Monday.

MANY NOT SERIOUS

In all, said hospital officials, 30 babies received the salty formula. Most, apparently, did not consume enough to affect them seriously. Four who gave doctors the greatest concern made steady progress last week-although, said a specialist, danger remains of brain damage.

Community reaction underwent a subtle change during the week. Police and the district attorney's office, various other agencies and the city-owned hospital itself, pursued intensive investigations. There appeared to be public acceptance of the salt substitution as a bitter, tragic accident. But many persons expressed wonder about the conditions that made the accident possible.

The hospital, said one city official, has posed problems for decades. As a result of a reorganization, as operating profit was shown in the past fiscal year, the first in recent history.

That support has been halved — to about $200,000 a year — and confined to capital improvement.

U.S. Force In S. Viet Nam 7,000 in Year

SAIGON (AP) — The United States tentatively plans to have a force of 7,000 U.S. servicemen in South Viet Nam within a year, a qualified source said Sunday.

The strength of U.S. forces here now is estimated at close to 5,000. The rest are expected to arrive during the coming months.

Exact figures of U.S. military strength here are classified and official sources do not disclose the exact duties of the servicemen.

U.S. servicemen serve as advisers and support personnel for the Vietnamese army, navy and air force. Theoretically, they do not participate in active combat, although U.S. Army advisers frequently trade shots with the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas when fired on. U.S. Air Force pilots frequently are at the controls of planes attacking the Viet Cong as part of the combat training being given Vietnamese pilots.

Under the truce agreement ending the Indochina war in 1954, South Viet Nam was to have no more than 685 foreign military advisers in the country. However, the United States decided to exceed this number after it was convinced Communist North Viet Nam was violating the agreement by directing the infiltration of the south and building up its own armed forces.

FIND CRASH VICTIMS

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. John L. Peiper, 37, and three companions who were found dead Sunday night in the wreckage of the doctor's plane in the Tehachapi Mountains. They had been missing since Feb. 25. The companions were Dr. Duane D. Deakins, 39, Al Mitchell Moreno, 28, and James Mitchell, 36, all of Murphys.

Cubans Charge Base Being Used As Beachhead

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba has handed a note of protest to the United States state department accusing U.S. military personnel of "deliberate provocation" at Guantanamo naval station in southeastern Cuba.

The protest claimed "stupidly hostile acts" offered further proof the naval station is being used as a beachhead for "large scale armed attack the imperialist government of the United States is organizing against Cuba."

The protest, signed by Foreign Minister Roa, was delivered through the Czech embassy in Washington, which represents Cuban interests in the U.S. There was no information here when it was delivered.

Detailed in the note are 12 alleged acts of provocation, including several charges that fire was opened from the base toward Cuban guards outside.

Miss Shirley Brockhurst spent the weekend in London, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walmsley.

Foxboro WI Hears Talk On 'Education'

The March meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Anderson, Jr. in the absence of the president, Mrs. Eric Lewis, as 1st vice-pres. presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner.

Mrs. Lewis stated that the Institute had been invited to visit the County Home some afternoon during the week of March 26-30. It was decided to go many as could would go on the afternoon of March 28.

The correspondence included "Thank-you" cards from Marjorie Day; Mr. G. Hargrave, Mrs. D. McKeown, Mrs. J. Hill; Mrs. E. E. Follwell and Mrs. C. H. Ladbie.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. R. Hollinger was in charge of program and called on Mrs W. Rombough to introduce the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. E. Trupp. In introducing Mr. Trupp, Mrs. Rombough stated he had been born in Winnipeg, and attended high school in Union Academy and College in Quebec, and received his B.A. at Union Pacific College in California. Since he had worked his way through high school, college and the University of Manitoba he well knew the value of an education and was certainly well qualified to speak on the subject of "education". Mr. Trupp, a science teacher at Quinte Secondary School stated in part, "in some areas of the country the unemployment figures are 18 per cent while some jobs are vacant because the people who apply for them are not qualified. The age group 16-24 years has the highest unemployment figure, due to lack of higher education". Mr. Trupp also gave some high lights on the new system of education which is to be undertaken in the high schools. Mrs. W. L. Thompson thanked Mr. Trupp for his most interesting address.

"House Hunting in Ireland", read by Mrs. Chappelle, and the reading of the article on "Resolutions" from "Home and Country" by Mrs. Hollinger convener for "Resolutions" for the Foxboro branch, completed the program.

During the business it was decided to give a donation to the Kelly family and Mrs. E. Rombough.

After the meeting closed lunch was served during a social hour.

Foxboro WI Sponsors Euchre Party

A most successful euchre party, sponsored by the Foxboro Women's Institute, was held on Wednesday evening of last week. The party, convened by the Historical Research group, had 12 tables in play.

The prizes were won as follows: Ladies' high, Mrs. P. Kilpatrick; 2nd, Mrs. J. Gould; low, Mrs F. Edwards; men's high, Mrs C. Bamber, playing as a man; 2nd, Ken Higgins; low, Mrs. W. L. Johnston, playing as a man.

Another euchre party, convened by the home economics and health group, is planned for later in March.

11 Attend W. Hastings WI Board of Directors Meeting

STIRLING — On St. Patrick's Day, March 17th the Board of Directors meeting of West Hastings District Women's Institutes was held in the board room of Leslie D. Bloom Store, with an attendance of 11.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, president of the district presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner. Mrs. Harry Coulter, secretary treasurer read the minutes of the 1961 executive meeting held and gave full financial statement to date, of receipts and expenditures.

Representatives were in attendance from six branches. Mrs. Donald Sanderson, president of Bay of Quinte; Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. Harry Coulter, and Mrs. Leslie Pickle from Pine grove; Mrs. George Hessman and Mrs. Percy MacMullen from River Valley; Mrs. Mabel Williams from Stirling; Mrs. Lorne Ketcheson and Mrs. Gerald Herrington from Unionville; and Mrs. J. B. Phillips and Mrs. Harold Phillips, from Wallbridge.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The president commended those branches who had responded to F.W.I.O. appeals. There has been a good response to Mrs. L. G. Lymburner's scholarship fund and several have sent cash or pledges to pay $1 per member in 1962. Nearly all branches have sent in their tea cents per member for the Adelaide Hoodless fund. Several branches have also sent a $1 contribution to the National Federation fund for the upkeep of the Canadian office at Ottawa. These children have been adopted through the foster parent plan.

Mrs. MacMullen voiced thanks to the 1st vice-president who was hostess to Mrs. Agnes Ewgard's national president and provided her box lunch at the workshop; to her official secretary and to her public relations officer for work well done. The district also served a national farm radio broadcast and a district officers conference at River Valley and both were a decided success.

The Mary Ann Shea trophy, older branches in the district will each place a special anniversary day in honor of the founder, Adelaide Hoodless some time in 1962. Whereas each branch will be hostess to the monthly meeting, Sidney Scott who have no Institute Heritage.

At this meeting a voluntary silver collection should be taken and forwarded to F.W.I.O. to further extension work abroad. These silver services and thus assist women who have never had the advantages that Institute women have always enjoyed.

PLANS FOR DISTRICT ANNUAL

The district annual will be held June 1st in Sidney Beptist hoped, then will be the new system of education which is to be undertaken in the high schools. Mrs. W. L. Thompson thanked Mr. Trupp for his most interesting address.

"House Hunting in Ireland", read by Mrs. Chappelle, and the reading of the article on "Resolutions" from "Home and Country" by Mrs. Hollinger convener for "Resolutions" for the Foxboro branch, completed the program.

During the business it was decided to give a donation to the Kelly family and Mrs. E. Rombough.

After the meeting closed lunch was served during a social hour.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON - CENTRE ST. U.C.W.

Mrs. Douglas Brenton, president of the Canniton U.C.W., welcomed the ladies to the recent meeting held in the Sunday School rooms.

Mrs. Harry Brenton, card secretary, gave a report of the get-well and sympathy cards sent to members in the community, while Mrs. Violet Hessen, chairman of the visiting committee, stated that a number of calls had been made to friends in the hospital, nursing homes and also to private homes of sick members.

During the business portion of the program, plans were discussed re the catering of some social events which will be taking place in the near future.

Mrs. C. Bird led the worship service, the Scripture reading was from 1 Corinthians 15: 1-11 the theme of the service being "Easter". Mrs. G. Stone gave a reading from the U.C.W. citizenship book entitled, "Peace," which was illustrated by Bibles of persons with the Peace of God. Mrs. Bird then gave a talk, "Within the Structure," from "Hasten the Day". Christian life must continue through the structure of the church if members would be effective witness for Christ.

This was shown an elderly lady who had been converted when he learned that the older lady was afraid of death and was praying for her. Then a middle aged man made a decision after the suicide of her son, that the minister felt compelled, during one of his talks, to open his Bible and speak to her about God and to pray with her, compelled by an inner conviction even while knowing that this was the most unlikely time for support of the church. To his surprise, afterward, she said, "I've been a member all my son was here. Now it is time for him to learn what he was seeking for all his life."

BIBLE STUDY

Mrs. Gerald Brenton introduced the Bible Study. This was the book of Ruth, and one which promises to be of great help. It throws much light on the Bible as one hears of different explanations from different men. Mrs. Brenton research on the beginning and ending of the book. In the first study Mrs. Brenton dealt with the acts of the Apostles.

Mrs. A. Bird, the pianist, was unable to be present and her place was taken by Mrs. Joy Putman.

Mrs. Brenton closed the meeting with a few words of thanks to those who had taken part at a moment's notice as one of the guest participants had been unable to attend owing to either illness or recent bereavement. A time of fellowship followed.

Canadian Housewives Try to Make Voice Heard At Disarmament Parley

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP) — Two "desperately respectable" Canadian women tried with, some perplexity Sunday to make the voice of their sisterhood heard at the 18-nation conference on disarmament.

Mrs. Therese Casgrain and Mrs. Georges Roy, both of Montreal, visited External Af. fairs Minister Green to preach of their message of peace.

They flew here Saturday from Montreal as representatives of the 8,000-strong Voice of Women, an organization formed after the collapse of the Paris summit meeting in May, 1960.

The group has recently received national publicity in Canada. Its aims are to promote a world without arms and where the world that will assist the attainment of peace.

GREEN EYE SHADE

Mrs. Casgrain and Mrs. Roy called on Green as the Canadian minister was preparing his speech for today's session of the disarmament conference. They did not comment.

Mrs. Casgrain, widow of Pierre Casgrain who was a cabinet minister in the Mackenzie King government, is national vice - president of the organization. Mrs. Roy, a lawyer, is the wife and mother of four children, is publicity director.

A third member of the delegation, Mrs. Andre Laurend, was at Montreal. She came to Geneva after visiting her daughter who is studying at the Sorbonne in Paris. Mrs. Laurendeau has six children.

Mrs. Casgrain admitted she didn't know where to begin in the campaign to convince delegates attending the disarmament conference that somehow something must be done to establish mutual confidence among nations.

MAKES ROUNDS

Armed with a list of addresses, she began Sunday to make the rounds of delegates to see the premises, which so far has given little indication that any breakthrough on disarmament is imminent.

The decision to fly to Geneva was taken on the spur of the moment, Said Mrs. Casgrain:

"You may laugh at our naivete but we are suggesting an unusual situation and we have to take unusual means of getting our point across.

"I know people may think we are silly to think that we can achieve anything, but we must try. We are just people of goodwill, desperately respectable."

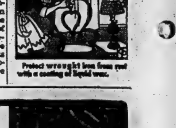
The Voice of Women organization chartered a train March 7 to go from Montreal to Ottawa, where their delegation was seen by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and other Canadian ministers.

CWL Council Meets July 10-11 In Kingston

Mrs. Mel Walters, president of the Ontario Provincial Council of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, has announced that the annual meeting and convention will be held at the LaSalle - Hotel, Kingston, on July 10th and 11th.

This change of date from mid-September has been made necessary because the Ecumenical Council will be held in Rome in October, and all the Archbishops and Bishops of Canada will attend the council. Therefore, the dates of the annual meetings of the various Councils of the Catholic Women's League have had to be advanced.

Women's Institute



MOIRA W.I.

The March meeting of the Moira Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Vanderwater with the president presiding.

The nominating committee included Mrs. G. Thompson, Miss H. Holbert and Mrs. K. M. Thompson.

An interesting program on "Grandmothers" was presented by Mrs. F. Emerson and Mrs. E. Jones, with readings by Miss H. Holbert, "Grandma"; by Mrs. Bowers, "Christian Living in Grandma's Day," and by Mrs. G. Foster, "The Busies Herself."

Mrs. A. Mundy gave the topic and asked each member to bring and display and tell of an item used in grandma's day.

Dietetics—for Girls Who Enjoy Cooking

Miss Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, has had special training in psychology and vocational guidance. In preparing this series, "Careers for Girls," Miss Clark has interviewed career women in the fields she is covering, as well as counsellors.

Doris Clark's human relations column, "Successful Living" runs regularly in The Ontario Intelligencer.

by Doris C. Clark, M.S.W.

(Ninth in a Series for Teen-Agers on Careers for Girls).

When Sally was three she dearly loved to stand up on a box in the kitchen and roll out with her own pint-sized rolling pin the piece of dough her mother always figured to her when the baking was in progress. It was always baked too — on the kitchen or a slice of apple inside — and Sally proudly ate it.

At seven she borrowed a special cookie recipe which she could make up into a batch of crisp, delicious chocolate cookies all by herself.

Sally loved to cook. She was in seventh heaven when she was promoted into the school grade where she was scheduled to attend classes in household science twice a week. She ran all the way home the day she made her first loaf of bread because she just couldn't wait to show it to Mother. And she never wavered from her heart's desire to make a career of cooking.

Today Sally is chief dietitian in one of Canada's leading hospitals. She plans many nourishing and tasty dishes, not just for a family of four, but for four hundred — and even four hundred sick people.

Providing the food for a hospital means visiting packing plants and vegetable markets to get the very best in fresh and canned foods.

She is boss in the kitchen — just as Mother is at home — telling all workers and supervising what they do. She is fully responsible for the flavor and goodness in everything her very large family eats, and serves all dishes before the big food carts roll out of the kitchen to the wards.

Now that such sickness can be controlled by what is eaten, the hospital dietitian is concerned with special diets. To provide these she is constant contact with doctors and nurses. She also teaches student nurses important facts about food.

SPHERES OF SERVICE

When you think that we may have robust health or a sickly body, depending largely on the food we eat — on such things as whether we get our quota of milk each day, whether we use whole wheat bread, our proper share of vegetables, and other foods for healthy growth — then you begin to realize the important part dietitians everywhere play in this present-day living.

Sally thinks of a nutritionist as a more advanced dietitian, with a limited budget. Nutritionists may teach public health workers about balanced diets and general principles of good nutrition.

In school cafeterias and in many public restaurants dietitians supervise the purchasing, preparation and serving of food.

In food research laboratories they work at discovering more about food. In test kitchens dietitians develop interesting combinations of serving foods. They constantly seek new processes which will better preserve the vitamins, minerals and other content of fresh vegetables, meats and so forth.

They write cookery features, conduct cooking schools, and teach home economics in our schools and universities.

ATTITUDES? INTERESTS?

A dietitian is trained, at university, in a three-year or four-year course which emphasizes chemistry and physics. Like a doctor, she is required to intern for a year in hospital or qualified restaurant. Some of this may be done between university years, and a salary now goes with it. The degree she receives may be Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science or Bachelor of Household Science.

After graduation, her beginning salary may range from $4,000. to $5,000, with a 1962 minimum recommended by the Ontario Dietetic Association of $4,500. With increasing responsibility she may earn up to $7,000 or $8,000 in hospital or industrial positions.

Usual practice is a 40-hour, five-day work week, but there may be some weekend duty when workers have the leading. Yearly vacations are usually four weeks or a month.

Hotels, restaurants, organizations and industries now have pension plans in which she participates.

When she marries and raises a family, Sally knows that experience she has gained will serve her well. And if she's fed up to the teeth on that she would like to work outside her home she'll have no problem will stand her in good stead.

(The new secondary school program in Ontario broadens your choice of subjects. To learn more about dietetics and what studies will lead you into it, ask the teacher or guidance counsellor in your own high school.)

The next article, "Would You Like to be a Waitress?" will appear next Thursday.

UCW Hold Successful Tea

ROSSMORE — A most successful Shamrock Tea and homebaking sale was held in Rossmore United Church Sunday School rooms on March 14, sponsored by the U.C.W.

The color scheme was in keeping with the occasion, with green and white predominating and the Irish shamrock was much in evidence on the pretty appointed tables.

The president of the organization, Mrs. Ron Sharp, was in charge for this successful event. Others responsible for this worthwhile event were Mrs. Jack Alves, Mrs. Jerry Blades, Mrs. Jack Thompson and Mrs. Rexford Alves.

From A Bermudaphile

by Mary Moore

To be a member of the Sea Horse Club in Bermuda you must take a dip and get wet at your nose at the sea before 8.00 a.m. on a Friday. The reward is the shivering dipper's coffee and doughnuts on the beach patio. Since the water temperature was 68 degrees it was duck soup to folks who are accustomed to taking their ducklings in the Great Lakes. Needless to say, hardy Canadians outnumbered the Americans. I have a plastic sea horse and a citation to prove that I belong to the Sea Horse Club.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Deluxe Hamburgers with all the Trimmings; French Fries; Devilled Cabbage with Green Onions; Apple Pan Dowdy; Coffee.

That kind of fun in the sun is routine at Elbow Beach. Surrounded by a turquoise sea edged with white rolling surf and all day long to loll by the pool or swim in it or play ping pong or bridge or stroll in the flower gardens — that was our routine for one glorious week in Bermuda.

The hospitality of the hotel extended to a tour of their huge modern kitchens and a coveted interview with their Head Chef Dave Rego.

I was aching to ask him for recipes for some of the dishes we were served but I "ded not have worried. He offered them to me. When I have cut them down to home-size I will pass them on to you.

To try, I have such dishes as Cassava Pie, a traditional Christmas dish vaguely resembling Yorkshire Pudding; Braised Chicken Estofada a la Chef Rego; Profiteroles with chocolate sauce (delicious cream puffs); avocado pears stuffed with crabmeat and pineapple and walnuts.

One dessert dish you can try without having me experiment with it is

GRAPEFRUIT WITH FRUIT TOPPING:

Cut large grapefruit washed grapefruits in halves and loosen the sections as you would if you were serving them for breakfast — being sure to separate the pulp from each skin partition. With scissors clip out the centre pith to give you a depression 1½" deep and 1" wide. Now make a mixture of small fruits: fresh ¼" cubes of pineapple, ½" melon balls, halved Mandarin orange sections and some chopped red and green glace or maraschino cherries. Sweeten this mixture of fruit with maraschino juice (or do as they did, add a liqueur such as creme de menthe or cointreau). Spoon this into and over top of the grapefruit and chill. Serve for dessert with crackers and assorted cheese. Excellent for dieters unrestricted.

Our branch of the C.W.P.C. organized this holiday junket of 35 press clubbers and associates. We were in a holiday mood for DC8 Jet service to Bermuda has just been started by TCA. We were among the first to enjoy this fast flight of 2 hours and 15 minutes from snow-banked Malton non-stop to Kindley Field in Bermuda and summertime.

A wonderful spring lift for this stove - and - typewriter-bound gal.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Olive F. — When he gambles he does it scientifically.

Mrs. A.F. — How scientific must you be to lose money?

Olive F. — That's a wonder. His fellow who has asked me to marry him. He's a college grad, has his degree in engineering. He's the first man I've met who makes me feel I could really love him all my life.

The only drawback is his means of livelihood. Instead of working at a regular job, Gabe goes in for what he calls "scientific risk taking." My parents think this is terrible and want me to break off with him immediately.

But I don't agree, I like him very much. He always has sufficient funds, it seems, for pleasant dates. He doesn't splurge or show off. He's never been in any trouble. I think he knows what he's doing and I'm ready to trust him.

Mrs. A.F. — What sort of a profession is that — "scientific risk taking"? I can't answer for Olive to have to give whenever someone asks her what her occupation is.

Gambling is not a recognized, accepted occupation. Yet this Gabriel has the nerve to call himself a professional man. Can you see him on a form to college to learn how to lose money? Olive is only 23 and a bright, attractive girl. Up to now I thought she was intelligent. But this! She must dream of entrusting her future to a man who depends upon the horses or the aces in a deck of cards? What sort of a life would that be?

Olive should marry a man with a job. Gabriel has been lucky so far, but his kind wind up broke, or in jail.

The Council: One of Gabriel's talents is easily discernible, even in his absence. That's his salesmanship. He has sold Olive on a ridiculous claim, that is, the idea that you can get something for nothing and get away with it. It's the old Palace of the Easy Buck. It may look easy, but it's got to fail right! Paid for in feelings of uneasiness, insecurity and disgust paid for in self-abasement, as most panhandlers can testify.

Mrs. F. is right. Gambling is not a profession. It's a disease, and to end result is misery and crime. We're not told what field of engineering Gabriel has a degree in, but if it's the mechanical field, he might even be inducted, out of desperation, to apply his skill to such anti-social projects as "rigging" slot machines or jamming roulettes! Surely a good education can be put to better use. But it must be latched to a healthy moral code.

The cornerstone of a manly character is the willingness to work. And one of the musts for good husband material is responsibility, that is, the willingness to work steadily and even painfully for the care and protection of his wife and children. In this context, it would be Gabriel.

What sort of budget would be possible with a provider who brings home $1,500 one week, nothing the next, and then loses $900 the week after? As Mrs. F. suggests, there's no course in college (or even one in ancient voodoo!) that can teach a man to control horses, cards or ball games. Some have tried the scientific approach, via laws of mathematics and logic. Others have tried the direct strong-arm and cash angle, via the inevitably corrupted "fix." Even the temporary "winners" are caught in a dodge-game between the police and the Treasury Department.

Olive's best course is to let Gabriel find out for himself, not as her husband, that nobody beats the gambling game in the end.

Western Influence

BY VERA WINSTON

There's quite a Western look to the newest slack costumes designed for beach wear. Here Ii is very much in evidence in this dashing outfit.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

A READER WRITES

Question: A very close friend is planning an early Summer wedding, and has invited me to be maid of honor. I'd like to know what my obligations will be. My sister most likely will be a bridesmaid. What responsibilities will this involve? — P. L., Trenton, Ont.

When you accept an invitation to serve as maid of honor at a wedding, you also accept the obligation to pay for your wedding costume. Actually this is the only real financial obligation involved. The honor attendant always foots the bill for her own gown and accessories, even though the bride selects what she will wear. Flowers carried at the wedding are paid for by either the bride or groom, depending on which one decides to assume this responsibility.

The honor attendant is expected to attend all the prenuptial parties, so it may be necessary to buy a few extra dresses, unless your current wardrobe is extensive enough. The maid of honor often gives a bridal shower, but this also is optional. If there's a round of showers, you'll be invited and will have to bring at least a token gift to each. You'll also have to send a wedding gift, so this also should be considered when you're planning your budget.

As far as actual duties are concerned, as maid of honor you'll have to have fittings for your gown and attend the wedding rehearsal. You'll also be expected to help the bride and her mother with invitation lists, and with addressing envelopes for invitations and announcements. On the day of the wedding, you'll have to make sure that the bride's going-away clothes are stashed away wherever she'll dress after the reception. You might also have to make sure the wedding gown is taken to the bride's home after the wedding, unless the bride's mother handles this detail, herself.

The obligations of the bridesmaids actually aren't vastly different. Bridesmaids also pay for their own outfits, exclusive of flowers, and automatically are invited to any and all prewedding parties and showers. A bridesmaid usually gives the happy couple a wedding gift and faces the same problem of wardrobe if invitations are thick as confetti before the wedding.

Bridesmaids also help with some of the technical details, like addressing invitations if asked. Generally, though, they just have to be to fittings, rehearsal and to the church on time on the day of the wedding. Like the maid of honor, they stand in the receiving line and dance with the groom and other males in the wedding party at the reception. They generally are a whale of a good time too!

Money doesn't come any easier than this. Here's all you do. Remember the card you received in the mail from your Natural Gas Dealer? ☞ Just fill it in with the names of five people who you believe may be interested in converting to natural gas. For each name that installs a natural gas furnace, the dealer pays you $25. For each that buys or rents a conversion burner, you get $15.

You'll do your friends a favour by turning them in for this reward! They get the comfort of clean, quiet, economical natural gas. You get $25 for each of them who becomes a natural gas customer.

But hurry! This offer only lasts for a limited period. The sooner you send in your names, the sooner you'll be able to collect your reward.

If you did not receive a card, call your local dealer or write to Lakeland Natural Gas Ltd., Box 1087 Kingston, Ont. for complete details.

CAMPBELLFORD

Reports Read At PS Board Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The March meeting of the public school board was held in the Bridge Street Senior School with both principals present, and Inspector of Schools, Mr. C. W. Young.

Mr. Young gave a full report of both schools, the teachers' work, the principals' administration, supplies of the school, the music teacher's report, care of the school by the janitors and the upkeep of the school by the board. The board members discussed things with the inspector for some time with the latter answering questions on all departments of the work and making some suggestions for minor changes. William Murray who presided, thanked Mr. Young for the excellent reports and for taking time to attend the meeting.

William Macbeanery, reporting for management, asked that the trustees' council be contacted again for further clarification on certain salaries.

C. Johnson, chairman of property, gave a full account of matters concerning the schools in his department. R. B. Bennet reporting for finance said the budget was ready to be presented to both Campbellford and Seymour municipal councils. The entire budget was for $107,340.95. Of this amount the estimated grants would provide $58,923.95, leaving $44,552 for Campbellford municipal council and $3,874 for Seymour council. These two amounts are exactly the same as asked from these councils last year in spite of the fact that all teachers and employees had received raises amounting to over $8,000. The special grant of $15 per average daily attendance instead of $5 as in 1961 has decreased the amount that would have been needed from taxpayers.

W. Rothwell, principal of Bridge Street School, reported that 12 contestants would take part in the Campbellford senior oratorical contest.

A. Whitfield gave the dates of the junior oratorical contest being held in Kent School. Prizes were donated by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

Kindergarten registration for the fall term is to be held in both schools on March 21st and 22nd. Children must be five years of age by December 31, 1962.

Both principals reported a good year in hockey among the schools with much help being given by a group of men who instructed and refereed. The Rotarians again sponsored this project.

Accounts were studied and passed.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

He Never Said He Loved Her

DEAR DORIS:—I have been married for two and one-half years. My husband is a wonderful man, except for two small faults.

My husband has never once told me that he loved me. On two different occasions I have mentioned this to him and the only response I got was that he thought "actions spoke louder than words".

The only reason I can think of is that previous to the time we started going together, my husband went with another girl for about six or eight years.

Maybe this question appears silly, but what can I do or say, that will make my husband tell me he loves me? It bothers me and worries me about once a week.

The other fault — My husband will not apologize to me. He says he doesn't believe in apologies. Any time we have ever had any quarrels or words, I have always had to be the one to go to him and make up. Now, I think it is only fair and right that I should apologize when the fault is mine, but I feel he should be the one to apologize when the fault is his. Any suggestions will help.—JUST WONDERING WHY.

DORIS CLARK

Well, do his actions speak loudly enough? Or are you wondering whether he still longs for his other girl?

"Some husbands give nothing to a marriage but bread, which sustains life but not joy." So says Dr. Marion Hilliard. Some husbands have no idea what love and admiration, freely given, can mean to a woman.

And he doesn't believe in apologizing? This really means he cannot admit any imperfection in himself. Which points to an inferiority complex, believe it or not!

Both faults also involve a failure to communicate. You can't continue to do all the making up or you'll end up a doormat.

DEAR DORIS:—I am very lonely; my husband is taking a woman out (which is not unusual. He has had a few over the years). I would like to find a friend to go to a show, bingo or concert one night a week, preferably a widow around my age of 42. Can you help me?—RESIGNED.

DEAR RESIGNED:—Perhaps if you spruce up and he saw you having a little fun, he might take another look at his lawful wife! Anyway, you need company. Any takers?

English High School Grads Taught French But Without Learning How to Speak It

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's one thing to be able to conjugate a French verb. It's often quite another, be able to order breakfast' or ask for directions on a trip through the Quebec countryside.

Many graduates of English-speaking Canadian high schools have "learned French" without learning how to speak it.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that attention is being centred on this problem as never before.

The ideal solution, in the opinion of many, would be to expose children to French at an early age when they can learn more simply by listening and imitating them by any method or effort. This frequently happens on the reverse side of the problem—in Quebec, where French children exposed to English acquire this g e d language more easily than they would if confined to school instruction.

Dr. Wilder Penfield, the world-renowned neuro - surgeon and long-time leader in Montreal's education in C a n a d a, says children can easily learn two or more languages if they start between the ages of four and 10 — "preferably nearer four."

ORAL METHOD

The method D. Penfield recommends is the direct or oral method—learning to speak without translating, or reference to any other language. It is the way a child acquires his mother-tongue.

But because it is not a bilingual community? Education departments in most English-speaking provinces say they have not even have an adequate supply of French-speaking teachers.

Dr. Archie MacKinnon, research director for the Toronto board of education, says no one has found the answer to the basic problem of teaching a language effectively when that language is often spoken in the pupil's environment.

The traditional method of teaching French in Canadian high schools has been that of formal study—learning vocabulary, grammar and syntax from textbooks and then applying that material by translating from and into French.

French is usually required for full matriculation and, if this is the main purpose in teaching it, Dr. MacKinnon says, "the teaching has been expert."

"But if we say one of the objectives is to make persons conversant or competent in speaking the language, we have failed."

EARLY IN QUEBEC

Quebec's English schools start French in Grade III, two years before the French schools start English, and in both cases the direct method is used exclusively in the first three years. Nevertheless, bilingualism is widespread only among those whose mother-tongue is French.

This situation is influenced by the fact that English is dominant in business and in all forms of communication in the rest of Canada and the United States. It is a paradox that, in the heartland of French culture in North America, many doors in business and politics are closed to him who speaks only French, few to him who speaks only English.

An Ontario educationist and legislature member, Maurice Belanger of Windsor, says teachers and pupils must learn to impress upon pupils the value of bilingualism.

Mr. Belanger, a teacher at a bilingual primary school for 38 years, makes equal use of French and English as language of instruction but finds that his pupils invariably speak English among themselves, although they come from French-speaking families.

He says more schools should start French in the lower grades, because "children are more interested and quicker to learn in their junior years".

The instruction s h o u l d be given through the medium of oral drills and conversation, it was a mistake to treat French as a formal study of grammar and literature before a pupil could speak the language.

MACHINES HELP

In some of the larger cities schools are putting the direct method into practice in language laboratories, where the student can hear French spoken on records or on tape and try to imitate it.

In Halifax, for example, the school board plans to have four laboratories in operation next fall. The labs, each with space for 30 students at a time, will be set up in two senior and two junior high schools.

There is a trend in many parts of the country toward starting French earlier and devoting the first year or two to oral instruction.

In New Brunswick, where French is the mother-tongue of 40 per cent of the school population but English is the official language, French is general started earlier than in any other English - speaking province.

English - speaking schools in New Brunswick are the present program "places emphasis on the conversational approach but, unfortunately, many teachers who are not too fluent rely on the textbook study of the language. Consequently, the program has not been as effective as it might be."

ORAL BASIS

Nova Scotia makes the second year the start, in Grade VII. For several years, however, Halifax has started French in Grade V. Learning French in Grade V on a strictly oral basis the first year it was started in Grade V in the same class.

Ontario's regular program calls for French to be started in Grade VIII but since 1955, local school boards have been able to get permission to start in the primary school. Some 85 boards have done so—"a very good fraction" of the total, says G. A. Pearson, superintendent of elementary schools.

Ontario experimental programs concentrate on oral instruction, leaving textbook work until secondary school.

Ottawa's public schools have been starting French in Grade IV since 1936, using the direct method exclusively.

Prince Edward Island begins French in Grade VIII except in a few schools where it may start in Grade VII. The starting level was lowered from Grade IX last fall as an experiment.

CHANGE IN B.C.

British Columbia will start French in Grade VIII next fall, instead of Grade X as at present. The change was recommended by a recent provincial royal commission on education.

The provincial education department says French will now be mainly oral in Grade VIII with more emphasis on more formal in the higher grades.

An experiment in starting oral French in Grade V has been under way for four years in 23 classes throughout B.C., particularly in the Victoria area, and will be evaluated at the end of the present school year.

At the other end of the country, in Newfoundland French officially starts in Grade V but in practice it is the shortage of qualified teachers that most schools do not start it until Grade IX. Several schools, mostly in the St. John's area, have introduced French on Grade VI.

In Manitoba a local school board may start oral French in Grade IV and textbook courses in Grade VI, but it is not compulsory until Grade IX. The provincial education d e p a r t ment does not plan to introduce an earlier start but has required an emphasis on oral instruction where French is given in the lower grades and is increasing the use of language laboratories in the upper grades.

SPECIAL COURSES

Experimentally, a three-year t e r m i n a l course will be introduced in several parts of Manitoba next fall for high school students not intending to go to university. French, presented a l o n g conversational lines, is one of the compulsory subjects available.

French normally starts in Grade IX in Saskatchewan also, but a school may introduce it in Grade V if a bilingual teacher is available.

½ AWAKE Nights
½ ASLEEP Days...
Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn, or lie bed, then are dull and listless during the day. When kidneys slow down and excess acids stay in the system, backache, rest, fitful sleep and headaches often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you feel dull in the day—try Doan's Pills. They help you feel better—rest better—work better. You can depend on Doan's Kidney Pills.

TEACHES IN BOTH LANGUAGES — Maurice Belanger, Windsor, Ont., school teacher and member of the Ontario legislature, has been teaching primary school classes in both French and English for 38 years. He believes public schools should start teaching French in lower grades. Mr. Belanger instructs a mathematics class in French. (CP Photo).

rector for the Saskatchewan education department, says local boards are encouraged to start French earlier than Grade IX "but it is a matter of obtaining qualified teachers."

Pupils were seldom taught to speak French "but this is one of our aims." As better teachers became available, more use would be made of the oral approach.

French makes it latest start in Alberta, in Grade X, but it has been introduced in Grade IV in some Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge schools as an experiment. The method remains largely formal and is not intended to equip the pupil for efficient conversation.

Dr. T. C. Byrne, chief superintendent of schools for Alberta, says the education department feels that "all that is required, indeed all that is possible, is that the student have a basis upon which to build if he is ever thrown into a French-speaking community."

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harry and children motored to Cobourg, on Sunday, to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Beamish.

Mrs. Glenn Suckle and daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Gare, were callers at Green Acres Rest Home, on Sunday afternoon, to see the former's mother, Mrs. Bruce Wrightman.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers and Edward were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Terry, of Frankford, on Sunday evening.

A quilting was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Stickle on Wednesday with a pot-luck dinner at noon. The U.C.W. ladies were not able to quilt on Wednesday so they went again on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle and Thelma were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharpe, of Consecon.

Well-Known Farm Home Sold Recently

TWEED — The Peter Casey farm on the Lodgeroon Road was sold to Bruce Mc-Donald of Scarborough, who is on the staff of the Customs and Excise Department as a Federal Government, as inspector-mountain in this part of Ontario He will take possession of the home on May 1, but his wife and four children will not be moving until the school term is completed. Mr. McDonald expects to make extensive alterations and renovations to the modern home his family arrives.

Mr. Casey was marked his 82rd birthday in January, is now a resident of Hastings County Home. He took over the farm as a young man and his parents was the property recently sold by Arnold Montgomery to Mel Ostman.

About 1914 the farm house was destroyed by fire, and Mr. Casey's brother-in-law, the late Paul Rashotte, built the present brick residence.

The Casey name has thus been synonymous with the progress of the Lodgeroon community, and was among the oldest families in that area. The farm was originally owned by William Finley, where all of ten children of the Finley-Elliott families were born.

On Tuberous Rooted Begonias

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Last week I found some tuberous rooted begonias for sale. Among them were some hanging basket or pendula begonias. I bought three, a red, a pink and a yellow. I hope the pink is a salmon shade. Some years ago a friend gave me a cutting of a lovely salmon begonia that I lost because of pendulous blooms, the shape of a fuchsia. The cutting did not root and the friend lost her plant. Since then I have been promising myself some of these plants.

They make good plants for porch, high planters, window boxes and for bowl plants. They are treated the same as the bedding tuberous begonias. Sheep manure meal is a good starting medium. Fill w i d e bulb pans or flats with moss, damp it down and make depressions for the tubers. Have them facing apart or grow them in fifty pots. Fill the pots with moss, leaving a depression in the centre and plant in it. The tubers hollow side up. You can put the pots in flat but space in between with moss to conserve moisture. Put in a warm place, 60 to 80 degrees. When the little, pink buds begin to show bring them to light. Keep turning the flats, or pots so that the plants will develop evenly.

The concave top should not be covered and must not be allowed to become wet for any length of time. If water does collect in the hollow blot it up with a cloth or sponge.

Can be Transplanted

When four leaves have developed they can be transplanted into six inch pots. Do not fill the pots quite full, but allow for them to develop top growth slowly while making good roots. They like rich soil and may be planted outdoors after all danger of frost is past. They will come into bloom earlier if the tubers are started as described above, but not before the last frost, usually late May.

By Middle of the plants are ready for hardening off. Place them outdoors in a sheltered position. If there is light shade available they may not need covering with newspaper or a sheet of plastic during the day. At night cover, from cold night air until the weather warms up to near 50 degrees night temperature. During the day guard them from strong sun and wind. On warm nights and cloudy days, leave off the cover. A few weeks of this gradual hardening will pay off in little or no set back in the plants.

These plants will tolerate very light shade and like afternoon sun but not the heat of the noon hours. A.M. to three P.M. They like high shade and plenty of light but do well with little or no sun.

They do well in the shade of a tree, evergreen hedge, or fence, in the shade of a portico or on the north side of a wall. They were light soil and like light, loose slightly acid soil with plenty of humus and humid air. They must have good drainage. It is best to water them in the morning so the leaves will have time to dry off during the day.

ls the fall when frost has settled, the foliage dry and cut carefully and allow to dry out well. Take off any soil and pull off the dead roots. Store the tubers with powdered charcoal and place in dry place, not below 40 degrees.

You can buy mixed tubers at five or six for a dollar. Marked colors may be anywhere from three for a dollar to eight or ten dollars each. The cheaper ones purchased from a reliable dealer will give you really fine plants. The newest of the multiflora have been crossed with camelia types and are spectacular with dozens of smaller size double blooms opened at the same time and these give a long season of bloom. The flowers are brons well above the foliage and these will stand full sun. These come in white, salmon, pink and yellow.

The large type may resemble a rose, a camelia, a carnation and even a daffodil. The daffodil type is tubulus and trumpet-like centre with frilled edge and look like the daffodils perianth. Frilled sunset is a sunny yellow with orange in the centre.

Order your tuberous begonias now if you want to start them indoors.

Woman for Only Three Years Becomes Bride

PARIS (Reuters) — Curvaceous, blonde French nightclub performer Coccinelle, a woman for only three years, became a bride Friday amid a band of tomatoes from outraged Parisians.

The 26-year-old actress, the former Jacqueline Dufresnoy, married impresario Jean-Claude Bonnet in civil and religious ceremonies at Montmartre town hall and St. Johns Church in the same district.

Coccinelle was a well-known female impersonator in Paris nightclubs until three years ago when he became a she in an operation. She now has been recognized as a woman in official records.

Large crowds at the city hall and the church reacted with mixed feelings to the marriage.

Some women from the crowd rushed to kiss the bridegroom. But other members of the crowd cried "shame" and pelted the couple's car with rotten tomatoes.

Boos, cheers and shouts of "long live the bride" greeted Coccinelle and her husband after the church ceremony.

Coccinelle, gay and demure in a white satin gown, told reporters after the wedding: "It is the greatest day of my life."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Ontario's baseball men, meeting in annual conclave at Oshawa Saturday were unanimous in sending Belleville's Jack Carson back to the presidential chair for a second term. Ontario Baseball Association delegates offered no opposition to the 1961 prexy all nominated candidates withdrawing to give the popular Belleville "boss" an acclamation.

And for the first time since away back when, Belleville baseball interests were represented at the convention. Attending from this city were Russ Soules, Dick Ellis and Doug Locke. It was, Jack Carson said, the best convention baseball men had held in over a decade.

They did, however shake up the rank and file executive. First vice Jim Waldie went back into office as 'Mid second vice' Will Jordan. Third vice Hugh Christie Jim Black of Oakville withdrew because of official business pressure and Dave Bell of St. Catharines took over.

Arnie Wade of Bowmanville was the only executive member re-elected. New members are Ron Kett, Hagersville; Al Brisbois of Oshawa and Frank Armstrong of St. Catharines.

The convention with an eye to the baseball well-being of the youngsters instituted a new series called the "Tyke Division". This is the equivalent of the squirt category in hockey and has been created for youngsters between eight and ten years of age.

This will benefit the larger centres of the association although it is expected many smaller communities will encourage baseball for its younger try and an organized series should help immensely.

From here in all baseball players whether top senior or the "tyke" division will wear helmets when batting. This was made compulsory at the Saturday convention. There was some opposition from the Intercounty League but the majority felt it was a wise move and made it official through the ballot.

From far Northern Ontario came requests for admission to OBA playdowns. Marathon north and northwest of Lake Superior sent word they would come south at their own expenses to participate in bantam series this year, more senior next season. The North Bay Baseball Association a flourishing body also applied for participation in playdowns. Both were granted.

Hockey wise the city's squirt all-stars put themselves and Belleville on the map Saturday in the "Squirt Tournament" held in Napanee. The fine young team coached by Len Coughlin came up with an outstanding exhibition.

They had their revenge for the defeat handed them on Miner Hockey Night here by the Trenton youngsters defeating them Saturday to win the "B" championship of the tourney and a handsome trophy.

They were nosed out in the championship proper finals by the Peterborough team. But they did a fine job in winning one title and were a credit to themselves, their coach and their city.

Saw the showcase of the wonderful world of sport as embodied in the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show at Toronto on Saturday and it was well worth the time and effort.

The aristocrats of motordom, bostdom, dogdom and many other "doms" were on display, and it was nice to know that a fine life could be had if one had a million dollars or so.

If I hadn't forgotten my wallet I could have brought home a $7,000 Jaguar, car that is, a $6,000 Mercedes Benz; a nifty $15,000 cabin cruiser, a completely equipped summer cottage, a car that "swims and runs", my choice of dogs from a Chihuahua etching to a mighty St. Bernard and a dozen other expensive but mighty fetching items.

I walked five or ten miles, stepped on 1,000 toes, shook off a hundred fet that belong to other people — but thoroughly enjoyed it. The water and stage show was terrific with its trained seals, and dogs, acrobats, comedy doluxe, log-rolling, canoe tilting and exceptionally fine music. Must have been nearly 100,000 people there throughout the day and evening.

Blues, Wings Go To Wire

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Only the fourth playoff berth remains to be settled as the National Hockey League heads into the final week of its 1961-62 schedule.

Battling for it are New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings.

Weekend play left the Rangers with a one-point lead over the Red Wings, but they have only two more games to play to Detroit's three.

New York gained only one point in two weekend outings: Detroit won its only start.

The Rangers bowed 3-0 to Montreal Canadiens at Montreal Saturday night, permitting the Habs to clinch a fifth straight league title. Then on home ice Sunday night, they blew a 2-0 lead and had to settle for a 2-2 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

SNAP SCORING STREAK

The Red Wings, meanwhile, clubbed Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 at Detroit Sunday night and in the process snapped Bobby Hull's consecutive game scoring streak at nine.

Hull bagged his 47th goal of the season Saturday night as the Hawks won 3-1 at Toronto. He needs three or more goals in Chicago's remaining three games to tie or break the league's 50-goal scoring record.

In the weekend's only other game, the Boston Bruins rose from the depths of the league cellar to clobber the injury plagued Canadiens 6-2 at Boston Sunday night.

Canadiens have 92 points, eight more than second-place Toronto and each club only has three more games to play. Chicago has third place wrapped up.

The New York-Detroit battle will go right down to the wire. Each club has one mid-week game, then a meeting the Black Hawks at Chicago Tuesday night and New York playing the lowly Bruins at Boston Thursday night.

Detroit plays at Toronto Saturday night, then each club winds up the schedule Sunday night on home ice — Detroit against Montreal and New York against Chicago.

SCORE IN THREE

Rangers and Canadiens were locked in a scoreless duel until the third period Saturday night when Bill Hicke put Canadiens ahead 1-0. Claude Provost added an insurance Montreal goal with less than two minutes to go.

Jacques Plante turned away 24 shots in the Montreal nets for his fourth shutout of the season.

Against the Leafs, the Rangers grabbed an early lead on goals by Dean Prentice and Earl Ingarfield, but the Leafs fought back with defenceman Tim Horton and centre Dave Harris scoring to earn the tie.

Defenceman Carl Brewer needed assistance Sunday night when Toronto Maple Leafs' airplane landed in Toronto after a flight from New York.

He was suffering from what Dr. High Smythe, team physician, said appeared to be a charleyhorse in the left leg and may not be able to play in the Leafs' next game at Montreal Thursday.

COLLIDES WITH BATHGATE

Brewer was hurt when he and the Rangers' Andy Bathgate collided in the second period.

The Wings spotted Chicago a 1-0 lead, but roared back. Alex Delvecchio, Claude Laforge, Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman counted for the Wings and Stan Mikita for the Hawks. Howe's goal was his 501st in regular-season play.

At Toronto, Hull scored his 47th goal in the second period and it turned out to be the winning marker. Jack Evans and Eric Nesterenko also scored for the Black Hawks while Frank Mahovlich potted Toronto's lone goal.

The Canadiens, playing without three regulars, just didn't have it at Boston.

Johnny Bucyk and Murray Oliver sparked the Bruins. Bucyk scored twice and drew an assist while Oliver had one goal and three assists.

The other Boston scorers were Pat Stapleton, Ted Green and Wayne Connelly. Hicke scored both Montreal goals.

Missing from the Montreal lineup were defenceman Lou Fontinato and forwards Don Marshall and Dickie Moore.

Fontinato hurt Marshall have groin injuries while Moore suffered a bone bruise in scattering in Saturday night's game against Rangers.

One bright spot for Canadiens was the play of Gordon (Red) Berenson, twice Michigan All-America.

Berenson, making his professional debut on the NHL-trial plan, did an outstanding job playing as left-winger on Montreal's third line. He normally is a centre.

Nine Marks Go at Winnipeg

Trail Girl Steals Track Thunder

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tall, slender Dianne Gerace of Trail, B.C., stole the hearts of 7,000 fans Saturday at the 1962 Canadian indoor track and field championships here, capturing a swirl of established stars.

The unheralded young high jumper sneaked up on the crowd who throughout most of her competition were concentrating on the more spectacular pole vault and track events.

She eclipsed by three inches the Canadian open and native record of five feet, three inches set by Eleanor Ward of the University of Western Ontario and was voted the outstanding competitor of the meet. Miss Ward finished second with a jump of five feet.

Nine records were broken in the meet, with going to Bev Tertu Vuorinen of Port Arthur in the women's shot put with a toss of 44 feet, 6½ inches.

The former open and native high jump record of 5ft 5inches, was set here in January by Miss Vuorinen.

In the pole vault, George Davies of Arizona shot to a Canadian open record with a vault of 15 feet, 5¾ inches. The former record was 15 feet, five inches set by John Rose of Arizona State in January.

CROPPERS WIN

Bill Crothers and Dave Bally set a hot pace for the powerful Toronto East York team, both setting open-and-native records.

Bally scored a 1:56.4 win in the junior men's 880 yards while Crothers looped away to lower the 600-yards mark to 1:11.4, ahead of Bill Frazier of Iowa and James Fluther of Minnesota.

The former junior 880 record was 1:28.7 set by Jesse Fitch of the University of East Lansing, Mich., in Hamilton in 1959 while Jim Gathney of Villanova set the previous 600 mark of 1:12 in Hamilton in 1954.

Closest finish of the night was in the men's mile when East York's Bruce Kidd, voted Canada's outstanding athlete in 1961, broke from third place in the pack at the eighth lap to strike ahead of Jim Irons of the Toronto Olympic Club and stave off a final bid by John Camien of Kansas State to win in 4:13.4.

George Shepherd, running in the 300 for the first time without any opposition but him, swept to an easy victory in 32.2 seconds while Toronto team-mate Paul Gaudet nipped Gene DeHahn of the University of South Dakota in the 50-yard dash, both being timed in 5.4 seconds.

The women's 60 - yard final was equally close with Maureen Bardoe of Hamilton Olympic slipping by Gillian Harding of Montreal. Both were timed in at 7.1 seconds.

Abbi Hoffman of Toronto Olympic took the women's 880 in 2:18.2, but is not expected to have the time made an official record as the event is not recognized by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada as official for women.

Prague Figure Skating

Canada Wins Top Honors

PRAGUE (CP) — Canadian skaters carried off top honors among the 16 competitors from 8 countries competing in the 1962 world figure skating championships that wound up here Saturday.

Don Jackson of Oshawa captured the title for Canada in the men's singles event while Prague - born Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont., won the pairs title in the four-day championships.

Skating authorities rated the performances by the Canadian winners as the best in history of world figure skating competition.

The women's singles crown also went to Sonja Dikpins of Holland while Eva and Pavel Romanov captured the ice dance title. Miss Dikpins' overwhelming domination of these two events by United States and British competitors, respectively.

Wendy Griner and Petra Burka, both of Toronto, finished second and fourth, respectively, in the women's singles.

Virginia Thompson, a high school student in St. Catharines, and William McLachlan of Toronto were third in the ice dance.

Debbie Wilkes, and Guy Revel, both of Unionville, Ont., were third in the pairs while Donald McPherson of Stratford was fourth in the men's singles.

REGINA RINK FAVORED

Score Was 21-1

Pepsi's Swamp Lindsay

The Belleville Pepsi's went through a free-scoring workout Saturday night in preparation for a tough series against provincial competition.

They waltzed, pirouetted and twisted through a Lindsay Lumbermen Learn Hockey team that was larger than expected.

The Pepsi's, operating like a machine, read 21-1 when the final siren shrilled.

The Lindsay squad was a skeleton gob and none of its members, apparently, it was an unfair gesture to the Pepsi's, the fans and whatnot. "Hags" Hagler, Lindsay coach-executive did that.

However the crowd got a kick out of wishing the Booster Club's many prizes and watching the Pepsi's operate like a unit in basketball figures.

They came to their feet when the Pepsi goalie "Turk" Barclay decided to do some scoring himself. The "Turk" skated down the ice but failed to net the puck. He was the only Pepsi who went pointless.

The Pepsi's go back to Lindsay on Friday in what could very well be the finale of the playdown series.

The better hockey of the night came in the first period when the Pepsi's were held to three goals. Lindsay's Hood got one each in the second but Bob Mc K. the red squad going on to sink seven markers for a period 10-1 score.

The third period was a romp. The Pepsi's sank a marker practically every 90 seconds. They came in to create a local spotting record.

But they did fatten their points average.

MacDonald led the goal-getters with four; Hall, Baker, Taylor and Lowry each had hat tricks; Rowbotham, O'Meara and Gorys had singles. Lessford got a pair.

Gorys led the "assisters" with a mere seven. Coogan and Crawford had six each. Lamond, O'Meara, Doran, MacDonald and Hull had two each. Baker had three and Rowbotham one.

There were 36 assists for a fantastic 57 scoring points in the game The Pepsi's had five penalties, Lindsay four.

World All-Stars

Galt, Swedes Place Three

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo (CP) — Sweden and Canada each placed three players on the all-star team of the world hockey championships picked Sunday by members of the International Hockey Writers and Broadcasters Association.

Lennart Haegroth, the 22-year-old Swedish goalie, was the only unanimous choice of the 12-member panel. His teammate, centre Nils Nilsson, received 18 votes. Left winger Ulf Sterner, the third player of the championship Swedish team to be selected, collected seven votes.

The Canadian selections were Jack Douglas, right defence, 11 votes; left defence Harry Smith, eight, and right winger Jack McLeod, 14.

DEATH RATE

South Africa has the highest death rate on the road with an average of 2,632 killed and 53,814 injured annually.

Swedes Grab Top Honors

Terriers Whip U.S., Finish Second

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — The Swedish national team takes off by chartered plane today on the road back home with the world hockey championship, a flock of other honors and every indication of being a selfish host at the 1963 tournament.

"We are going to be tough to beat," candidly said Swedish coach Arne Stromberg when darkhorse squad whipped Canada's defending titlists and the United States in a seven-game sweep of the 13-day tournament. It was the first time Canada had ever lost to Sweden in world and Olympic hockey history.

"We will be playing on our home grounds in Stockholm and we will be stronger than ever next year," Stromberg added.

The Canadians, who finished second with a 6-1 record after trouncing the U.S. 6-1 in a televised game Sunday, face the problem of playing strictly under European rules in future games to regain the championships in 1965.

KEEPER OWN STYLE

The Canadians, still complaining over the officiating in their 5-3 key loss to Sweden, will use even more delicate calls made in Stockholm next March. The Canadians prefer the rugged slambang style of play normal to North America. The Europeans lean to precision passing and little if any bodychecking.

Swedish officials complained strongly about unnecessary Canadian roughness in the Sweden-Canada game. Later Floyd (Butch) Martin was reprimanded by tournament officials for his sparring tactics.

In Sunday's final match the Canadians scored twice within eight seconds midway in the first period and then swamped the U.S. before a sellout crowd of 5,300 at Broadmoor World Arena. It was only the third sellout in the tournament which sadly missed the drawing power of the Czechs and Russians.

Czechoslovakia and Russia boycotted the championships in the hassle over banning travel visas for the East Germans but undoubtedly all three Iron Curtain countries will be represented at Stockholm.

TWO FOR BROWN

The Canadian scorers were Bob Brown (2), Bob Mader, Joe Hogan, Tod Sloan and Jack McLeod. Don Hall scored the U.S. goal.

The Canadians leave Colorado Springs this morning by bus and then fly from Denver to Toronto.

"I still say we have a better team than the Swedes," said Canadian coach Lloyd Boucher. "We could beat them seven out of eight times no matter where we play. Those double periods they called against us killed us. They were short when we were two men short."

Brian (Butch) Mackay, a native of Montreal and one of the five Canadian-born players on the U.S. club, agreed.

"I still think the Canadians are a much better team than the Swedes. They skate rings to death. The Canadians would have won the championship if they weren't so eager to score the Swedes in their game. They didn't have to. The Swedes were scared before they got on the ice. Then penalties ruined the Canadians."

McLEOD TOPS SCORERS

The unofficial scoring championship was won by McLeod, who had 11 goals and eight assists for 19 points. Swedish forward Nils Nilsson was second with 13 points and five assists for 18 points.

In addition to the Championship Cup, the Swedes walked off with the top goalie award to Leonard Haggroth and the prize for the best forward, to Sven (Tumba) Johansson, who had at least one point in every game and wound up with seven goals and seven assists. Johnny Wilkinson, the U.S. Olympic veteran, was named outstanding defenceman.

Sweden clinched the title Saturday night with a 4-0 victory over West Germany and Canada crushed Britain 12-2 behind McLeod's four - goal scoring spree.

Named First Commissioner

C. Belch Softball Head

Clifford "Sonny" Belch was named the first commissioner of the Belleville and District Softball league yesterday and a strong board of governors was also appointed at the league's second meeting of the year.

Belch, league secretary-treasurer last year, will handle the president's chores as well as the book and financial matters under his new title.

The board of governors, which will be called on by the commissioner to help with protests or any other league matters where it is felt necessary, consists of two local men all well-acquainted with all functions of ball.

Named to the board were: OASA President Don Lee, OBA President Jack Carson, OASA past-president Harry Rollins, resigning umpire-in-chief Harold Sweden, Harry Hawkshaw of the Belleville plant, who is a former active softball worker in the Toronto area, Ontario Intelligencer sports editor George M. Carver and CJBQ sports director Jack Devine.

Commissioner Belch will call on four of these gentlemen at a time for each protest meeting. One of them was chosen serve as a co-signer with Belch, for league business.

As far as other league business was concerned, it was decided last Wednesday to take advance of several of the club's representatives.

Cobourg Merchants and the RCAF Flyers did not show up for the meeting. Picton was represented but an hour late. Jack "Cack" McGregor, speaking for Picton's Walt Fraser, said that the "possibility" is good that the Wails will be back in the league providing games in Belleville are played under the lights.

There is some thought of the city teams playing twilight games once again at the CNRA Park. This matter has not been settled but should be cleared up somewhat when the loop meets again next Sunday afternoon at 1.00 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the Club Canada.

Joyce Real Estate and the Belleville Fairgrounds last night played under the lights at the Belleville Fairgrounds last year but both clubs feel that the lights proved too costly. A parks commission committee next week may help clear up the matter.

Bill Vallance attended the meeting representing a possible Belleville Junior entry, and said that definite word should be available by next Sunday's meeting. He expressed strong optimism that a Junior club will enter.

Both Joyces and Bobcats failed to send representatives.

Edge Kingston 55-53

Metals Win Hoop Opener

Trailing 53-51 entering the last minute of play, Belleville Crawford Metals ripped back with four points to squeeze past B'nai B'rith of Kingston 55-53 in the first game of the OASA intermediate "C" playdowns in Kingston Saturday night.

The return game in the two game, total-points-to-count series, will be played at Metal Industries Recreation Centre this Saturday evening at eight o'clock. Crawfords will carry a three-point lead into the game.

Saturday night's tilt at the Kingston collegiate was a tight one all the way.

B'nai B'rith led by a point or two all during the first half. They were in front 29-27 at the half-time.

Crawfords moved in front early in the second half and at one time enjoyed a comfortable ten-point spread, 47-37. Kingston battled back, however, to tie the score and finally went ahead 53-51 with just over a minute to play.

Belleville's Earl Naismith hit from outside to tie the count at 53-53 and Teddy Batchelor connected on a close-in jump shot in the dying seconds to pull out the tight victory.

Rickey Locke Gets Letter At McMaster

Rickey Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Locke, 34 Lemoine Street was honored recently at McMaster University.

Rickey, at a banquet honoring the university's athletes was awarded the school letter the "Big M" for outstanding athletic achievements. He starred with the school varsity football squad.

In his secondary school days here, he starred with the Quinte Secondary school teams and was a standout on the Belleville Kenmore junior basketball team, Ontario Junior "A" champions in 1960, and runners-up in 1961.

Joyces Win Over Rollins, Booths Lose

Joyce Real Estate earned their way into the Belleville Industrial Hockey League finals last night but it will be a week yet before they know who they will meet in the thirds' series.

Joyces whipped Rollins Construction 4-2 to sweep their semi-finals two games but Napanee Prisgie's Falcons topped Booth TV's 4-2 to tie their half of the semi-finals at a game apiece.

Joyces and Napanee will clash in the deciding game of their set next Sunday at 8.30 p.m. at the Belleville rink.

Joyces jumped into a 4-1 lead in the first period last night and both clubs doubled their scores in the second half. It was tied 1-1 twice by goals by Sheridan Faulkner and Fox put the winning goal to stay in the last six minutes of the first half.

Jim Sheridan was the only two-goal man for the finalists but Bert Faulkner and Wayne Fox came up with one goal and three assists each. Jackie Elliott and Hyle Bryant earned a goal and two assists each while Huck Reeves and Dave Feeney had one and one. Doug Moreau drew one assist.

George Crabb and Ted Kennedy led the losing finalists. Gordie Green and Wayne Wade drew assists.

Elliott and Ron Atkins picked up fighting majors among the game's nine penalties. The losers drew the odd one.

Booth's took a 2-0 lead in their game against Napanee and then broke a 2-2 tie on a rare penalty shot by Jackie Gill but it was still not enough to stop the Falcons.

The teams led 2-1 at half time and 3-2 early in the second half. Jerry Krejci scored the tying goal for Napanee and Doug Yearwood potted the winner at the 13.46 mark. Bob Bartch and Don Aylesworth had Napanee's other goals with assists to Carl Grey, Jim Maracle, Dave Brady and Yearwood.

Beagles' Gill's penalty shot, awarded when a Napanee player grabbed Gill's stick with both hands in the goal crease, Junior Day and Jim Elliott scored local each. Day and Doug Murray the assists.

The clubs divided four minor penalties.

Take Tourney 'B' Title

Squirts Win at Napanee

Belleville Minor Hockey Association "squirt" all-stars climaxed a successful season Saturday at the Napanee Minor Hockey Association "Tadpole" Tournament.

Len Coughlin's fine young team came home with the "B" championship after defeating Trenton 4-2. They lost the all-round tourney title to Peterborough 7-0.

In their bid for the "B" title they eliminated Picton and Trenton.

Teams entered were Gananoque, Brockville, Napanee, Picton, Trenton, Belleville and two from Peterborough.

Coughlin's youngsters lost a 3-2 squeaker to Napanee, the loss placing them in the "B" division. Dick Fobert and Terry Meagher scored for the Belleville squad. Each had an assist.

The Belleville youngsters got their thrill of the day by defeating the smart young Trenton crew, a team that they had not defeated in seasonal play. They played outstanding hockey to get the verdict.

The Coughlin Youngsters spotted Trenton an early goal but Ian Ferguson but Darryl Demers tied it up with Meagher assisting. Meagher put the city kids one up with Demers boosting they adding two more markers by Demers and Chuck Powell to wrap up the win.

They cut the lead to 4-2 in the late minutes on a fine solo effort, Brian Coghlin was outstanding in the Belleville nets with Billy Buchanan turning in a fine job on defence.

The Belleville team was presented with the D. B. Wilson Hardware Trophy at the end following the game.

They are strong well-balanced Peterborough squad in the grand championship game now.

Wings Eliminate Teepees

Flyers Oust Baby Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Don't write off anybody," the experts said. "This league is ripe for an upset."

For once, the experts were right.

Niagara Falls, Flyers, whose last-ditch drive got them into the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs by a single point, eliminated the powerhouse Montreal Canadiens Saturday in the sixth game of their best-of-seven semi-final.

They did it the convincing fashion, with a four-goal burst in the third period for a 5-2 victory before a record Falls crowd of 4,100.

STUCK MORE TO FORM

Second - place Hamilton Red Wings stuck more closely to the form chart knocking out the Teepees 4-3 Saturday night in St. Catharines. That series also went six games, one of which was tied.

The Flyers and Wings open their best-of-seven final at Ham. Hon Wednesday with the second game at Niagara Falls, Friday.

On the record, Montreal and Hamilton looked like clinchers to get past the first round. They finished the 50-game schedule with 78 and 70 points respectively, while the Teepees had only 56 and the Flyers 52.

The Madera built up their big margins with long early-season streaks, however, and it was obvious the momentum was changing as the schedule neared its end.

Ron Hergott and Wayne Maxner did all the Flyers' scoring. Hergott banged a hat trick and Maxner added two to run his scoring string to 19 points in the six games. Andre Boudrias punched in Montreal's two goals after the Flyers had taken a 3-2 lead.

GET LATE START

The Red Wings finally uncorked their scoring punch before 3,405 St. Catharines fans after trailing 3-2 after the second period. Two goals by Ray Cullen and one single by rookie Ken Hodge had put the Teepees ahead.

Then Hamilton defenceman Bob Wall, a standout in the series, bounced in a deflected shot early in the second period and opened the third with another on a slap shot from the point with Teepees defenceman Paul Popell serving major and minor penalties.

Flyers' Labrecque tied it up and the Teeps, needing a victory to stay in the running, pulled rookie Roger Crozier with 25 seconds left. Pit Martin, pulled the puck out of a faceoff in his own zone and flipped it the length of the ice into the gaping net.

Zsa Zsa Gabor May Get Whack at Jack Paar Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Cops and robbers Sunday night's Project 20 documentary on 300 years of crime in the United States, gave a fast rundown on the more prominent American wrongdoers.

The NBC show started with a mutinous passenger on the Mayflower and a warrant to fill a Senate committee hearing.

The program was never very interesting, partly because it was trying to cover too much too fast. But mostly because the activities of the most famous infamous are pretty familiar.

The Project 20 technique, using old posters, pictures, newspaper clips and a narrator to fill in the chinks, is good for some subjects. But as far as crime is concerned, the documentary movie or TV treatment is lacking. Either we get a whack at real life the cameras get busy only after the action stops.

GE Theatre, on CBS Sunday night, started a two-part series based on Marian Miller's book I Was a Spy, but turned the autobiography into a conventional string of cliches strongly reminiscent of the old I Led Three Lives series: Except the FBI agent in the Communist party this time was a woman.

The Seattle World's Fair lost a big, free publicity plug last week when Ed Sullivan announced his show will not, after all, come from the fair. April 22 Sullivan gave as broad reason for cancellation "difficulties in fix heavy programming schedules," but the major factor probably is that there's a CBS documentary about the fair set on April 22, and NBC's Today will start a week's series of broadcasts there the following day.

The Lineup of "interim hosts" who will keep NBC's Tonight show running after Jack Paar leaves March 29 now includes Pat Boone, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Steve Lawrence—and there's a rumor Jack Gilford will get a whack at the job before Johnny Carson takes over in October.

Naked City, weekly, week-out stacks up, as about the best of the police-action tales, with 20th Precinct coming in second . . . Maurice Evans of Shakespeare fame will star in the April 27 Steel Hour (CBS), playing an elderly invalid.

Kingston Takes Over Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kingston Frontenacs, fighting hard to regain the lead they held through much of the East, earn Provincial Hockey League season, notched two weekend wins to pull up within four points of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens.

The Kingston squad humbled North Bay Trappers 6-2 Saturday in Kingston and took the Canadiens 5-3 in North Bay, Sunday.

In the process, Frontenacs Barney Hutchinson, Waterloo Beavers down to third spot. Sarnia Sailors 7-4 against Sudbury Wolves Saturday.

In their only weekend game, Cornwall Royals of Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 4-0 in Hull Sunday.

TWO CLUSTERS

The standings now show three of the teams clustered at the top, two clustered three far behind. Habs have 81 points, King. 69, Hull-Ottawa 67, Waterloo 59, North Bay 49 and Sault 42.

Palmer Man To Beat In Masters

AUGUSTA, Fa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer is the man to beat in the Masters golf tournament, says defending champion Gary Player.

Player edged Palmer for the title last year when Arnold muffed his approach shot on the final green.

"Arnold is the complete champion," the young South African said Sunday.

"He can win tournaments on any kind of golf course, but this course is particularly suited to his game."

Player, first golfer from outside the United States to win the Masters, flew here Saturday from Johannesburg and in a practice round Sunday on the treacherous Augusta national course, played par golf.

The Masters starts April 5. Although Player felt the course suited Palmer's game, he also felt that the course suits my game too."

Player will be seeking another championship next—if he can, he would become the first defending champion to repeat.

Maroons Defeat Athletics

• WOODSTOCK (CP)—Chatham Maroons erupted with their second seven-goal effort in two nights to down Woodstock Athletics Saturday night and deadlock the Ontario Hockey Association Senior semi-final series at games each.

Woodstock carried a 2-0 series lead into Chatham Friday night and came home licking their wounds after 8-1 loss.

The fifth game will be played here tonight.

Copper Leyla, a defenceman, was shifted up front on a line with playing coach Ted Power and George Aitken and scored three goals. George Aitken, Don Clark, Ted Power and Bob Pole were the other Maroon snipers.

Pole, Black gave the Athletics with a pair. Singles were scored by Gerry Thurston and Junior B player Ras Clark.

The Athletics, who finished second in the regular schedule, missed the services of Tommy Wilson, Gerry Striegle and Don Myers. Wilson was sidelined last Wednesday when Ernie Dick speared him. Myers broke the knee injury Friday and Striegle has a broken ankle.

Al Bennett in the Chatham bet was the key performer with 34 saves. Woodstock's Bud Dietrich stopped 31 shots.

Snell Sets Record for Half-Mile

TOKYO (AP)—With the "no smoking" sign out and the heat turned down, New Zealand's Peter Snell blazed to another track record Sunday, posting a world indoor mark of one minute, 49.3 seconds for the half-mile.

The 25 - year - old apprentice surveyor, who smashed both the world outdoor mile and half-mile records a month ago, stepped three-tenths of a second off the indoor 880-yard standard he set Feb. 9 in Los Angeles.

When he ran the mile in 4:06.7 Saturday, Snell complained that the Tokyo Metropolitan Gym, where the Japan national track and field championships are being held, was too cold for speed.

Sunday officials banned smoking and turned off some of the electric heaters.

Littlest Circus To Visit O'Keefe Centre in April

"The Littlest Circus," labelled "magical" by Variety comes to O'Keefe Centre for a six-day engagement, April 23 to April 28. "Circus" is a whimsical entertainment for children and adults of all ages, created and designed by Wolfgang Roth, staged and choreographed by Nelle Fisher. A dramatic musical composition without a spoken word of dialogue, the action develops by act-and-dance pantomime performed by a troupe of gifted professional actors. They tell the story of a European family and their little traveling circus, wandering from town to town pulling their modest belongings in a little wagon, led by the father the One Man Band.

The show opens with the family arriving on stage and unpacking their gear in front of the audiences. Since the family is too poor to support a large troupe of performers and animals, they have decided to play all the parts themselves. During the course of the performance they portray lions, jugglers, tightrope walkers, dancers, acrobats, magicians, seals, giants and clowns.

The show has two performances daily at 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Specially designed for children during their Easter holidays, the program runs approximately 70 minutes without an intermission. Each number is about three or four minutes in length, and is introduced by the drawings of Puck the Clown which are projected on the drapes behind the audience, during the show. The whole production is accompanied by a Hurdy-Gurdy calliope and is excitingly colorful in design and costuming. There is one low price for youngsters with well also appeals to the adults accompanying them.

Astrological Forecast

For March 20

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Today's key to success and well-being is Service. Check accounts... be sure you are living up to promises. Go out of your way to be of Service. Gain by helping others.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Stimulating day in store if you are willing to express love, sympathy... to make changes, and to travel, if necessary. Don't sit and brood. Move about.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)

(ADVT.)

For conservations, regular Mecca Ointment has brought comfort and healing to literally millions of people.

And Mecca Pile Remedy (in Ointment form and in the new Tube) for relief from the distress of internal piles, has all the important ingredients of internationally known Mecca Ointment, plus certain other time-tested, medically proved ingredients for stinging and shrinking painful Piles, and fostering healing comfort.

If you have inflamed or protruding Piles why not get Mecca and Mecca Pile Remedy — the new improved kit — today?

MECCA PILE REMEDY No. 1

Make sure you ask for MECCA and get the tried and proved Mecca relief that Mecca Pile Remedy No. 1 can bring you.

Moon in that sector of chart having to do with security, home, older persons you can trust. Be frank. Don't be afraid to ask advice. Admit past mistakes and correct them.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Emphasis on Learning Through Teaching. Favorable lunar aspect to your sign today means self-expression wins new friends. Gather forces... finish projects.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Be determined to overcome shyness, fear... where plunging into new adventure is concerned. Move with verve, energy. Size up situation, and let go full swing.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept 22) Rise above maze of details.... see projects as a whole. Enlarge your vision. Stress creative aspects of life, including love. You must be leader, not follower now.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) Might be termed "Lucky Day" if luck means that certain things fall in place for you. Might be best to put off serious plans and take advantage of more action.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Nothing halfway today.... this also goes for Emotions. Don't start anything you don't intend to finish. Say what you mean.... mean what you say. Otherwise... look out!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Lunar emphasis on section of Solar chart dealing with career, ambition.... ability to react under pressure. Regard opposition as challenge. Beware flatterers.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Extremely favorable for pursuit of artistic endeavors. This includes hobbies and stimulating challenges for your mind. Balance activities.... don't concentrate on you alone.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Tendency for you to be over-cautious. You could make an investment in your own future today... if you have confidence. That's the trick. Analyze yourself....discover strength ....move!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Might be best to check temptation to "tell someone off." Your cycle is quiet... let this be your cue. Listen, rather than air views. Store up knowledge for another day.

If today is your birthday you are extremely sensitive to the feelings, moods of others. Often you are "accused" of being psychic. Very wise if you trust your hunches, first impressions. Good year for travel, change, rediscovering, making friends.

GENERAL TENDENCIES— A day of Questions. Curiosity runs rampant. Wise showman can capitalize on this by advertising product or services. Look for persons born in September to be in news spotlight.

DRIVERS DWINDLE

TORONTO (CP)—Deputy Police Chief John Murray said Friday increased assessments against owners of unlaunched cars have driven some motorists off the road. A provincial government official estimated more than 60,000 metro car licences have not been renewed, although many are on dealers' lots or in winter storage.

CANADA'S

last Thursday, the U.S. had suggested stepping up the initial reduction in such materials, which brought the U.S. "much closer" to the Soviet view that all such stockpiles should be eliminated in Stage Two.

3. Speed of nuclear weapons: Early action should be taken on an Irish resolution, calling for international agreement to, endorsed at the 16th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

4. Reduction of conventional arms: The U.S. proposal last week for a 30-per-cent cut had narrowed the differences between the big powers in this field.

5. Nuclear disarmament: American suggestions of a 30-per-cent cut in nuclear weapons delivery vehicles during the first stage were "significant," though the Soviet draft treaty put forward last Thursday called for complete elimination in the first stage.

On this point Green said: "Nevertheless, having in mind the magnitude of the initial cuts proposed by the United States as well as the agreed principle of balance, my delegation believes that detailed negotiations should bring the two major military powers to agreement on phased reductions in this field."

WERE ONLY SPEAKERS

Canada and Bulgaria were the only speakers at this fourth plenary session of the disarmament conference, which may lead to an East - West summit meeting in the spring.

The Canadian proposals were the most detailed—and conference sources said the most constructive—put forward since last Wednesday's ceremonial opening, apart from the disarmament plans of the two big powers.

The Canadian delegation is making a supreme effort to assist in a start on arms reduction after a 30-year record of failure by the nations of the world in disarmament talks.

Initial exchanges at this 17-power meeting afforded no clear indication of any breakthrough by the real negotiating is just starting. Another informal afternoon sessions that will parallel the plenary meetings.

Canadian sources attach considerable importance to the businesslike nature of the negotiations so far.

A major stumbling block in disarmament discussions is a s been the problem of verification, on which the Soviet talks with

Green said Canada's willingness to contribute to a "certified" system of disarmament was shown by its offer to throw open its northern areas for inspection in exchange for similar rights in Russian territory.

"The best way to achieve a realistic solution of the problem . . . is to avoid any further discussion in the abstract," he said, "Instead there should be careful examination of each measure of disarmament, together with the specific verification procedures to ensure that all states carry out that particularly disarmament measure."

Citing an example from the Soviet draft treaty of last Thursday—providing that elimination of certain means of delivering nuclear weapons should be verified by inspectors of an international disarmament organization, Green said this suggested substantial inspection would be permitted.

"What we need to clarify is how much the inspectors are to be allowed to see and the conditions under which they would carry out this work."

At another point Green said Canada "deeply regretted that the Soviet Union last August broke a three-year moratorium on testing, for we are opposed to all nuclear tests . . .

In concluding, however, he said the conference has shown a clear will to make progress and "a realization of the seriousness of the task and the overriding responsibility we bear for the survival of civilization."

"I am confident we will justify the faith and trust which mankind has placed in us."

Secret Parley On New Guinea Opening In U.S.

Indonesians, Dutch Meet With American

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five men met near Washington late today in almost wartime secrecy in an effort to head off a Dutch - Indonesian battle over Netherlands' West New Guinea. The secret talks, covering the Dutch, two Indonesians and an American — were arranged by the United States for an undisclosed site some 20 to 30 miles from Washington.

Neither the state department nor the Dutch nor Indonesian embassies would say a word about the talks except to acknowledge they were held today and continue for several days.

The principals gathering around the conference table include Ambassador Carl Schurman, Dutch permanent representative to the United Nations at the U.N. headquarters in New York. Netherlands diplomat who took part in the top-level conferences on Indonesian independence and who has served as ambassador to the United States for the past dozen years.

Ambassador Subandrio.

Arriving in New York secretly and moving on to Washington privately are the two Indonesian envoys—Adam Malik, ambassador to Moscow, and Soedgarwo Tjondronegoro, former ambassador to the United Nations and to Austria, now chief of the foreign ministry's European section.

The fifth man is American Ellsworth Bunker, retired business executive and former U.S. ambassador to India, Italy and Brazil.

Indonesia's President Sukarno has warned that if these preliminary secret talks fail, he sees no alternative but to drive the Dutch out of West New Guinea. The area claim is historically a part of Indonesia.

JOBLESS TOTAL 38,000 HIGHER THAN IN JAN.

Unemployed in Mid-Feb. 583,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada rose to 583,000 at mid-February, 136,000 lower than the post-war jobless peak a year earlier, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The jobless total, 38,000 higher than in January, represented 9.1 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.5 per cent in January and 11.3 per cent in February last year.

The report said the changes in employment and unemployment between January and Feb.

EXPENDITURE OF $204,300,000 FOR HIGHWAYS

Minister Tables Dept. Estimates

TORONTO (CP)—A net expenditure of $264,300,000 for the Ontario Department of Highways in the 1962-63 fiscal year was announced by Highways Minister Goodfellow in the legislature Monday with a total of $135,352,000 to be spent on capital construction.

The totals represent a drop in net expenditure of more than $3,000,000 from the estimated 1961-62 fiscal year total and almost $9,000,000 in capital construction.

The estimated net expenditure in the current fiscal year ending March 31 was $267,940,000, of which $144,105,000 was for capital construction.

Mr. Goodfellow said the net expenditure in the 1961-62 fiscal year, allowing for refunds, will be a considerable sum more than department sources of revenue for the year.

MONEY LACKING

He said there is simply not enough money available to do the construction and that is a construction desirable "unless the provincial debt is to increase beyond reasonable limits."

In tabling his department's estimates, Mr. Goodfellow said the province next year committed to spend $54,500,000 for work already in progress, of which $42,000,000 will be spent this year.

New work, the minister said, costing $90,000,000 will be started, involving a $44,000,000 expenditure during the current fiscal year. He said a total of $45,153,000 will be spent on maintenance of main highways.

CRITICIZES 'DEFICIENCY'

A Liberal member criticized was government, for "a glaring deficiency" in long-range highway planning.

Ray Edwards, member for Wentforth, said there was no indication in the current estimates of a long-range plan to fill Ontario's need for highways in the province's development.

In another criticism Elmer Sopha L. — Sudbury) asked whether the net expenditure figure in the estimates was "just a wild guess" because the department spent some $20,000,000 more in the current fiscal year than expected.

Mr. Goodfellow said this year's figures were realistic and last year's lower figure was the result of "extremely low bidding.

Mr. Goodfellow said a major project, such as the closing of the gap in Highway 17 between Nipigon and Rossport, Thunder Bay, Ont., last year involved "higher than normal expenditures" as compared to other years.

In effect, Mr. Diefenbaker said, the Conservative source will be outmoded unless Ottawa takes place soon. Development of such sites might require exports and he asked for assurances that they will get them.

Additional federal policy has been in avoid long-term export

McFarland Will Build 27-Mile Service Road

TORONTO (CP)—A contract, worth $1,000,000, has been awarded to H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Pickering to build a 27-mile service road linking remote Ontario Hydro generating stations at Niagara Hydro Chairman W. Ross Strike announced today.

The access road will connect Hydro's Little Long rapids, 42 miles north of Cochrane, and on the Mattagami River, and a new transformer station at Hydro's Otisville generating station.

The station will give operators maintenance and repair men quick access to the Little Long rapids station, which is 70 miles away from Adelitli Canyon. Little Long, when completed in 1963, will electric plants to be built on the Mattagami, is scheduled to produce 114,000 kilowatts late next year.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Construction will begin next month on a $500,000 brain research centre, the University of Rochester announced Monday. Occupancy is scheduled for this fall.

Sedative Called Thalidomide Recalled by Manufacturer

OTTAWA (CP) — The manufacturer of a sedative called thalidomide has recalled the drug in the face of statistics showing that it might cause the birth of deformed children if used by pregnant women, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie of the federal Food and Drug Directorate said today.

He said the drug, sold by prescription only, began to be recalled by the unidentified manufacturer three weeks to a month ago after his division held talks with the company.

He said the decision was based on a review of statistical evidence and stressed that this is the only evidence available so far. Last December, the company decided after a discussion with the Food and Drug Directorate to issue a warning that thalidomide not be given to pregnant women.

Dr. Morrell said the drug is not available in Canada at the moment.

The Food and Drug Directorate had said earlier that thalidomide was under investigation. It was introduced to Canada last year.

Dr. Morrell said he was not aware of a report that an unidentified Canadian mother bore a deformed baglees infant after using the drug.

Shouting Match Occurs As Kingston Area Official Is Accused in Land Deal

TORONTO (CP) — An opposition member of the legislature has accused a municipal official in the Kingston area of a "clear-cut conflict of interest" in the purchase of highways-destined land in 1958, and the Municipal Affairs Ministry Cass of having "facilitated" the deal when he was highways minister.

The accusation Monday by Ken Bryden (NDP — Toronto-Woodbine) prompted a bitter, shouting exchange with Minister without Portfolio William Nickle, member for Kingston.

It also brought a statement from Highways Minister Goodfellow that he found "absolutely nothing improper" in the department's part in the deal.

In a lengthy statement to the legislature began dealing with highways expenditures est Mr. Bryden named Eric R Pearson, reeve of Pittsburgh Township adjacent to Kingston, being involved in the affair while he was serving as deputy reeve.

The total amount of money involved was relatively small," Mr. Bryden said. "But it raises a definite question of principle."

"I submit there was a clear-cut conflict of interest which the government of the day, through the minister of highways of the day, clearly facilitated."

Mr. Cass was not present at the sitting of the legislature. He is premier — highways, minister April 28, 1958, and was named to his present post by Premier Robarts last November.

Mr. Bryden tabled documents which he said showed that the highways department sold 17 acres of land in Pittsburgh Township to the township itself June 7, 1958, for $14,000 after

Govts. Explore Possibilities Of National Power Hook-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal of large amounts of electricity— a policy based on a First World War experience when Canada was unable to halt exports to the U.S.

The argument then was that recall of the power spelled doom for U.S. industries dependent on it.

A national power grid envisages two phases of transmission. One is an inter-regional exchange of power as exemplified by arrangements existing between Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, Manitoba and Ontario and Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Some of these already link coast.

The other is long-haul transmission of hydro-electric power at extremely high voltage—a problem Russia, Sweden and Switzerland have been working on.

Gambler Links Name of OPP Official to Raid Tipoffs

TORONTO (CP) — Gambler Joseph McDermott, 40, today linked the name of Commissioner W. J. Clark of the provincial police to gambling raid tipoffs.

He declared during his Supreme Court of Ontario trial he once told Const. Cecil Smith and his undercover agent with the OPP anti-gambling squad, that Commissioner Clark had tipped him off to raids.

McDermott accused Const. Scott of substituting the name of Dep. uty Commissioner James Bartleman in reports to his superiors.

McDermott, acting in his own defence, made the statements during cross - examination of Const. Scott.

Clarke Chambers, 41, Vincent Fecteau, 38, and Robert Wright, 31, a farmer, OPP constable, are being tried on a charge of conspiring to obtain information illegally from Const. Scott.

McDermott alleged that if

FAIL TO RE-OPEN DEBATE ON NUCLEAR ARMS

Minister Refuses To Answer Queries

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition defence critics made an unsuccessful bid Monday night to reopen debate in the Commons on nuclear arms.

Defence Minister Harkness steadfastly refused to answer direct queries on nuclear weapons and debate on a $25,000,000 supplementary item for army operation and maintenance in the current fiscal year.

Mr. Harkness, who served overseas as an army officer for five years during the Second World War, said the Commons had its debate on that issue when his department's main spending estimates were before the House in January.

Faced with a barrage of questions on nuclear warheads for the army's Honest John rocket battery in Europe, the defence minister read papers on his desk, like an MP determined to get back gazing into the gallery.

DOESN'T ANSWER

He let most of the queries pass, unanswered. When he did speak briefly, it was to read statements on the defence situation.

It was upheld in his argument, despite heavy opposition from Liberal leader Lester (Mike) Pearson and CCF-New Democratic Party group, by Deputy Speaker Paul Martineau.

Paul Hellyer (L — Toronto Trinity) said the government has committed millions of dollars for equipment "which only reaches its maximum potential when armed with nuclear weapons."

"You want more money for atomic weapons when you have not even explained to your mind as to whether or not you are going to use them," the Liberal defence critic declared.

Mr. Hellyer asked when such decision may be made.

CONSIDERS SATISFACTORY

"We consider the situation to be quite satisfactory as it is, in view of the general situation in Europe at the present time," said Mr. Harkness.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) asked whether sending troops to Europe with weapons but without the right to use them was not "just what was referring to the Honest John battery in Germany."

Mr. Harkness said the battery is to be integrated into the European defence plans and that he is in a position to be used "in emergency" if need be.

Mr. Winch wanted to know if this meant the rockets will be supplied with nuclear warheads.

"I did not say anything of the kind," Mr. Harkness replied.

ROLE IN NATO

John R. Matheson (L—Leeds) said Liberals are concerned about the army not fulfilling its role in NATO.

Mr. Harkness handed a full discussion to make sure that Canada "is not a current Red herring." Thus the army might lose any opportunity to develop, expand and modernize. "We have been unfair to fulfil any special purpose which NATO allies might assign to it."

DROWNS IN CREEK

TORONTO (CP) — A three-year-old boy was drowned Monday after he fell into a fast-flowing creek while playing with his two brothers. Richard Kelly was pulled from the stream by his brother Andrew, 5. Mouth - to - mouth resuscitation was failed to revive him.

Ready To Accept 'Bare Minimum' A-Test Controls

Is Apparently Pressing U.S. to Reduce Demands

GENEVA (AP)—Britain announced today it is ready to accept an "adequate minimum" control machinery if Russia will agree to a treaty banning nuclear weapon tests.

The British foreign secretary, Lord Home, appealed to the Soviet government at the 17-nation disarmament conference for a "reasonable compromise" on the inspection issue.

Home said Britain recognizes that Russia gained "military knowledge and advantage" from its series of nuclear tests last fall.

Britain is prepared to let Russia keep its advantage, he said, if tests can now be ended forever under a pact providing an adequate minimum system of verification to guard against violations.

Home's speech appeared to confirm reports that Prime Minister Macmillan's government is pressing the United States to cut back drastically its demands on Russia for machinery to police a test ban. Diplomatic officials say the two Western governments are still trying to figure out exactly what they can agree on.

U.S. INSISTS

American sources say the United States insists that international verification of a test ban, including international inspectors inside the Soviet Union, be maintained. Britain is willing to settle for less and rely on general disarmament.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko took the lead Monday in starting a new exchange with U.S. State Secretary Rusk. It was understood the Russian advance text was cleared in Paris with the Berlin situation. There was no indication of fireplay by Gromyko and Rusk at a dinner meeting tonight.

The Communist Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin welcomed Rusk's arrival and to join with the United States and Britain in negotiations here on a nuclear ban and disarm.

Home welcomed Zorin's proposal that the three key powers to discuss the test ban as a subcommittee of the 17-nation conference. But he objected that this procedural gain had not

Moslems Battle French Troops In Four Areas

CP from AP-Reuters

ALGIERS — Moslems demonstrated in scores of Algerian towns and villages and fired on French troops in at least four areas Monday and today, the French Army announced.

The army said its troops were forced to answer fire and an undetermined number of persons were killed and wounded. Among those wounded was an army officer.

Highly placed sources said in Paris that St. Denis du Sig in western Algeria in one incident alone where Moslem crowds clashed with Moslem soldiers in the French service. Authorities released no over-all casualty figures.

The incidents flared up several hours after the cease-fire in the Algerian war went into effect.

The army stressed, however, that most demonstrations in towns and villages of the Algerian interior were peaceful and that in general organized rebel guerrilla groups were observing the cease-fire.

There has been no open-fire clash between our troops and rebel bands since the cease-fire went into effect," one officer said.

GRAVE INCIDENT

One of the gravest incidents took place in the town of Voltaire, about 100 miles southwest of Algiers. The army said several hundred Moslems civilians led by rebels in uniform swooped down on European section, shouting nationalist slogans and brandishing weapons

French troops dispersed the demonstrators with rifle fire after being fired on first, the army said.

Similar clashes took place in the west Algerian town of St. Denis du Sig and in Orleansville and in Les Attafs near Orleansville. In all three towns more than 2,000 persons were involved in individual demonstrations.

All the demonstrations were led by rebel officials and the Moslem organization plan' ered Algiers and Oran with posters announcing the army truce but so far there was no sign of the new upsurge of European violence that came after proclamation of the Algerian cease-fire.

Hollywood Enthuses Over Plans Of Grace Kelly to Make Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood was enthusiastic today over the announcement by Grace Kelly to return to make another movie.

"Welcome back," said producer Mervyn Leroy when he heard the news that Princess Grace was coming back. "Hollywood can always use a big star."

Miss Kelly gave up her movie career in 1956 when she married Prince Rainier. It was he who announced she would retire.

She agreed with the Prince. Until return to be a thriller called Marnie for Alfred Hitchcock.

A friend said Grace planned to go to the United States during her pregnancy. Her expected date and the film would be made at the same time, Hollywood says she plans to return to Monaco, where she and the prince live with their children.

Several British newspapers said Princess Grace of Monaco decided to make another Hollywood movie because she is bored.

Both The Daily Mail and The Daily Express quoted a "friend" in Monaco of former Hollywood star Grace Kelly as saying "she feels terribly confined" in spite of her palace duties."

a year ago. This is an increase of about one per cent.

However, employment was up 190,000 or 2.4 per cent over the year, one of the largest margins in the last five years.

Main declines in employment between January and February were in the construction, forestry and mining.

The report said employment is expected to "maintain" in all regions during the month and continued higher than a year earlier. The labor force gains varied from just under two per cent in Ontario to a little less than six per cent in the Pacific region.

AVERAGE HIGHEST

About two-thirds of the June in unemployment over the month was in the Quebec region, where the workers are released as a result of a seasonal slowdown in pulpwood operations. The Ontario and Atlantic regions also experienced a rise in joblessness during while there was little change in the West.

The report said about 44,000 of the 583,000 jobless workers were seasonally unemployed. Some 89,000 had been released from their jobs, since January, while 45,000 had been unemployed for one to three months.

Another 18,000 had been without jobs for four to six months while 74,000 had been in the jobless ranks for seven months or longer.

About three of every 10 jobless workers in the country were under 25 years of age, four were from 25 to 44 years old and three were 45 years or older.

The unemployment picture for June:

SHARP DROP

With 161,000 unemployed last month, Ontario had a jobless rate of 3.6 per cent, compared with 5.6 per cent a year earlier. The jobless total compares with 148,000 in January and 302,000 in February, 1961.

Employment declined seasonally between January and February—more than half of the drop in agriculture. Manufacturing employment showed continuing strength, particularly in textiles, chemicals and most durable-goods industries.

kept by Const. Scott and Wright be submitted in evidence. Previously only portions had been read.

SOMETHING STRANGE

"Parts of Wright's diary were read by OPP Const. John Moore, Tuesday's first witness. It Wright's wife told him: "there's something strange in that gambling's bunch."

McDermott questioned Const. Moore about gambling charges laid against a raid on the Rotary Club at Niagara Falls in 1961. The witness said he thought the sequitial "wasn't a fast verdict."

"Did you say, the case was fixed?" McDermott asked.

Moore said that after the Wright investigation, but not before," Const. Moore replied.

McDermott produced a report in which he said Wright was described as trying to find the ringleader of the OPP gambling squad.

"Was it his duty to find out who the 'ipoff man was?" McDermott asked.

Const. Moore said another officer on the squad was giving out information that was not to be charged. It is all in the report, he said.

MENTIONS GUELPH

In questioning Const. Scott, McDermott suggested Wright knew of the raid on the squad by an alleged bookmaking operation in Guelph.

McDermott said Scott lived across the road in Guelph from a Sylvestro family whose residence had been raided by police.

The constable said he knew members of the family as a child but moved from Guelph eight years ago. He said he never "fed" when McDermott asked whether Const. Scott's younger brother worked for the Sylvestro grocery store, was also in the gambling and had a criminal record.

Demolition Work To Be Started In Near Future

Demolition work and clearing up of the mess left as the result of the burning of the Ben Safe block on East Bridge Street, will be commenced within a matter of days, it was stated in city council yesterday.

Mayor A. M. Helg said there was every reason to believe that legal difficulties with respect to the burned out property would be resolved within two days.

Mr. Ed Logan, proprietor of Logan's Grocery Store which was burned out as result of the fire, told council that it was "incredible" that no progress could pass without anything done to clear up the mess.

"It seems that this could go on indefinitely unless someone takes authority," he said.

Mr. Logan claimed that as a result of the sidewalk being blocked off merchants in the area were suffering badly.

"And that can go on only so long," he said.

EXERCISE BEGINS

BERLIN (AP) — About 1,500 U.S. troops, more than a quarter of the American force in isolated West Berlin, today began three days of manoeuvres in Grunewald Park. It was the second time this month that U.S. soldiers have been exercising on this area.

Council Approves Principle Of Maisonette Development South of Coulter Crescent

TRENTON — One more step in the direction of building the "maisonette" development was taken by Trenton council last night when it agreed to accept the recommendation of the town's planning board that the development be accepted in principle.

F. R. Law, representing the developer, reported to council that he had contacted Coulter Crescent residents on the matter, the new development would be to the south of Coulter Crescent), and that he had got one approval in writing but that other residents had voiced a number of objections. Mr. Law said that he had informed the dissenting residents that the development would be discussed at last night's council meeting, but he noted that none of them had come up to register protest.

Mr. Law said also that he had contacted T. S. Kitchener, chairman of grounds and buildings with the Trenton school board and that, while Mr. Kitchener had agreed that the proposed development would not create an overcrowding situation, Prince Charles School, the developer said, is the only school in the area which is already filled to capacity.

Councillor Duncan McDonald said also that he was concerned about the overcrowding of Prince Charles School and Councillor Burtt agreed to be reassured as to drainage of the area.

Mr. Law said that his firm would work closely with the town engineer in the area.

PLAN FOR CENTENNIAL

The committee is also making tentative plans for Canada's centennial year (1967). Councillor Worrall said that brochures of the 1867 development on the town dock and the Trenton section of the federal building will be carried out."

Councillor Burtt asked that a letter of appreciation be sent to Police Chief F. J. Taylor, commending him on his recent report of department activity for 1961. Letters of thanks will be sent to the fire department and RCAF Station Trenton and Belleville, for assistance rendered recent fire in the Quigley Plumbing and Heating building on Front Street.

Councillor Mc Todd explained his action last night in calling out town workmen to assist in pumping water out of the cellar of a Leopold Street home.

He said that he had been unable to contact the town engineer or chairman of public works, James Duncan, and that he and Councillor Duncan Mc Donald had decided that quick action was necessary as the cellar was filling with water and mixed with an inflammable substance from a local plant. He considered also that Fire Chief Cecil Ellis had agreed that the condition presented a fire hazard.

The situation will be investigated.

While town engineer Eric Alderney at first registered disapproval of the councillors involving the town in what he termed "a civil matter" between the home owner and the company allegedly responsible for the spill, he took no assistance into the water, he agreed that the matter took on a different complexion when the fire hazard angle was considered.

Trenton to Join Quinte District Defence Set-up

TRENTON — Trenton council voted last night to empower Mayor Thomas MacDonald and clerk-treasurer Harold W. Larry to sign an agreement whereby the town will become a part of the area civil defence set-up. This will be known as the "Quinte District Emergency Measures Organization," and will be based on this municipalities of Trenton and Belleville and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward.

The organization plans to strike a full-time area defence co-ordinator and the cost of hiring this official, his secretarial help, and other incidentals, will be $36,000 annually, and will be shared on this basis: federal government grant, 75 per cent; provincial government grant, 12 per cent; the four area members involving 13 per cent. The $3,600 which is the town's responsibility will be shared on a per capita basis.

Mayor MacDonald and Councillor C. V. Graham were appointed delegates to the town's interests on the organization.

It will be necessary for council to pass a by-law covering the hiring of co-ordinator in area defence.

Mayor MacDonald was revealed that installation of three warning sirens for the town is imminent. Engineer Eric Alderney and Fire Chief Ellis have secured plans from the RCAF and will be in a position to tendering on the project. One siren will be installed on the police station roof, one at the roof of Police Chief F. J. Taylor of Trenton, and one at the chief's 1961 vacation pay be forthcoming by Monday, March 19, at 12.01 p.m.

Mayor MacDonald said that the "Canada Erected" plaque is to be constructed as a writ and that contrary to rumor, neither he, nor council, has as yet been served with a writ by Mr. Bata.

The mayor said that he had taken a cheque, covering the vacation payment, into the police station yesterday at 10 a.m. but regretfully the police had passed a resolution on Dec. 29, to the effect that all civic employees were to be given vacation on holidays and not work straight through and receive pay-payment in lieu of time off with pay.

At last night's meeting of town council, Mayor MacDonald commented briefly on the matter. He said that the chief's lawyers had given him to understand that the vacation pay-payment was not received by 12.01 p.m. Tuesday, and should be served with a writ demanding payment.

Constable Sees Man on Roof, Arrest Follows

TRENTON — At 2.30 a.m. today, Constable Mark Holden of the Trenton Police Department, while on patrol on Front Street, saw a man on the roof of House and House hardware. He ordered him to come down and when the man was on the rear of the building, where he dropped to the ground.

The officer apprehended a man in a laneway at the rear of the building behind a garbage can. He was taken to the police station and when Constable Holden questioned him as to what he saw the man, he found that the skylight window of the building was broken.

Ronald Berard, age 39, of Trenton, has been charged with attempted breaking and entering.

Inspector R. J. Rutherford is investigating. The inspector said today that other charges may be pending.

Approve Pact With Firemen, Add One to Full-Time Staff

TRENTON — Acting on a recommendation from the protection to persons and property committee, headed by Councillor Ross Burtt), Trenton council voted last night to hire one additional full-time fireman. The permanent man will be taken from the list of volunteer firemen on the basis of seniority.

On a recorded vote, Councillors Burtt, Todd, Graham and Councillor Duncan voted to hire the man on the seniority basis. Councillors Worrall and Duncan voted against the motion as it stood. Councillor Worrall objected to the seniority clause. He said that the age and the educational status of the man to be hired should have precedence over "seniority" as it applies to experience in the volunteer corps. The council also claimed that such action on the part of council nullified the terms of a by-law, passed three years ago, by which the age of applicants and their educational standards were to be considered.

"I can't understand your theory at all," said Councillor Burtt. "What future is there in belonging to the volunteer department if you can't go on to become a permanent or permanent force? In the police department, they get paid a "service" allowance and their salaries after so much experience."

"I think that the pension plan enters into Councillor Worrall's thinking," commented the mayor.

The decision to hire the extra fireman followed the reading of a report from Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, outlining the need for the hiring of a part-time man.

APPROVE AGREEMENT

Council also voted to sign an agreement with the Trenton Professional Fire Fighters Association. This agreement, by which members of the permanent force will receive salary increases and work on the new shorter work week schedule will be in effect for two years, from Jan. 1, 1965.

Chief of Police Receives Cheque For Holiday Pay

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald told an Ontario Intelligencer reporter yesterday that he had received a cheque "out of intention," ten days ago from Police Chief Wilfred Wright of Pelican of Picton, written on behalf of Police Chief F. J. Taylor of Trenton, stating that the chief's 1961 vacation pay be forthcoming by Monday, March 19, at 12.01 p.m.

Mayor MacDonald said that the "Canada Erected" plaque is to be constructed as a writ and that contrary to rumor, neither he, nor council, has as yet been served with a writ by Mr. Bata.

The mayor said that he had taken a cheque, covering the vacation payment, into the police station yesterday at 10 a.m. but regretfully the police had passed a resolution on Dec. 29, to the effect that all civic employees were to be given vacation on holidays and not work straight through and receive pay-payment in lieu of time off with pay.

Some Measure Required

The current furor concerning Canadians involved in the smuggling of gold and narcotics should produce some action on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has intimated that although the military personnel involved can be, and are being, disciplined under military law, there is no course of prosecution open with respect to the two civilians concerned. This is, apparently, due to the fact that they committed these crimes outside of Canada and hence cannot be tried under Canadian law.

Inasmuch as these people were employed by the External Affairs Department it would appear that some form of legislation is required regarding the conduct of such people who are officially representing Canada abroad. The absence of such legislation can serve only to encourage such activity amongst the morally weak or monetarily tempted in the future.

If nothing more than suspension from duty plus eventual dismissal from their positions is to face those who violate the trust placed in them as Canada's representatives, (which they are whether they may be only clerks in an embassy rather than diplomats), it can well be expected that future offences of this nature will occur.

The temptation to gain a large amount of easy money quickly is not easily refused by some. The fact that they can gain this money with only the mere risk of dismissal from a job to deter them is inadequate.

Perhaps an addition should be made to the Criminal Code for punishing those government employees guilty of misconduct in office whilst abroad and not under the immediate jurisdiction of Canadian law.

A broader approach might be to instigate some form of reciprocal agreements with other nations for the trial and punishment of citizens guilty of criminal offences.

The best approach, however, would be to have such an act as the smuggling or trafficking in narcotics made an international crime with trial held in an international court of law at the request of the country concerned.

A Requirement for Progress

For close to a century now this community has been served by the Chamber of Commerce. The duties of the chamber are manifold and reflect, and meet, many of the numerous needs of a growing and progressive community.

Currently the efficiency of this organization is threatened by a lack of quarters. Ironically it has been the expansion of an important firm in this community which has required that the chamber move from its present quarters.

The problem of new quarters is an important one, for the physical location of the Chamber of Commerce office in any community can have a considerable influence upon its efficiency in providing both the community and its visitors with the best possible service.

It is essential that these quarters be located close to the heart of the city, within easy access of those who use its facilities. For a number of years the local Chamber of Commerce has been able to do this despite frequent moves. It is hoped that it will be able to do so in its forthcoming move.

Better yet would be the establishment of permanent quarters. The chamber has been in existence long enough that its worth to the community has been well established. A permanent building or office should be considered. There are many younger chambers in communities of our size which have permanent quarters which form an attractive addition and showplace for their city and the area which they represent.

Serious consideration could be given this matter by those concerned — the executive of the Chamber of Commerce and the city and county, which subsidize its activities to certain extent.

Some of the loneliest people I know believe that other people owe them friendship. They don't. We have to win friendship by sharing our humanity with others in a way they enjoy.

Ottawa Offbeat

Current Epidemic of Political 'Smear' Sparked by Que. Man

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — With the Prime Minister suggesting that the Liberal leader is "soft" on communism . . . Mr. Pearson accusing Mr. Diefenbaker of using "cheap and degrading tactics" . . . Finance Minister Fleming charging that the Opposition is "anti-Canadian" . . . and just about everybody in the Commons, at the drop of a speech, getting into a personal slanging match . . . how much longer can the election be delayed?

The immediate cause of the dust, of course, was the name-calling on both sides of the Commons would seem to indicate that the Prime Minister could fire the starting gun tomorrow . . . next week . . . or month . . . and it wouldn't be a day too soon.

Certainly the two major political parties now are looking into the whites of each other's eyes, and it would surprise nobody on Parliament Hill if the shooting started any hour now.

In recent days, the Parliamentarians appear to have decided that just about anything goes.

The current epidemic of the political "smear" began with deliberate degrading and debasement of personalities. It can be traced back to Lucien Cardin, the young acid-tongued Liberal MP from Richelieu-Verchères.

AT FIRST, SILENCE

Against Prime Minister Diefenbaker he launched his personal attack of such ferocity as hasn't been heard in years of political warfare in Parliament.

He called the Prime Minister a demagogue and a hypocrite who regarded French-Canadians as "imbeciles".

Further, he pictured the PM as pompous, unstable, arrogant, envious, malicious an addict of what he variously termed "the big lie . . . the Nazi - style lie . . . the Far-East Machiavellian lie".

Such an attack would have been astounding enough had it come from some obscure backbencher, ignorant of Parliamentary rules, traditions and simple courtesies. But Mr. Cardin is no Commons freshman; he is, rather, a Liberal of some stature, in fact, one of Mr. Pearson's leading lieutenants.

Wisely, the Prime Minister ignored the assault on his political good name and character . . . and, very strangely, so did the Liberals.

Off the record they disclaimed any deliberate attempt at character assassination, but publicly said nothing.

The silence seemed to be that boys will be boys, even in Parliament.

But now, to their — and public service's — dismay, the stain of the "smear" is spreading.

Infuriated by the Cardin attack on the Prime Minister, some Conservatives have been slinging mud in reprisal.

Harry White, the Conservative veteran from Middlesex East, has charged Lester Pearson for Civil Servants with "disloyalty".

TOO LATE, PROTEST:

Could be that the Civil Servant he had in mind was Liberal Leader Pearson who before he entered politics 14 years ago was Secretary of the External Affairs Department.

For Mr. White considered that Mr. Pearson was awarded the Nobel Prize for siding with the Communists in civil disorders in Britain in the guez crisis.

Then Alvin Hamilton, Conservative MP for Bow River, took it a long step further, proclaiming that the Liberals formed "a cesspool of Civil Servants with Red fringes".

Was this one of the "smears" as a political weapon still only a little used by the Liberals of boys will be boys?

Not by a long string of agonized protests, it wasn't.

No ranking Conservative had charged that Mr. Pearson had any part in the Cardin attack on the Prime Minister.

But now the Liberals, in the person of Senator John Connolly, the party's national president and Charles T. Dolan; President, Frank G. Conklin; Vice-president, P. C. Lee; Treasurer, Frank Fitzpatrick; Secretary, D. H. Donoghue; Committee, J. Murphy, S. Garvin, F. Deacon, J. Wood — Secretary Lee and H. Hurley.

Mayor Charles A. Hanna is in Toronto on business.

How Chicago Got the Name 'Windy City'

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have written about this before, but I think we all need to be reminded every few years.

Whenever a friend of mine comes to visit Chicago, and it happens to be a windy day, he remarks, "I see why it's called the Windy City." Because hundreds of visitors have left here convinced that Chicago has a high wind more frequently and in greater velocity than most other cities.

Actually, Chicago ranks about thirtieth among American cities in point of wind velocity, it ranks about the same as Toledo in the last century, because of a very local tendency that was charged with blowing wind across Capitol Hill.

The illusion persists, be-cause, even though the reason has been quite forgotten, and people passing through will swear that nowhere else have they experienced such a high velocity or duration. They actually do not, as the records show.

This, of course, is a trivial example. What is important, however, is that the state of mind it indicates. We live by names and tags rather than by realities. We willingly take the name for the thing, and then react to our experience in order to fit our preconceptions.

It doesn't much matter that Chicago's weather is maligned, but it does matter that the habit usually use the same process of distortion in important matters. This is what semanticists mean by the tyranny of words.

I saw a dramatic example of the way in which this tyranny of words is overthrown a few weeks ago, on the NBC White Paper television show, "The Age of Overkill."

We had been hearing for a long time about "relief chiselers" in Newfoundland, and it was generally assumed that the amount of "chiseling" was mis-chief that had led to the cutting of relief in one month had been unjust and unreasonable.

But one of the program demonstrated how cruel and silly the satisfying fiction had been in its passion to heal real. It is fit a preconceived idea about "deadbeats on relief." It was a remarkable example of how in which careful reporting in depth can explore and explode many of the myths we all subscribe to, in one way or another.

Letter To the Editor

French Government Lotteries Resumed

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer:

Regarding an item on your editorial page of last Saturday's newspaper, which in turn was on excerpt from the Montreal Gazette, concerning the subject of government-run lotteries, may I make the following observations:

Government lotteries in France were indeed discontinued in 1936, but not for the reason alone that only 3½ per cent remained after wages and expenses were deducted. Rather it was the imminent war which caused the system to be stopped.

Secondly, France resumed operating its government-run lotteries some months after the war. In fact, every Wednesday, I believe, is the annual draw for the "Loan of 1920," and bonus lotteries at certain times of the year.

The purpose of this letter is not to try to agitate any particular lottery, but on the subject. But rather to set the record straight and not to have it leave unknown something which is common knowledge on one side of the Atlantic Ocean and unknown on the other side, as apparently is the case in the article.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DIVINE ANSWER

The whole answer to life is love. We never take the first step in the direction of wholesome and eternal living until we learn how to live.

The Bible is a study in love . . . God's love for man and man's love for his fellow creatures. When men find God they find love; until they find God, no devotion to church or creed will avail them anything.

Do you have some domestic problem that day by day stirs you out of countenance? God's answer to that is love. Do you have some twist in your nature that causes you to lose hope in mankind? Whether over self the answer to that is love. Does your heart burn with jealousy and your eyes with envy? God's answer to that situation is love. Do you hate someone until the words of forgiveness stick in your throat and will not come out? God's answer to that dark and foreboding reality is love.

God so loved the world that He did something about it — "He gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Christianity is the religion of love. It is God's love in redemptive action.

"But, Rollo — — apart from the broken tooth, wasn't it just about the best cherry pie you ever had?"

To Your Good Health

Angina Sufferers Should Exercise Bit at a Time

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a coronary thrombosis in May, about a year ago I developed angina pectoris. Previous to the angina, I would walk about 2½ miles a day.

I have had two opinions from cardiologists as to my walking. One says to take a nitroglycerin tablet and continue my walk. The other thinks that when I get the angina attack I should take the nitroglycerine and discontinue walking. What is your opinion? — C.J.

I can't quarrel with either doctor. But let me add a thought or two that may be helpful in resolving the question.

Angina pectoris (heart pain) attacks can and do occur in apparently healthy individuals, often some underlying factor is found, but not always. It can be coronary heart disease, a defect in a valve, certain types of anemia, excessive cholesterol in the blood — (controversial point), hyperthyroidism.

It naturally decline to guess about your case observed only by you and your doctors may possibly make the cause clear. It may or may not be associated with your trouble in 1957, it's worth suspecting that it is the course. That's just good sense.

Now with heart patients as well as others it's a mistake, except in acute illnesses, to prohibit exercise. Limiting the exercise to a useful amount is another matter. And walking in my opinion is the best exercise.

If a clear pattern develops of the pain being induced by too much exertion, this can be a warning that the heart is being forced to work harder than it should.

The trouble with many present-day marriages is that they become too much of a tied down affair. Marriage should be a true partnership with interests all the time intermingling.

Take a little trip quite often brings on the pain. Some patients learn to take a pill beforehand, say before walking from the parking lot and up. path to the office, thus preventing the pain. It's good practice.

The speed with which the patient does walking is important. Walk a little slower reduces the strain on the heart and can help allay or prevent an attack.

And it helps to take exercise in smaller doses. Instead of walking 2½ miles, why not two miles and a quarter, or four walks of half a mile or so? Let the heart rest and catch up between times; it will be better for the heart and will avoid a good deal of discomfort.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that the brain does not grow, but develops. — Mrs. B.H.

This is not correct. The brain grows from infancy to approximately puberty, increasing in weight about fourfold in that time.

Thereafter the brain, like any other part of the body, replaces itself by creating new cells at the same rate that old ones are lost.

In the case of severe injury, resulting in atrophy of some part, the lost tissue is actually decreased in size. Where convulsions result, use of anti-convulsant drugs often is a successful remedy.

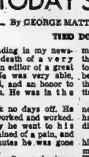
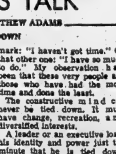
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



The people of the United States appear to be fonder of the sound of the human voice than are Canadians. Perhaps I might even say the dulcet sound of the human voice. As you tour about Dunwich in the central and southern states, remarking the various similarities and differences that you encounter along the way, you leave your radio on all the time. Any time you grope around with the dials to try to find some pleasant background music, you are very normally find at any hour of day back comes the human voice, and it is the sound of the announcers, it becomes very depressing. It is as if you were being needled all the time.



There was one exception. In a little southwestern city, around six p.m., we tuned in on what was announced, in a quiet, cultivated voice, as the Twilight Hour. We were invited to relax to some music. Sure enough, a familiar semi-classical recording was played. What a relief! But the instant the soft music ceased, there burst, like a machine gun, a raucous, nasal commercial, and as we reached the knob to turn off the fire-cracker, we were given the name the next soft, sweet recording. On the full range of the announcers of gentleness and violence continued; and I swear the blasting commercials were as effective as to defy any relaxing listener to hump fast enough to turn it off. It was a masterpiece of the huckster's art.

Creation of a Free World Should Be Prime Objective Of West, Rotary Club Told

The prime objective of the western nations today should be the creation of a free world, Mr. Paul Planovsky told local Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Planovsky, a former professor of geography in Czechoslovakia who was also active as a member of the Czech Parliament before the Communist takeover of the country, was speaking of his personal experiences with Communism as a captain in the Czech Free Army on the Russian front during the Second World War.

He noted that there was considerable confusion between the theory and practice of communism, which would lead to mask the true goals of Communism from the eyes of the west. It could not be denied, however, that Communism completely rejects any form of co-operation, compromise or coalition for an ultimate status quo, he advised and referred to Mr. Khushchev's recent remark to the effect that he expected the coming or the following generation of Americans to be Communists and live under Communist rule.

It is an absolute axiom in Communism that there is no halfway point as far as the application of and the theory of the Communist Party's campaign of imperialism is concerned and so far there has been no reason to suspect that this axiom is to be violated or disregarded by the current Communist leadership, Mr. Planovsky stated.

The speaker related a number of personal experiences which occurred during World War II and the years immediately preceding and following it in respect to Soviet Russia's Communism.

He advised that Russia's neighbors knew little or nothing about what happened in Russia with the exception of rumored atrocities which they gave little credence to until the Second World War opened up Russia and they met Russians first hand and visited their country.

It was then that the liquidation of the kulaks of Russia became they existed independent of the Communist government and refused to adhere to its plans was confirmed, he advised. He also found that Jews living in the USSR welcomed the opportunity of getting away long under a Nazi regime.

PUPILS BRAINWASHED

In the school system Mr. Planovsky found that the pupils were being brainwashed" to the point that it was not unusual to find children denouncing their parents as enemies of the state. "In several instances my Communists had actually erected monuments to Stalin and whose accusations had resulted in the execution of the other members of their family," he said.

He advised that the destruction or elimination of moral values in the Russian youth was completed to the point that they regarded the burial services for killed soldiers killed and buried in Russia as comedy shows.

There were, however, instances, mostly in the older generation, of people who clung to Christian or democratic ideals. There was little possibility of a revolt against the regime from these people due to the fact that everyone depends entirely upon the government for their livelihood and welfare and greatly fear the suppressive tactics of the Communist Party.

World War II brought great promises of better things for the Russian people in order to keep their support for the Communists and to enthuse them for a "holy war" against the Germans, the speaker said. Once the war was over, however, returning soldiers were repatriated or "brainwashed" for a period from six to 18 months before being allowed to go to their homes and the promises were soon forgotten, the speaker said.

He became a standing joke amongst the non-party members, he advised, that the Russian people were divided equally into three parts — the first composed of those who had been to prison, the second of those who were in prison and the third of those who were to go to prison Mr. Planovsky advised that he left before he graduated to the first or second group.

Mayor McLean thanked the speaker who had been introduced by Ernie Gurnett, Shadow Picton, Rotary president of the yearbook committee. Brothers Catholic College, was the guest student of the club. He was introduced by Rotarian Carl Ingamells.

Picton Theatre Will Close Down At Month's End

PICTON — Shocked by the suggestion of publication that one of its two semi-weekly newspapers, the Picton Times citizens of Picton and district received further bad news when it was announced yesterday that Picton is to lose its Regent Theatre.

The Regent will close doors at the end of the month. While it is not to be demolished, the services of a theatre, a drive-in and a restaurant will fill the vacancy in some measure.

The theatre, occupies an entire block in the heart of the town's main street. It has been purchased by John Colden, proprietor of the associate store of Canadian Tire Corp.

The theatre will be converted to the jewelry store at the east side, with a series of offices behind it. The main section will be devoted to the company's purchasing with additional services provided at the rear. It is expected to open in September after extensive renovations.

The theatre was offered to the town as a civic centre and location for offices which are scattered over the town, but council took no apparent interest in the $150,000 offer.

Since the introduction of television, attendance at the movies has steadily declined. George Cook, a veteran among theatre owners, died in December, 1959 and since then the business has been operated by Mrs. Cook and her daughter, Miss Louise Cook.

It is one of the most modern theatres in this part of Ontario and seats 750 persons. At the rear is a tall tower building used to hold scenery in the days when many famed traveling shows came. It was built by Mr. Cook in 1918 and many improvements were added each year.

Mr. Colden has operated a Canadian Tire Associate store here for four years and feels the new location will provide an opportunity to expand. "I think there are great things ahead for Picton," he said.

PICTON — A large number of new Canadians were present at the laying of the cornerstone of Bloomfield Christian Reformed Church at Bloomfield, five miles west of Picton, at the weekend. The church serves some 400 residents of Prince Edward County, Dutch descent, most of whom came to Canada since 1945. The church building formerly located on this site was torn down last fall when it became too small for the growing congregation.

The new building is constructed of chocolate brown brick at total estimated cost of $68,000. The main auditorium has a seating capacity of 400 and is finished in turquoise and cream, with laminated arches in natural wood finish. The basement has a second auditorium, with seating for 200, also six classrooms and a nursery, a kitchen, two washrooms and a modern steam heating plant.

Some of those attending the ceremony are shown above.

Picton Times Closes Doors After 109 Years Operation

PICTON (Special) — Picton is now a one-newspaper town. The Picton Times Publishing Company Limited, which has published a weekly newspaper, and later a semi-weekly, has discontinued publication. It was in its 109th year.

This County Picton with one paper, the semi-weekly Picton Gazette, which is in its 132nd year.

The last issue of The Times was published on March 15 but did not contain any announcement of its demise, since, according to editor and manager William J. McLean, a definite decision was not made until the weekend.

It is not planned to publish further editions, Mr. McLean stated. Nor is it planned to offer the business for sale as a going concern. "We will liquidate the business, selling all the equipment," he said.

For a short time the plant will operate to complete printing orders and then close its doors.

The Times is a victim of changing times and increased operations in the newspaper field. Changing staff and further impending changes of staff members who have been with the paper contributed to the decision to quit. For more than a year, Mr. McLean and his sister, Mrs. Aileen Thomas, have been operating the business in addition but have found it too great a physical burden.

Rising costs have been coupled with increased book work and detail occasioned by new regulations Mr. McLean said. Difficulty in securing experienced help and the premium wages necessary were other factors which contributed to the decision.

VOICE OF LIBERALISM

The Picton Times has been the voice of Liberalism since it was founded: May 30, 1854, by Dr. George Gillespie and Robert Boyle, the latter was editor and the former in charge of the shop.

Dr. Gillespie retired in 1857 and Boyle became the publisher, filling this role for 23 years, he sold to Hiram Weibanks who amalgamated the Times with the North American and the New Nation and called the paper the New Nation and Times.

Welbanks sold to J. J. Bell who operated it for a few months only, with Robert Harkness taking over in 1880. He died a year later and his family carried on until 1885 when it was purchased by John William McLean, grandfather of W. G. McLean, and it has been in the family since that time.

J. W. McLean died in 1902 and from until 1901 until his death in February 1913 it was carried on by his son, Peter Sommerville McLean. With no children of age to operate the business, the editorship was resumed by the late William Steel and he continued for twenty years.

From 1934 until February 1938, a son of Peter, Roy McLean, now editor of the Kelowna, B.C. Daily Courier was editor. William G. McLean, who had started as an apprentice in 1930, took over in 1934 and has since been in charge except during the war years when he was in the service when W. G. Clow was editor. Mr. Clow has been a linotype operator with the Times for 53 years.

W. G. McLean has associated with his father, Mrs. Thomas and his son, Peter McLean, a capable student was the fourth generation to own it.

The Times has been noted as an excellent newspaper but two newspapers in one town of 5,000 has proved a losing proposition for at least one of them.

brought any break in the deadlock over Russia's refusal to admit foreign inspectors to assure compliance with a test ban.

Home rejected Gromyko's charge that the Western powers want foreign inspectors in Russia to act as "Western spies.

"We are not interested in espionage," he told the conference. "All we ask for is the bare minimum of verification."

Some inspection might be carried out by citizens of neutral or non - aligned countries, Home suggested.

ENDORSES CANADA'S PLAN

He also endorsed the Canadian proposal put forward Monday by External Affairs Minister Green designed to find areas of agreement between rival East-West plans on disarmament.

Said Lord Home:

"I suggest that we should first adopt the proposal of Mr. Green and select from the Russian draft treaty and the United States plan the subjects on which there is agreement."

Green had listed seven areas of possible accord. On them, Home said, "we should frame definite procedures and the drafting of treaties should begin."

Home also hammered on the Western view, which Rusk had spelled out, that disarmament must be accompanied by an expanding inspection system which would check not only on the arms destroyed but on those retained in each nation's armed forces.

"Nations wage war with weapons they possess, not with those they have destroyed," he said.

Company Would Build Store if Requests Met

Construction of a department store on property immediately to the east of the Belleville Shopping Plaza is planned by Principle Investments Ltd. of Toronto providing city council will give assurance that two conditions will be met.

The request is that the city-law 6413 be rescinded to allow the opening of a department store each evening from Monday through Saturday and that the zoning of the area be amended to permit the construction of a commercial development.

The two requests were before council at Monday's meeting, both being referred for committee consideration.

The council finance and executive committees will consider the request for night store operation while the matter of rezoning will be considered by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

The property for which the department store is planned is the Rollins property between Dundas and Bridge streets. There was no indication of what department store desired to locate in the area.

Proposal to Put Municipal, School Affairs Under One Body Hot Political Issue

EDMONTON (CP)—A provincial government proposal that would allow either to put municipal and school affairs under a single body has flashed into the hottest political issue in Alberta in a year.

It also has ignited a religious side issue that the government has sought to avoid.

Focal point of the dispute is a government proposal to open the door for urban centres to adopt a county system of local government which would result in public school boards being swept out.

The proposal is embodied in a bill now before the legislature, which will be the subject of a special hearing that starts Thursday.

Opponents are advancing many of the arguments also used in 1950 when the legislature passed an act permitting establishment of rural counties, responsible only for municipal and school matters.

In districts outside the county system, where today the county and major urban areas elected public and separate school boards administer schools. Taxpayers declare whether their children will attend separate or public schools and are taxed accordingly.

The bill now before the legislature would permit urban centres to adopt the county system. Public school boards in these areas would be scrapped.

Separate school boards would not be affected. While separate school supporters would be elected to county council they would not sit on the school committee.

This has led to charges of religious discrimination.

As in 1950 school boards and teachers' groups are the staunchest opposition group.

While the government has tried to avoid religion in the debate, the section of the bill that precludes separate school supporters from sitting on the school committee has led to claims that such men will be in an unfair position in county elections.

Some opponents in Calgary suggest the religious restriction in aldermen would prejudice chances of a Roman Catholic candidate for council. They say in politics opponents could claim a Roman Catholic's election in any ward would leave the ward with no voice in school matters.

of Hamilton Falls, B.C.'s Peace River, the Yukon River and other remote power sources would benefit from such transmission to industrial areas.

In preliminary statements to the closed - door meeting the provinces outlined their prospective contributions to a national grid. Only heavily-industrialized Ontario appeared to qualify as a power - deficient province. Saskatchewan, Manitoba and others talked of filling Ontario demands.

SAY PROVINCIAL

Quebec spurned the conference on grounds the federal government is meddling in a provincial matter. A power grid is on the agenda will be a third annual premiers' conference at Victoria this summer.

However, Quebec was invited to take part in the working committee which is to set up.

Resources Minister Dinsdale, conference chairman, said Monday's results exceeded expectations. He expressed hope that the results will be available in four to six weeks. An initial committee meeting will be held here shortly and further meetings planned before a report to another conference.

Maybe a loose shingle started it. Or worn-out weather stripping. Or a gnawing band of termites. Whatever it was, plugging a leak properly can be expensive—and, of course, the longer it's left, the more costly a repair becomes. Yes, keeping a house in shape sometimes costs a lot of money, and occasionally it may cost more than you have on hand. What then? Mr., Mrs. Arthur Landry Mark Golden Wedding

Memories of sleigh bells and cutter rides through the fields, when winter roads were plugged deep with snow, were recalled today by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Landry of R.R. 1 Rossmore, who are observing the 50th anniversary of their marriage.

The couple were married at the Methodist parsonage at Napanee on March 20, 1912, by the Rev. Mr. Cassidy and have lived on the farm at Rossmore since 1927. Both are 71.

"I miss the cutter rides and also the sleigh bells on the horses and buggy", stated Mrs. Landry, the former Ida Ketler of North Fredericksburg in the Napanee area. Mr. Landry was born in the Melrose district.

The couple lived in the Picton area for 15 years, purchasing the 140 acre farm at Rossmore which they have operated and cooperates. Mr. Landry has been retired from the farm for the past few years although he still "helps out just to have something to do".

HOLD 'AT HOME'

Today the couple are "at home" to close friends and neighbors. Anniversary congratulations were received from Prince Minister John Diefenbaker, and also from Mr. Clarence Milligan, Federal M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox.

They are members of Redgrave-Pike United Church.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

ETIQUETTE GOES COLLEGIATE

As if anyone didn't know, good manners are very much a part of modern college life.

The stereotype of the sloppy collegian, complete with guitar, scanty sarong, pork pie hat, raccoon coat and scuffed buck shin shoes has gone the way of the open trolley car and the Stutz Bearcat.

After all, students of the 30's and 40's merely reflected the spirit of the time, both in speech and manners. The average modern student is more serious about life, and tends to look with contempt on the "kid stuff" that a few individualists on campus still practice.

There seem to be two major factors involved in this welcome development. First, there has been a definite trend by college administrative officials to prune to their students that they have left high school far behind and that they are big boys and girls now. The, second is the student's growing awareness that proper habits of behavior cultivated at school are almost as important in later professional life as is the book knowledge they absorb.

As a result, certain social customs have evolved that make campus life, now and for a time, keep the fun in college life.

For example, at Beloit College in Beloit, Wisc., typical of many small liberal arts institutes of schools, dress is informal during the day but smarter at night. Men students put on coats and ties for dates and other social events at the college. The girls hang shorts and skirts in the closet and wear dresses and hose instead.

Time was when the average woman undergraduate wore her informal gowns to a frazzle. But not anymore. Dean Deborah Townsend, assistant dean of students at Beloit, notes that formal dress is considered old-fashioned. Instead, the girls now wear cocktail dresses to dress-up occasions and the boys usually wear dark suits. A custom generally observed in most social circles.

Chivalry has returned to the campus, too, even if it means that it's the boy who pays. "Dutch treat" dates at the sweet shop are mostly a thing of the past — and the man picks up the check. Further, shorts girls used to be invited out to dinner with all the trimmings so they can dress up and be admired.

All the same, at Beloit, at least, the man with the beanbrain is not necessarily the most popular. As at most colleges the students have a choice of free by low-admission events like lectures, concerts, discussions, record dances, open houses, parties, mixer parties, bridge tournaments and similar organized events.

What count most are personality, charm and maturity — the 10 hallmarks of modern etiquette. As Dean Townsend notes:

"I feel that student attitudes are changing. Much of their life is increasingly healthy. In the first place, many realize their main job is to get an education, and with the competitive academic pressures and challenges that exist, they are not as likely to get involved in extracurricular activities, interfere.

"Nowadays, there certainly is much less pressure to 'keep up with the Joneses in dress or entertainment, and the so-called big spenders among students are no happier or more popular than students willing to buy a shoe string. There's enough to do without spending money. And the thing most students like to do as well as anything else is talk — is still pretty free."

Daily Salads Should Be Different

by Mary Moore

About three weeks ago I promised to give you more salads and since Sue was here last month and endless all between her private property we had a salad making session. To protect her baby fingers from my knife I gave her a spoon for stirring (and tasting).

Some of you girls complain to me that your salads are always the same. Today's effort shows you how to make them different and an extra big dollop of sour cream that Sue added of her own made a top-notch change in our tossed greens (see below).

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Lamb Stew with Dumplings; Cubed Turnip with Chopped Tomato and Green Pepper; Celery and Olives; Grapefruit with Fruit Topping (see Monday); Crackers and Assorted Cheese; Tea.

COLESLAW WITH FRUIT:

4 to 5 cups finely shredded cabbage, ½ to 1 cup sour cream, 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ to 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup grapefruit sections or halved and seeded grapes.

Mix the cream and lemon juice, salt and mustard. Toss the cabbage with the dressing. Add the grapefruit sections or grapes, chilled and drained and toss gently.

GREEN SALAD WITH SEED DRESSING:

1 tablespoon poppy or sesame seeds, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon MSG (accent), 3 tablespoons salad oil (preferably olive), 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small head chicory, 1 small head Boston or leaf lettuce, 1 small to ½ medium cucumber.

If possible crush seeds with salt, using a mortar and pestle or pound with wooden handle of a heavy tenderizing knife. Add other dressing ingredients and beat with a fork or cruet with a lid or stopper. Place torn leaves of chicory and lettuce in a salad bowl. Just before serving. Add cubes or slices of cucumber. Shake dressing until well mixed and pour just enough over the greens to coat them. Toss and taste for seasoning.

TOSSED GREENS (to serve 6):

¼ medium head Iceberg lettuce, 1 medium head leaf lettuce, 10 leaves spinach, ½ cup chopped parsley, ½ cup chopped cut inner celery, ½ of medium unpared cucumber sliced wafer thin, ½ teaspoon MSG (accent), ½ teaspoon salt, mayonnaise, sour cream, 2 tablespoons grated old Cheddar or crumbled Roquefort (optional).

Combine greens in large mixing bowl. Sprinkle with MSG and salt. Cover and put in refrigerator to chill for 15 minutes. Just before taking to table add enough genuine mayonnaise and sour cream to moisten — about 1-3 cup each.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

MARMORA — The regular March meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on March 15th at the home of Mrs. James Nobes with 14 members and one visitor.

Mrs. George Empey chaired the meeting. The roll call was "Health hints on home nursing" and brought a good response. Secretary's report showed a balance of $35 after expenses from the "Valentine Tea" and bake sale. Correspondence was read and acted upon. It was decided to send $5. as usual to the Mental Health Association.

A letter from the Hastings Museum was read by the member, Miss A. A. Richards. A motion was carried to send the membership fee again this year. The open dates and times of the museum were given which also stated that a branch would be permitted to visit in a body, which the members agreed would be considered at a later date.

Mrs. Percy Gordon and Mrs. J. P. O'Neill were asked to bring in a slate of officers at the next meeting.

Mrs. G. Empey and Mrs. P. J. O'Neill attended the leadership class on "Fruits" in Madoc and are teaching high school students in the high school home economics room on stated evenings. They held their first class early Wednesday evening.

As it was health night, Mrs. J. R. Barker, Reg. N., was guest speaker. She spoke on the value of rehabilitation following serious illness and solicited, in being considered an important phase in the nursing of today.

Mrs. J. E. Belanger thanked Mrs. Baker for her interesting talk.

Mrs. R. E. Neal gave a humorous reading "Bridget Mahoney Organizes a Club".

Mrs. L. Green read a poem on friends called, "If I Now".

Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. J. E. Belanger as leader.

Hostesses Mrs. F. 'Grant, Mrs. W. Tinsdill and Mrs. Nobes served lunch.

UNIVERSITY EDITOR — Editor Heather Robertson makes up another edition of The Manitoban, University of Manitoba student newspaper which has campaigned this year against many campus traditions from fraternities to rah-rah football. The 19-year-old co-ed believes that by stirring up controversies the newspaper will make students think. (CP Photo).

Youth Column

Controversy Is Personal Byword for School Editor

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Controversy is the personal byword of an attractive, blue-eyed 19-year-old co-ed who edits the University of Manitoba student newspaper.

Heather Robertson says her whole idea is to destroy sacred cows and make people think.

"As long as people are thinking," the honors English student said in an interview. "I don't care what they think."

Using The Manitoban as a resounding board, she has attacked everything from fraternities to football with equal zest.

"Everybody hates me," she said cheerfully, "but I don't mind."

A Manitoban editorial praised the New Democratic Party and brought the wrath of campus Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

BLASTS TIGHT SLACKS

An editorial stand against university football brought indignant outcries from what Miss Robertson terms "the rah, rah element."

A blast at sororities and fraternities brought a similar result. So did a carefully aimed barb at girls in tight slacks, a popular campus uniform.

Each of the twice - weekly issues is sure to bring a new stand on some subject of campus interest. The paper has raised so many hackles it has become a campus political issue.

Marshall Robstein was elected president of the Students' Union on a platform that included a promise to set up a board to review The Manitoban's forthright politics.

But Miss Robertson, tall, brown-haired and self-assured, said Mr. Robstein has left her alone "to stir up all the students who have gone along with the mass approach to things."

Now in the fourth year of a five-year course, Heather says her post-graduation plans are indefinite but newspaper work is out because she feels it lacks challenge.

DATES INTELLECTUALS

The future may hold magazine work or writing novels, with some travel tossed in. She dates, campus intellectuals but has no marriage plans.

She spends 20 hours a week producing a publication that deemphasizes hard news in favor of features, reviews and prickly editorials.

"I'm convinced the paper should be an expression of what the students are thinking instead of what they are doing."

She says other college newspapers that emphasize hard news are not taking full advantage of their opportunity.

"I think a student paper fills a unique position. It is not dependent upon circulation or advertising. Its income is assured. We can say or do anything, and we don't have to listen to any political party or pressure group."

The university administration seems to agree. No matter how much hot water she gets into, Miss Robertson is left alone. For this Miss Robertson is full of praise, a rare thing for her.

Frankford YPS Attends Council Meet

Frankford United Church Young People met in the Lowery Hall on Sunday evening with record attendance due to High School Band, but 16 boys and five girls saw some good pictures and listened to some lively records from the Ecumenical Youth Conference at Aston Arbor, Mich.

Ian Reilly of Wellington, a national delegate to United Church Young People, represented the Bay of Quinte Conference at that intercontinental council, 2000 young people attended from all over the world, 200 of them from the United Church of Canada.

The meeting was opened with a sing-along led by Gloria Ireson of Stockdale and a worship service based on John 15-1-16, read by Judy Reilly, with Donna Chase talking about climbing mountains and reaching the Mount Everest of life by choosing Christ to be with you all the time.

Mrs. E.P. — John and the baby should move in with us.

John P. — I want my daughter to live with where we were all so happy.

Mrs. E.P. — When my wonderful daughter-in-law passed away last year everyone took it for granted that John and their 5-year-old daughter would come to my house to live. But instead John engaged a housekeeper to keep his home running and to watch over the child until he returns from work.

That seems so unnatural. The housekeeper is a prim old type of person who may be very good at keeping the bed made and the meals well-balanced, but she has no real feeling for poor little Ellen. That tiny girl is orphaned and needs the kind of cuddling I could give her. With this arrangement, John is depriving boy of the warm home I'm offering them both.

John P. — My reasons for maintaining my own home are quite simple. I want to work, all I know is that this place is very precious to me and to Ellen. I feel that I would let her down if at that, without making me decide, I send my decision over and over.

What can be more natural than for me and my child to stay on in the home we shared with our missing one? My lovely wife planted this corner for our comfort. Ellen's life goes on here without too great a disturbance. Instead of her mother calling for her at nursery school, Lois does. And Lois's very kind and considerate. She was an orphan herself.

Mother would do well, Ellen and I belong in our own home.

The Council: We'll bet many of our readers will be interested, especially, draw the same conclusions as the writer, from the-lines here, namely: Has the housekeeper had it "out" with Mrs. F. and suggested she help herself scarce? Does Mrs. P. want to keep a weather eye on John's social life, lest he spring a new daughter-in-law on her suddenly? Does she try a little sampling of the beneath-the-surface angles which an outsider, looking for angles, might come up with in this case.

But, to be fair, we must say that both principals have assumed a "natural" position. And since compromise may become smoothly achieved by Mrs. P., deferring to John, rather than vice versa, our comments will be directed to what she can do for young Ellen from a separate address.

Accepting the housekeeper-but home as here to stay, Mrs. P. can prove herself Grandmother Supreme by offering to fill in the blanks, not as she defines them, but as worked out jointly by John, almost-4 Ellen and Lois. Certainly there will be days for Grandma to meet the child at nursery school and be her companion for the rest of the day. And there will be cozy overnights for the child, either at Grandma's house or at Ellen's. Instead of devoting herself to being a complete stranger to this little girl, Mrs. P. can fill the breach and ease the adjustment considerably by being a loving and attentive grandmother. Every kid needs one.

Thus, if John should remarry, the transition involves less of a wrench for this already-jarred youngster. As a mother, as well as a grandmother, Mrs. P. must not lose sight of, nor discourage, this possibility. Even though Ellen might garner a bit more love and attention from Mrs. P. under the latter's roof, John might feel uncomfortable there. He feels a strong need for the surroundings he and his late wife assembled to, gether.

Of what gain to Ellen would it be to live with a delighted grandma, but a disconsolate dad?

Resists All Friendly Advances

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Last summer I became interested in a girl who works where I do. We are both in our thirties. When I asked her out for a drive she said she would go. Then when I went to see her she said it had been decided that it would not be right for her to go out with anyone right now.

Then she said that she had gone with a fellow for a few years and he had used her mean. She has not been out with anyone for ten years. But she said she didn't have anything against me.

In a month's time I wrote her a nice friendly letter and she replied that if I respected her I would not phone her or write to her any more.

She has been the first person I have thought enough of to want to take out in years and I had my hopes up that she might want to go. But there doesn't seem to be much else left to do.

Should I forget her altogether or be a little more persuasive?—HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL—Give up. She really means no.

But don't be a hermit. Go where other nice girls are and start seeing their virtues. A bachelor in his thirties should be having fun — and planning his future.

DEAR DORIS:—I am to be matron of honor at a wedding. Pork is being served at the wedding dinner and since I have an ulcer, it is one of the things I cannot touch. It would make me sick for the rest of the day, and the next day too.

How can I gracefully avoid sitting in front of a full plate and not eating anything?

The last wedding I was at I could only eat the turkey and mashed potatoes, and felt everyone was watching me when I said nothing but just kind of picked it away.—DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED:—Caterers know enough to cater to guests who need something special. Many a glass of milk and innocuous omelette are set before one or more diners at weddings and other affairs.

Your bride wants you to enjoy yourself. Ask her about your problem and she can pass it on to her caterers ahead of time with her request that you have what you can safely eat and enjoy.

DEAR DORIS:—I am nearly 16 years old and have been going with a guy of 20. He is a very nice boy and has a perfect personality. When he comes over, quite often, he never asks me to go anyplace with him. Never. One day he told me his parents did not want him to see me anymore and that we should stop seeing each other.

Mom and Dad are upset about this. Because we broke up they will not allow me to go out with any other boy or have my friends over to my house. I cannot go over to their place either. Is this the proper thing for them to do?—ALL MIXED UP.

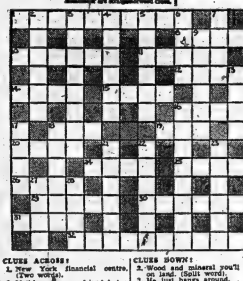
DEAR ALL MIXED UP:—Are they planning to keep you under lock and key all your life? Is there some good reason for such treatment? It seems incredible, in this day and age.



As for his boy, IS would say you are well rid of him. He is too old for you; he is a cheapskate; and his parents don't approve of you anyway.

STOP THINKING

Man is often told "As far as religion is concerned, stop thinking! Our church has all the answers. There is no need for you to think. Simply believe."

If you have lost faith in religion because you insist on thinking for yourself, then you should know about the Unitarians.

In Unitarian Sunday Schools, children learn to reverence life, to appreciate the miracle of creative processes, to wonder about unknowns. They learn that as Unitarians they must think for themselves, from their own honest convictions, and be prepared to proclaim the truth as they see it.

Jewish Taxpayer Ruled Eligible To Sit on Board

MONTREAL (CP) — Magistrate's Court has ruled that a Jewish taxpayer is eligible to sit on the Protestant school board of suburban St. Martin.

The decision went directly against a ruling of the Privy Council more than 30 years ago and opened the way for Harvey Grotsky, a St. Martin advertising man, to become the first Jew to be provincially ever elected to a school board.

Judge Rene Lippe ruled Saturday that St. Martin should annul the election of William C. Henderson to its school board last July 10 and call a new election April 2.

Mr. Grotsky's nomination last July had been rejected by the board's secretary-treasurer on grounds that Mr. Grotsky was not a Protestant. Mr. Grotsky went to court.

Under Quebec's Education Act, which divides school jurisdiction into Protestant and Roman Catholic boards, Jews are considered Protestant for property tax purposes.

Mr. Henderson won the election 31 to 11 over his official opponent, William Treloar. However there were 100 ballots on which the voters had written in Mr. Grotsky's name.

Carmel

CARMEL — There was a large number from here who attended church service last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Blackburn spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ceman Dafoe on Sunday.

The World Day of Prayer service was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Reynolds last Friday evening with a good number in attendance.

Mr. D. Hopkins had the misfortune to injure his knee at school in Belleville.

Recent callers at the home of Mrs. H. Dafoe were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fischett of Stirling.

Miss Susan Dafoe spent Saturday evening with her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott and family attended church service at Carmel Church on Sunday, after which a family get-together in honor of Mrs. H. Elliott was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds, on the occasion of Mrs. Elliott's birthday.

The local cheese factory will soon be opened for the season with Mr. Elliott as cheesemaker.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Howes called on Sunday afternoon on Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Patterson spent a recent day in Stirling with Mr. Patterson's sister, Mrs. Pitman.

Soviet Union Has Cut Credit For Red China

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union has cut off all credit for Communist China and is pressing the Chinese for payment of military equipment supplied during the Korean War, The Observer says.

The Sunday newspaper says in a Hong Kong dispatch that the Russian move was part of the present "bitter ideological dispute between Russia and China."

The Observer's correspondent, Dennis Bloodworth, says this is having "far-reaching and very damaging effects on China's economy."

The weekly also says the Russians have withdrawn all Soviet technicians "with disastrous suddenness" from Red China and adds:

"The Russians have not only failed to grant China any more credits but are reported to have asked Peking to foot a bill this year for all aid in money and munitions that the U.S.S.R. supplied to maintain the Chinese armies in the field during the Korean war. It was originally agreed that the Soviet Union would meet the expense herself."

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Napoleon's tin buttons, the balloonsphere and rocketships in the space age.

DISAPPEARING BUTTONS

Napoleon's troops lost their buttons and medals during their retreat from Russia in 1812. Made of tin, they simply disintegrated into fine powder as the intense cold changed the crystal structure of the metal. And Capt. Robert Scott on his fatal trip to the South pole lost food and fuel from tin-soldered cans for the same reason.

This physical effect on metals from extreme temperatures is known as transformation. It could vitally affect metals in atomic reactors operating in areas of extreme temperatures and the metals in space rockets.

One such study seeking fundamental knowledge about effects on stainless steel is being carried out by Dr. Henry M. Otte and John Death of the Martin Company's Research Institute for Advanced Study, under a U.S. atomic energy commission grant. Stainless steel undergoes complex atomic rearrangements under extreme temperatures.

HELIOSPHERE

Physicist William B. Hanson offers the name "balloonsphere" for a newly-found sphere of gaseous matter, composed primarily of helium ions, surrounding the earth.

The balloonsphere separates the ionosphere — composed largely of oxygen ions — from the protonosphere which stretches great distances from the earth, says Dr. Hanson of Lockheed Missiles and Space Company.

He detected it in analyzing data from high-altitude rockets, specifically on experimental ion probe measurement made by Dr. L. C. Hale of Los Alamos Radiation Laboratory.

GOLD SUIT

Space age missile and rocket men may one day wear 24-karat gold suits for protection from fiery and corrosive hazards of working with exotic chemical fuels.

The suit is a light-weight fabric with a surface of plastic film coated with pure metallic gold. The gold surface can safely reflect instantaneous flash temperatures (from an explosion, for example) as high as 3,000 degrees, fahrenheit, and sustained temperatures as high as 500 degrees, says the Du Pont Company. The material also is unaffected by virtually all known chemicals.

Producing the gold coating is tricky. The gold first is reduced to a vapor, then deposited on the plastic film under vacuum.

SPACE AGE

The first four years of the space age saw the Soviet Union and the United States successfully launch 70 successful satellites and space probes.

HALLEY'S RETURN

Astronomers estimate that Halley's comet, which becomes visible from the earth every 76 years, will return to view some time in 1986.

Stirling

STIRLING—On Friday evening of last week the Men's Club of St. John's Anglican parish commenced their series of fish and chip suppers. These will be held each week throughout the Lenten season. A large number of patrons were in attendance at the first supper.

On Shrove Tuesday St. John's Anglican Guild served a pancake supper in the parish hall and this event was well attended.

Mrs. James Palmer is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Major Fraser was tendered a birthday supper on the occasion of his 81st birthday. He is still keenly interested in sports and reads.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Mouck entertained in honor of the 87th birthday of Mr. Abner Mouck on Sunday. Guests were present from Toronto, Port Credit, Peterborough and, also Mr. and Mrs. P. Toomsey and Mrs. Laura Bateman, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Basil Chilvers and daughters, Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cleaver, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hall, and Messrs. Clarence Mouck and Earl Graham of Tweed.

Miss Frieda Mathews has recently been appointed director of the Immigration Department of the Presbyterian Church in Canada with headquarters in Montreal. Frieda was a former Stirling girl and she has held several executive positions in connection with the missionary work of the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. W. T. Elliott sponsored the second card party at her home in aid of the Stirling Lawn Bowling Club and a third party is planned for April. There were two tables of bridge with the winners Mrs. John L. Good and Mrs. K. West, who also won the travelling prize. There were seven tables of euchre with the winners being Mrs. K. Cooke and Mr. Burton Woodbeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Prucha of Toronto spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleston.

Mrs. Peter Robertson and children of Alberni B.C. spent sometime with her sister, Mrs. Edwin Warren and Mr. Warren and attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Gerald Dickson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hatton, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Mouck, Mr. and Mrs. Nic Kimball spent a few days in Toronto. The men attended the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association at the Royal York Hotel.

Sue Ann Bastedo of Stirling and Joan Bronson of Madoc tied for third place at the inspectorate finals of the public school oratorical contest held in Madoc. A large number of interested parents and friends were in attendance.

Mrs. Walter T. Elliott spent Monday in Hamilton and attended the funeral of the former Grand Patron of the Eastern Star, Mr. William Dyson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vance have returned home from the sunny south.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Armstrong spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Donnan at Clarkson.

Bathgate Two Up; Two Games To Play

Hawks, Hull Have Three

MONTREAL (CP) — Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers continues, so hold a slim two-point lead over Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks in the race for the National Hockey League individual scoring crown.

Bathgate, seeking his first scoring title, and Hull, after his second, each picked up three points in last week's play, giving the New York right winger a season total of 82 and the Chicago left winger 80.

New York has only two more games to play and Chicago three as the league winds up its 70-game schedule Sunday night.

Bathgate scored his 36th and 37th goals and also drew his 55th assist—tops in the league—last week, according to official league statistics released today.

Hull, meanwhile, scored three times, running goals total to 47. The muscular winger has potted an amazing 32 goals in his last 32 games.

ADDS FOUR POINTS

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings counted a goal and 32nd assist and added two assists to bring on to third place with 75 points.

Stan Mikita, brilliant Chicago play-maker, ranks fourth with 73. Mikita scored once and collected two assists last week.

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs is fifth with 70 points. He got a goal and an assist last week.

Goalie Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens allowed 16 goals in four games, and his once - commanding lead over Johnny Bower in the race for the Vezina Trophy was reduced to nine goals.

The Vezina is awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allowed the fewest goals.

Plante's goals-against average now is 2.39, compared with 2.28 a week ago. Bower didn't play last week, but his substitute, Don Simmons, gave up only seven goals in three games and the team's average stands at 2.52.

Chicago continues as the most penalized club with 832 minutes, 102 more than runner-up Montreal's total.

Defenceman Lou Fontinato of Canadiens is the league's most penalized player with 187 minutes. Teammate Dickie Moore and Ted Green of the Bruins is second with 155.

Likes Pros, 'How Much Do They Pay?'

Star Swede Goalie Aiming High

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Lennart Haggroth, the sensational goalie who led Sweden to the world amateur hockey title, is aiming for a repeat job with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

"I'm very much interested in playing professional hockey in the United States," said the blonde, 22-year-old Monday but before boarding a chartered plane for home. And, in the next breath, he asked: "How much do they pay?"

The Bruins put Haggroth on their negotiation list last week after his brilliant performances in Sweden's 2-1 victory over the U.S. nationals and 5-3 success over Canada, defending champions. These triumphs enabled the Swedes to finish with a 7-0 record. Canada, Czak Terriers were second with a 6-1 mark and the Americans third with 5-2.

"I'm very happy myself in real good condition and then show Boston what I can do in training camp this September," said Haggroth. He added: "Then they'll have to give me a good contract."

"Say, how much money do Glenn Hall (Chicago and Jacques Plante (Montreal) make playing goal in professional hockey?" he asked again. Told they were close to or in the $30,000 bracket, Haggroth said: "I don't expect that much to start, but maybe later on, eh?"

Haggroth's performance was similar to Jack McCartan's fine goaltending in leading the U.S. nationals to victory in the 1960 olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. McCartan turned pro with New York Rangers right after the tournament. He is property of Rangers' farm team, Kitchener-Waterloo, that will be in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

"I think he (Haggroth) is a good goalie," said Walter Brown, president of the Bruins and an official of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States. "We certainly have been having trouble with our goalies." The last - place Bruins have used Don Head and Bruce Gamble in goal this season.

Tod Sloan and Jackie McLeod of the Canadian team, both former NHL players, were divided in the opinion of Haggroth's ability.

"He has a great pair of hands and tremendous reflexes," said Sloan. "He's about on par with McCartan right now."

"I don't think he's too good," insisted McLeod, who played for the Rangers. "They've got a few goalies in junior hockey back home who are as good or even better."

Macs Play Back-to-Back With Kingston

The Belleville McFarlands are facing their two most important nights of the hockey season this evening and tomorrow night when they meet the Kingston Frontenacs in the third and fourth games of their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals.

Ice trouble here last Friday robbed the Macs of the home-ice advantage, at least temporarily and also washed out what was expected to be the largest crowd of the season for a junior game.

Friday's games was postponed as now the third game of the best-of-seven series, tied 1-1, will be played in Kingston tonight. The fourth game is slated for Memorial Arena here tomorrow night at 8.30.

The Macs must win at least one of the back-to-back encounters or they will be on the brink of elimination. On the other hand, a pair of wins would put Cordie Bell's boys in the driver's seat.

A number of local fans are expected to make the trip to Kingston tonight and, despite the mid-week date, tomorrow night's tilt here should draw well over the 1,000 mark.

Don't forget, Wednesday's game here is slated for 8.30, half an hour earlier than the Friday night games.

Brewer Undergoes Surgery

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman-Carl Brewer of Toronto Maple Leafs was in satisfactory condition in hospital Monday night following an operation for a severe shinbruise on the left side of his left thigh.

Brewer, 23, was injured Sunday night when he collided with Andy Bathgate of New York during the second period of a National Hockey League game here which ended in a 2-2 tie.

Leafs' coach Punch Imlach did not play Brewer during the third period. During the trip home Brewer's leg stiffened up and he was taken directly to hospital after the plane landed.

Leafs officials said internal bleeding started on the plane trip and Brewer was operated on early Monday to stop the bleeding and drain the fluid from the thigh.

Maris Stops Interviews

By JOE REICHLER

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Roger Maris New York Yankees' home run king, terated his newest edict Monday:

"No more interviews."

A visiting newspaper man asked him what kind of a year do you expect?"

"I don't know," replied Maris.

"Do you think you'll reach 61 home runs this year?

"I don't know," said Maris, his face betraying no sign of annoyance.

"How many home runs will you be entitled to hit?"

"Don't know."

MAKES HIS EXIT

"Sure bot today, isn't it," the reporter reminded, making his exit.

"Well, what did you expect me to say?" he growled to a companion. "One guy has the same old questions. How do dickens do I know what kind of a year I'm going to have? Also if there's anybody who can predict how many homers I'm going to hit, he should belong on this earth. He belongs up there."

Maris hasn't been treated kindly by the fans here. He's been booed, and when he left a game after suffering a rib injury he was jeered and blamed a bad press. Maris reciprocated by clamming up.

"When I run down here," he said, "I had made up my mind, I would try to answer every question, no matter how silly, so's best I know how. So what happens? I pick up a paper and see where I'm unco-operative and uncooperative. People read this trash and believe it. I don't blame them. That hooting I got made me feel terrible.

"So, no more interviews."

Austin Watkin Named Chief Of Umpires

The Bay of Quinte Umpires' Association gave its slate of officers of last season a vote of confidence at a recent meeting by returning most of them to offers for the 1962 season.

President Al Kelleher; vice-president Gerald "Shud" Endler and secretary - treasurer Herb Pointer, will again serve in these same positions.

Harold Bawden, retiring umpire-in-chief, was named honorary president, while Jim Tebworth was named an executive member to complete the five-man slate of officers.

Austin Watkin has taken over from Bawden as the Association's umpire-in-chief.

NHL Names Dates for Semi-Finals

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's best-of-seven semi-finals will open in Montreal and Toronto Tuesday, March 27, the league announced today.

Montreal Canadiens, who last weekend captured their fifth consecutive league championship, will face the third-place Chicago Black Hawks in the A series.

Toronto Maple Leafs, already assured of second place in the league, will meet either New York Rangers or Detroit Red Wings, depending on which club finishes fourth. New-York now holds Detroit by one point.

The schedules, with provision for additional games, if needed, are:

Series A, at Montreal March 27 and 29, at Chicago April 1 and 3, at Montreal April 5, at Chicago April 8 and at Montreal April 10.

Series B, Toronto meets New York, at Toronto March 27 and 29, at New York April 1 and 3, at Toronto April 5 and at New York April 8.

If Toronto faces Detroit, it will be at Toronto March 27 and 29, at Detroit April 1 and 3, and Toronto April 5, at Detroit April 8 and at Toronto April 10.

ALS SIGN TWO

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League Monday night announced the signing of two more players, one American and one Canadian, to tryout contracts. The American is Gene Vicks, a 220-pound centre from Notre Dame University. Harr Hasbrouk, a 215-pound place-kicking specialist from Modill Redmen, is the second Canadian to sign as Alouette contract.

Fish and Game Meet Tonight

The popular Belleville and District Fish and Game Club holds its regular monthly meeting at the club Canara tonight.

A highlight will be the showing of film of wildlife in Algonquin Park courtesy Jannie Page of Trenton.

The aims and objects of the new Central Ontario Federation of fish and game clubs will be outlined. There will be the usual lucky draw and display.

In fact there will be five draws, three fly rods, a spinning rod, and his preserves.

Indians Dominate All-Stars

HARRISBURG (AP) —Springfield, Indians, defending American Hockey League and Calder Cup champions, dominated an all-star team selected Monday for the Harrisburg Patriot News by league coaches.

Springfield defencemen Kent Douglas and Bob McCord and centre Bill Sweeney were voted to the first team in the annual poll.

Other first - team selections were goalie Bob Perreault, Hershey; left wing Bary Cullen, Buffalo, and right wing Fred Glover, Cleveland.

Perreault and Glover tied in the most valuable balloting. Bruce Draper, Rochester centre, was named rookie-of-the-year and Jack Gordon, Cleveland, coach of the year.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There has been little talk and lots of "do" at the preparation and rehearsals of the 1962 edition of the Quinte Skating Club's ice extravaganza.

Colorful in costuming, outstanding in individual and collective presentations, and climactic in effect of coaches, cast and those associated on production, this year's show promises to highlight the event's long sequence.

Those responsible for the production have shown a delightful variance from presentations of former years. Last year the theme and motif was "Showboat". The 1961 show is a colorful original depicting "The Four Seasons".

This, I believe, has entailed much more work time and effort than presentations of other years. But the work has been made much easier because of the introduction of the Star Test system which has given excellent group instruction to the junior skaters.

The importance and value of this system will be seen in the performance of the youngest member of the cast who is just three years of age.

"The Four Seasons" has a cast of over 190 skaters of the club who have been masterfully coached by the club professionals, Mr. Paul Totten and Mrs. Bennie Boundy. Both coaches have important roles in the show.

The ensemble numbers are gay, colorful displays of precision skating depicting in seasonal motifs and costuming, the spring flowers, summer and fall scenes and winter "snowballs".

As one club official puts it, "this week all efforts are being made to polish and perfect what is hoped is the best revue yet. The thrills and excitement shown by the children are running high. For some this is their first carnival, something we hope they will always remember, because it is all for them."

But while the children will have their night, there is also skating of the championship brackets. The 1961 Junior Canadian pairs champions, Elinor Flack and Phillip McCordic of the Toronto Cricket, Curling and Skating Club are appearing as the club's guest artists. They placed fourth in the senior pairs in the recent Canadian Figure Skating Championships.

And Belleville's own brilliant young pair of girl skaters, Jane and Peggy McCutcheon will appear in solos and in the pairs number that placed them runners-up in the 1962 senior singular pairs in the Central Ontario Sectional Competitions. Jane and Peggy are also in rehearsal for the famous Rotary Ice Revue of 1962 to be held in Toronto in the latter part of April.

And, I am informed there will be a ridiculous comedy act in which several "guy blades of the nineties," blazer-coated and straw hatted will perform as did, they hope, the figure-skating ensembles of the era prior to the turn of the century.

This year's show will also mark the inaugural presentation of the skating club's new backdrop. The curtain is a colorful feature which will be used for many years to come. It has been assembled skillfully in sections by club secretary, Mrs. Phyllis Rowe.

The music, always an outstanding feature of Quinte Skating Club's winter extravaganzas, has been carefully selected, and taped by Dr. W. C. McCutcheon. This has entailed hours and hours of work what with taping, re-cutting with all pauses and announcements carefully spaced.

The entire show music, carnival, courts and solos are all timed on a master tape to obtain an uninterrupted flow of entertainment. A spare-recording machine is operated in synchronism with the master tape in case of any mechanical failure.

Mrs. Dueseberry and Mrs. Olivia Weese have again excelled themselves in the production of costumes. Their efforts have made the show a delight of color from the military-like opening number to the finale.

NEW GUNSHOP

Doug MacDonald's new Oxbow Gun Shop at East Bridge and Heschimer Avenue should fill a long felt need for hunters of the city and district. Expert gun-repairing is available at the shop as well as the latest in guns of all sorts. A rifle company representative will be on hand all day tomorrow to take care of any gun problems hunters may have.

Unbeaten 'Miss Supertest' Retired

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Miss Supertest III, the sleek speed boat which broke the United States' grip on the Harmsworth Trophy by winning it three successive times, is being withdrawn from competition.

James G. Thompson, owner and designer of the boat, has also retired from racing.

Thompson indicated in a statement Saturday night that the death of driver Bob Hayward and pressure of business were factors in the decision.

The 35 - year - old petroleum company president said he had not yet decided what he will do with the Miss Supertest series of boats.

Hayward, the round-faced affable driver, was killed in September when Miss Supertest II flipped on a turn in the Detroit River during the Silver Cup races. The death came one month after his successful defence of the Harmsworth, the race which signifies world unlimited hydroplane racing.

BREAKS U.S. STRING

The U.S. held the Harmsworth Trophy for 9 years—ever since Gar Wood claimed it in 1937 by beating an English boat—and defended it 11 times before Thompson, Hayward and Miss Supertest III broke the string on the Detroit River in 1959.

Miss Supertest III successfully defended her world title at Picton, Ont., in 1960 and 1961.

The 1959 win was no mere chance, Thompson said, pointing towards the Harmsworth in 1952 when he bought the Miss Canada series of boats. He got his seasons experimenting with Miss Canada IV, which he renamed Miss Supertest.

He obtained a Rolls-Royce engine and built Miss Supertest II around it. The boat set a world record for propeller-driven unlimited class hydroplanes when she clocked 184.34 miles an hour at Picton, Nov. 1, 1957.

LAUNCHES NEW BOAT

Miss Supertest III, designed by Thompson, was launched in June, 1958. A mighty 3,000 horsepower Rolls-Royce Griffin engine was installed.

Although the boat is 30 feet eight inches long, 12 feet, six inches across the beam and 6,000 pounds in weight, only about 1¼ square feet of it touches the water when the huge engine sends it over 300 miles an hour.

The power and design proved unbeatable.

Miss Supertest III took it easy when she made her last defence of the Harmsworth at Picton. The challenger, Chuck Thompson's Miss Detroit, developed oil line trouble and Hayward just cruised the Canadian course around the three-mile course at an average speed of 90.102 miles an hour.

REGRETS STEP

Thompson said Monday night he is with deep regret that we must take the decision to retire from unlimited competition.

"However, we were always primarily interested in winning and defending the Harmsworth for Canada and the Commonwealth.

"With the untimely death of Bob Hayward in the last closed to Cup, the members of our racing team would derive little satisfaction from further success."

Despite the retirement, Canada will keep the Harmsworth Trophy for at least one more year. Miss Supertest III was not challenged by the Jan. 31 deadline.

A "Queen" leaves the scene of her triumphs!

19, Belts Long Homers

Angels Uncover Star

NEW YORK (AP)—How are you going to keep him down on the farm when he wins baseball games for you—especially when he's only 19 and belts 360-foot home runs?

You're not, concedes manager Bill Rigney of Los Angeles Angels.

Rigney's latest star is rookie shortstop Jim Fregosi of Woodside, Calif. All Fregosi has to do to nail down an American League job with the Angels is finish the exhibition season with a .300 batting average.

That shouldn't be too hard. He whacked a three-run-inside-the-park homer Monday, a 380-foot shot, in the sixth inning to break a 3-3 tie and propel the Angels to a 6-3 victory over Chicago Cubs at Palm Springs, Calif.

Fregosi also had a single in four trips to the plate, increasing his average to .417.

YANKEES WIN NINTH

The two New York clubs, the Yankees and the Mets, continued their streaks but in opposite directions. The American League Yankees clobbered Milwaukee Braves 10-4 at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for their ninth victory without defeat. The Mets, new entry in the National League, dropped a 1-0 decision to Baltimore Orioles at St. Petersburg, Fla. to extend their losing skein to five.

Boston Red Sox turned back Cleveland Indians 2-1 at Scottsdale, Ariz., Houston Colts outlasted San Francisco Giants 12-9 at Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles Dodgers beat Kansas City Athletics 4-1 at West Palm Beach, Fla., St. Louis Cardinals edged Cincinnati Reds 7-4 at Tampa, Fla., and Washington Senators outslugged Chicago White Sox 15-12 at Pompano Beach, Fla. Newark, N.J., 1.

Richardson Rink Sets Record

EDINBURGH (CP)—Canada's Ernie Richardson rink from Regina set a record total and individual rink score in defeating Sweden's Rolf Arwidsson 24-4 in the fourth round of the world curling championship Monday.

It was their fourth - round game of this four-country international series. Fran Kiefte rink of Hibbing, Minn., defeated Scotland's William Young of Airth 9-5.

The Canadian victory left Richardson's rink in front of the field with a 4-0 record with two rounds to play. The fifth and sixth rounds will be played today.

The Americans are in second place in the standings with a 3-1 record.

They lost their opening-round match to Canada but could force a playoff if they defeat the Canadians in the fifth round of the double-round-robin series.

The Richardson rink, 1962 Canadian champions and winner of the international series in 1959 and 1960, continued its almost unbelievable accuracy in overwhelming Sweden. The previous high in the event was the 20-4 victory scored by Canada against Scotland last Friday.

Ernie Richardson Monday made more than 90 per cent of his shots.

Scotland has won two and lost two and Sweden is winless in four matches.

Crawfords Defeat RCAF Flyers

Crawford Metals defeated the RCAF Flyers 62-53 in Bay of Quinte Basketball league game played at Moira Secondary School last night.

In the other part of a scheduled double-header, Northern Electric defaulted to the Belleville Lightfoots. These two teams, fifth and sixth in the six-team league, are both out of the playoffs.

Trenton Wilsons, Crawford Metals, RCAF Flyers and Picton Prospects will take part in league playoffs, expected to get under way next week.

Crawford - Jumped into a 30-17 half-time lead against the Flyers last night, paced by high-scoring Teddy Batchelor.

Batchelor bagged 20 points for the winners last night to add to his league-leading scoring total. Don Skinner hit for 15 points and Larry MacDonald for 13.

Wilmets paced the RCAF with 14 points followed by Gazo and Tverbokone with 13 apiece and Stephens with 10.

RCAF FLYERS (53): Stephens 10, Gazo 12, Pierce, Foyle 2, Butterfield 2, Wilmets 14, Taylor 1, Tverbokone 13, Osborne.

CRAWFORD METALS (62): Hookings 2, Skinner 15, Batchelor 20, Campbell 6, MacDonald 13, McCabe 6.

District Darts League

All games in the Belleville Services Dart League were top-sided schafs last night, including one defaulted game.

OPP No. 1 defeated to Hobby Shop 11-0. Dower's topped El Ranchos, OPP No. 2 downed the Wildcats, Wilbur's Jobs won over LaPalms, Shamrocks defeated Will's City Services and Corby Specials whipped Legion, all by scores of 9-2. In the other game Northern Electric won over ANAF 8-3.

Sweeney, Kilrea But Point Apart

NEW YORK (AP) — Springfield's star centres, Bill Sweeney and Brian Kilrea, remain in a close duel for the American Hockey League scoring title as the season heads into the stretch.

Sweeney picked up three points last week to four for Kilrea and with four games to go, has a one-point edge on his teammate, 93-91.

Barry Cullen of Buffalo Bisons follows with 88 points and Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears has 87, official statistics show.

Springfield's Marcel Paille, who gave up only six goals in four games last week, has a goals-against average of 2.55 and leads goaltenders. Buffalo's Denis DeJordy leads in shutouts with eight.

No Man for Post

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Tuesday, March 20, 1962 11

Tass Wants Lebel Ousted

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass called Monday for a new International Ice Hockey Federation charter and the ousting of Robert LeBel Chambly, Que., as president of the federation.

The calls were contained in a blast at the league championships in Colorado Springs, which ended up Sunday with Sweden the winner, Canada second and the United States third.

Tass, a Soviet news power, set out the tournament along with other Iron Curtain entries because the Communist East German team was refused permission to come to the United States. Such permission has been refused since the building of the East-West Berlin wall.

Powerful Czechoslovakia was another non-participant.

Tass said the Swedes had "no worthy opponents but the Canadians and the Americans."

The Soviet news agency said effective measures against the interference of politics into sports must be adopted at the next congress of the hockey federation." It added that LeBel is obviously no man for this responsible post" of president.

'Sir Gaylord' Out of Derby

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Meadow Stable's Sir Gaylord, early Kentucky Derby favorite before losing the Bahamas and Everglades stakes in February, will not run in the Florida Derby March 31.

Maroons Game off Finals

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Chatham Maroons rolled in their third consecutive Ontario Hockey Association Senior semi-final Monday night, walloping Woodstock Athletics 8-3.

Chatham now leads the best-of-seven semi-final 3-2 with the sixth game set for Chatham Wednesday. A seventh game, if necessary, will be played in Woodstock Thursday.

Bob Pole, a rookie performer with the Maroons this season, led Chatham with three goals and one assist. Copper Leyte followed with two goals and singles were added by Ernie Dick, Elmer Skow and Dave Lucink. The line of Tommy Wilson, Gerry Theberge and Toby Black was the night's spoil for the Athletics. Theberge had two goals, Black added one and Wilson picked up two assists.

The game was wide open for the first two periods, both teams merely went through the motions in the final 20 minutes of action.

Al Bennett kicked away 31 shots in the Chatham nets while Al Cullen stopped 26.

Warsaw Wins Int. C Title, Picton Beaten

Warsaw Redmen captured the Northumberland-Hastings Intermediate "C" hockey league championship last night when they defeated Campbellford 5-4 in Peterborough.

Warsaw won the best-of-seven series four games to one and will advance into the OHA Intermediate "C" playdowns.

Meanwhile in Uxbridge, Picton's entry in the OHA Intermediate "B" playdowns took a 10-3 whipping from the powerful Uxbridge Black Hawks.

This was the first game in a best of three set with the second tilt slated for Picton on Friday. Uxbridge ousted the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters in four consecutive games to win the Lakeshore League finals.

Mitch Miller May Not Be World's Best Oboe Player But He Is the Richest

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The most famous beard in the U.S. belongs to a man of whom fellow musicians say, "he may not be the world's best oboe player—but he's the richest."

Mitchell William Miller met; as oboe for the first time when he was 12 and had been invited to play in the high school band. The bigger boys had grabbed all the trombones and trumpets. Little Mitchell took the only instrument left—an oboe.

He went on to become one of the country's best known obolists, and some of his solo recordings now sell for $25.

But Mitch Miller hit the road to fame, fortune—and a dozen six-bit cigars a day—when he switched from Bach and Mozart to popular music.

As a record firm executive, his inventive genius helped guide to success such singers as Rosemary Clooney, Frankie Laine, Johnny Ray.

But for two long years Mitch ran into nothing but a series of blank walls when he tried to sell his biggest idea—a television program featuring nostalgic old popular songs.

"When he finally got his chance on a fill - in spot, it turned out his kind of nostalgic singing was just what the public wanted.

Today his Sing Along With Mitch show is one of the top 10 U.S. TV programs. Thirteen of his group's 15 record albums are among the 100 current top sellers.

In less than four years their recordings have grossed $45,000,000—which Miller believes is a record for so short a time.

Mitch, whose father was an immigrant from worker and whose mother once served for the Russian czar's family, yearned as a child to sport a beard.

"Both my grandfathers had elegant beards, and I was fascinated by them," he said. "At first I was afraid to grow one for fear of ghost."

But in 1940 his wife and he talked it over and decided the time had come when he had achieved enough musical stature to wear a beard without being accused of affectation. After all, who notices what an oboe player wears?

Its estimated publicity value: Better than $1,000,000.

Mitch is a belly - laughing, gregarious man full of enthusiasms, and fond of rich black cigars, good red wine, reading, and bowling (he has a 181 240). But he bristles at anyone who tries to tinker with his program.

For example, although eight pretty dancers lend it glamor, his all-male chorus is made up of 36 men ranging from 29 to 50. Some are fat, some are bald, three are grandfathers.

But Mitch picked them for their voices—once used to sing in the Metropolitan Opera—not for their looks. He has resisted all suggestions that he fill his chorus with tall younger men with matinee idol-type faces.

Could Cop Goalie Honors

Cesare Stars With Hull

OTTAWA (CP)—If the league-leading Hull-Ottawa Canadiens maintain their current torrid pace to finish atop the Eastern Professional Hockey League, much of the credit must go to the starry performances of goalie Cesare Maniago.

The 20-year-old in his second season as professional hockey and his first full year in the EPHL, the 23-year-old netminder from Trail, B.C., bids fair to win the league's top goalkeeping honors.

Last week he let in only five goals in four games, including his third shutout, to widen his margin ahead of second-ranking goalie Jack McCartan of Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers.

EPHL statistics issued Monday show that Maniago has allowed 126 goals for a 2.43 average, McCartan, with five shutouts, has a 2.17 average.

TENDER LEADS

In the scoring department Orval Tessier, veteran right winger of second-place Kingston Frontenacs, strengthened his chances of earning his second title in three years by collecting one goal and four assists in two games. He now has a total of 103 points from 47 goals and 56 assists.

Kingston marksman Tom McCarthy, the league's top-goalgetter, scored his 50th of the year and added one assist to stretch his points total to 90. Team-mate Bob Attersley held down third spot for the Frontenacs' trio with 20 goals and 56 assists for 76 points.

Fred Hills of Canadiens now holds sole possession of fourth place with 74 points. Milan Marcetta of Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds is fifth with 71 and Len Ronson of Kitchener-Waterloo follows with 68.

One unusual distinction won during the week was the record for the number of minutes spent in the penalty box Sudbury Wolves set a new mark at 1,091 minutes, seven more than the record established last season by Sault Ste. Marie.

The most penalized player is Sudbury's Reno Robazza who has sat out 182 minutes, nine of them last week.

With the Bowlers

On Saturday the Bowl-O-Drome held its first of its weekly "King of the Hill and Best Your Average" tourna-ments.

The winner of King of the Hill was Ron Saylor with 1072 for a 268 average.

The winner of "Beat Your Average" was Jim Elliott with a 963 for a 241 average. He increased his average by 25½ points for the four games.

Hollywood's 'All Fall Down' Frank and Realistic Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new movies—

Hollywood wouldn't need a new wave if it could make more films as good as "All Fall Down. The new picture is as frank and realistic as any of the European art films; yet without that phoney artiness that many of them have.

All Fall Down also differs from the European movies and the Tennessee Williams school here in that it takes a hard view of modern life All does not wallow in hopelessness.

By now you should get the idea that All Fall Down is not for children. It isn't. It is for discerning adults who like their movies well-acted.

The slim plot concerns a family's idolatry of the eldest son, a no-good drifter with a penchant for attracting and then besting up women. Eva Marie Saint is fine as the ultimate victim of his cruelty, and Angela Lansbury and Karl Malden are capital as the two befuddled parents.

In his third starring film role, Warren Beatty plays his familiar character: The inarticulate young male with time bombs in his head. He explodes regularly, but the film's one weakness is in not explaining why.

Brandon de Wilde gets fifth billing but he is actually the No. 1 strength of All Fall Down. His earnest character is by winning as it was in 10 in Shane.

Black Tights is specialized entertainment for devotees of the dance. They'll see no better dancing of the modern - ballet school, all wrapped in elegant and imaginative settings.

The film is the creation of the talented French choreographer Roland Petit, and includes his famous troupe of dancers and Carmen ballets. Dancers include himself, his partner Zizi Jeanmaire, Moira Shearer and Cyd Charisse. There is perhaps too much "Petit" in Petit's choreography, Carmen is enough of Charisse; who creates a dazzling impression.

Excursion Down Corridor Of Hollywood Years Bright

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It would be nice if all of television's well-intentioned documentaries could be as bright and entertaining as Monday night's NBC excursion down the corridor of Hollywood years.

The program was called Arthur Freed's Hollywood Melody, and it purported to be a history of "movieland musicals." It really was a tuneful, good-natured look at some of the glorious musical movies of the 1930s with a talented group of today's performers handling the comedy, dance and song.

Donald O'Connor and Nanette Fabray deftly took care of the clowning, and they had a little gem of a satire on the old waltzing mythical kingdom movies. Miss Fabray also had an imaginative number in which film clips from two old Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movies were used.

Juliet Prowse and O'Connor had modern treat dance numbers, while Howard Keel and Shirley Jones handled the major singing chores.

The big switch: Owners of radio station KVLC in Little Rock, Ark., announced Monday their station, from technicians to announcers and disc jockey, is now operated by an all-woman staff—a dozen of them.

New owners, who took over the station only about a month ago, are firing in the face of one of broadcasting's most cherished beliefs: That women would rather listen to men than to other women—and respond better to sales pitches in masculine voices.

The station's representative in New York said some male staff members of the staff lost their jobs because of the new policy.

AT THE BELLE — Jerry Lewis is the star of the comedy, "The Errand Boy," which opens today at the Belle Theatre. Brian Donlevy, Pat Dahl and Felicia Atkins support the comic in the new production.

FAVORED FOR RACE

LONDON (AP)—Nicolaus Silver, winner of last year's Grand National, remained the favorite to win the famed steeplechase again when leading bookies called the odds at London's Victoria Club Monday night. Nicolaus Silver was again quoted at odds of 7-4 for the race, scheduled for March 31 at Aintree. Frenchman's Cove was made second favorite at 15-2.

Bradford Wins Over Stirling

The Bradford Peewees handed Stirling a 15-0 defeat in Stirling last night in the first game of the Minor Hockey Association Peewee "C" provincial semi-finals.

The second game will be played at Bradford Wednesday and the bus will leave Stirling at 12 at noon.

Bradford's big club outclassed Stirling all the way as the visitors chalked up their 28th consecutive victory. The losers never quit trying but were just no match against their polished opponents.

Astrological Forecast

For March 21

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Greatest enemy today is tendency toward over - confidence. Let others take the play. This is time for you to go - slow. Others may not find spotlight as lucrative as they thought. Watch it!

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Don't ask for a task you can't handle. Loose talk can saddle you with a number of burdens. Watch your promises; others, wise, you ask for and receive complications.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Favorable lunar aspects to your sign indicate nothing is beyond your reach. Think big. Be creative. Spread your message. Don't allow frictions to defeat your own purpose.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Trying to have your own way may work out . . . if you really know all the facts. Be sure you know what you're talking about. Don't be obstinate. Listen to reason.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Time to think twice. Impulse is to scatter your plans in all directions. Wiser course: think, analyze, put yourself in other person's place. Not easy. But better have second thoughts.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Struggle between extravagance and need to attend to budget becomes evident. Take practical side. Realize that transient pleasures last only a few moments in relation to real security.

Libra (Sept 23 to Oct. 23): This could be day to make your "move." But a word of caution: double check details. Before telling anyone of or asserting independence . . . be sure future plans are secure.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Entertainment, relaxation, fulfillment of emotional ambitions highlighted today. Business complexities may prove difficult. If possible, delay transactions, relax with friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Friendship is highlighted. You must begin, today, to assess the things of value to you and those persons, events situations which really amount to nothing. Seek understanding.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Full Moon today stresses responsibility, career, ambitions . . . is your ability to make your way in the world. Avoid frivolous action. Study what you want in terms of lastingness.

Aquarius (Jan 21 to Feb. 19): You can gain your goals by accepting added responsibility, if this is not to your liking . . . ask for less. Thrift compromise, based on logic, could lead to eventual happiness.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Full Moon emphasis on security. You gain by spreading influence, not restricting it. This demands self-confidence. Don't doubt . . . wonder . . . worry. Do your best . . . and you succeed!

If today is your birthday your key to security, happiness . . . is independence. You are happiest . . . working for yourself. This means you must be true to your own abilities. Listening to others is fine . . . when you can learn. Do not permit others to dominate you to extent that you lose individuality. Best month this year—November.

* * *

General Tendencies: Full moon may symbolize direct starts, end of delays . . . and sudden announcements. No time for beating around bush. Watch for persons born in April and October and grab news spotlight.

Municipal Assistance Total For Construction, Repair Of Roads to Be $90,085,000

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's financial help to its municipalities for construction and maintenance of roads will increase by an estimated $9,000,000 in the 1962-63 fiscal year, Highways Minister Goodfellow said Monday.

Presenting the $864,300,000 estimates of his department for study by the legislature, the minister said the estimated total for municipal assistance will be $90,085,000.

It represents an increase of some $9,000,000 over the $81,190,000 estimated to have been spent in the fiscal year ending this March 31—and an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the estimate for last year, which were not reached.

The province provides approximately 50 per cent of the overall cost of building and maintaining—approved roads in municipalities. Amounts vary in individual municipalities and one-third in most large cities to as much as 80 per cent in improved districts.

Mr. Goodfellow told the legislature the amount spent on municipal roads in Ontario has been climbing steadily. By the coming fiscal year, he said, the combination of municipal road spending and provincial subsidies for such roads will almost match the amount spent by Ontario's King's Highways and secondary roads.

SUM IS HUGE

In 1957-58, the amount equalled some 70 per cent of the money spent on provincial highways. By 1962-63, municipalities will spend—including the subsidies from the province—no less than $169,867,000, compared to the department's estimated net expenditure of $174,215,000 on King's Highways proper," Mr. Goodfellow said.

The highways department began a special study last summer of fiscal policies for highway, roads and streets throughout Ontario.

A preliminary report is expected in the spring, the minister said, It is aimed at helping the province assess what forms its assistance to municipalities can take and to what extent it can be increased.

"It is expected that these studies will point the way to new approaches for the financing of highways, roads and streets and for a measure of equality in the hard-pressed municipalities."

Highway construction and maintenance—total) on municipal roads, the minister said in effect, on which the highways department pays about half the cost in subsidies.

Sea of Galilee Again Scene Of Fighting

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Fighting flared up in the Sea of Galilee region in Israel-Syrian shore batteries fired on Israeli police patrol boats, wounding two Israeli sailors, according to unofficial reports reaching here.

The reports said Israeli police escorted landing craft came under fire from Syrian shore batteries near Kursi, in the northeastern sector of the lake.

Heavy explosions on the Syrian shore were seen from the lakeside town of Tiberias on the western shore.

The Sea of Galilee (Lake Tiberias) was the scene of a battle early Saturday between Israeli and Syrian forces.

In that battle, biggest in recent years, Israel used armored forces, artillery and planes in support of its police patrols.

The Israelis said the operation was a "punitive" move in retaliation for Syrian harassment of Israeli fishermen and police vessels on the Sea of Galilee.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

Since the income tax returns were filed for 1960, parliament has brought down two budgets and each shows a few changes that will effect the returns filed in 1962 showing income received in 1961.

These changes are not of a general nature as they are only applicable to certain taxpayers. One of these changes applies to certain students who are attending universities, colleges or other educational institutions which require full time attendance for a period of three months or more. The exact details of this change and how it will affect the return of the student, or that of the father, will be covered fully in another article.

Another change provides for the taxing in Canada of lump sum payments made by a Canadian employer to former employees, who became non-residents of Canada before the lump sum was actually received. These lump sum payments are equal be for return of pension contributions, a payment for long and faithful service, for loss of office, or the taxable portion of payments under a profit-sharing plan.

The details regarding these lump sums have how the tax will be computed will be fully covered in a future article.

Another change is the elimination of the 4 per cent surtax on income received from Canadian investments.

On the whole there is no general tax reductions in either one of the two budgets brought down since the 1960 tax laws were enacted.

LETTERS WELCOMED

The writer of this column will welcome your letters on Income Tax problems which may be answered in an article on the subject. If a personal reply is desired, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and your reply will be made in a simple, easily understood language.

In the past year, letters were received to which personal replies were made, but it was apparent a fictitious name and address were given as no replies came back marked "No such street" or "Not known at this address." In the future, personal replies will be sent only to a self-addressed, stamped envelope is received.

Governor Orval Faubus Has To Decide on Political Future

By JOHN R. STEE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Governor Orval E. Faubus, at 51, looks back with a single but basic regret about the 1957-59 Little Rock integrated controversy and the role it created for him.

"I just regret that it all happened," Faubus says. "But I wouldn't change anything I did. I just did what I had to do. What I felt the people of Arkansas elected me to do."

Faubus faces a decision as important to his political future as his order that aged National Guard troops to block integration of Central High School Sept. 3, 1957.

That order transformed Faubus from an obscure southern governor into a national symbol of resistance to the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 desegregation order. It was a key factor in his re-election to a third and unprecedented fourth term.

MAY RUN AGAIN

Now Faubus must decide within the next two months whether he will seek a fifth two-year term as governor, run for the U.S. Senate or House of Representatives, or retire.

Faubus speaks fondly of retirement, but he is closing no doors.

Senator J. W. Fulbright and Representative Dale Alford, both Democrats, have moved openly on Faubus hook at this moment. Faubus may go after Fulbright's job. Alford already has announced for governor, but doesn't know who he will face.

Faubus does not feel the south, wide integration crisis is settled, although Little Rock schools now are operating peacefully with token desegregation.

"The people are as opposed to integration as they ever were," he says, "but they now have a feeling of hopelessness.

"The situation here focused the spotlight on the results of segregation. That is the preservation will sooner or later lead both Negroes and whites to the conclusion that its results are bad."

POPULARITY DECLINES

Faubus said he was not speaking of equal job opportunities, equal justice under civil rights factors but of social integration and intermarriage. Since he comes from a rural area where schools often are the centre of a community's social activity, school integration to Faubus is social integration.

"The extreme segregationists took the position at the start that he would accept no integration," Faubus says. "He has come from that. Now the integrationists haven't yielded an inch."

Faubus' personal popularity has shown a decline at the polls. In the 1958 Democratic primary he got 70 per cent of the vote. It was down to 59 per cent two years later. In November, 1960, voters rejected 2 to 1 Faubus' proposal to close schools through a constitutional amendment.

But he remains the most successful vote getter in Arkansas history.

He feels he's done a good job as chief executive and often likes to point out that his administration has been free of scandal.

West Indian Charges Britain With Reprisal

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP)—Robert Bradshaw has resigned as finance minister of the conflict torn West Indies Federation, charging the British government with underhanded political manoeuvring.

He made the announcement on a radio broadcast Sunday saying he submitted his resignation Friday to Sir Grantley Adams, prime minister of the federation.

Saturday Bradshaw indicated Sir Grantley may resign in a few days.

He said both he and the prime minister were bitter about a British order-in - council giving the Crown-appointed governor-general of the federation power to withhold the severance pay of members of the federation's Parliament.

Bradshaw said the act was passed "behind the back" of the federation's cabinet.

He called it a "bloody reprisal" by Britain's Secretary of State Reginald Maudling to his militate Sir Grantley because the prime minister "dared to lead" a delegation to London to preserve the island unions.

Trinidad and Jamaica, the two richest members, plan to secede.

Northport

NORTHPORT — Mr. and Mrs. Warren Clow and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Haines and family, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Roxborough of Somersville were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morton.

Meany Throws Union Support Behind Kennedy

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The 12,000,000-member AFL-CIO today formally threw its support behind President Kennedy's new low-tariff bill, arguing that the United States would suffer if it built a "Chinese wall" around itself, instead of freer trade.

Rejecting the argument that U.S. labor cannot compete against imports because of higher American wages, AFL-CIO President George Meany said labor costs are actually lower in the U.S. because American workers "are the most productive in the world."

"The amount that is spent on labor for each item produced in a year in the U.S. finds is almost any other country, even where money wages are as low as 10 cents an hour," Meany said in testimony before the House of Representatives ways and means committee.

He appeared as a witness as the committee launched the second week of month-long hearings on legislation to arm the president with power to negotiate lower tariff cuts with the Common Market and other countries, including Canada.

MUST TAKE LEADERSHIP

Meany aligned himself with the views of a string of U.S. cabinet ministers who argued last week that the U.S. must take leadership in expanding trade in the Western world as a weapon in fighting communism.

Most Republicans on the committee shot back that the key to expanded world trade is not lower tariffs but elimination of quotas and other restrictions erected by countries in lieu of tariff protection.

Some Republicans concentrated fire on George Ball, undersecretary of state and one of the architects of the Kennedy tariff bill, suggesting he would be soft on U.S. towards increased trade with Communist countries. Ball emphasized that he specifically excludes the Communists from proposed tariff concessions.

Meany said that while the Kennedy bill in intermediate stages would lead to increased imports taking away jobs from Americans, in the end more jobs would be created by expanded world trade and prosperity.

Finds Way To Grow Liver Cells Artificially

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The first step toward finding a vaccine against a serious liver disease, infectious hepatitis, was announced today by the California Institute of Technology.

For the first time, a research scientist, Dr. Justus Eisenberg, has found a way to grow liver cells artificially.

Growth of these cells on a large scale, the school said, may provide material not only for the detection of the infectious hepatitis virus in the blood but for the preparation of a vaccine to immunize against the disease.

Until recently, all attempts to grow a certain type of liver cell in laboratories failed, apparently because of the presence of another type of liver cell. Dr Garvey succeeded in separating the two types by screening them through a fine mesh and then found a suitable nutrient for the hard-to-grow cells.

This technique, the school said, should make it possible to produce large numbers of liver cells to grow hepatitis virus for the development of a vaccine.

OAS DECLARES WAR ON FRENCH ARMY

Mr. K. Accepts Kennedy's Space Plan

But Emphasizes Disarmament Can Be Factor

Instructs UN Delegates To Meet U.S. Experts

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev agreed today to cooperate with the United States in space exploration, including a program for sending vehicles to other planets. But he emphasized that such joint ventures depend "in some degree on the solution of the disarmament problem."

Khrushchev replied to a March 9 letter of President Kennedy suggesting that the United States and the Soviet Union pool their efforts in such fields as weather forecasting and international communications and even future exploration of the moon and planets.

Khrushchev's proposed six-point program was largely parallel to the president's suggestions. He said he was instructing Soviet representatives in the UN space committee to discuss U.S. representatives to discuss practical plans, but he added:

"At the same time it seems obvious to me that the scope of cooperation depends on the acceptance of space, just as the choice of the very directions along which such cooperation would be possible, depends in a certain degree on the solution of the disarmament problem."

Before an agreement on general and complete disarmament is reached, he said, both countries are limited in the possibility of co-operating in space.

SEES 'ALL RIDGE'

"I think these considerations, for the simple reason that it would be better if we see all the ridge of the mountain in a realistic light," he added.

The 17 - nation disarmament conference began meeting in Geneva since March 14 has made no visible progress because of disagreement over the issue of inspection to prevent cheating.

In his March 7 letter, Kennedy proposed Soviet-American co-operation by launching satellites for weather observation, by exchanging the earth's magnetic field and experimenting in intercontinental communications, helping each nation develop space shots and pooling information about manned flights.

The president said Kennedy's response to a suggestion for space co-operation, in general terms,

FRONDIZI MAKES DEAL WITH ARMY, DIVIDING POWER

Half Cabinet Posts Given to Military

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi, trying to do his job today by making a deal with Argentina's armed forces' chiefs to form a coalition cabinet—half civilian, half military —and outlaw all political activity by resurgent Peronists.

The crisis eased, for the moment at least, as the government announced that the eight civilian cabinet members had resigned to make way for the new coalition.

Frondizi made peace with the military in a 40-minute conference during the night with Gen. Raul Alejandro Fosgi, the army commander in chief; Admiral Agostin R. Penas, chief of naval operations, and Brig.-Gen. Cayo Antonio Alsina, air force commander.

Afterward the government announced in a brief communique that the president would form a "cabinet of national unity" after consulting today with "the representatives of the democratic parties and representative institutions."

Frondizi also declared he

Argue Is Named Grit Candidate In Own Riding

ASSINIBOIA, Sask. (CP) — Hazen Argue was nominated Tuesday to contest his Assiniboia seat for the Liberal party in the next federal election.

More than 700 persons, including 382 as full delegates, crowded the hall in the south-central Saskatchewan constituency where the 41-year-old farmer from Kayville took the nomination on the first ballot over Jody Medwid, a school principal from Goodeve.

Among those who voting delegate James Brown, former president of the Weyburn Young Liberal Association who resigned last week, said after saying there was pressure against him because of a statement he issued supporting Mr. Argue's candidacy.

The statement accused Saskatchewan Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher of issuing a biased press release following a closed meeting in Weyburn March 8 to discuss Mr. Argue's candidacy.

The vote, not announced officially, was reported to be 325 to 317 for Mr. Argue. Public announcement of the vote was that Mr. Argue won by "a fair majority."

Freedomite Residing in Uruguay Ordered Terrorism in Kootenays

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Stefan Sorokin, spiritual leader of the fanatical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, was convicted in court Tuesday as one of the leaders behind 50 years of terrorism in the Kootenay area of southeastern British Columbia.

The charge was made by Freedomites, charged with terrorist activities, who said Sorokin even ordered punishment for Macbeolent sect members from his home in Uruguay.

It was the first time sect members had been known to turn against their spiritual leader, and 32-member governing fraternal council.

HARKNESS GIVEN VERBAL BOMBING BY OPPOSITION

Minister Refuses To Outline Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition threw another nuclear salvo at Defence Minister Harkness in the Commons Thursday.

He sat through a four-hour verbal bombing without yielding to demands for details of how the government intends to use its nuclear weapons carriers.

Liberal speakers accused him of contempt of Parliament for refusing to spell out how the defence forces will acquire nuclear weapons in the event of war.

Opposition Leader Pearson said Parliament was entitled to know how nuclear warheads would be obtained for Bomarc missiles and Voodoo interceptors for home defence and the CF-104 low-level attack bomber for use in Europe.

Mr. Harkness should explain or resign, said Paul Hellyer (Toronto Trinity) and Paul Martin (L—Essex East).

PLANS NO STATEMENT

The defence minister said he did not plan to make a policy statement on the use of nuclear weapons by the Canadian forces. The government's position had been made clear on a number of previous occasions.

Mr. Harkness also said it was out of order for the House to discuss over-all defence policy during debate on a $31,000,000 supplementary spending item for the RCAF.

The item was approved by a standing vote of 85 to 2, with Colin W. Gerrie (PC—Ontario) Democratic Party House leader, and Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) voting against it.

It was Mr. Harkness' second straight day on the nuclear arms griddle, Monday the issue arose in debate on an army

John Papalia Going to Get Chance to 'Sing' Before Bd.

TORONTO (CP)—Johnny Papalia is going to get a chance to sing before Ontario's royal commission on crime.

Other developments before the commission as it opened an inquiry into the underworld in Ontario, apart from the Hamilton tough man recently spirited into New York for a multi-million-dollar dope trial:

The commission sat for 80 minutes and then recessed to next Monday because it was getting uncomfortably close to a Supreme Court trial here involving three men charged with conspiring to obtain information illegally from a police officer.

Present and former officials of the Ontario government denied either taking or knowingly payola in the attorney-general's department for shielding crooks.

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, one-man royal commissioner, made the opening hearing short in this first session of what might be a long inquiry into allegations that crime is big-time in Ontario and has reached into some levels of the provincial government.

Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, who was the first witness Tuesday, hit the legislature with the charges in December. He said he has nothing to take back from the sensational speech that sparked the commission, except for some grammar.

Diefenbaker Urges Business And Govt. Collaborate

MONTREAL (CP) — Government and business leaders must work in new ways unthinkable a generation ago to strengthen free enterprise and promote prosperity, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

Addressing 300 luncheon guests of the Chambre de Commerce, Mr. Diefenbaker said the nation's economic problems and national business organizations.

"They must work together consult together and act together to maintain the forward movement. The government's responsibility is to bring about business progress of benefit to every Canadian, and the government's policy is not that of promoting any one group in the community but a policy which tries to combine the efforts of all.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "there are no jobs in any nation without profits," and that the existence of developing a country was found in maintaining a high degree of prosperity.

"What is good for business is increasingly likely to be good for every part of our country," he added.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who announced that Deputy British Foreign Minister Edward Heath

Rheumatic Sufferers Don't Get Good Care Inquiry Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Most of the 1,000,000 or so Canadians who suffer from rheumatic disorders are not getting the high-quality care that medical science knows, says the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

The society's submission to the royal commission on health services Tuesday is a detailed discussion which called for federal action to help eliminate rheumatic illness in Canada.

The society was one of three organizations which submitted briefs at public hearings here to the commission headed by Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Saskatchewan.

The others were the Canadian Dental Association and the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns.

The Dental Association—national voice of the country's 6,000 dentists—advocated federal action to encourage fluoridation of community water supplies and to expand the supply of dentists and dentistry.

The medical students and interns group—with a membership of 5,800 and representing nearly all the country's medical undergraduates and interns—appealed for Ottawa's help in another direction.

It said the federal government, together with provincial governments, industry and medical societies, should establish a fund from which medical students could obtain interest-free loans to finance their education.

It also urged a big increase—to a minimum of $2,600 a year—in salaries paid to hospital interns.

The Arthritis and Rheumatism Society told the commission that research and specialized application of treatment measures already known to medical science can prevent serious disability in a majority of rheumatic patients.

Chief spokesman for the Canadian Dental Association, Dr. Don W. Gullett of Toronto, said that opposition to water fluoridation is led by persons who are in "the business" of fighting against public health measures.

LIBERAL DEFIES DEPUTY SPEAKER TO 'NAME' HIM

Non-confidence Motion Lost 36-20

TORONTO (CP) — A debate on estimates for the reform institutions department degenerated into a hallway shouting match in the legislature early today between a former minister and opposition members.

It ended after midnight, when both opponents had been disabled in a non-confidence motion against Keith Brown (PC—Peterborough), deputy Speaker of the legislature, for his conduct of the debate. The government majority voted the motion down 36 to 20.

At one point, Vernon Singer (L—Toronto - York Centre) threatened to call on his feet, all night in defiance of the deputy Speaker, and challenged Mr. Brown to "name me" — that is, have him ejected from the chamber. The challenge was ignored.

Throughout, opposition members accused Mr. Brown and Mines Minister Wardrope of violating and corrupting the rules of the house.

SAYS INDECISIVE

The ruckus began when Mr. Singer began reciting a history of what he said was government indecision in determining the position of employees, at Metropolitan Toronto's Don Jail. The statement was peppered with comments from Mr. Ward, Grey, who had left reform institutions portfolio just late 1958 until last November.

When Mr. Singer, finishing within minutes, Mr. Singer, Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, NDP Leader Donald MacDonald, Ken Bryden (NDP —Toronto Woodbine) and others were on their feet shouting demands for a ruling from Mr. Brown that the minister be made to withdraw his remark.

Mr. Brown, hammering for a steady tattoo with his gavel, pleaded for the minister had a right to speak.

SHOUTS FOR RULING

Shouted Mr. Singer: "He doesn't. I want a ruling and if I don't get it I'm going to stand here all night. And if you want to name me, go ahead. This is disgraceful."

There were retorts from government members, including Premier Leslie M. Frost. Mr. Wardrope had a right to speak, he said, and so had Mr. Arms, Mr. B. H. Geary, moved to the centre of the floor, apparently prepared to eject Mr. Singer if deputy speaker ordered out.

For some 30 minutes, Mr. Wardrope finally called through the din: "I was willing to withdraw a long time ago."

Then the mines minister proceeded to attack Mr. Singer, accusing Mr. Singer and Mr. Bryden of making statements on the basis of "reckless" with politics," and the hue-and-cry went on again.

"I'm disgusted with his contempt of the House," Mr. Bry-

'Leave Or Die' Ultimatum Has Friday Deadline

Secret Army Battles With Troops in Oran

OF from AP-Reuters

ALGIERS — A savage street battle between French troops and right-wing European secret army guerrillas broke out in the heart of Oran today and repeated rounds of gunfire blasted the working quarters of Bab el Oued in Algiers. A number of persons were wounded or killed.

The shooting shattered a quiet that had prevailed up to noon in Algeria after nearly two days of bloody clashes in the wake of a cease-fire proclaimed between France and the Algerian nationalists.

The battle in Oran was the first open clash reported there between French security forces and the secret army since the cease-fire. The secret army is determined to keep Algeria French.

In Algiers, round after round of gunfire was heard in Bab el Oued, scene of frequent trouble. A curfew was ordered in the quarter.

There was not clear, who was doing the shooting.

FRENCH TROOPS WARNED

French armored cars were patrolled the streets of Algiers in the face of an ultimatum by the secret army to get out of Algeria by Friday "or be shot."

Leaflets containing the "declaration of war" were distributed on the soldiers Tuesday night after presidents fired mortar shells from the secret army headquarters at — at a Quad wreaked havoc in the Moslem quarter.

At least four persons were reported killed and 68 were wounded in the shelling as violence flared up throughout the territory in the wake of the announcement Monday of a ceasefire in the 7½-year Algerian war.

A total of 30 persons—24 of them Moslems—were killed and 124 hurt in Algiers Tuesday.

SHELLS RAIN DOWN

The mortar shells, fired in what a French officer called a "precision job" on Moslem reports, "rained down on a Moslem market square just outside the Casbah Moslem district.

The shelling appeared to be a signal for Moslems to provoke Moslem rioting and thus draw French troops into action as they had in the last-ditch campaign to keep Algeria French.

A French officer credited insurgent agents in the Moslem quarter with spreading the secret army hopes of sparking a riot.

He said it was thanks to the insurgent leaders "that thousands of Moslems left the Casbah to evade the European quarters before the shelling.

One of the insurgent agents in the Casbah commented "Even if 1,000 were killed the European terrorism we still would not be provoke—some future of Algeria is too important."

SLAY MANY

At least 70 Moslems have died and nearly 150 have been wounded by the European extremists and French troops since the truce went into effect at Noon Monday.

Grim French officials admitted that more Moslems have been shed in Algeria since the Danger of 30-Foot Wave Is Seen If Chaudiere Valley Dam Breaks

QUEBEC (CP)—Residents of the Beauce Region south of Quebec were warned today from the legislature Tuesday night that Greyhurst dam at Lac Megantic could burst at any moment and create "catastrophic floods" along the Chaudiere River.

The warning came from Natural Resources Minister René Levesque as he read a prepared statement on the dam site at the dam, 90 miles south of Quebec City.

Mr. Levesque warned the thousands of residents along the low-lying banks of the river they would be hit by a wave 30 feet high if the dam, already weakened by "progressive degradation," should burst under the rising spring run-off.

Levesque said a break in the Greyhurst dam is not a certain thing." But residents of the Chaudiere Valley must be prepared. The army and civil defence had been put on the alert.

Army engineers are in the area to dynamite the ice jams widening Chaudiere which floods almost every year. Ice jams up on the dam. Normally

Pressure Rises For Unpoliced Ban on A-Tests

GENEVA (CP) — Pressure mounted today for the 17-nation disarmament conference to ban clear-testing of nuclear weapons as Britain, the United States resumes testing next month.

Foreign Ministers Mahmoud Fawzi of the United Arab Republic, Ketema Yifru of Ethiopia and U Thaa of Burma joined in the demands made Monday by Canadian Foreign Minister Celso Underin and V. K. Krishna Menon of India for an unlimited agreement to suspend test plans while the big powers negotiate.

Negotiating experts of the United States, Britain and Russia resumed their efforts to find a basis for new three-power negotiations on a nuclear test ban.

There was no immediate word from the talking session, attended by Charles Stelle of the United States Department of Britain and Semyon Tsarapkin of the Soviet Union.

The 17-nation conference has called on the three nuclear powers to work out arrangements for test-ban negotiations and report to the full conference Fri-

Healey Falls Bridge Collapses Under Big Load

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont. (CP) The centre span of the Healey Falls Bridge crashed Tuesday beneath a tractor-trailer truck loaded with 24 tons of steel bars.

Load limit on the bridge is eight tons.

Police have not yet released the name of the driver, who jumped to safety.

The bridge is on Healey Fall, road, about six miles north of this town 25 mile, east of Peter, borough.

The collapse will mean a detour of up to 30 miles for some residents in the area, County officials say it will be several days before a temporary crossing is erected.

Frank Baalim, Lawyer, Madoc, Dies Suddenly

Frank Baalim, lawyer and lifelong resident of the Madoc district, died suddenly at his branch office at Stirling on Tuesday afternoon. He suffered a heart attack, while attending to office business and died before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. Baalim was born in Madoc township, 72 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Baalim. He was educated in the public, high schools of Madoc and also graduated from the Model School in that village. For a time he was a school teacher in the Madoc district and then attended Osgoode Hall in Toronto, where he graduated in 1915. He had continually practised in Madoc and enjoyed a wide clientele throughout the community. He always had great faith in his community and was a keen builder of real estate. He also was a great admirer of the many districts around Lake being a summer attraction for tourists and through the years he has many cottages on the lake and his summer home on Crowe Island and no two stones alike was a showplace on this fine body of water.

Mr. Baalim was also a collector of the formation of rocks and his collection was one of the finest in Canada and he had many specimens from the United States and other lands came to view it.

He was a member of the United Missionary Church in Madoc township and attended the United Church in his native village. Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Ethel Leacock, one daughter, Miss Margaret Baalim, one brother, John Wesley Baalim of Madoc township, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Ann Wright of Belleville and Mrs. Phoebe Hammond of Madoc township.

The funeral will be held in Trinity United Church on Friday afternoon with temporary entombment in Ashton Cemetery.

Gr. 13 Pupils Offered Prizes By Accountants

Mr. D. D. Hickson, C.G.A. chairman of the Belleville and District of the Certified General Accountants Association, announced today that it would conduct two examinations and translations in English and Mathematics on the morning of Saturday, May 5th.

Entrance will be free to all grade 13 students in this area.

The examinations are to be competitive and will be conducted in the principal cities in the Province of Ontario. The top student will receive the provincial award of $100. In addition to the provincial award a number of prizes will go to the top area student.

Mr. Hickson stated, "The Certified General Accountants hope these awards will assist deserving students to further their education. These two particular subjects are of importance to accountants and auditors, were chosen because the student who can both calculate and communicate has excellent qualifications for any field he may choose."

cease-fire than in any other 36-hour period in the last five months of intense terrorism.

Wednesday's truce continued to take its toll in the big coastal cities, narrow French troops in at least a half-dozen villages in the interior lifted Tuesday on Moslem towns slightly from the green and white rebel flag.

The army charged that the Moslems broke the truce with pecan settlements and fired on the troops first.

In the west Algerian city of Oran, Moslems and Europeans fought in a day-long gun battle along the boulevard separating the Moslem "casbah" city from the European quarter. Eight persons died and 25 were wounded during this and scattered incidents in Oran during the day.

ARCHBISHOP WARNS

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Algiers, Msgr. Etienne Duval, warned that continuing terrorism may lead Algeria "toward the worst of catastrophes." He called on the Europeans to persuade the right-wing underground that "they have on the path forbidden by God."

Leaders of the rebel Algerian underground, in a secret gathering in Morocco, meanwhile, to confer with King Hassan II.

First to arrive were Vice-President Belkacem Krim and his four others released Sunday by France after six years of detention.

In Paris, debate on the cease-fire agreements continued in the French National Assembly with most deputies giving it their accord and its promise of independence for Algeria.

Despite the truce, most observers were certain the French parliament would give overwhelming approval to the peace agreement in a referendum de Gaulle will put to Parliament in itself will not vote on the agreement.

Salary Requests From Teachers Not Decided

Members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board burned the midnight oil last night as they completed the business on a lengthy agenda at their bi-regular monthly meeting.

There was a lengthy discussion on salary requests from high school teachers, but members were unable to reach any final decision on the matter.

Subscriptions were given to school architects Barnett and Rieder to use the same basis of remuneration for the proposed addition to Quinte Secondary School, as used for the Moira Secondary School. Federal and provincial approval for the proposed school addition at Quinte was recently received by the board.

Board members agreed for the C.A.S. to continue as attendance officers of the high schools following a satisfactory trial period.

APPOINTMENTS ACCEPTED

The resignations of 11 high school teachers were accepted with the board at the same time approving the engagement of 13 teachers for the school term beginning next September. Another 3 teachers will be required to fill out the requirements of the board for the season, ahead.

The appointment of Mr. Stanley Barbour as physical education department head at Belleville Collegiate was approved. Douglas Hamilton was named assistance from Saturday morning. The funeral announcement appeared elsewhere in this edition.

Rotary Club's Officers Named For Coming Year

TRENTON — At Monday night's meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club the election of officers for the 1962-63 year.

Vice-president-elect is R. W. Patrick; secretary, E. C. Ward; treasurer, Grant Rathbun; directors: W. Adams, E. Abney, B. Cronk, H. Herbert-ington and W. Schroeder.

At a nomination meeting two weeks ago, Clifford A. Baker was acclaimed 1963-63 president.

Speaker was Paul Planovsky of Belleville. Commenting on the situation in Communist and Communist Russia in particular, he warned the audience that Communist promises "that the rest of the world was corrupted and hence should be adjudicated," and that "the children of the world will be reminded Communists, and the Soviet premier's challenge to the West: 'We will bury you,' should not be regarded as idle threats, but as living axioms of Communist faith."

Mr. Planovsky was introduced to the club by Fred Hubbard and thanked by Dr. D. Zimerman.

The members were reminded by Ted Wright that this is a "World Understanding Week." Guests were Mrs. Planovsky, guests Kent Suzuki of Hamilton and Karel Vyepsij of Batawa.

Lloyd Mackenzie, who graduated from a visit to Florida, called down to every member of the club twist to the dollar fine for going south of the border, proposed that the fine be raised to a dollar with every member who had not left Trenton for that year 10 years. To Mr. Weese's chagrin, 35 Rotarians, admitting they were "lazy-bones", contributed a dollar each to the general fund. Mr. Weese said up cheerfully, however:

VON Requests Council Make $3,200 Grant

TRENTON — The March meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Trenton branch, was held at the home of the honorary secretary, Mrs. George Burgess, Orchard Drive, Tuesday afternoon.

First vice-president George Gordon presided, Mrs. Burgess being in the absence of the president, Robert Barlow.

Members were told that the branch had made application to the town for a grant of $3200 to carry out the 1962 program. Mr. Greer said that the request would be considered by council at budget time, later this month.

Mr. Greer said that Mrs. Wm. L. Griffiths had reported that arrangements for the April tea were almost complete.

The secretary was asked to confirm the date June 1 and 2 for the V. O. N. tag days with the town office. Mrs. S. Norbury will convene the tag day activity.

Mrs. Burgess reported that she had received a letter from the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association that Trenton branch receive $2.75 an hour for their services to district nursing visits.

Miss Joan Moyer, head of the branch nursing service, reported that the branch had made 1462 home visits during February and that visits to the end of February, 1962, were almost exactly the same total as for the same period in 1961. Miss Moyer said that 28 new patients had received home care or instruction in home nursing during the month. February's immunization clinic showed an increase attendance over January's, and the two chest clinics at the hospital had been well attended, with 32 patients being x-rayed.

Miss Moyer told the group that Miss Elizabeth Kilne, district nurse with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children had visited Trenton on February 13. She is made the rounds of homes in which there are crippled children under the V.O.N. Miss Moyer commented that Trenton V.O.N. nurses have worked closely with nurses from the society for a number of years.

Miss Moyer said that the spring pre-natal classes were in progress and that 15 had been enrolled for the eight weeks' course. She said that a district nurse from the University of Ottawa would spend a week in Trenton, working with local V.O.N. nurses, starting April 16.

Miss Moyer said that a request for V.O.N. nursing services from the Ebenezer Christian Reformed School was being considered by the board of health authorities in Toronto.

The April meeting of the branch will be held in the V.O.N. office over the C.N.R. station in downtown Trenton.

Wilful Damage Case Dismissed, He Owned House

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Belleville solicitor Robert Sutton, acting for Frederick Surina of 21 Scagge Street in Trenton, asked to have a charge of wilful damage to property laid against his client dismissed on the grounds that the property on which Mr. Surina had allegedly committed the offence was, in fact, owned by Mrs. Surkar.

After listening to the lawyer's preliminary explanation, Magistrate T. V. Wills dismissed the case.

Mrs. Surina pleased not guilty to a further charge of consuming liquor while prohibited. Evidence submitted by the Crown indicated that Mr. Surina had been drinking beer in a beverage and acted in a belligerent manner.

Mr. Surina refused told the court that he had come out of jail to find his wife in the hospital and the person who holds the mortgage on his home had moved everything out. He said that he had been upset and claimed he had been threatened by those who had accosted the mortgagee and demanded an explanation. He admitted that he had struck his wife but claimed that he considered that he was justified because his furniture piled in the cellar of the house.

Magistrate Wills said that the only evidence that Mr. Surina had been drinking seemed to be based on himself and dismissed the case.

Carl MacDonald of Toronto at first pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of a passenger ticket on a taxi unlawfully and to a similar charge of passing a worthless cheque to pay for transportation.

Inspector J. J. Rutherford testified that the driver of a taxi owned by a Toronto firm, had brought a fare to Trenton on the police station on Jan. 25.

The cheque was signed "Ed. Morris", the address was said, and the driver was dubious about it. But the investigation had revealed that "Ed. Morris" and "Carl MacDonald" were the same man and that the cheque was worthless.

Mr. Kingston for a mental examination and that the institution without permission the day before Mac-Donald was due to be released to jail at Belleville. Chief Constable said MacDonald had engaged a Gould's taxi to take him to Bancroft and had given a worthless cheque for $35, and had received $20 change in cash. The cheque was cashed at the bank on which it was drawn marked "N.S.F."

At this point in the proceedings, MacDonald told the court that he was willing to plead guilty on the second charge to passing a worthless cheque.

"You've put me in a position where it's difficult to deal with the case," said Magistrate Wills.

Magistrate told him.

"It's aware of that," the magistrate told the accused, "but that doesn't entitle you to abscond from bail."

MacDonald was remanded for sentence until the first day in order that he may make arrangements to make restitution and the magistrate will hear evidence next week on the second charge.

Ronald Gould, 29, arrested early yesterday and charged with attempted breaking and entry into the House and House hardware building, Front Street, Trenton, was remanded until March 27, Magistrate Wills told the court that bail of $300 cash or $1,000 property bail would be considered. Mr. Gould's lawyer, Roderick Campbell would discuss his defence with him.

Larry Plans European Trip

TRENTON—Trenton's clerk-comptroller, O. W. Larry, told the members of town council Monday night that he might be asking for an extension of his holiday period this year, to enable him to participate in a study tour of European cheese, sponsored by the Ontario Municipal Association, of which he is the 1962 president.

Mr. Larry said that the 22-day tour would take Canadian elected representatives to appointed municipal officials to Great Britain, West Germany, Sweden, Denmark and Holland, where they would observe government from administrative, engineering, planning and social development viewpoints.

He suggested that members of council might like to take part in the tour. Cost, for transportation and hotel accommodation, (with breakfast), is around $560.

day. There appeared to be little if any hope the three big powers would be able to give an optimistic report.

U.S. STILL FIRM

The U.S. position today so far has been firm in its determination to go ahead with the underground tests in the atmosphere unless the Soviet Union agrees to a treaty banning all tests subject for adequate inspection to prevent cheating.

Menon suggested Tuesday that nuclear test detection stations be set up in countries such as Tunisia, Prime Minister Nehru explained to New Delhi radio that an arrangement would make it "more certain" that nuclear tests would be stopped. He considered because the stations would be under the control of the host country.

Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki told the conference today that Poland would favor a atom-free zone in Central Europe. He declines to gain wider significance."

The conference at its plenary session today was expected to reconsider and attend the Geneva disarmament talks. The resolution presented by Menon asked the conference on chairmanship of Britain and the United States, to pass along the request to French President de Gaulle.

den said, not making clear whether he meant Mr. Brown or Mr. Wardrope.

NOT POLITE?

"It wouldn't be polite for me to use the language I feel like using," Mr. Brown replied, but Mr. Wardrope retorted.

"I don't think it would, and impugned no motives, Mr. Wardrope then accused the two opposition leaders of "bullying tactics and chicanery and insincerity."

Mr. Brown then interrupted further debate by moving that the legislature sitting as a committee of the whole to study estimates—report back routine bills. Premier Frost and Leader MacDonald took the floor.

He moved, seconded by the Liberal leader, that the house "regrets" that "in view of the unprecedented delay in calling the deputy Speaker had "lost the confidence of the house."

The motion was defeated and ended with defeat of the opposition motion.

Earlier leaders of both opposition parties attacked a recent announcement that jail selection over employees in municipal prisons to be transferred to the municipalities concerned.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the number of persons sentenced to jail for repeated offences has increased steadily. "This government demns the policies and programs of, the department far more effective than any other kind of criticism can."

The announcement of the change was made two weeks ago by Reform Institutions Minister Haskett. The government's task came during debate of his department's $18,319,000 estimates.

Both opposition leaders contended that the jail system should be incorporated into the department.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market reversed its downward trend of Tuesday to pull up sately ahead during light morning trading today.

All sections showed modest gains on index except golds, which dipped to their lowest since late 1961.

Among industrials, Interprovincial Pipe Line rose 2¢, Canada Cement 4, Massey-Ferguson ¼ and Trans-Canada Pipe Line ⅛.

Algoma Steel fell ⅛, Steel Company of Canada ¼, International Nickel ⅛ and Steel ⅛.

On the exchange index, industrials gained .36 at 525.09, base metals .52 at 206.57 and western oils .39 at 130.54. Golds dropped 1.09 to 97.80—their lowest since November, 1961.

The volume of trading at noon was 507,000 shares compared with 725,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Despite the mild strength in base metals, International Nickel fell ¼ and Hudson Bay Mining ⅛. Falconbridge rose ⅛. In speculatives, Lake Dufault gained five cents to 84¢.

Home A and Pacific Petroleum each dipped ¼ among western oils, while Baffin Refinery A gained five cents to 85¢ and added five cents at 29.30.

The market seemed headed for its heaviest loss of the year Thursday, but a strong rally in the last half hour pulled industrials up almost two points.

TSE HEADS . . . says B—PP

The main board still closed on the minus side, as did all other sections except west of their lowest since late 1960.

Among the industrials, Canadian ¼ went to Bank of Montreal, Saladа Foods, Walker-Gooderham, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Steel of Canada and Steel CPR, while Steel Construction, Canada Cement, Canadian Furnace and Moore Corporation all fell in ¼ to ½ range.

Empire Life showed the sharpest gain, rising 14 points to 220 in extremely light turnover.

Of the leaders, industrials fell 1.82 at 525.09, golds 1.26 at 97.80 and their lowest since November 1960. Western oils were off .39 and western oils 1.47 at 120.15.

Closing volume was 2,946,000 shares compared with Monday's 3,210,000.

Ventures and International Nickel weakened base metals, each dropping one point Falconbridge fell ¼.

Among specialties, Northgate fell 15 cents to $5.50 and Lake Dufault 25 cents to $4.80

Approximately 500 Attend AOTS Supper

The sixth annual pancake supper of the Tabernacle United Church AOTS Men's Club was held Tuesday night and was an unqualified success. Over 500 people were fed by the hard working men and everyone reported having had all they could eat.

Mrs. Jack Ledingham played the electronic organ on stage during the supper which was immensely enjoyed by everyone present. The people were coming so fast at one point that it was necessary to seat them along the walls until space became available at the tables. The club's club wishes to extend their apologies to those who were forced to wait to be served.

President Larry Grey extends his thanks to all the men who worked so hard to make the evening such a big success and to the girls who had charge of the nursery while parents were enjoying the meal.

Peter Wishart, Toronto, Breaks Leg in Accident

A Toronto man was taken to the Belleville General Hospital Tuesday night as the result of a car accident on Highway No. 2 about two miles west of Desoronto.

Constable Howard Adamson, who investigated the accident, said Wednesday that Peter Wishart of Toronto was in the Belleville hospital suffering from a broken leg, two broken ribs and facial lacerations.

Constable Adamson said Mr. Wishart failed to negotiate a curve, known locally as "Cole's" curve, located about two miles west of Desoronto. The car struck several guard posts bordering the road and came to rest against a pile of rocks in the ditch.

Damage to the car was estimated at approximately $1,500.

Dr. D. McVicar attended Mr. Wishart who was rushed to the hospital by Wishart's motorcycle escort.

matical corrections.

After commission counsel Roland Wilson announced that the first procedure would be to look into allegations of government dealings with crookdom, Liberal Larry Pennell, Q.C., MacKinnon promptly called for having Papalia hauled before the commission.

Papalia, a shadowy figure although a sonny, was the muscle in the half-world of crime in Hamilton and Toronto, was publicly serving a term in Brockbrook maximum security prison in Ontario when the United States government got him extradited last week to face trial in New York on a multi-million dollar narcotics charge.

Gardner Man Bluestein had been beaten up in a nightclub here before about 100 people. No charges were laid for months. Eventually, police hunt an 18-year-old barm on Papalia.

Then the big charge came on. A couple of those accused in the narcotics case were murdered in gangland style before they could turn up in New York court. One was Alberto Agueci of Toronto. Several were convicted after long terms.

SITS IT OUT

Papalia, sometimes called Johnny Pops or The Enforcer, was sitting it out Hillbrook until the federal authorities got together.

When he was about to be put aboard a plane in Toronto International Airport last week he raised so much objection to heading for New York that the airline would not handle the flight. He and his escorts made it by train to Buffalo and a chartered plane from there on.

Before the royal commission Tuesday, Mr. MacKinnon said that "one Johnny Pops" is obviously known to all the rackets. "Whether or not he could be interviewed would then be the root of the matter of the effectiveness of the royal commission."

Commission counsel Roland Wilson said after breakfast that was the result of negotiations between the two federal governments. He said the deal was formed that Papalia will be "brought to Canada to testify in the U.S., and this can be done only upon as suitable conditions" as in Canada.

"It wouldn't be suitable to me," Mr. MacKinnon retorted.

WANTS RETURNED

The commissioner said he had not been concerned about the extradition, though it had been his intention that Papalia be "brought before the commission and examined."

He made it clear that Johnny Pops will be examined at any place or another but, as to where and when, "I have precisely no knowledge."

The only witnesses heard at the abbreviated session yesterday were Liberal Leader Winters, Inquiry—who did no more than identify the text of the speech he made in the legislature—and Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common, public prosecutions director W. C. Bowman and Police Chief Hughes 155

CRIME INDEPENDENT

Government prosecutors obviously think otherwise. A heady return of Teamsters indictments began when Kennedy's former chief counsel-of-the-Senate rackets committee had investigated Teamsters affairs for three years, became attorney-general. Since then he knows more than two dozen grand juries are delving into Teamsters matters.

Hoffa minimized one indictment after another, pointing out precedence could be will be found from the 16 - count mail fraud indictment now pending against him at Orlando, Fla. This alleges that Hoffa and a Detroit bank official misused $500,000 of Detroit Teamsters funds in a Florida land development deal.

Nobody got defrauded out of a quarter," Hoffa said. "Not where in the hell is the problem?

"Stories about the Orlando case make it look like Hoffa put $500,000 in his pick. Which ain't bad if you can do it—but I didn't do it."

Hoffa, asked about the net worth of the Teamsters and the union's various pensions and welfare funds, put the figure at $1,500,000,000.

Hoffa Declares Teamsters Billion-Dollar Operation

WASHINGTON (AP)—James Riddle Hoffa said today the Teamsters union he heads has become a billion-dollar operation and is doing fine, despite a barrage of indictments against him and his fellow officials.

Hoffa, back from his latest bout with the courts, was interviewed on the matter of court actions brought against away in bank accounts in Switzerland and Mexico.

"If they're so closer than that, they're not very close are they?" Hoffa chortled. "In all ways, say 'Show me where it is' and I'll give you half."

City Manager Talks to Lions

Members of the Lions Club holding their meeting at the Shrine Club here, heard an interesting talk by J. F. Reynolds, Belleville's city manager. Mr. Reynolds in his address, dealt with the organization of a council-manager form of municipal government and absorbed some various facets of civic administration. He stated the council manager form of government is becoming the most popular type of administration. Specifically, it was the manager's duty to carry out the policies set by the council. This could be compared to a large corporation where a general manager carries out policies laid down by a board of directors.

The speaker was introduced by Lion Past-President Bill Lowen, and thanked by Lion Past-President Harvey Frid, who presented him with a gift on behalf of the club.

Lion International Councillor Jamieson was a guest also. Lion Walter Robinson of Toronto from Trenton were Lions Ross Kinsey and Fred Austin. Mr. Lou Desjardins, a new arrival in the district who is with the American Optical Company, was the guest of Lion Elmer Scott. The guests were introduced by the Club Greeter, Lion Past-President Harvey Frid.

FREEDOMITE

Alan Dalchkoff said Sorokin used the words "Pray to God" in letters to the sect, meaning to continue the burnings and bombings.

Fred Jmaeff said: "Just as sure as the sun rises the success of this court, it is sure that the fraternal council, all 32 members, are giving orders for the bombings, burnings and fires."

The 13 accused said they had been told to lie in court, to blame violence on Sorokin, to discredit bombing of a huge power transmission tower near here and many arson and bomb attacks—on a former Freedomite leader and a Doukhobor prophet.

Testimony against the council began Monday when Mrs. Eva Ryshoff said: "Our people, aside from the committee (fraternal council), do not wish to leave anything unsaid in regard to the burnings."

The accused pleaded not guilty to conspiracy, but admitted the police offences.

Another of the 13 said the secret police objects such as power poles which did not suit the individual. Orthodox Doukhobor villages have been given a warning to the orthodox villagers not to buy land.

Another said the Freedomites consider themselves messengers to all people and this their message being peaceful life.

The sect has been blamed for arson for years but until now its members have denied implication.

Spring Signs Apparent In District

By Wm. W. BITTLE

The first robin in the village of Tweed was seen on March 17 and crocuses are again in their usual clamorous numbers. The pussy willows (grandfather's dogs) have ventured forth from their long winter's sleep.

It is early this spring, but winter is still with us in terms of snow depths. There is plenty of snow in the woods with the depths averaging from 12 to 24 inches. Cold nights and sunny days are combining for a normal runoff and lessening the chances of flood conditions.

By the appearances we do not have wintered well. In the southern parts and more densely populated areas there is a good deer are moving out of their winter habitats at once again through carelessness on the part of owners, dogs are taking their annual toll of deer particularly at this time of year, should be tied or at least confined to the fenced-in yard running at large.

A local trapper brought in a large bobcat yesterday that weighed 36 pounds. Its total length was 40 inches including the 5 inch tail. These animals are not usually present here but there numbers have increased greatly due to the over abundance of rabbits, their principal diet. Bobcats are not protected and their pelts are of no value.

A Canadian Lynx was mistaken for a bobcat and one of local trappers near Lingham Lake. This animal, a female, weighed 30½ pounds and had a total length of 44 inches including the 4 inch tail.

A small number of lynx (8 in all) were trapped in Northern Ontario and released in the Ompah area a year and one-half ago. The lynx is an important fur-bearer and has been licensed trappers in certain districts of Ontario only. Like its near cousin, the bobcat, the main source of food is rabbits and other rodents.

Estate Planning Subject of Talk At Kiwanis Club

Modern estate planning was espoused as a practical and efficient manner in which to provide the family unit in modern society despite the death of the father and to maintain the small businesses as a going concern in the democratic, free enterprise economic system despite the death of a partner or the death of the firm by Aubrey Oldham, president-elect of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada. Mr. Oldham was the guest speaker at the weekly Kiwanis Club dinner meeting yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

Modern estate planning is a system whereby a person is able to have the most benefits available in his community work together to determine how to best arrange his estate so that full and accurate provision is made for all possible exigencies involving one's family and business responsibilities in the event of his death.

Mr. Oldham broke the theory of estate planning into three portions — need, technique and timing, three of which is explained above.

The initial portion requires that an individual determine his present position and create an estate that is enough assets to balance off any responsibilities. There is also a need to see that the assets are conserved to the best possible degree and that they are so arranged that, in event of the individual's death, the minimum amount possible is lost through inheritance tax. Distribution arrangements, especially in the case of minor children, are necessary to ensure that the estate is used effectively after death, the speaker noted.

MUST HAVE INFORMATION

The success of modern estate planning depends on complete-ness of the information which can accurately assess the individual's needs and according to the first phase and the persons involved in the second, or technique, phase.

In this phase, Mr. Oldham advised, the executor took the individual's lawyer, life underwriter, investment officer and bank-banker are required by the council to examine the material available and to assist in the scrutinize the suitability of deeds, agreements and other documents to fit into an efficient and comprehensive estate plan.

An enlightening account of the various technicalities involved in the creation of a successful estate plan was given by the speaker. Mr. Oldham stressed the real life instances to highlight the importance of a number of the points which he made.

Mr. Oldham also underlined the importance of individual ensuring that his legal papers are up to date as possible. He mentioned one instance of a person having drawn up a new will but neglected to sign it until this omission was drawn to his attention over three years later. He also stressed the importance of a person placing the proper trust in persons required to create an estate plan.

Mr. Oldham was introduced by Noble Mahood and thanked by Bill Ironsides. The meeting was conducted by club president George Hume.

OCEAN DIVE

which Khrushchev made in voicing congratulations on the three-orbit flight of Lt.-Col. John Glenn.

Khrushchev's six - point program, read over Moscow radio, was:

1. Co-operation in settling international communications networks utilizing earth satellites.

2. A joint project for studying and observing weather by means of orbiting satellites.

3 Organization of joint radio and telescope tracking of space vehicles launched toward other planets such as Mars and Venus and the journey.

4. Conclusion of an agreement for rendering aid to space vehicles in difficulty in space. This also, envisaged joint lifesaving operations for space pilots in distress.

5. Co - operation in mapping the magnetic field surrounding the earth and the exchange of space medical information.

6. Agreement on a common approach to legal problems involved in space exploration.

DISARMAMENT FIRST

Further, Khrushchev said, there were much greater prospects of co - operation in joint exploration of space than in reaching other planets but this would only be possible after an agreement on disarmament.

Commenting on the advantages of co-operation, Khrushchev said a satellite communications system would result in "considerable improvement in the means of communication and television all over the globe."

Khrushchev predicted weather forecasting with the aid of artificial earth satellites "will make. It possible to wage a more successful struggle against natural disaster and will open new prospects for the increase of the welfare of mankind."

His letter emphasized a joint research and control program "is especially necessary in view of the fact that it might mean the use of rockets, for communists, the courageous explorers of the space of the universe."

Actually, the Soviet Union had already told the UN committee on outer space that such a plan it will help set up an international communications system using artificial satellites.

This assurance by Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin was made in New York Tuesday.

Man With a Difficult Job

The long-awaited cease-fire has finally been arranged in Algeria. It remains to be seen whether the agreement can be translated into fact, or whether the extremists on both sides, but mostly amongst the Europeans, will succeed in keeping the blood flowing.

Under such circumstances, much will depend on the personality of the man who will shoulder the main responsibility for the implement of the truce terms. Until a referendum is held and an Algerian parliament is elected, the country will be run by a 12-man provisional committee headed by a French high commissioner. Gen. de Gaulle has now named this commissioner. He is Christian Fouchet.

Fouchet is not a well-known international figure. He goes to Algeria from peaceful Denmark, where he has been ambassador. He has long been a supporter of de Gaulle, having joined the General's Free French organization in London after the fall of France in June of 1940. But this portion of his past which may provide the best clue to his probable policies in handling his formidable task in Algeria is that he was minister of Tunisian and Moroccan affairs in the cabinet of Premier Mendes-France. Tunisia and Morocco, of course, have long since gained their independence. The Moroccan sultan "Mohammed V," which means simply "love" — and the Bible tells us "faith, hope and charity" is better rendered as "faith, hope and love." Greatest of these, are told, is "love."

It is a interesting coincidence that what we call "charity" today has become an organized effort to raise funds by raising, banquets, benefits, theatre parties, bazaars and such social events.

Those who support and cooperate in this generosity may be, in most cases, superior to those who do not. But the danger here is that we sometimes think we can buy virtue by ourselves. It is a superficial means, without the necessity of loving those we give to and organize for.

Charity is always resented when it is offered in a personal respect or affection. When it has a sickening, condescending, a substitute for personal involvement — then the recipient can easily detect hate and greedy. For what is given without love is interpreted without grace or gratitude.

There is an old saying, "The road to hell is paved with the best." Those of us in the first stages, of giving or doing, must not permit our sense of self satisfaction to keep us from attaining the final goal of charity. Doing good is too often the enemy of the counterfeit of being good — and charity can easily become the counterfeit of love.

Strictly Personal

Giving, Doing, Being, Degrees Of Charity

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There are three degrees of charity: giving, doing and being. The lowest order is giving — anyone with some surplus funds can give to make himself feel better or to assuage a guilty conscience.

Doing is a step upward on the rung of charity. It involves time and effort, and not merely the writing of a check. Here too, however, some people use their charitable work for neurotic motives that quite cancel out the good they try to do.

Being is the last and hardest stage of charity. Few of us ever achieve it — for in the first stages are almost meaningless and easy. It is in the long run the giving and doing of the truly devoted of social evil and to wipe it out — or to alter a sentimental or humanitarian gesture, but because we feel genuinely involved in the life of mankind.

The word "charity," as you know, comes from the Latin "caritas," which means simply "love" — and the Bible tells us "faith, hope and charity" is better rendered as "faith, hope and love." Greatest of these, are told, is "love."

It is a interesting coincidence that what we call "charity" today has become an organized effort to help certain groups by raising funds and raising, banquets, benefits, theatre parties, bazaars and such social events.

Those who support and cooperate in this generosity may be, in most cases, superior to those who do not. But the danger here is that we sometimes think we can buy virtue by ourselves. It is a superficial means, without the necessity of loving those we give to and organize for.

Charity is always resented when it is offered in a personal respect or affection. When it has a sickening, condescending, a substitute for personal involvement — then the recipient can easily detect hate and greedy. For what is given without love is interpreted without grace or gratitude.

There is an old saying, "The road to hell is paved with the best." Those of us in the first stages, of giving or doing, must not permit our sense of self satisfaction to keep us from attaining the final goal of charity. Doing good is too often the enemy of the counterfeit of being good — and charity can easily become the counterfeit of love.

The King's Inglish?

Once again there has been an attack on the King's English and the methods of teaching children to spell at school. At an educational conference recently held in Montreal one brave soul, Kyril Evans, proposed that a revised, if not totally new, spelling system be taught Canadian children.

His chief claim for the advisability of adopting this new form is that, he asserts, it will make spelling easier for children and make them think.

There are many who would not agree that it will make future, or present, scholars better spellers however. Mr. Evans pointed out that there is a phonetic disparity between such words as "plough" and "cough" although they are spelt the same.

In his own spelling Mr. Evans feels that the "tiem" has come for a change. Well we do feel that the tym — er, tyme — ugh them has come. But since, from what we have observed, too many children are already spelling words in Mr. Evans' fashion perhaps we might resolve the entire situation by teaching them the right way to spell. It certainly is going to take just as long one way as the uthur — udher — uder!

Self-examination, if it is thorough enough, is nearly always the first step toward change. — Thomas Mann.

Immigrants Prefer Pork

Windsor Star

Pork consumption has been maintained in Canada because of the influx of Europeans, opines Mr. A. L. Currie, senior livestock officer for the Federal Department of Agriculture. "It is a fact that, in many European countries, beef is a relatively small part of the meat diet.

"There Italians are countries in Europe where one seldom sees beef hanging. The cattle are mainly for milk, butter and cheese, with calves being slaughtered for veal. Pork is kept for beef purposes. There are places where it is difficult to get a fine piece of beef or roast but there always seems plenty of pork, poultry and fish. Denmark, for instance, is noted for the excellence of its pork, bacon and cheese.

Canadians, in pioneer days, ate proportionately more pork than now—even though the pigs raised then produced more fat in relation to lean than do modern hogs. Most people there lived on a monotonous diet of pork and pork helped sustain them.

Other tastes also differ. In certain countries, such as Czechoslovakia, more than is made of would not retreat from his unpopular austerity program, which was widely blamed for his election setback.

His agreement with the military brought Frondizi through the worst challenge to his hold on the government reins since he took office in May 1958. He still faced the reaction of millions of voters who chalked up victories for Peronists in Sunday's congressional and provincial elections. So far, however, the capital was surprisingly quiet and no major demonstrations were reported.

The military chiefs had appeared ready to force Frondizi out and seize control to nullify the landslide election wins of Peronist forces in 10 provinces.

But the United States was reported to have sent word it would cut down or even eliminate Argentina's share in its Alliance for Progress aid program if the military took over.

Britain was also said to have warned that without a constitutional president, Argentina would become unattractive for British investments.

OUTLAW ACTIVITY

In their new pact, Frondizi and chiefs of the army, navy and air force also were reported to have agreed that:

1. All political activity by followers of exiled former dictator Juan Peron will be outlawed once again. After being held in check for six years, Peronists were allowed to run under their own banner again in Sunday's elections.

2. The government will eliminate the closed shop and enact a right-to-work law—an apparent move to cut the power of the mammoth Confederation of Labor.

3. The executive branch and other government departments will be purged of "Frigerismo" —the influence of Rogelio Frigerio, millionaire businessman, close adviser to Frondizi and long a target of the military leaders.

Assoc. Members Worried About High Water

Members of the Sir Winston Churchill Home and School Association are concerned about high water conditions on their property.

Today's week a delegation from the home and school association appeared at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Public School Board asking that something be done about what they called "hazardous conditions" which continue to exist in the area due to lack of a proper drain from the Southview-Golf-ers area.

Board members noted that they were aware of the conditions.

The city public works department today are operating a pump in an effort to give temporary relief to the condition.

Board members accepted the resignation of Miss Grace Orser, who has been a member of the probationary teaching staff at Prince of Wales School for the past two years.

Miss Enid Malcolm was given leave of absence for a year while two long term teachers on the school board Miss Olive Elson and Miss Frances A. Young will retire at the end of the present school term.

Permanent teaching contracts will be offered to the following teachers, who have been on the probationary staff:

Nineteen other teachers with the schools system had their probationary contracts extended for another year.

Harkness Says Rumor False

OTTAWA (CP) — Paul Hellyer, Toronto-Trinity, charged Tuesday that Defence Minister Harkness recently asked civil servants and members of the armed forces at Gimli, Man., how they are going to vote in the next federal election.

Mr. Harkness angrily denied the statement, made in the Commons by Mr. Hellyer during debate on supplementary spending estimates for the defence department.

The minister said the statement was a completely unfounded assertion, completely false and that Mr. Hellyer should apologize for making it.

Mr. Hellyer said that he accepts the minister's word but added that the person who gave him the information said he was asked by Mr. Harkness how he was going to vote.

Below Cannifton Dam the main channel of the river is completely open with only small patches of ice clinging in the shallow areas and to the banks.

item, the questions revolving around the army's Honest John rocket battery in Europe.

Tuesday the defence minister protested a repetitious probing of his critics. He accused the Liberals of trying to confuse the public on the government's nuclear policy.

QUOTE REPORTS

Most of the debate centred around reports of statements attributed to Prime Minister Diefenbaker at Edmonton last month.

Mr. Pearson said the reports quoted Mr. Diefenbaker as giving credence to a report that Canada's arms can be made minutes to one hour in event of an emergency.

Mr. Harkness denied that Mr. Diefenbaker had ever said that. However, Mr. Pearson insisted that the prime minister's statement gave credence to reports that this would be the case.

Such a statement on nuclear defence, Mr. Pearson said, was the most preposterous and absurd ever made by a leader of a Canadian government.

The government's position was that if and when war broke out the government would make a decision on how nuclear arms would be acquired.

TAKES 17 MINUTES

"It takes 17 minutes for an intercontinental ballistic missile from Asia to reach North America," Mr. Pearson said.

"During those 17 minutes the minister will decide whether or not the Bomarc missile is to have a nuclear warhead. During these 17 minutes he has also to decide whether it is possible to get an agreement with the U.S. government to make possible the acquisition of nuclear warheads."

The minister, Mr. Pearson said, had stated that a decision would be made in the future. "There is an emergency to develops.

"That is the most absurd statement on defence policy ever made by any government in this House.

"Wait until the waf starts then we will decide whether we will give our weapons ammunition. That is the government's defence policy in 1962," Mr. Pearson said.

City Engineer Resigns Post Effective May 4

Mr. Malcolm Turnbull, city engineer at Belleville since early in 1958, has tendered his resignation effective May 4th and will go to St. Catharines as city engineer in the Niagara Peninsula municipality.

Mr. Turnbull assures his new duties at St. Catharines on May 7th.

"I will be sorry to leave Belleville as I have been very happy here", Mr. Turnbull told the Ontario Intelligencer today. He said, however, that he was unable to turn down the opportunity at St. Catharines.

Mr. Turnbull came to Belleville in the fall of 1957 as commissioner of works and about six months later was named city engineer.

Speaking with the Ontario Intelligencer today Mr. Turnbull said the date of his resignation was far enough ahead to enable him to "tidy up" much of the public works projects now underway or planned for the immediate future and also would give council time to arrange for a new city engineer.

The St. Catherine's city council dealt with Mr. Turnbull's appointment on Monday evening of this week.

City Works Committee chairman Alderman Joseph Raycroft said he had been aware of Mr. Turnbull's intentions for a week or so, but noted that his resignation would not officially be before his committee until early next week.

Meat From Dead Animals In Ontario Will Be Tinted Says Agriculture Minister

TORONTO (CP)—The meat from dead or fallen animals in Ontario—regardless of whether it is inspected—will, in future, be colored.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart said in the legislature Tuesday the provincial government will amend the Dead Animals Disposal Act to require that such meat be tinted with powdered charcoal to prevent it reaching consumer markets.

"It is the intention of this government to so strengthen the Dead Animal Disposal Act that the public can be completely confident that meat from dead or fallen stock is not finding its way into the market for human consumption," he said.

For anyone attempting to sell such meat for human consumption, the penalties will be stiffer.

First offences which at present call for fines will be met with $500 fines in future. Second or subsequent offences, which formerly brought fines of $500 or 30-day jail terms, will result in fines or sentences of six months.

CONSIDER INSPECTION

"In the meantime, we are giving serious and active consideration to the whole question of the inspection of all meat intended for human consumption," Mr. Stewart said.

"But I think the honorable members should realize the very great problems involved in the inspection of meat. To be sure, hundreds of small establishments in the province which produce about 20 per cent of the total amount of meat for human consumption.

"Unfortunately, this whole matter of the sale of dead stock has created a situation in the minds of the general public to the point that a pernicious eye has been cast toward the legitimate meat trade. . . ."

"In actual fact, of course, the responsibility rests with a very small group of operators."

WON'T HINDER USE

Mr. Stewart said the charcoal coloring will "in no way hinder the use of such meat for legitimate purposes, outside the market for human consumption, but it will prevent the illicit offering of this type of meat to the public as a product fit for human consumption."

Under the new regulations, when an animal is butchered, powdered charcoal must be rubbed into the surface of the meat which is to be placed in containers marked "Unfit for human consumption."

The bill provides specifically that no meat may be sold for human consumption from any establishment engaged in processing of dead or fallen animals.

The new regulations followed by about 10 weeks the breaking up by the RCMP of what they described as two separate rings selling tainted meat for human consumption in Ontario.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief Cecil Farrow announced Tuesday night that all bingos and raffles in the Windsor area will be investigated to determine their legality. He said if any games are found to be operating illegally, steps will be taken to correct or close them. He added it is part of a province-wide crackdown on bingos.

HOW MUCH Is Your Home Worth?

You probably remember very well what you paid for it. But what is it worth today? Asking most folks that kind of . . . what is COMPARABLE value.

But, unless you bought it only recently, the purchase price is only one indication of its true worth today . . . and not a very good one, at that.

Conditions change. Neighborhoods improve — or deteriorate. Alterations and improvements in the house affect its value. Dozens of considerations enter into an intelligent appraisal, making this almost a science in itself.

Delightful Dual Role

By ALICE ALDEN

For the young business woman who remains devotedly at her desk until the last minute, even though she has an early evening date, the solution is a quick change.

For instance, there's a suit that shows its good gray flannel side during the day, then reverses to a beautiful pale gold and beige print. Then there's the suit with two blouses — a high-necked one during the day and a deep V-necked one for evening.

In fine costume jewelry, Sarah Coventry suggests jeweled adaptability in the guise of a cleverly designed three-strand simulated pearl necklace. Clever clasps make it possible to convert from one to three strands at will and the clasp is prettily pearl on one side, rhinestone-studded in reverse.

Earrings get the same dual-sided treatment.

Dress Child in Comfortable Play Clothes for Train Ride

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTAWA (CP) — A child is notified in advance, arrangements are made to have the child met by a passenger representative who will ensure the child gets to his connecting train and arrange for the child to eat if the stopover is lengthy.

Although the railway stipulates no age limit, Mrs. Tapp said she personally thinks a child should be 10 or 12 before travelling alone.

SPECIAL SERVICES

She stresses the need for notifying the railway in advance if special services are required.

Stretcher cases can be put through some windows of sleeping cars but it is necessary to make arrangements ahead of time since not all windows are adaptable.

Wheel chairs are available at main stations for the use of passengers.

Passenger representatives will meet elderly or infirm persons and direct them to restaurants, washroom facilities and other trains.

"I can't think of anything within reason that we wouldn't, couldn't or haven't done for people."

SUBMITS RESIGNATION

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's President Yun Po-sun submitted his resignation Tuesday to the military junta chairman, Gen. Chung Hee Park. An official said Park asked him to reconsider and remain in office. Yun's preferred resignation was a protest against the junta's recent decree banning thousands of politicians from participating in elections in the next six years unless they are cleared by the juntas.

"A child is excited about a train ride isn't likely to sit still for the duration of the trip so it is best to dress him in comfortable play clothes, says Jack's Tapp of the CNR's public relations office here.

"A child who doesn't have to sit stiff and formal in Sunday best clothes will arrive in better humor."

Mrs. Tapp adds this advice to persons travelling with young children: Take along a favorite toy, book or blanket. A familiar object helps overcome any fears the child may have.

"If fussy excitement is a minimum, keep the trip matter-of-fact by taking along biscuits and other mid-day treats usually given the child."

If special diet foods are necessary, take along a good supply in case the train is delayed for some reason. The kitchen staff will aid in preparing formula and pablum and will heat tinned foods, bottles and prepare soft-boiled eggs. They'll also keep baby food or special dietetic foods on ice.

Mothers with young babies are advised to carry disposal diapers.

GOOD TRAVELLERS

Children adapt quickly and easily to train travel and the natural rhythm easily induces sleep, Mrs. Tapp says.

"In fact, children are the best travellers."

When reservations are made it is important to give the ages of the children to determine which ones are eligible for children's rates.

Young passengers who travel alone may be left in the care of the conductor. If the railway

St. Columba Church Iona Group Hears Talk on S. Africa

The ladies of the Iona Group of St. Columba Presbyterian Church held their regular monthly meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Robert Brain, with Mrs. J. Brasford presiding.

After the call to worship, Mrs. P. Baldwin took the Scripture reading. Mrs. Baldwin also read an excerpt from the Presbyterian Record telling of the "Beginning of the Iona Community".

During the business meeting, Mrs. J. Hayman reported that Mrs. D. Kuhn had had a "Tea" to welcome all new comers to the church.

Final arrangements were made for the "St. Patrick's Day Tea" and Mrs. D. Kuhn gave a report on the progress of the decorating committee.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. J. Brasford, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. F. Bellisedi and Mrs. R. Brain gave a brief history of Mrs. Bellisedi prior to her talk.

Mrs. Bellisedi is a sparkling interesting speaker of Boer-Afrikaans descent. She was born and educated in South Africa and has her degree in languages. She and her husband and three children immigrated to Canada from South Africa four years ago because of their political convictions.

During her talk, Mrs. Bellisedi pointed out that South Africa and Rhodesia were the two most European countries in Africa and that the Dutch Reform Church was the biggest church in South Africa.

Mrs. Bellisedi also said that the two official languages were Afrikaan and English and that it was imperative to know both. She also pointed out that there was a great rift between the people of the two European languages, as well as the seemingly unsurmountable gap between the Black and the White.

However, Mrs. Bellisedi said that although the country of South Africa had been built up on cheap native labor, the Bantus are better treated in South Africa than in other African countries.

INTEGRATION WILL COME

Mrs. Bellisedi believes that integration will come in time, but that the country was not ready yet. She said that great steps are being made in the education of the Bantu and at the present rate of enrollment illiteracy will be wiped-out in 20 to 25 years.

Mrs. Bellisedi compared the South African school system with that of Canada and said that university was cheaper in South Africa.

The speaker showed pictures of South Africa proving it to be a most lovely country.

Mrs. J. Brasford thanked Mrs. Bellisedi for an informative talk.

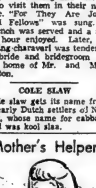
After the benediction, refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Turnbull and Mrs. J. Ruddy.

Young Couple Feted by Community

MINTO — Salem Church hall was filled Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wickens were honored with a shower by the community.

Mr. Joe Hagerman assumed the duties of chairman and expressed happiness and best wishes to the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Joe Forestell led in community singing. Readings were given by Mrs. Stan Thompson, Mrs. Everett Sine and Miss Edna Tanner. A piano selection was given by Mrs. Vene Hagerman; Master Larry Forestell sang.



Mr. Rota Sarles read the address and Bob and Linda were presented with a space saver and also received several individual gifts for which they expressed their thanks for the gifts as well and for the good wishes of all who contributed and were responsible for the enjoyable evening and invited all to visit them in their new home. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed. Later, a rousing charavari was tendered the bride and bridegroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston.

A.N.A.F. LA Enjoys Pot-Luck

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada held their monthly meeting Monday in the Memorial Hall, Front Street. The meeting was called to order by the president, M. Dracup, with the usual two minutes' silence.

Mrs. M. Galbraith, secretary, read the correspondence at several items of interest coming up and Mrs. E. Buckley, treasurer, gave a report on the finances, followed by the reports of all committees.

Several members who had been ill were able to be out again.

At the conclusion of the business session the two evening collections were made, flower fund and draw, with the prizes donated by Mrs. E. Lundon.

A social hour with a pot-luck lunch was enjoyed.

INDIAN LEADERS

Seventy women from Indian band councils in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Calvin Hannah are pictured following their recent marriage in Bridge Street United Church parsonage. The bride is the former Miss Diane Cecile Trubridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Trubridge, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah, also of Belleville.

HANNAH — TRUBRIDGE

A pretty, but quiet wedding, was solemnized on Saturday, March 3rd, at 2.00 p.m. in Bridge St. United Church parsonage by the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, when Diane Cecile Trubridge, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Trubridge, became the bride of Gerry Calvin Hannah, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah, of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Reginald Trubridge, was lovely in her white bridal gown of Alencon lace and nylon net over taffeta, featuring a fitted lace bodice having a Sabrina neckline and long, lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt was in ballerina length, accented with appliques of lace. She wore a Juliet style headdress encrusted with seed-ed pearls, and double pouff shoulder-length veil of nylon net, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses.

She was attended by Miss Rosellen DeMille as bridesmaid wearing a yellow silk nylon gown with fitted bodice having tiny sleeves and scoop neckline. The full ballerina-length skirt was enhanced by a wide bow-line, embroidered in self flower pattern. She carried a Colonial bouquet of yellow 'mums.

Mr. Allan DeMille, of Trenton, attended the bridegroom.

The receptions was held at Club Canara where the bridal table was appointed with white damask linen, and centred by a three-tier, all-white-pedestal cake topped with white dove and white tulle bow. Tall white candles in silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother, wearing a figured gown in beige and brown shades, with matching hat, beige accessories, and corsage of yellow carnations received the guests. The bridegroom's mother also assisted in the receiving line, attired in a gown of champagne brocade, with matching hat, beige accessories, and corsage of yellow carnations.

For the wedding trip to western points, bride wore a navy blue wool ensemble, with matching topcoat, and black accessories.

Guests were present from Hamilton; Oshawa; Trenton; Napanee; Cannifton, and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hannah will reside at 213 Mary Street, Orillia, Ontario.

CANCELS LICENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency has cancelled the certificate of William F. Poythress, 36, the flight engineer in the plane crash in which 74 army recruits were killed at Richmond, Va., Nov. 8. Poythress, one of two survivors, was charged with 11 major violations of flight safety regulations. The FAA said enforcement proceedings against the pilot and only other survivor, Ronald H. Conway, 30—are still under way.

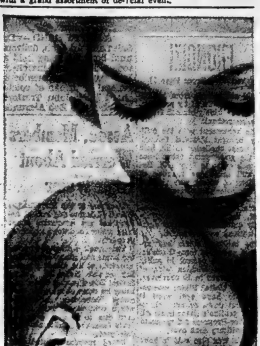
Holloway Street UCW Units Hold Dessert Coffee Party

With spring just around the corner, the ladies of Units one and nine of Holloway Street United U.C.W. held a delightful dessert coffee party in the Sunday School rooms of the church.

The leaders of the two units responsible for this special event were Mrs. O. Bertrand, and Mrs. H. Outingdyke, who was unavoidably absent due to illness.

Warmly receiving the many patrons at the door were Mesdames C. W. Coleman, C. Holmes, M. Brown and L. Wilkes and inviting them to the tea room were Mesdames L. Kilbank, Moynes and H. Martin.

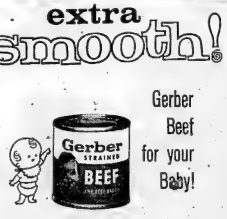
The tea room was attractively decorated with large baskets containing pink gladioli, snapdragons, pink baby 'mums and large white pom-poms, placed at vantage points throughout the hall. Each of the sextette tables was decorated with pastel pink place mats and centred with a solitaire pink snapdragon with a sprig of cedar set in a crystal vase.



The tea room was served dessert buffet style at a table laden with a grand assortment of delicious delicacies including fruit jellos of all kinds, some plain and others topped with whipped cream; various square cakes; fluffy angel cakes, chocolate logs and numerous assorted pies. Backstopping this array was an artistic arrangement of stately white snapdragons, interspersed with gorgeous red carnations.

Those serving coffee were Mrs. Cross, Mrs. F. Langabeer and Mrs D. Cook, while Mrs. W. Townson, Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. E. Bush replenished the dessert table, those assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. C. Batt, Mrs. E. Parks, Mrs. W. Wiley and Mrs. C. Wannamaker.

Adjoining the main auditorium was located the homecooking table where Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Cavanaugh were in charge of a mouth-watering supply of goodies including muffins, tarts, layer cakes and home-made bread. Here also was located a fine display of get-well cards which was in charge of Unit one of the U.C.W.



Mrs. W Potter and Mrs. A. Kingston were the treasurers for this delightfully successful social event.

Readers' Bonus Column

by Mary Moore

Question: I follow your recipes in the paper and am grateful for a lot of help. I wonder if we could get a recipe for pudding (Monarch Chocolate Sponge) for a homemade one?

Daily Reader.

Answer: Would you please include your name and address and self-addressed stamped envelope next time?

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Cheese and Parsley Omelette with Mushroom Sauce; Glazed Squash; Brussels Sprouts; Coleslaw with Grapes (see Tuesday); Coconut Meringue Pie; Coffee.

UPSIDE-DOWN CHOCOLATE PUDDING

Pudding: ½ to 3/3 cup broken nuts (optional); 1 square unsweetened chocolate, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup all-purpose flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Topping: ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ cup moist brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 cup cold water, whipping cream.

To make pudding: Break nuts coarsely if used. Put chocolate and butter into shallow pie-pastried cup; set in pan of hot water. When melted, beat well smooth and remove cup from water to cool. Sift flour, measure and resift 3 times with baking powder, sugar and salt. Stir a large mixing bowl. Add to milk thoroughly; add vanilla, then chocolate mixture, beating until smooth. Stir in nuts, if used. Turn into buttered 8 x 8 x 2" pan.

To make Topping: Quickly blend granulated and brown sugar with cocoa and sift over only over batter; pour cold water gently and evenly all over the top. Do not stir. Bake 40 to 50 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Remove to rack to cool. to lukewarm. Spoon pudding into serving dishes, then sauce around pudding. Serve with whipped or plain cream. 6 to 8 servings.

Question: I wonder if you could possibly publish the recipe for garlic spare ribs (with sauce) and Chinese chicken fried rice?

C. H.

Answer: Will you please include your name and address and stamped self-addressed envelope next time?

GARLIC SPARERIBS

Four to 5 pounds meaty spare ribs, 1 cup soy sauce (or less), 1 cup orange marmalade, 3 cloves garlic, minced, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon black pepper. Combine soy sauce, marmalade, garlic, ginger and black pepper. Spread sparerib in baking pan, cutting them into serving pieces if desired. Pour sauce over ribs. Turn ribs to completely cover with sauce. Keep in refrigerator at least 12 hours. Arrange ribs on a rack in a roasting pan. Roast at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours, basting frequently with sauce until ribs are glazed golden brown and meat is very tender.

CHINESE CHICKEN FRIED RICE

½ cup butter or peanut oil 3 eggs slightly beaten, 1½ cups chopped cooked chicken, soy sauce (optional), 3 cups cooked rice (1 cup before cooking), ½ cup onion sliced thin, 1½ teaspoons salt, shake of pepper, 1 can Chinese bean sprouts, drained, ½ cup fresh green onion tops (optional), 2 tablespoons pimiento squares (optional).

Melt butter in frying pan. Add slightly beaten eggs and fry for a few minutes but do not allow to become firm. Break up with a fork while cooking. Add the chicken, rice, onion, salt and pepper, and the bean sprouts. A little soy sauce may be poured over the cooker together only until hot - about 10 minutes, covering pan for a few minutes. Use 2 forks for mixing. The onion and pimiento squares may be added for color and flavor.

Foxboro UCW Plans Fall Bazaar, Tea

The General Meeting of United Church Women was held in the Sunday School hall with Mrs. C. Hubble presiding.

Unit 1, with Mrs. W. Rombough in charge was responsible for the devotional. Mrs. W. Rombough opened with a suitable reading and prayer then called on Mrs. W.L. Thompson who read St. Luke 9, 50-62, as the Scripture lesson. The commentary and prayer were given by Mrs. Rombough.

Mrs. Bean reported a balance of $211 in the treasury.

It was decided to use the green envelopes in the church instead of just at the general meetings, also to send for more of the green envelopes and charter membership cards.

As a means of raising money for the general it was decided to again have a bazaar in November. A hot dinner is to be served in the Sunday School late this month and an auction sale was considered for later in the year.

For the bazaar committee it was decided each unit leader, if she could get herself, be responsible for a member from her unit to be on the committee.

The U.C.W. will again send a donation to the Laymen's Foundation.

Mrs. J. Ewing and Mrs. Priest were in charge of the program, under the heading of "Literature and Periodicals". Mrs. Ewing stated she had received none of either, and then read, "Tithing the year."

Mrs. Rombough, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Priest, sang "I am Unworthy."

A humorous reading by Mrs. C. Tupper was followed by a reading, "Dawn" written by Jane Scott and read by Mrs. Bean.

The singing of an Easter Hymn closed the program

W. P. C. Club Hears Talk on Political Scene

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Progressive Conservative Club, was held in the Kiwanis Centre on Monday evening.

The meeting opened with Mrs. Rollins at the piano.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $481.39.

The club was entertained with songs by six girls "The Six Sensations".

Mrs. J. Ireland was appointed membership convener taking over from Mrs. O'Connor who is unable to carry on due to illness.

Mrs. Gray president, introduced Mr. Ireland, president of the South Hastings Association, who was guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Ireland chose as his topic, "Rambling on the Political Scene of South Hastings", and gave a brief insight into the work done by members in Ottawa.

Mrs. Rollins thanked the speaker.

It was decided to send five delegates to the Workshop being held in Peterborough, on March 31st. The delegates are to be Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Pitman; Mrs. Tugnett; Mrs. Howell and Mrs. Yorke.

The next meeting will be in charge of the ladies of Ward 1.

An hour of euchre was enjoyed after which lunch was served by the ladies of Ward 1.

There's a delightfully romantic air about this pretty dress designed for late-day wear. The fabric is silk crepe in either black or beige.

The surplice bodice has a pie-cut neckline and the mid-riff, while defined, is by no means plastered to the figure.

Cascading ruffles of matching Chantilly lace flow down one side from a velvet bow.

INFORMAL INTRODUCTIONS

Probably the first thing you learned at your mother's knee was "Don't talk to strangers." But as you grow older, you learn that there are times when it's proper and socially correct to do so.

At a party in a private home, for instance, guests don't have to stand on formality and wait until the host or hostess makes a sweeping introduction.

Ignoring a fellow guest because he hasn't been presented is actually is quite rude. Being under the same roof, in effect, is considered enough of an introduction. Guests may make their own introductions and are expected to make, and respond to, friendly conversational overtures.

The "same roof" theory also pertains to talking to strangers at resorts and vacation hotels. Naturally, it's not proper to go around glad-handing everyone. But when another guest strikes up a pool-side or fireside chat, it's perfectly permissible to answer. Guests seated at the same table also automatically introduce themselves first thing Mealtime at a resort would be terribly somber if everyone sat there saying nothing until the vice president in charge of formal introductions got around to making light conversation regal.

When traveling, it's awfully hard not to talk to strangers somewhere along the line. On a train or plane, travelers seated next to each other for a long period of time often exchange pleasantries. Comments on the scenery or engage in other forms of chit-chat. In such a transient situation, though, it's not polite to drone along if your fellow traveler obviously would rather sleep, read or daydream. In that case, however, you can hint you'd rather "list" than listen by giving a short smile and shorter answers if your neighbor turns the conversation into a talkathon.

Closer to home, there are other times when strangers usually exchange greetings and names. At a subscription dinner, for instance, the breaking of bread usually breaks the ice and strangers seated at the same table generally — and correctly — introduce themselves before the first course is served.

Members of organizations like the P.T.A. rarely stand on ceremony and during a meeting you might end up talking to a dozen people you've never met in an effort to gain support for a project you're sponsoring.

Time, place and circumstance, of course, dictate whether it's proper or not to put aside your natural reserve and speak up among strangers. The sense of propriety you also learned at your mother's knee is the best guide to follow.

Daffodil Cake

This recipe for Daffodil Cake was tested by the Consumer Section. The cake is a light, fat-free, white and yellow sponge-type, easy to make and pretty as a picture. Beat 7 egg whites (1 cup) with 1 teaspoon cream of tartar and ½ teaspoon salt until stiff but not dry. Gradually beat in ½ cup white sugar. Divide this meringue evenly into two equal parts. Into each part, gradually fold ½ cup sifted pastry flour and ½ cup white sugar, sifted togeither. Into one, fold 4 well beaten egg yolks and ½ teaspoon vanilla. To the other, add ¼ teaspoon almond extract. Spoon batters into an ungreased 9" tube pan, alternating a spoonful of the white with a spoonful of the yellow. Bake in a moderately slow oven (325 deg. F.) until surface springs back when pressed lightly — about 1 hour. Immediately turn cake up-side-down and leave until cold. Remove from pan and cover with a lemon icing. Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Thinks Everyone Is Better Than She

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My problem goes back to when I was a child.

I've always been made to think I had to do things for other people and give up everything myself.

My older sister used to be able to go and come as she saw fit, also my younger sister.

I had to do this and do that, don't go here, don't go there; be in at a certain time (which was early) and I had no time to go anywhere.

I have always had an inferiority complex. I think everyone is better than I am and everything I do is wrong.

Between my family's possessiveness and higher thoughts even cos, I am going out of my mind. It is actually making me sick physically and mentally.

I have never had the chance to do anything before and I have taken up a sport, and it means so much to me to be good at it.

I'm married now and have children, and even they suffer from this obsession of mine.—INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

DEAR INFERIORITY COMPLEX:—I call it middle-child-itis. Sometimes it makes a rebel. Sometimes it makes a subdued Milquetoast. That's you.

As a child you always took second place to somebody: the older sister, then the younger sister. You always had to yield the spotlight. You learned discipline and negative virtues. But never how to shine and express yourself.

Bottling it up can eventually cause real illness, mental and physical. So the salvation lies in finding self-expression.

If the sport is one you enjoy, play it — but relax at it. If you are raising children, play with them. They can help you to learn to laugh. Do the things that uncork your emotions.

I am sending you the names of some books which can help you understand what you are up against and what to do to help yourself.

DEAR DORIS:—My son has been going with a dame, and I do mean dame, for about three years now. The family wants him to marry her but he won't. Says he doesn't need to; is getting more out of her this way.

She takes him out in her car (saves him gas). She buys him expensive gifts. He spends very little on her. She's 35, never been married, and desperately wants a man, but she'll never get one the way she operates.

This character is always at our home and insults me, but after all, I'm married and churched. She's only making a convenience of herself for my son.

My question is: Since my son refuses to marry her and since we're sick of them squatting around our home every night, would we be wrong to ask our son to move out? He doesn't pay us any board. He is a lazy no-good who never held a good job in his life.

To sum up my beef, I'm sick of her insults, of her making my home her home, of her foolishness. She acts sillier than a kid 13 years old. But she has spent lots of money on us so we've put up with it. Now I'm fed up and want to be rid of her.—ALLY.

DEAR ALLY:— You are just twenty years late in making your son responsible for himself — one good reason why parents should always collect board from working sons and daughters. It goes with self-respect and maturity to support oneself.

Your dream has found a queen bee. Tell him there's no room for them in your hive — and put a sting in it.

DEAR DORIS:—You mentioned a booklet for teen-agers. Could you help me obtain a booklet of advice for answering questions from 3 to 6 years old?

We are expecting a third child, and one of these days our two youngsters are bound to ask some questions. I don't want to tell them anything they shouldn't know at this age, but I also don't want them to fear the subject.—CONCERNED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER:—Every mother of pre-schoolers should have the government book entitled "Up the Years From One to Six," produced by the Information Services Division, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

It covers all phases of growth and development, occurring during these years. Chapter 13 is entitled "Three-to-Six Asks Why," and suggests how to handle all questions.

I also recommend the pamphlet on Sex, in the Child Training Series, which carries the subheading: "What Should I Tell My Child?" Both may be obtained from your local health department or by writing to the Ottawa source given above.

DEAR DORIS:—My husband and I have had some disagreement about the proper way to do things at a banquet:

1. Why are the knife and spoon placed on the right-hand side of the plate and the fork on the left-hand side?

2. Should a person eat with their right or left hand if they are right-handed?

3. Also, with what hand should you eat your bread?

4. After we are finished eating, should we put our cup and saucer, also fork and knife, on the plate or leave the setting as it was before.

5. Is it polite to eat bread with soup?—J. AND B.

6. DEAR J. AND B.:—For convenience, When eating something which needs cutting, the fork is used in the left hand, the knife in the right. Beverage is placed at the right so spoon is there too.

2. Either is right. If you have cut meat, you may lift the portion to the mouth with fork in left hand. Or you may pass the fork to the right hand to carry food to the mouth. Foods which may be cut with fork may be handled entirely with fork in right hand.

3. Left hand is usual.

4. Place fork and knife side by side on plate. Leave cup and saucer where they are.

5. Yes.

TO LONELY JOE:—If you want your girl, go after her. How is she to know you like her, if you don't say so? She has every right to go out with someone else.

But if you are Johnny-on-the-Spot, with or without a car, and pay her the kind of considerate attention that should go with your feelings of devotion, it's my guess that you've got a good chance to win her back.

(Doris is a graduate social worker who can guide you to the help you need. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

LOU'S OTHER INTEREST — Montreal Canadiens' Lou Fontinato, the National Hockey League's bad boy with the most time spent in the penalty box, is a different man at home. He's quiet and a good family man, says his wife, shown here with son Louis, five months, and Paula, 17 months. As for her husband's hockey, Mrs. Fontinato says "he's always played that way."

Special Services Held by F.M. Church

Attentive congregations attended both services at the Centennial Free Methodist Church, Avondale Road, last, Sunday.

A special feature of the morning service, which was in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Edith Mainprize, was the singing of the recently formed church choir under the direction of Mrs. Lowell Smith. Miss Gael Smith presided at the organ. The choir sang three selections, "Praise Him, Praise Him"; "Father We Thank Thee"; and "Children of Jerusalem".

Mr. David Couch, assistant Sunday School Superintendent led in prayer and the junior ushers received the offering.

OBJECT LESSON

Miss Joan Angus, a teacher from the Ontario School for the Deaf, gave an interesting visualized message to the children. She told of the beauties of heaven and her story of the orphan, "Barney" was a vivid illustration of the advantages of the Christian life, its responsibilities, its rewards.

The ladies were in charge of the evening service which was led by Mrs. Albert Smith. Miss Delia Potter, supervisor of the Children's Aid Receiving Home, was the guest speaker. In her message on "Philemon, The Runaway Slave", she vividly portrayed God's love for the sinful and erring. She emphasized the church's responsibility toward the youth of the land.

Following her message, many dedicated themselves anew to the task of winning the world for Christ.

Mrs. Harnden closed the service with prayer.

NOVICE NURSES

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Twenty-nine student nurses, the largest class ever to enrol at Sherbrooke hospital for training, have received their caps from nursing director Clara Aitkenhead. The girls are to graduate in 1964.

Lou Fontinato Is Good Family Man Says Wife

MONTREAL (CP)—Lou Fontinato may be the bad boy of the National Hockey League but as home "he's quiet, unassuming and a good family man," says his wife, Marie.

The Montreal Canadiens defenceman spends more time in the penalty box each season than anyone else. Asked her feelings on the subject, Mrs. Fontinato smiled. "I'm no coach. I leave it to his good hockey sense. I feel he knows what he's doing."

Besides, she added, "that's Lou's type of hockey; he's always played that way."

The Fontinatos have known each other since childhood in Guelph, Ont., where Lou got his start a hockey and where they still live almost half the year.

Their courtship began while Marie was a student nurse at St. Mary's Hospital in Kitchener, Ont., and continued by mail when she became a Trans-Canada Air Lines stewardess. They were married in 1959.

Hockey is discussed at home only occasionally, said Mrs. Fontinato. "When you have children, there are so many other things to talk about."

HAS EARLY DINNER

Nevertheless, the game wields considerable influence on their household routine. Especially when Canadiens are playing on home ice.

When the game starts at 8 p.m., Mrs. Fontinato serves her husband a big meal at 2 p.m. When it starts at 8.30 p.m., the meal — always steak — is served at 2.30 p.m.

On these days, she said, "I may serve about five meals." The others are for herself, Paula, 17 months, and Louis, five months.

After the home game — the only times Mrs. Fontinato attends — the steak-dinner ritual is repeated.

"They may lose about four or five pounds in a game," she said in explaining its necessity.

Another major affect of the game is on the Fontinatos' living quarters. In Montreal, as in New York where Lou played for seven seasons with the Rangers, they rent a furnished apartment for the hockey season.

"We try to keep possessions to a minimum since we move so much," said Mrs. Fontinato.

"But it's surprising how things pile up. A sewing kit . . . a vaporizer for the baby's room . . . they all add up."

Zionist Organization Founded 50 Years Ago By Henrietta Szold

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—She was a small woman, and she once said she could work 18 hours a day because she kept the Sabbath and had a cast - iron stomach.

She was Henrietta Szold, who 50 years ago founded Hadassah, Women's Zionist Organization of America, with 12 women its 318,000 members now are marking a years-long celebration.

Mrs. Rose Halprin, national chairman of the golden jubilee and ranking Zionist woman in the world outside Israel, recalls Miss Szold as "very quiet, but with a bit of a temper; without ego, tremendously creative."

Born a rabbi's daughter in 1860, Miss Szold was a teacher, writer, translator, historian. In 1909 she visited Palestine and was appalled at the high mortality rate of mothers and babies.

Back in the United States, she organized Hadassah — Hebrew for Queen Esther — and in 1913 sent two trained U.S. nurses to Palestine to begin mother-child care as a start of a health program.

During the First World War Hadassah was asked to send a medical unit. A group of 44 doctors, nurses, dentists and sanitary engineers landed in 1918, set up hospitals in five major cities and a nursing school in Jerusalem.

LAID GROUNDWORK

That medical unit in effect laid the groundwork for public health in what later became the state of Israel.

Today, the huge medical centre at Kiryat Hadassah (Hadassah Town) on Jerusalem's outskirts carries on the original preventive-curative approach by consolidating its healing, teaching and research facilities.

After Hitler came to power, the 73 - year - old Miss Szold started a new career in child rescue and rehabilitation. To date more than 100,000 Jewish youngsters have been saved, educated and made a part of the community.

She lived to be 84, still fighting for the Zionist dream of a Jewish national home in Palestine and at the same time trying to establish friendly understanding between Arab and Jew.

"She was the greatest Jewish woman of our generation," says Mrs. Halprin, "and a greater one than this generation has produced or is likely to."

U.C.W. Meetings

LUTHERAN U.C.W.

The March meeting of the United Lutheran Church Women was held at the parsonage, 27 Melrose Avenue.

Devotions opened with the singing of "Break Thou the Bread of Life." Miss Lucy Pukancik read the Scripture lesson.

The topic of the evening was "What Is Well-Read Woman Reads". Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. Quast, Miss Pukancik and Mrs. Lindeman read articles telling what and why a woman reads. "Could you live without your Bible and devotional material?" without books, magazines or newspapers? There would be no letters from friends or relatives or no authority to consult on the many questions that arise from time to time".

"Three basic reasons classify almost all reading: information, inspiration and recreation. It is possible to obtain all three at one sitting: Lighter types of reading have their place, but we must choose with care, making sure that our recreational reading does not lead us away from God.

"Do we have 15 minutes a day to spare? It has been estimated that 15 minutes a day devoted to reading will result in the average reader completing 30 books a year.

This has always been the mission of books. They go where no preacher cannot go. Books are the silent missionaries that can change your life."

As this is Thank Offering month, Mrs. Karen Brinkert told the meaning of the Thank Offering, "A Daily Gift, a Daily Prayer".

The different committee heads gave their reports including the Christian Service Committee report. The completed quilt was shown and next month's project decided upon.

SLIDES VIEWED

The U.L.C.W. viewed slides of the Waterloo Lutheran University College at the work of the Waterloo Lutheran Women's Auxiliary, with the Rev. Hansman narrating. One of the main aims of the University is to try and keep a Christian atmosphere.

Recreational time was enjoyed by everyone which was led by Mrs. Simpson, with lunch served by Mrs. Fever and Mrs. Hollander.

EGGLETON U.C.W.

MADOC JUNCTION — On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Clarence Filchett was hostess for the March meeting of the Eggleton U.C.W.

The president, Mrs. Warren Harlow, presided and opened the meeting by reading a lovely poem; the hymn, "in Christ There's No East or West" with Mrs. Joyce Stapley, pianist

Mrs. Harlow expressed thanks to the hostess for opening her home for the meeting and also welcomed the visitor present.

Two members paid fees. Offering was gathered and dedicated with a prayer by the president.

Thirteen answered the roll call by repeating a memorized verse from the Gospel of St. John.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy offered her home for the April meeting and Mrs. Murney Kirkey was appointed to prepare the program. The Roll Call at the April meeting to be answered by a memorized verse of Scripture containing either the word 'Crucifixion' or 'Resurrection'.

Members are to meet on Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. William McMullen when a quilt for Mrs. Danford of Belleville, will be quilted.

Mrs. Bruce Shipley read "Thank You" letters received from Mrs. Jeff Smith and Mrs. Ashley. She also reported on cards sent out and calls made at homes and the hospital during the past month.

Bills presented and motion was made that these be paid.

Mrs. M. Clancy spoke briefly asking for the number of those present, who would like to order boxes of "Get Well" cards. Funds thus raised would be used to help pay for the "World Friends" papers for the "Messengers."

Mrs. Keith Johnson, program convener for March, took charge.

The Scripture reading taken from 1st Chapter of St. John and the Meditation on the lesson was given Mrs. Clancy followed with prayer by Mrs. Filchett.

A poem "The Other Fellow's Job" was read by Mrs. M. Kirkey.

A lovely piano solo was contributed by Mrs. Bruce Stapley.

The chapter from the "Study Book "The Second Harvest," was presented by Mrs. Johnson.

After meeting closed the hostess served refreshments.

ANNUAL BIRTHRATE

The annual natural increase in population in Canada is more than 360,000.

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

67TH SIDNEY — The March pot-luck dinner was held in Scott's United Church hall on Wednesday with a good crowd in attendance. Mrs. Allen Sine was hostess.

On Thursday evening the women of Scott's U.C.W. held their meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Sine, with the president, Mrs. Carman Frost, presiding. The topic for the meeting was "This Church". Mrs. Carman Sine read the Scripture lesson.

In the prayer of dedication, the president asked that this might be a fellowship in which all work for the King.

Mrs. A. Martyn had charge of the program. Mrs. G. Sine read the story, "Peace Out of the Storm". This was a story of the mission boats on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Cooper gave a reading on the first church. "Ours should be like unto this: a learning church; a church of fellowship; a praying church; a reverent church; a church of action; a sharing church; a worshiping church; a happy church; and a winsome church."

In a community both those who attend regularly and those who do not attend are touched by the church.

A quiz was given to connect the ideas given.

Mrs. A. Sine gave a selection on her harp and Mrs. M. Dafoe, collection; reading, "Religion" by Padre Young.

There were 11 members present.

During the month 17 calls had been made and 34 cards sent.

Mrs. Maurice Dafoe and Mrs. D. Doolittle will be joint hostesses for the April dinner at the church. Mrs. Avery Martyn will be hostess for the meeting with Mrs. R. Dafoe having charge of program.

Versatile Wool Jersey

By VERA WINSTON

Casual, but not quite as simple as it appears to be, is this two-piece daytime dress. Its fabric is a lightweight wool jersey good for resort or home wear.

The cap sleeves are cut in one with the yoke, which curves directly under the bust. The buttoned-on collarless neckline can be worn open when desired.

The skirt, with slight gathers from the waist, is made on a gulinpe.

Women's Activities

ST. MARK'S W.A.

BONARLAW — St. Mark's W.A. held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. B. Woodbeck.

The meeting was opened by singing of the hymn, "Holy, Holy, King of Love My Shepherd Is," followed by the litany and prayers by Rev. Fleming.

Mrs. Wellman read a prayer for the prayer partners. Mrs. M. Tanner read the Scripture from the 51st Psalm: 5-17.

The treasurer, Mrs. Neal, gave her report of the oyster supper, showing a good profit.

Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Heath, read a couple of thank-you letters from recipients of bales.

The president, Mrs. Barlow, welcomed all and thanked Mrs. Woodbeck for having the meeting. She also announced the W.A. would be closed to the community sales in early April. Mr. Fleming gave the next chapter of the study book.

The extra cent-a-day was collected. Mrs. J. Eggett.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Neal and contests were given by Mrs. Eggett, Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Heath, a solo, "His Hand in Mine" sung by Wenda Neal; Mrs. Barlow conducted a contest after which the hostess served lunch.

Club Activities

ST. ANDREW'S COT

The St. Andrew's COT group held the weekly meeting Monday evening at the church.

The second chapter of Genesis was read for the Scripture.

A business session followed and included a discussion on projects. A motion was made to make puppets and send them to the hospital. The girls worked on their project of making maps of British Guiana and later enjoyed some games.

Two groups were formed. There will be some competition in their work. The groups will be used each week and there will be a work period.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Marie B. — W., about time Gerda asserted her rights as a daughter.

Gerda G. — Nobody can change my parents' ideas on filial respect.

Marie B. — Gerda and I are getting serious and close friends. Although I've known her for almost 30 years, I'll never understand the crippling hold her parents have over her.

Although we're both in our late 30's, you'd think Gerda was a teen-ager when it comes to curfew! At a party or after the movie she always runs the risk of short with, "Vater is waiting up for me." She says he is her family and in the Old Country, Papa is boss no matter how old you are. Can't the tell them this is America?

The strangest part of it all is that Gerda supports her parents. You'd think they would realize she can take care of herself by this time.

Gerda G. — As my friend, Marie never understand what my German friends never question — that is, the authority of German parents over a child. This has nothing to do with age. With either in the home, you always remain a child.

In my case the hold may be even stronger. During the War I was separated from my parents. They sent me to the U.S. with my grandmother, and planned to follow us the next year. Instead, it took many years and much suffering. I was still supporting when they arrived, and I was one of their sponsors. Although Marie is shocked, with so many things changed for them, how can I also change their ideas about me?

The Council — If there's any one quality that defines an American, it might be resiliency. He must be prepared for anything, accept changes with a shrug, hospitality with a smile. In the sense, Gerda's father may never become an American in the fullest. His European habits and reflexes, particularly among which is his rigidity.

While this may appear unreasonable to Marie, an onlooker, it represents something precious to Gerda, something rockbottom. With so many other customs and values in the melting crumbling around them, Fatherat-freedom may be a welcome concept to her and she sustains it, even at the risk of looking like jelly to her American friends.

Undoubtedly Mr. G.'s displacement from native land, from trade, from status has been a bitter jar. At least within the confines of the home, Gerda can feed the remnants of his morale, build his ego by offering to "vater" with respect and appreciation. Let's view Gerda's old-fashioned self-effacement then, as part compassion, part cajoling and part custom.

But Marie may be performing an act of true friendship to remind Gerda that the clash of cultures may have to be faced when Gerda's social life and her future are concerned. What if personal freedom, boy friends, dates and possible marriage? Thus far it seems that Gerda's been content to be a conscientious daughter, taking no stand on her rights as an individual who must build her own life, too.

Gently, then, Gerda must endeavor to explain the word "obey" as it is interpreted among American adults. One obey laws. But one heeds specia and counsels with people.

St. Mark's EG Holds Meeting

DESERONTO — The Evening Guild of St. Mark's Church, Deseronto, met at the home of Mrs. Charles Gray on March 12 with the president, Mrs. John Spence, presiding.

The Guild decided to hold a bake sale and to serve coffee on a morning in May at the bowling lanes.

The next meeting will be held April 9 in the form of a pot-luck supper starting at 6.30 .m.

After the meeting closed a social hour and a penny sale were enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. John Lyons.

The Guild was pleased to have Mrs. John Hopson and her sister, Mrs. Mainwaring, of Windsor, present.

United Nations, Its Aims, Functions Detailed to WCTU

The February meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held in the Y.M.C.A. Mrs. Coulter presided.

The devotional was taken by Miss M. Johns. Scripture reading: Exodus 4. The subject: "Consecrating our lives to God by helping others."

The clip sheet was presented by Miss M. Berman with Mesdames Meyers, Hubble and Calnan taking part. Scripture: Colossians 1:1-19. The subject of the clip sheet is "Francis Willard and the World W.C.T.U."

Loving tribute was paid to Francis Willard, the founder of the W.C.T.U. Her Memorial Day, February 17th, will be observed in 70 countries. The W.C.T.U. is a unit of effort on the part of Christian women, to suppress the liquor traffic, and all the evils arising from it. To make some articulate protest against all forms of intemperance and lead by example.

Miss Willard was the first world organizer of women. It was on a trip to San Francisco with her friend and co-worker Miss Anna Gordon that Miss Willard caught the vision of a world in peace. She reformed home determining to plan and organize the women of the world as "The World Women's Christian Temperance Union". Her labor and leadership laid the foundation of enduring success. Today the W.C.T.U. successfully carried on in 70 countries of the world.

POLYGLOT PETITION

This great woman is also credited with world wide achievement in the "Polyglot Petition"; calling upon governments to protect the citizens of their countries from the drug habit. This petition had a million and a half signatures.

The first world W.C.T.U. convention was held in 1891 in Boston, U.S.A. Women of many nationalities, colors and creeds met and the Polyglot Petition was draped around the walls of their place of meeting. Many great speakers since that time, have paid tribute to the wonderful work and outstanding contribution they have made to suffering humanity.

The work of the W.C.T.U. is to help all mankind everywhere. To educate young and old regarding the evils of alcohol consumption as proven by scientific facts; by personal example and witness; by constant protests to governments and those in places of authority. The work begins in the home and constantly surrounding world. All Christian citizens must be aroused to the dangers that threaten in this day. All must work and pray without ceasing.

W.C.T.U. AIMS

The W.C.T.U. is the only temperance organization that is the same yesterday, today and forever, whose leadership is today comparable with what it was in the beginning. To quote one of Francis Willard's famous sayings which constitutes a challenge to every W.C.T.U. member: "In this sacred cause, let us go forward, our hearts full of work, our heads full of plans, our hearts full of prayers. Let us urge the formation of a Woman's Christian Temperance Union in every city, town and village".

"Let our earnest prayer be for inspiration and courage to carry on the work started by the noble founder of the WCTU. The most outstanding and worthwhile tribute to be paid this dedicated woman is the present strength and devotion of the world-wide WCTU."

UNITED NATIONS

Mrs. Farnsworth spoke briefly on the United Nations. What it is; what it does; how it works.

In 1945, 50 nations, representing 1,700 million people, resolved to combine their efforts to form an international organization to be known as United Nations, to make a secure and better world. On June 26th, 1945, at San Francisco, they signed The United Nations Charter. Later, other nations joined until now there are 103 members of U N.

Membership in the United Nations is open to all peace-loving states which accept the obligations of the Charter and are judged by the organization to be able and willing to carry out these obligations.

ITS PURPOSES

The purpose of the United Nations are various. The prime purpose is to maintain international peace and security and to develop a friendly relation among nations. The United Nations is founded on seven basic principles:

All member states are sovereign and equal. All are pledged in full to carry out their obligations under the Charter in good faith. All are pledged to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and in such manner as not to endanger international peace, security and justice.

In its international relations, no member shall use or threaten force against the territory and political independence of any state or behave in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

MAINTAIN PEACE

All are pledged to give every assistance to the United Nations when, in accordance with the Charter, it takes any action, and also not to give assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking action to preserve or restore peace.

So far as it is necessary to preserve peace and security, the organization shall insure that countries which are not members shall also act in accordance with the principles of the Charter.

The United Nations shall not intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state except when it is acting to enforce international peace.

DELIBERATING BODY

The General Assembly is the main deliberating body of the United Nations and is the nearest equivalent to a "Parliament of Man." It meets once a year and has the right to discuss and make recommendations. It initiates studies to promote international co-operation in political, social, economic, cultural, educational and health matters. On ordinary matters decisions are made by a simple majority vote; on important matters by a two-thirds vote.

The General Assembly holds the purse strings. It is maintained by contributions from its members, also by assessment on the salaries of all its staff members, sales of publications and surplus property. Also by voluntary contributions by Governments and friends. Also financed by government and personal gifts is the work of United Nation's Children's Fund and Relief Work-of Agencies and Refugees.

INVESTIGATES DISPUTES

The Security Council is composed of 11 members, 5 permanent and 6 elected every two years, and is responsible for maintaining peace and security. Because the maintenance of international peace requires constant vigilance and may call for prompt action, it has power to function continuously and may hold meetings at other places beside Headquarters. It has the right to investigate any dispute. It has the right to recommend ways and means of peaceful settlement and even the actual terms for settlement.

The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations and sits at the Hague in the Netherlands. It is composed of 15 judges elected independently by the Security Council and the General Assembly. Every member state has access to the Court and is pledged to comply with the decisions. The Court performs the important function of giving advice and opinions on legal matters.

ADMINISTRATIVE FUNCTIONS

The Secretariat. The vast administrative functions of United Nations are performed by the sixth principal organ The Secretariat, which, working the year round, administers the programs and policies laid down by them. At it's head is the Secretary-General appointed by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council.

Trygve Lie, Foreign Minister if Norway, was appointed in 1946 for a five-year term and was later continued in office for three years. He tendered his resignation in 1952 and was succeeded, in 1953, by Dag Hammarskjold, Minister of State for Sweden, who in 1957 was appointed for a further five-year term.

The duties and responsibilities of the Secretariat are exclusively international. Each member of the staff is an international civil servant The structure of the staff is large and performs many phases of work.

Peace loving people all over the world were saddened by the tragic passing of Dag Hammarskjold. He lived to promote good will and international understanding. He was single minded in his purpose and did more to keep the peace of the world than can ever be fully realized.

After a six-week deadlock the General Assembly appointed U. Thant, 32 year-old mild mannered Buddist from Burma, to be the Secretary-General. It was unanimous by 103 nations.

Women's Institute

BANNOCKBURN ELDORADO W.I.

ELDORADO — The Bannockburn and Eldorado Women's Institute held the March meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold Chambers on Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. Clayton Blackburn opened the meeting.

Correspondence was read and business was discussed. Mrs. Stanley Franks, leader of the girls' club had charge of the meeting. As this was girls' club night they had their work of the year on display.

Miss Linda Franks led in singing song. Motto was given by Margaret Boyle (institute member).

Kathleen Peak pointed out the work and told what the articles were. These articles were beautiful and nicely done. A special thank-you to Mrs. Franks for the interest she has taken in the girls' work and the wonderful fancy work that they had accomplished through the year.

Lunch was served and a social time spent.

CZECH PENSIONS

Time spent rearing children under the age of eight is considered as working time in building up credits for old-age pensions in Czechoslovakia

WON'T RAISE RATES

LONDON (Reuters) — Press telegraph rates between Britain and South Africa will not be raised to the full foreign rate now that South Africa has left the Commonwealth, a British government spokesman announced Tuesday. He said the rate will be kept below the foreign rate to avoid "hindering the understanding of points of view, policies and intentions between Britain and South Africa."

Accuses 'Beaver's' Paper Of Conducting 'Vendetta' Against the Royal Family

LONDON (Reuter)—A Conservative member of Parliament Tuesday night accused Canadian - born Lord Beaverbrook of conducting a "vendetta" against the Royal Family in his newspapers.

Sir Martin Lindsay made the charge at a press conference following the publication of his private motion to the House of Commons complaining of the treatment given the Royal Family in the Beaverbrook newspapers.

His motion, titled Conduct of Lord Beaverbrook, reads, "that this House, deplores the conduct of Lord Beaverbrook in authorizing over the last few years in newspapers controlled by him, more than 70 adverse comments on members of the Royal Family who have no means of replying."

The motion has been approved by the Speaker and it will appear on the Commons order paper today.

This does not guarantee, however, that it will be debated in the House. A private member's motion requires considerable support before it reaches the House before it reaches the debating stage.

To seek support for his motion Lindsay sent a letter explaining his position to all the members of the Commons. The letter said the London Daily Express and The Sunday Express were carrying on a "sustained vendetta."

In the letter he said that while on a lecture tour of the United States in January and February of this year, he was constantly asked how serious was the criticism of the Royal Family in the British press.

At his press conference, Lindsay said the image of the Royal Family abroad was being "tarnished by irresponsible attacks on the Royal Family, of which the Beaverbrook press is the worst example."

Later Tuesday night, Labor MP Emrys Hughes, a frequent critic of the amount of money spent on maintaining the Royal Family, tabled an amendment to Lindsay's motion.

It said: "That this house sees no reason for specially censuring Lord Beaverbrook for allowing in his papers comment on royalty which are shared and freely expressed by many British people who, while decreasing personal attacks on the Royal Family, believe that less expenditure on royalty would be consistent with Her Majesty's subjects."

When asked to comment on Lindsay's motion, a spokesman for the Daily Express, said the following statement would appear in today's edition at the end of the story on the matter:

"Dateline Rio de Janeiro, Tuesday.

"Prince Philip said at a British embassy press reception that he had enjoyed a bloody awful newspaper. It is full of lies, scandal and imagination. It is a vicious paper.

"Editor's note: Both The Daily Express and The Sunday Express have criticized the Duke since, the royal yacht, the Britannia, was a gift, he said. He asked about contracts. He did not ask gas companies to fill tanks under indefinite contracts.

When the bill was introduced Feb. 28, Senator Salter Hayden (D—Ontario) described it as unconstitutional.

Senator White Speaks Against Private Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — A private bill that would force farms extending consumer credit to provide a detailed breakdown of costs was debated in the Senate again Tuesday night But the debate was adjourned without a vote on second reading.

The bill, introduced several weeks ago by Senator Croll (L—Ontario), requires second reading before it can be sent to the Senate's banking committee for detailed study.

The bill would not affect cash sales by companies. It would apply only to firms selling goods and extending credit for part of the payments.

Under the bill, these firms would be required to tell customers the exact rate of interest, expressed both in rates and dollars. Lump sum. All other charges would have to be listed.

Senator George S. White (PC—Ontario) said the bill should be examined from a constitutional standpoint by the committee. He said it enters the provincial field of property and civil rights in many ways.

It was also difficult to define what constitutes a sale, he said. He asked about contracts, credit and gas companies to fill tanks under indefinite contracts.

When the bill was introduced Feb. 28, Senator Salter Hayden (D—Ontario) described it as unconstitutional.

Laughlin Currie Accused By Chinese of Blocking Canadian Munitions in '43

WASHINGTON (CP)—Laughlin Currie, Canadian-born wartime aide to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was accused by Chinese Nationalist Government in 1943 of blocking a Canadian agreement to ship 60,000 tons of munitions to the Chinese forces.

This was disclosed Tuesday in bitterly secret U.S. diplomatic papers covering relations with China in 1943 at a time when Roosevelt was being advised by Soong Mayling, U.S. diplomatic and other authorities that Chiang Kai-shek's administration was corrupt and that Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin did not intend to spread communism beyond the Russian border.

The papers show that on Aug. 18, 1943, Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong conferred with State Secretary Cordell Hull and informed him "off the record" that he had obtained an agreement with the Canadian government covering the shipment of 60,000 tons of munitions.

Hull, in a memorandum on that conversation, quoted Soong as saying the munitions were "in anticipation of any gap the United States or Britain" might fill. Laughlin Currie had prevailed on the Canadian government to abandon her agreement by stating that China was in a confused state at the present, et eteres, and that the government of Canada had so informed him.

Hull apparently brought the issue to the attention of Roosevelt at the Churchill-Roosevelt-Mackenzie King conference at Quebec, Aug. 17-24, 1943.

On Sept. 3, Stanley Hornbeck, state department political adviser, wrote the department memo saying that he and Alger Hiss, then assistant to Hornbeck, had looked into the Canadian munitions issue.

Alger Hiss was convicted in 1950 of perjury in denying he passed state department documents to Whittaker Chambers, a Soviet spy ring in the 1930s. He served 44 months in prison and was released in 1954.

Currie, who was born at West Dublin, N.S., and became a U.S. naturalized citizen in 1934, now is a citizen of Colombia and an economic adviser to the Colombian government.

In 1950 the late senator Joseph McCarthy said Currie had ordered orders for captured German arms to be shipped to the Chinese nationalists after VJ-day. Currie denied the charge.

Currie also figured in testimony of Elizabeth Bentley, confessed former Soviet spy courier, who said in 1951 that Currie was one of a group fed secret data to her spy ring in earlier years. Currie also denied that charge. He was in Colombia at that time and did not return to the U.S. to testify during the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee hearings which were investigating the charges.

Persistent Howard Green Presses Disarmament Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—In June, 1960, Britain walked out of the 10-nation disarmament conference just as Canada and the United States placed new proposals before the meeting.

The Russians simply ignored the Western disarmament plan.

But External Affairs Minister Howard Green is a persistent man.

He took similar proposals to Moscow with him this month and Monday presented them to the enlarged 17-nation disarmament conference.

The main aim of the proposals is to get the conference cracking on a treaty to end the arms armament which might lead eventually to a sensible, effective measures would be those on which American and Soviet experts are already working in general agreement.

"We want to get down to brass tacks," an official here said Tuesday.

Authorities said Mr. Green was trying to give a sense of direction to the conference, especially to the eight new members, all neutrals.

The Ottawa view is also the present Canadian position is to differ from that in 1960, here is a quotation from the suggestions made two years ago:

"In essence, the approach should be that of concrete suggestions for balanced concessions in the interests of early agreement on a first measure and of the adoption of a practical method for negotiating first on areas which would produce with the least delay before implementation.

The partial measure, approach has been opposed in the past by the Russians.

This time, Russia at least has listened to the Canadian proposals.

Bank Robbery Suspect Hit, Three Arrested

MONTREAL (CP)—Two police constables emptied their revolvers after a fleeing car Tuesday wounding one bank robbery suspect and capturing three others.

The shooting took place minutes after a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in suburban Ville Lasalle was robbed of $9,200. The money was not recovered.

Police said Nick Ernest Cooper, 31, is under guard in hospital with a bullet wound in the leg. His injuries are not serious.

Others arrested were identified as Marcel Lavoie, 38, Robert Lambert, 29, and Gregory Lee, 25, all of Montreal.

John Fedorka, a service station operator in the area, was fleeing from the bank, tried to chase them in his car. He stopped after fired at him three times, one bullet hitting his windshield.

The pursuit was taken up by a police cruiser with Constables Bernard and Jean Luc Herbert in it. They fired two shots each and then emptied their guns after the fleeing car. Police said one bullet hit the driver of the car.

The car stopped and the men were arrested.

Five pistols were found. Police said one of the guns had been stolen during a holdup in suburban Lachine earlier this month.

Neighbors Could Not Help Man For Angry Dog

MEAFORD, Ont. (CP) — An angry dog early Tuesday kept neighbors from getting immediate medical aid for Joseph Lougheed, 31, his fatally wounded master.

Ironically, Lougheed had been taking the dog out to shoot it when he apparently stumbled and shot himself in the temple with the 22-calibre semi-automatic rifle he was carrying. He died in hospital, about 12 hours after he was found.

Two children on their way to catch the school bus saw Lougheed dropped half-way over a fence. The dog was tied by a length of rope to his wrist.

Neighbors were summoned by the children but the dog kept them at bay. They moved only a long stick to retrieve the rifle and shoot the dog, then took Lougheed to hospital.

MAYOR TO MAILMAN

BRISTOL, England (CP)—Charles Smith, Toronto - born Lord Mayor of Bristol, says he is considering his old job as a postman when his term of office expires in May.

Clothing Afire Man Jumps, Fall Broken

TORONTO (CP) — A young man darted through thick downtown traffic Tuesday to catch a man who jumped, his clothes afire, from a second-storey window.

Avard Maclean, 23, caught Frank Shirlow, 23, in his arms and broke Shirlow's fall after he jumped screaming from the tobacco wholesalers building in which he worked.

Shirlow was trapped by smoke and fire and ignored the shouts of bystanders to jump until his clothing caught fire.

When he did jump he landed in Maclean's arms.

"I had to let go, but I broke the fall. He was too hot to hold," said Maclean, whose wrists were scorched. Another man on the scene suffered burns to his hands when he ripped the burning clothes from Shirlow.

Shirlow, only man trapped on the second floor, was reported in fair condition in hospital.

The fire apparently started upstairs, where paper products and a quantity of lighter fluid was stored.

Pasadena Radio Station Ordered Off the Air

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ordered Pasadena Radio station KHLA off the air April 16 on grounds of fraudulent practices in obtaining operations to fall under control of an alleb—Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto and Hollywood.

The commission said Jack's Cooke, Donald, owns 75% of station, failed to exercise effective control over the California station and failed to exercise control to Jack and other station employees.

United States law forbids foreign operations control over American broadcasting outlets.

A special bill was pushed through Congress in 1960 to give Jack Kent Cooke sufficient legal residence in the U.S. so that he could qualify to operate the station.

In the congressional bill, he was described as a Toronto radio station owner and publisher who was impressed with freedom of opportunity in the U.S. his brother, Donald, became an American citizen in 1947.

HELD CONTROL

The commission said the station had conducted two contests in a manner inconsistent with the sense that various clues to the contests were deceptive "and knowingly so."

It said that the station also altered its records to conceal broadcasting of short religious announcements, in fact, were not broadcast."

The commission gave the station, headed by the Eleven Ten Broadcasting Corporation of Pasadena, until April 16 to wind up its affairs. An official said the commission will not grant a license for the owner in an appeal to the courts. The franchise cannot be transferred or sold.

CNR, TCA Table Reports Showing Publicly-Owned Utilities Plunged Into Red

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines, both publicly-owned, tabled the government Tuesday that they plunged deeply into the red last year.

The CNR reported a deficit of $67,307,772, while TCA said its loss amounted to $6,450,082. The federal treasury will pick up the tab.

There was no comment from the government benches when the reports were tabled in the Commons. The deficits had been disclosed 24 hours earlier in supplementary estimates placed before the House by Finance Minister Fleming.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) made an effort to find out from Transport Minister Balcer whether TCA and CPA might be consolidated, but he was unsuccessful.

The question into the red ink by both public carriers drew no attention to two decisions apparently not to be made by government:

1. What to do about the revolutionary proposals for transportation in the two-volume report of the MacPherson royal commission.

2. How to get TCA and Canadian Pacific Air Lines, its privately-owned rival to co-operate on international routes rather than compete, with losses for both.

The CNR annual report heaped praise on the recommendations of the MacPherson report — saying its penetrating analysis held out the "greatest promise for the future."

The report urged the government to overhaul its transport policies and regulations—to free the railways to abandon unused branch lines and uneconomic passenger trains as well as to set their rates in the future subject only to a floor and ceiling.

The commission proposed a series of federal subsidies, starting at $100,000,000 in the first year but shrinking to about $22,000,000 within 15 years. Most of the subsidies were designed to help the railways streamline their services after years of public control.

In its annual report, the CNR spelled out details of subsidies it already receives — most of them paid by the federal treasury to help shippers, not the railways. The total was $66,700,000 for 1961, including $27,900,000 tied up as a temporary subsidy last year pending action on the MacPherson report. In 1960, subsidies totalled $36,200,000.

TCA blames its deficit largely, on a troubled year in its passenger travel habits—a sudden and unexpected jump to economy class travel, a reduction in first class and expected economy class travel to Europe and a drop in total air traffic. Instead it was 79 per cent.

TCA promised remedial action to eliminate the discrepancy between revenues and expenses.

"Some upward adjustment in the present domestic passenger tariff appears necessary."

TCA did not say, however, whether this would be to raise fares was a referedce to an application for fare boosts already before the air transport board or whether another increase was contemplated.

Association Hears Appeal For Forest Fire Control

OTTAWA (CP) — An urgent, plea for development of ways of "preventing and controlling our chief internal economic enemy, uncontrolled forest fire," was sounded Tuesday before the Canadian Forestry Association.

The association, a federation of provincial forestry associations which has been fighting forest fire control since 1900, has had another challenge—to help develop a better understanding in Canada of the need, fire, that lie in land use.

The forest fire appeal came as a message of greetings from resident Ben F. Avery of Eugene, Ore., former executive figure in the Ontario forest industry who now is ill in a Toronto hospital.

The summons to land-use support came in a letter addressed from A. T. Davidson, director of the federal government's new Agricultural and Rural Development Act.

The meeting elected F. A. Harrison of Montreal, vice-president in charge of woodlands for Canadian International Paper Company, as association president.

Mr. Avery's presidential message, emphasizing that 1961 was the worst forest fire year on record in Canada, said that adequate forest fire prevention and control will not be achieved until Canada recognizes forest fires as "a national problem of the first priority."

Mr. Davidson described ARDA as "one of the most important steps in the field of development use in our history." It does not solely as agricultural program, but as a means to give effectives conservationists have long sought.

ARDA's land use provided for agreements between federal and provincial governments to speed efficient, use of submarginal land not likely to provide an economic income under native.

'There Isn't a Thing Wrong Anywhere' Says Twp. Reeve

KINGSTON (CP) — Eric R. Pearson, reeve of Pittsburgh township, said Tuesday there isn't a thing wrong anywhere" in 1958 when he was in action which was the subject of charges in the Ontario legislature Monday.

The debate was touched off by Ken Bryden, NDP member for Toronto - Woodbine, who said a "clear-cut conflict of interest" existed in the distribution of highways department land.

Mr. Bryden implicated Municipal Affairs Minister Cecil Bale who was highways minister, in 1958.

Said Mr. Bryden:

"I submit there was a clear-cut conflict of interest which the government of the day, through the minister of highways of the day, clearly facilitated."

'NOT ASHAMED'

Mr. Pearson said in an interview Tuesday:

"I'm not ashamed. . . Nobody tried to steal anything or anything else."

Mr. Bryden labelled documents he said showed that the highway department sold 17 acres of land in Pittsburgh Township to the township itself on June 2, 1958, for $6,800 after having at one time received tenders of up to $18,000 for it.

The township sold the same land—minus a diagonal strip 100 feet wide—to Mr. Pearson on Sept. 25, 1958, and the same day the land was sold to Mr. Pearson, Mr. Bryden said, both sales being for $14,000.

He identified Minnie Pearson as the reeve's mother.

Mr. Pearson said Tuesday:

"They sold it to me with a strip down through the middle, and that's why they took more for it. This joker up there wants to get some soap flying and get pick them up.

Eight Seal Hunters Picked Off Ice Floe

CORNER BROOK, Nfld (CP) Eight Newfoundland seal hunters were plucked by helicopter from drifting ice floes in the northwest coast Tuesday, bringing to 11 the number of stranded sealers rescued in two days.

All were in good condition.

It was believed ice on which they were hunting broke away from ice on which they had beached their small boats

An RCAF helicopter from Torbay, Nfld., spotted the men Tuesday. A Canadian Coopter—also in the search — to pick them up.

Believe Woman Beaten to Death In Her Room

TORONTO (CP) — The partially decomposed body of a 52-year-old woman found dead from three to seven days, was found under her bed in an east-central Toronto rooming house Tuesday.

The woman, Mrs. Nora Rand-ford, a widow, had been beaten over the head and strangled. Detectives from the homicide squad said the body was naked, except for stockings.

Police said the woman was last seen by her landlady, Mrs. Millie Milosevic, about a week ago. Mrs. Milosevic ordered Mrs. Ranford's room Tuesday because she was worried about her tenant, and discovered the body.

"I'm in here for bigamy. I couldn't have my Kate AND Edith."

Cross-Canada Survey

Canadian-Built Cars Will Capture Bigger Market Slice In Best Year for Industry

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian automobile manufacturers are looking to 1962 as a great year for business. Some think it may be the best ever.

"There is every reason to expect more vehicles will be sold in Canada in 1962 than in any previous year," says Gordon Grundy, president of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce. And he predicts that Canadian-built cars will capture a bigger slice of the market.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicated that dealers throughout the country share this optimism. The manufacturers certainly do.

Says E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada: "Sales of passenger cars in Canada will set an all-time record . . . and production by the Canadian automotive industry will reach its highest highest level in six years."

SEES RECORD OUTPUT

E. K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Limited, shares this view. "In 1962 more automobiles will be manufactured in Canada than during any previous year."

President Karl E. Scott of the Ford Motor Company of Canada forecasts "a modest, but substantial, improvement."

Mr. Grundy, speaking now as president of Studebaker Corp., is "optimistic" about the company's success in 1962.

The only uncertain forecast came from President E. W. Todgham of Chrysler Corp. Success or otherwise, he says, depends on whether the federal government puts into effect recommendations of last year's Macdon royal commission investigation of the industry.

It called for removal of the 7½-per-cent excise tax on Canadian autos—already done by the government — and urged changes in duties on European imports as well as a degree of integration between the Canadian and U.S. car industries.

IMPORTS FALL

If the recommendations are implemented, Mr. Todgham says, there will be "marked growth" in the industry. If no action was taken there would be no "good reasons" for expecting marked improvement.

An estimated 437,000 passenger cars were sold in Canada last year, imported vehicles held 23 per cent of this market, a drop of five per cent from the previous year, and many dealers throughout the country predict a further decrease for foreign cars this year. They say the Canadian-made compacts are slicing into this corner of the market.

The most optimistic dealers of all appear to be in Alberta where they predict sales improvements ranging from five to 40 per cent. In Edmonton both Chrysler and Rambler dealers predict 40-per-cent increases over 1961, and all other dealers, including those handling imports, predict boosts. A buoyant provincial economy is offered as the reason.

Quebec dealers are also delighted at the prospects Harold Cummings, a major Montreal dealer, says "we have sold more 1962 cars so far than in any other previous year" And despite these higher sales, he said, there was no corresponding drop in used car sales—somewhat unusual.

LATE SALES PUSH

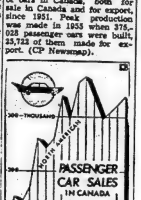
British cars are selling well, he says, although other imports seem to have a smaller turnover.

Henri Desjardins, dealer in French cars, attributes the lower turnover to the fact that publicity campaigns are not begun until late March. "We don't experience ups and downs during the winter. The action comes when we start our annual push for sales in late March."

Dealers in Quebec City are foregoating an "excellent" year, and while no comparative figures are available they say there is a definite trend toward Canadian-built cars. "We are North Americans and we like comfort," says dealer Raymond Bedard.

All city dealers say there have been sharp increases in the sales of compacts.

In the Atlantic provinces, the outlook is generally bright. Nova Scotia dealers predict a better year than last year, with compacts forging ahead Dealer Phil Carr-Harris of Dartmouth, N.S., terms the compacts "an astounding success."



COMPACTS FARE WELL

In New Brunswick, dealer John T. Clark says "we are reasonably optimistic." He, too, predicts higher sales of compacts. "This will affect the number of foreign cars but the total of smaller makes will be about the same."

Dealers in Prince Edward Island won't make any predic-

PRODUCTION UPSWING — Canadian passenger car production may hit an all-time high during 1962. Graph shows total annual production of cars in Canada, both for sale in Canada and for export, since 1951. Peak production was made in 1955 when 378,028 passenger cars were built, 33,732 of them made for export. (CP Newsmap).

BRIGHT OUTLOOK — Canadian automobile dealers and manufacturers predict a sharp climb in total passenger car sales in Canada in 1962.

Graph shows sales of North American-built cars and imported cars since 1946 and a sizable impact on the Canadian market in 1946 and increased sales to 125,967 units in 1950 before dropping below 100,000 last year. Decline is expected to continue this year.

Sales of North American cars, which climbed to 336,127 units in 1961, are expected to increase still more this year. (CP Newsmap).

tion until it is known how much farmers will be receiving for their potatoes this year. In the meantime, dealers are a continuing trend away from imported vehicles, even though they may still account for 35-40 per cent of the market.

Newfoundland is one province where there is no indication of a decline in imports. Dealer Eric Pinfold says he doesn't know quite why but there has always been a good demand for British cars in the province. Generally, dealers look toward this year's business as a bit better than last.

In British Columbia, manager E. T. Orr, of Vancouver Motor Dealers Association, says business "should remain pretty well the same, but it depends on many things—whether we have an election, or a war, or something else surrounding to upset the world applecart."

British Columbia last year showed a remarked drop in the number of imported cars. While overall car sales dropped 6.5 per cent, imports dropped 30 per cent. Mr. Orr attributes this to more attractive compacts and the increase in valuation of imported cars for tax purposes.

The Saskatchewan picture is still somewhat unclear for this year. Dealer Allan Sangster of Regina says country sales are probably "pick up, although there will be certain areas where sales will drop. Sale sees no increase in city sales.

Sales dropped 10 per cent in the province last year.

In Manitoba, Howard Carter, president of the Winnipeg Auto Dealers Association, says most dealers are looking forward to increased sales.

European cars have stabilized in their percentage of the market, he says, and have settled at a slightly reduced popularity.

Dealer Douglas Everett, also of Winnipeg, predicts a swing to big cars. People have taken their fling at compacts and are expected to return to the purchase of the larger cars this year."

Resourcefulness Keeps Eskimo Alive for Six Days

PORT CHIMO, Que. (CP)—A story of remarkable resourcefulness that kept a plucky Eskimo alive on an ice floe for six days has come out of northern Quebec.

The Port Chimo Northern Star, a mimeographed newspaper started recently, tells of the perils of Yugiul, a Wakeham Bay, Que., Eskimo, and how he met them.

He and another Eskimo named Mark travelled from Wakeham Bay 200 miles southeast along the Ungava Coast to hunt seals in Ungava Bay. The day Yugiul went adrift Mark had decided to remain ashore at their camp.

Yugiul set off across the ice with a sled and 12 dogs. When the floe broke loose he was separated from his sled and a kayak and left with little food.

He killed two dogs, making a blanket from their pelts and feeding their carcasses to the other 10 dogs.

MADE SEAL LAMP

Then he uncorked his most ingenious scheme. He killed a large seal, cut out its heart, squeezed oil from the blubber into the embers of the heart and, by adding a strip of cloth for a wick, fashioned a lamp-and-stove.

By burning the lamp in a small igloo he constructed, Yugiul was able to keep from freezing. From the seal—and another one he killed, he had enough food.

Finally he passed before word of his plight reached the northern service offices and police here. An RCAF Dakota aircraft and rescue plane made repeated trips over Ungava Bay. It spotted the floe but didn't sight Yugiul because of a thin mist covering the area.

After six days of drifting the floe moved back to the pack ice and Yugiul walked ashore. He was picked up by hunters, and after a few days in the Port Chimo nursing home was well enough to resume his hunting.

Prisoners Will Go on Trial On March 29th

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Prisoners taken in last April's unsuccessful Cuban invasion will go on trial March 29, Havana radio said Tuesday.

The brief announcement said only: "The department of justice of the army announces that the mercenaries prisoners who invaded Playa Giron the past 17th of April will be tried on the 29th."

There was no indication of whether the Castro regime intends to, try all the 1,000 invasion captives or simply their leaders. Neither was there any hint of what the charges will be nor what penalty will be asked.

As far as is known here, the men still are being held in Havana's Principe Prison.

The radio announcement that trials are planned came as exiles in the United States stepped up their campaign to raise funds to take Fidel Castro up on his offer of last May to trade the prisoners for tractors.

TWO STAYED

The tractor negotiations reached their height last July when Castro permitted 1,000 prisoners to journey to the United States to arrange for the farm equipment. But two of the negotiators stayed in the U.S. but the other 48 returned to prison.

The American committee was set up to raise the money for the 500 tractors demanded by Castro, but its members, including Eleanor Roosevelt, were unable to negotiate successfully with the Cuban premier.

The American group returned to the U.S. and collected from their donors and a group headed by relatives of the prisoners took up the drive.

Little has been heard about the condition of the captives lately. Havana radio once announced a special party dates on which the men could have visitor but has not done so in recent months.

There was a report early in January that infectious hepatitis — a serious liver ailment — had broken out among the prisoners and serum was collected from refugees to send to the men.

WOULD COST MORE

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness told the Commons Monday night that it would cost "enormously more" to supply Canadian troops abroad with food from Canada. He was replying to Harold Winch, CCF defence critic, who said he found that Canadian troops in Europe got better of their supplies everywhere but Canada.

Dental Assoc. Presents Brief On Fluoridation

OTTAWA (CP) — Opponents of water fluoridation have resorted to "emotional, irrational and scientifically unfounded arguments" to sway the public against it, the Canadian Dental Association charged Monday.

In a lengthy-worded submission to the royal commission on health services, the association said provincial legislatures should make fluoridation of communal water supplies mandatory as a measure to combat tooth decay. And it recommended that the federal government offer a financial inducement in an all-out fluoridation program.

"Water fluoridation is the most effective, satisfactory and inexpensive method of reducing the incidence of dental cavities," the association declared. Yet less then eight per cent of Canada's population was drinking fluoridated water.

When a province makes fluoridation compulsory, it should qualify for federal funds to subsidize the cost. The association suggested a 50-25-25 percentage split as among the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

"Where Service Means Satisfaction"

European Algerians See Gen. de Gaulle as Betrayer

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The cruel war-within-a-war by European Algerians against a cease-fire arises from a sense of betrayal, among other things.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle was called to power, in their view, to prevent Algeria from being split away from France but instead has agreed to terms inevitably leading to Algerian independence.

The European Algerians might have difficulty finding in de Gaulle's ponderous — and sometimes ambiguous — prose any convincing proof or broken promises, to justify their bloodcurdling terrorist tactics.

But there is evidence that emotion rather than reason is the motivating force. It has found a matching bitterness among military men shocked by France's losses in wars going back almost continuously to 1939.

The Moslem rebellion against France began in November, 1954, and reached strength reached a peak in 1957-58. Government after government toppled in Paris as the Algerian issue.

A climax in chaos came May 13, 1958, after Pierre Pflimlin became France's 24th premier since the Second World War. Europeans in Algiers—suspect, as he was about to negotiate with the Moslem rebels — virtually seized control of the city with the co-operation of some army elements.

The French National Assembly, fearing civil war, voted full future powers to de Gaulle—who had been in retirement for 12 years — and he became premier, later president, as a result of the Algerian revolt — within a month.

De Gaulle, however, disagreed from his initial support. He and promised, by stages, the idea of Algerian independence in association with France. Observers saw no spectacular policy changes but a gradual shift as the sisters de Gaulle exercised his gift of moving while seeming to stand still.

Many army officers were embittered to rebellion because — in their view—the basis of military victory had been achieved only to be frittered away politically. European Algerians, numbering 1,300,000 in a total population of 10,000,000, foresaw the end of their economic and political supremacy in the land France first colonized in 1830.

An oddity of the situation is that fewer than 500,000 of the European Algerians — although fanatically attached to the French connection—are French in origin. The others are mostly Spanish, Italian, Maltese and Greek, some of them retraining their nationality.

But the majority of all nationalities have been in Algeria for generations — longer than many families have been in Canada, for instance — and recognize no prior right for the Moslems. The Europeans maintain Algeria wasn't a country until they made it so and they see in that country their only future.

BC Launches 'Space Age' Secondary School Program

By JOHN MATTERS

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia has launched a "space age" secondary school program on which the government has staked millions of dollars and the future of about 125,000 teen-agers.

Sweeping changes will go into effect this year and the effectiveness of the revised curriculum won't be evaluated until 1967-68, when the first students under the system graduate from school.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson has called the plan an "adventure" which he hopes in later years will provide outstanding persons for science, industry and business.

"Although there is always a certain reluctance to change from our existing patterns, it will require major changes in our past educational philosophy and practices. This is not easy."

Most of the changes are at the Grade VIII level—students who will graduate in five years. The elementary academic program will include greater emphasis on French language, English, mathematics, social studies and science.

TWO-YEAR STUDY

The blueprint for the policy is a report of a royal commission which for two years studied the province's school needs. Its critics and supporters agree that it was an accurate analysis of public opinion.

Mr. Peterson said most of its 158 recommendations will be adopted. They will be introduced on a phased basis, with until complete reorganization is effected.

Last year Grade VII was transferred to the elementary school system, leaving junior and senior matriculation (Grade XIII) classes were established, the school day was lengthened and 32 committees were set up to study future curriculum changes.

Students in Grade VII in June will be channelled into academic and occupational programs. The occupational course, the first of its kind in the province, will equip the non-academically inclined with skills.

It would be a three - year course and would keep many teen-agers in school who otherwise would drop out when they reach the age of 15.

For the first time in its history, the provincial government this year will spend more on education than on highways—$75,300,000. The provincial contribution, about 60 per cent of school district budgets, is expected to increase about $5,000,000 for each of the next five years.

The education department will bring in the changes at the Grade IX level next year, Grade X the following year and so on, so that a pupil entering Grade VIII this fall will follow the new program throughout his education.

Other recommendations of the royal commission, including those relating to report cards, include the number of district superintendents, development of playing fields and summer institutes for principals, are being implemented.

The government is also planning an extensive educational training program, mainly for teachers who need to learn new skills for industry and business.

About $13,000,000 worth of buildings for such a program, in which the federal government participates in the cost, are expected to be built in the province within the next two or three years.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Prince Edward county's famed Long Reach, Canada's Epsom or international speedboat competition, "Derbyna," will no longer arch the lacy-white rooster-tail of the world's queen of the unlimited hydroplanes.

Last summer the gently-rippled waters of this famous raceway ribbon lapped a requiem to a favorite driver son, Bobby Hayward, killed while driving a sister princess on the Detroit river.

Now the Reach, which I hope, in the not too distant future, will bear the name "Bob Hayward Long Reach" has another reason to bow a proud figurative head in sadness. For her queen, "Miss Supertest III" which she coursed to Harmsworth Trophy triumphs on two occasions, has descended forever from her throne.

The rakish mahogany-hulled beauty, supreme ruler of the world unlimited hydroplane class, and holder of the coveted Harmsworth Trophy since she won it from the United States in 1939, has been permanently retired from all racing participation.

Jim Thompson, designer and owner of "Miss Supertest III" and her sister boat, decided to retire the champion, and leave the field of international rating. A sorrowful crew, the loyal devoted "court" of the queen, nodded a sad acquiescence.

And Mr. Thompson placed a finger on the pulse of reason, "With the untimely death of Bob Hayward at the 1961 Silver Cup races on the Detroit River, the members of our racing team would derive little satisfaction from further success."

And those of us of the press who mingled with Bobby and his devoted crew at the Long Reach pits, at pre-and-post race conferences and in his moments of triumph, will wholeheartedly concur.

For a "Miss Supertest III" without a Bobby Hayward in the cockpit would be like salt without pepper, a nut without a coat, a crown without a jewel.

Bobby loved his "queen". He knew her every whim and caprice, every vagary and dispositional variance. Her mighty Rolls Royce Griffon power plant seemed to know the touch of the master hand on the throttle.

It roared the throaty thunder of defiance to challenger and pealed again in triumph and tribute to worthy but defeated foemen.

From the time she slipped from her cradle in June of 1959, the rooster-tail of a foeman craft never drenched her bow. Bobby Hayward looked at her — and it was love at first sight. The "marriage" produced quadruplets of brilliant achievements.

In her first test in July, 1959 she responded gallantly to the driving magic of her master's touch. She won the Detroit Memorial Cup Race in her maiden competitive appearance.

A few weeks later she smashed the four-decade hold of the United States on the coveted Harmsworth Trophy. She met and defeated the famous "Maverick," crashing records in her stride, to bring the famous international trophy to Canada for the first time.

Back in Canada she dazzled the placid slightly-rippled waters of the Long Reach — and liked it. So did Hayward and the crew. The ribboned straightaways and the short but broad turns were nature's gift to a champion.

In 1960 she turned back the bid of three United States challengers headed by Wild Bill Cantrell and "Gale V". In 1961 she ran away from "Chuck" Thompson and his gallant but outclassed "Miss Detroit". There is no challenge this year. There is nothing afloat that can equal the mighty power of the world champion.

So "Miss Supertest III" goes into retirement, proud and unbeaten. She will probably be placed in a museum. And watching lovingly over her from his place in the misty Valhalla of sports champions will be the grand little guy who was part and parcel of her, who drove her courageously and confidently to her trio of brilliant world championship victories, Bobby Hayward.

Queen Mother Will See Plate Classic

TORONTO (CP) — The Queen Mother will present the traditional gift of 50 guineas to the owner of the winning horse at the 103rd running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine June 16.

It will mark the second time the Queen Mother has witnessed the plate — oldest continuously run stakes race in North America and the top race in Canada. In 1939, as the reigning queen, she accompanied King George VI to Toronto and watched the race.

In 1959 Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip attended the race.

SET FIGHT DATE

LONDON (AP)—Boxing promoter Jack Solomons announced Tuesday that Eder Jofre of Brazil will defend his world bantamweight title against Britain's Johnny Caldwell at London June 5.

Two Down Two To Go

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull scored his 48th goal of the season Tuesday night, setting off a wild demonstration by fans at Chicago Stadium. He connected in the last period against Detroit Red Wings.

Screams, shrieks, yells were mixed with the toots of horns in the demonstration that lasted eight minutes.

It was Chicago's last home game of the 1961-62 National Hockey League schedule and the goal was the last in a 3-0 victory over the Red Wings.

Hull now has two more games —at Montreal Saturday night and New York Sunday night— in which to equal or surpass the 50-goal scoring record of Canadiens' Maurice Richard tied by Bernie Geoffrion, also of Canadiens, last season.

COSTLY DEFEAT

The victory meant nothing to the Black Hawks, who have clinched third place in the league standings. But for the Red Wings, struggling for the Stanley Cup playoff berth, it was a costly defeat.

The Wings still trail fourth-place New York Rangers by one point and each team only has two more games to play before the 70-game schedule ends Sunday night.

The Black Hawks concentrated on setting up Hull for shots Chicago coach Rudy Pilous said. "He had a couple of clean ones, missing five and having goalie Hank Bassen of the Red Wings look the others before teammate Bill Hay helped him for a goal.

Hull appeared reluctant to talk about the possibility of matching Richard's record.

LAUDS TEAM

"All I want to talk about is how the fellows on this team are with me all the time out there, trying to set up shots for me, giving me all the chances they can. We've got two games left, and I'll go out in them shooting," he said.

The goal extended Hull's late-season drive. He has scored 33 times in his last 29 games.

It also tied the NHL record for most goals by a left winger in one season. The mark was established last year by Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs.

It also brought his point total for the season to 81, just one behind teammate Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers.

Almost forgotten in the excitement about Hull was the performance of Glenn Hall in the Chicago nets. Hall kicked out 26 Detroit shots for his ninth shutout of the season—tops in the league.

Stan Mikita's goal gave the Hawks a 1-0 lead in the first period and Bob Turner got the second goal early in the third.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks scored his 48th goal of the season Tuesday night and drew to within one point of pace-setting Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers in the race for the National Hockey League individual scoring crown.

The goal came in Chicago's 3-0 win over Detroit Red Wings in the league's only scheduled game, and brought Hull's point total to 81.

Bathgate has 82 points on 37 goals and a league-leading 55 assists.

Stan Mikita of the Black Hawks scored his 24th goal and moved one point behind third-ranked Gordie Howe of Detroit. Howe has 75 points.

Theleaders:

	G	A	Pts
Bathgate, New York	37	55	92
Hull, Chicago	48	33	81
Howe, Detroit	32	43	75
Mikita, Chicago	24	50	74

Twin Double Pays $4,698 For $2 Bet

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jefferson Downs's new twin double returned $4,698.80 for a single bettor Tuesday night as New Orleans' track began its second week of night racing.

The track inaugurated the twin double this year with a pool on the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh races similar to the daily double.

The payoff on a Louisiana record for a single $2 parimutuel ticket. Koo, (317.20) won the fourth race, St. Marlin Girl (34.40) the fifth, Step Step (126.40) the sixth and favored Chocarrero (3.80) the seventh.

Game Down, Lose 7-3

Macs Bow To Kingston

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

KINGSTON — The Belleville McFarlands found themselves looking up at the Kingston Frontenacs on Belleville ice for the opening game of their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals tonight after dropping a 7-3 decision to the Macs here last evening.

While the score gave little indication of the play, the Frontenacs made the most of their opportunities, and now hold a two-games-to-one lead in the best of seven series.

The Macs have the advantage of the next two games at home, tonight and again on Monday, March 26 if a sixth game is necessary it will be played in Kingston on Wednesday, March 28.

It was a 1-1 game here at the end of the first period last night but the Frontenacs pulled away in the second and third periods to make it 3-2 but Wayne Cashman grabbed Brown's rebound and fired it into an open net to put the Frontenacs ahead to stay at 12:28. Little more than a minute later Curran's shot from the side boards deflected in off Mavety's skate to make it 4-2.

The first half of the third was sluggish but at 10:43 Hunter sent Smith in all alone to cut the lead to 4-3.

Belleville's "comeback" was shortlived when Chuck Connors fired the clinching goal 11 seconds later for a 5-3 score. Robertson and Cashman completed pretty passing plays at 18.45 and 18.56 but it was over far too late.

Dave Smith, with two goals and Moe Hunter, with a goal and assist, paced the Mac scorers. Larry Mavety drew two assists with one each for Ethler, who played well throughout, and Pete Weston. Kellar and McGuire missed enough chances between them to win the game.

Belleville drew five minor penalties and Kingston four. Trouble erupted on two occasions, both times near the end of the second period, Curran and Mavety drew high sticking penalties after a skirmish between the Kingston bench and later Mavety floored Lavallee by charging him into the boards.

Mavety was given a cross checking penalty and he was greeted at the penalty bench by Ron Lavallee, older brother of the Kingston player. The elder Lavallee, a fan who was mixed up in a brawl in the stands in Belleville earlier this year, wanted to take on Mavety but was finally escorted out of the rink by a police officer.

BELLEVILLE: Dulmage, Boyle, Mavety, Weston, Hunter, Smith, Zakoe, C. Reid, Ethler, McGuire, Kellar, Rowland, Duvall.

KINGSTON: Demmler, Reid, Long, Ball, Shaver, Curran, Convery, Bryant, Brown, Cashman, McMillan, Robertson, Rawson, Lavallee.

This Year Watched Puck, Won

Canadians Didn't Scare Swedes

TORONTO (CP) — Swedish hockey players are not afraid of Canadian hockey players.

And that, coach Arne Stromberg said in an interview Tuesday night, is one reason his team won the recent world hockey championships in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Stromberg, here for a television appearance, said the Swedish hockey players have lost their fear of Canadian players —often portrayed as bruising ogres on ice skates.

For too many years, he said, Swedish players skated cautiously against Canadian teams, watching the players rather than the puck. This year they watched the puck and put Canada into second place.

"We weren't afraid this year as we were in other years. We weren't frightened when we read of how the Canadian players would bodycheck us right off the rink."

The picture of Canadian hockey players as tinkers with sticks has been built up over the years by touring teams starring rough players who smile around missing teeth and by newspaper and magazine stories from North America, Stromberg said.

"In Sweden we don't go into hurting each other in sport. Accidents will happen, but we like to see our young players with all their teeth."

Attention Pickerel Fishermen!

There appears to be some confusion in respect to the pickerel season in the Bay of Quinte and inland waters.

In the Bay of Quinte and Hay Bay the season commences on April 25th. This does not include any inland waters.

The rivers emptying into the Bay of Quinte are included as inland waters and the pickerel season opens on May 12th.

The boundaries separating the rivers from the Bay of Quinte are as follows:

Trent River — South of No. 2 Highway Bridge.
Moira River — South of railway bridge in the City of Belleville.
Salmon River — South of and including Salmon Island in the mouth of the Salmon River.
Napanee River — Outside of Unger Island from a point due south of the eastern end of the island to a point on North Fredericksburg Township.

KITCHENER (CP) — Hockey traffic across the Atlantic will be heavier than ever next season, President Jack Rosburgh of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Tuesday in announcing details of a series of tours and exhibition games.

Canada will send a senior team on a Christmas tour of Czechoslovakia and will probably dispatch a selected junior team to a tournament in Prague, late in March.

Sweden will probably send a strong touring side to Canada in late November, although details are only in the preliminary stage.

John (Bunny) Ahearne, European president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, is arranging. A 15-game pre-tournament tour of Europe for Canada's 1963 world tournament team.

GUARANTEE EXPENSES

All expenses are guaranteed with 50,000 Swiss francs in addition. The tour will embrace eight countries — Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union, East and West Germany, Sweden, Finland and Norway — and will start the last week in January.

The West German team will play a short exhibition tour of Canada and the United States on dates and in places to be determined later.

An extra attraction in the United States is a scheduled Canada-Soviet Russia game in Colorado Springs where it is expected 15,000 fans from Canada, the United States and Sweden will play.

Beavers, Fronts Tie, Hull Loses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Second-place Kingston Frontenacs and third - place Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers battled to a 4-4 tie in Eastern Professional Hockey League action Tuesday night and each gained a point on the front-running Hull - Ottawa Canadiens who were dumped 3-1 by North Bay Trappers.

Kingston has played 54 games, of the 70-game schedule — two more than Kitchener-Waterloo and less than Kitchener — and trails the Canadiens by three points. Kitchener, is two points behind Kingston in the three-way battle for the 2nd place championship.

Fifth-place North Bay moved to within eight points of the idle fourth - place Sudbury Wolves. North Bay, with five games left, has a mathematical chance to catch Sudbury, which has six games to play, for the last play-off position.

Last-place Sault Ste. Marie, with 48 points, has been eliminated from playoff contention.

Dark Blues Abandon New Shell

LONDON (AP)—Oxford University rowing eight Tuesday night announced it has abandoned its sleek new Italian-built shell for the traditional race against Cambridge on the River Thames April 7.

After only one day's practice with the Italian boat on the Thames, Oxford decided to go back to the English boat which it used in beating Cambridge in 1960. Last year, using another English boat, Oxford was beaten.

The Italian boat was built specially for Oxford and cost $1,400. Critics who watched it in practice on the Thames Monday said it looked too narrow and flimsy to stan dup to the rough water which often churns up for the 13-mile race between the rival universities.

MONTREAL (CP) — Westmount police said Tuesday they are still searching for "at least two men" who heaved a 12-foot plank through the living-room window of sports columnist Jimmy W. Ferguson. Figure Skating Body Wants Championships Here

TORONTO (CP) — Nigel Stephens, president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association said Tuesday the world figure skating championships to be held in Canada soon.

Stephens said he has written international authorities about the possibility of holding the championships here in 1965-66.

"If they are interested, we will make a formal bid," he said.

Canada has 216 figure skating clubs affiliated with the CFSA, "probably more than any other country in the world."

Toronto, with 16 clubs, probably would not be matched by any other city and the championships, if held in Maple Leaf Gardens, would generate great interest."

Face 'Deadliest Shot'

New Tactics for Spurs

By PAUL WESTBROOK

LONDON (CP)—A teak-tough Scotsman and a ebony idol from Mozambique fight a flood-lit duel in London tonight.

Craggy wing-half Dave MacKay and sharp-shooting inside-forward Silva Eusebio are the key contestants in the European Cup semi-final between Tottenham Hotspur and Benfica.

Eusebio, a dusky 19-year-old from Portugal's East African colony, is rated the deadliest shot in Europe. He represents the most serious threat to Tottenham's cup hopes.

No wonder there's danger. Tottenham is relying on the tough defensive work of MacKay, plus a "retreating" attack-minded forward up by manager Billy Nicholson.

WILL DROP BACK

The Spurs' defence will drop back towards its goal when Benfica launches an attack. This presents a solid barrier to the probing skills of Eusebio and the penetrating play of centre-forward Jose Augusto.

Nicholson's strategy is to keep down Benfica's score until the return game of European Cup matches are played on a home-and-home basis. The second game is in London April 4.

The condition of the pitch favors the English team, Tottenham's club has turned it into a morass, a handicap for the ball-playing Portuguese and a headache for manager Bela Guttmann.

Neither manager will name eleven until just before the kick-off. Word from Lisbon say that Guttmann may make some changes to get a heavier attack but Nicholson will begin his lineup to get a stronger rear guard.

Benfica won the European Cup last year, beating Barcelona 3-2 in the final. As English team never has won the competition.

In the other semi-final Spain's Real Madrid meets Standard Liege of Belgium. This is regarded as a walkover for the Spaniards, who have won the cup five times in the last six years.

Hook 'Blows Whistle' Says Reds Stole Signals

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Did Cincinnati win the National League pennant last year with the help of some cloak-and-dagger sign stealing?

Pitcher Jay Hook, a Redleg hurler last season who is now with the New York Mets, Tuesday backed up reports the 1961 National League champions had a man posted in the centre field scoreboard to steal the home team's stop off signs flashed by opposing catchers.

The signs were reportedly telephoned to the Cincinnati dugout.

Reports that Cincinnati was using Brooks Lawrence, former pitching pitcher who is now a scout, in the scoreboard role have been rampant this spring.

"I don't know exactly what games, but I'm sure that Brooks Lawrence was out there (in the scoreboard)," Hook said.

"It was common knowledge on our club. Other clubs were doing it at their home parks, too."

Hook said he suspected Chicago Cubs and Milwaukee Braves.

"I didn't say anything about it, but now I'm on the Mets and I want to protect the Mets against that sort of thing. I think it's wrong," Hook said.

The commissioner (Ford Frick) should see that a ruling is put in.

EPL Starts Playoffs On April 4

OTTAWA (CP)—The Eastern Professional Hockey League announced today that playoffs in the six - team loop will start April 4.

After the 70-game schedule ends April 7, two best-of-seven semi-final series will be held — one between the first and third-place teams and the other between the second and fourth-place clubs.

League officials said the first game of each series will be played April 4 in the home area of the first and second-place clubs. Both series must be completed later than April 18.

The two winners then will start a best-of-seven final series later than April 20. Three games must be concluded by April 30.

Sasky Tops In Legion Curling

FREDERICTON (CP) — Buddy Townsend's Saskatchewan rink cashered today's fourth round in the Royal Canadian Legion curling championships as the only undefeated foursome in the 10 rinks competing.

Townsend's Regina Granite Kings stretched their record to 3-0 Tuesday by conquering two previously-unbeaten rinks. They started the day by defeating Gordie MacDonald's ontario rink 9-8 and in the third round took Alberta 12-6.

Townsend had little difficulty disposing of the Albertans, skipped by Bob Woods. Playing their unfamiliar take-out game, they blanked the first end, grabbed two in the second and stole another pair in the third. From then on it was clear sailing, a big four-ender in the 11th clinching the win.

The Granite Kings, defending champs in the annual bonspiel, were to meet New Brunswick, with a 2-1 record, this morning, and go against Nova Scotia (2-1) in the afternoon. Townsend should have clear sailing in Saturday night's sixth draw of the 10-round, round-robin tournament. He meets winless Quebec.

British Columbia, tied with Alberta, Ontario and Nova Scotia with 2-1 records, scored a close 8-7 win over Prince Edward Island.

In other action Alberta trounced Newfoundland 10-4 before losing to Townsend and Ontario beat Nova Scotia 10-6 before bumping into the powerful Saskatchewan curlers. Nova Scotia beat P.E.I. 12-10 in the third round.

Manitoba, P.E.I., Newfoundland and New Brunswick have 1-2 records.

Willie Has Hot Bat

Cards Clip Yank String

NEW YORK (AP)—A medical report shortstop "is low - grade malignancy" has delayed Sam Jones' comeback try and clouded Detroit Tigers' pluding picture in the American league, Jones, whose trademark is a whiplash pitching delivery, will be lost to the club for an indefinite period while undergoing special treatment.

One of the National League's leading pitchers in 1961 he helped to an 8-4 won-lost record and was bothered by arm trouble with San Francisco Giants last year, was aiming at a comeback this season.

Tiger manager Bob Scheffing said he was hoping to use Jones as a pinch-hitting mean for his big three, Frank Lary, Jim Bunning and Don Mossi.

Hurlers Early Wynn and Herb Score appeared sharp for Chicago White Sox in a 7-1, 10-inning exhibition victory over Los Angeles Dodgers at Sarasota, Fla., while Cincinnati Reds contributed his first homer of the spring.

'Becoming a Habit'

Sasky Rink Was Unbeaten

EDINBURGH (CP)—Canada, who clinched her fourth consecutive world curling championship earlier in the tournament, Tuesday kept her unbeaten streak going to the end.

The Sask Richardson rink from Regina defeated Scotland's Willie Young crew 13-6 in the afternoon session after nosing out the United States earlier in the day.

Canada won the tournament with six wins and no losses; the United States was second with 5-1; Scotland, 4-2; Switzerland and Sweden last, 0-6.

Canada has won the tournament each year since it was inaugurated in 1959.

Skipping the Richardson rink with the Scotch Cup, Ron S. Cunningham, chairman of the Scotch Whisky Association, the tournament sponsors—said: "This is becoming a habit.

"But we all recognize that the Canadians truly are the world's greatest curlers. In the Sweden 15-6.

Bonefishing With the Experts

Every year when we go to Florida we hear the same story — at the filling stations and the motels along the way. It is normal procedure to pass the time of day with fellow travelers at these places. Usually the conversation goes like this:

"How'dy. You headin' for Florida?"

"That's right; you too?"

"Yep. Thought I'd go down and do a little fishin'. Always meant to catch one o' them bonefish. Everybody says they're really something."

"How about tarpon?" you inquire.

"I dunno. Them things get pretty big to handle on light tackle, I'm told. I'm after bonefish."

Back in 1946 — 1947 not very many people North of the Georgia line ever heard of a bonefish. Then in 1948 it was discovered that the bonefish would take a spoon quite readily. In 1948, through the efforts of the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament, the outdoor writers of the country were invited to come to the Florida Keys and try their hands at bonefishing.

The boys came all right, were wined and dined, and took to bonefishing. Then they went home and wrote about bonefish. Newspaper columns, magazine articles and stories, all about bonefish, appeared in the public print. It wasn't long before thousands who owned fishing tackle wanted to catch a bonefish. Grey Ghost of the Sand Flats they called him; the whole thing caused quite a to-do in the outdoor field.

Our first experience with bonefish was in March, 1948. On board Capt. Conrad Albright's cruiser "Rebel," we set out with high hopes. Jim knows his business when it comes to bonefish. (When it comes to a any Florida game fish for that matter.) In the little skiff that was towed in back of the cruiser I managed to hook six bonefish and land four — all on orthodox fly-rod tackle.

HAVE LEARNED MUCH

Down through the years many hours have been spent drifting the bonefish flats in company with hollysocks guides of Rolle and Holly Hollebeeks, Bill and Bonnie Smith, Cecil Green; Bill Mann, Clarence Lowe, to name a few. From these men much was learned. Let me try to tell you about bonefishing as I personally is.

Bonefish, as is generally supposed, do not live on the sand flats. Instead they seek the security of reasonably deep water when they are not actively on the feed. On a change of tide or the advent of a solunar period will bring the fish out of their deep-water resting places and onto the shallow sand flats where they find their food.

While it is possible to still fish for bonefish, casting the bait out into an established run, way and allowing it to rest there on the bottom until a bonefish comes along and takes it, the usual way to fish for them is to drift the sand flats in a shallow-draft skiff, locating the fish by sight in the clear water.

Feeding fish are fairly easy to spot. Each time the fish noses around in the turtle grass after crabs and so on, the tail is elevated above the surface. The silvery flash of a hunting bonefish can be seen half a mile away. However, it takes a trained eye to spot a cruiser. Nature has camouflaged the bonefish so that he blends with his surroundings. The amateur generally can see the adult fish, those who go eight pounds or better. These are darker in color, seeming to be almost black against the light background; but the average fish, four to seven pounds, requires the trained eye of the expert guide who, more often than not, has the devil's own knack of locating out the fish to the angler.

Once a fish has been spotted, the approach or stalk begins. It is up to the guide to maneuver his angler into casting range. With spinning or plug-casting tackle, this is fairly easy as these rigs will handle ranges of 150 feet or better. But with the fly rod, the ball is more difficult. However, it can be done.

No matter what rig you are using, always it is best to cast beyond the line of travel of the fish. Bonefish almost always move against the tide and in a straight line. Thus, the lure can be cast beyond that line, maybe four or five feet. Then it can be brought back slowly as the fish approaches. It is a tense and exciting moment as fish and lure come together.

SET WILL JUMP

When a fish takes a lure, almost always he will turn. Then, instead of striking, you raise the rod tip and pull the line some solidity. At once the fish works begin. The bonefish, knowing he's in trouble, naturally seeks safety of deep water. Away he will go toward the edge of the shallows. Little can be done to check or stop that determined run of a bonefish. Of course, you worry for fear he will not stop before your line is exhausted. However, he always stops. A run of that sort, at high speed, uses up a lot of energy, particularly against the light drag of the reel and the thin friction of the line. We hear of runs of over 200 yards, but I have never seen one, and I have caught some big 'uns. Once the fish has stopped, then the job is to regain line. The fish being hooked, this can be a fairly easily. You can always let him back up, using all of the boat as easily as a pump on a siring. But once the fish is headed for the angler any pretty the fun begins again. The second run usually is not quite the first, fifty yards or so. Then it is simply a matter of bulldogging the fish and shortening the boat.

For the amateur, the easy way to catch bonefish is with bait — shrimp or a small crab. These can be cast well ahead of the fish, thus allowing for a long run. As with artificial lures, the baits are worked slowly back across the line of travel as the fish approaches, when they are usually taken promptly.

Bonefish are fun, particularly until the novelty wears off. Their initial run when hooked is a spectacular affair. The fact that they are as shy as brook trout and that they spook all too readily adds excitement to the sport. But they don't jump like the tarpon and the snook. Their fight, once the initial run is over, is unimpressive. When you have caught one, you have caught them all, as their personalities have about it a tiresome uniformity. Me — I'll take tarpon, snook, or redfish a hundred days.

So you want to catch a bonefish. Well, that's how you go about doing it.

Montreal Coach

Says Boxing on Upswing

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's most successful boxing coach is an 84 - 46 week Montreal bus driver who says the sport is on the upswing.

"It's passed the critical stage," says Roger Larlique, a baldish man of 41 with a string of 27 fighters, five of them pros.

"Thugs and racketeers muscled in on boxing and nearly rooled out. Slowly boxing is coming back. With shows on a regular basis, the competition will become more intensive."

Larivee, coach of Canada's last Olympic boxing team, lays down hard-line no-nonsense policy with his kids.

"If they don't want to listen, I don't listen and I tell them I'm ready to change. If not I don't have anything to do with them. "He just like a marriage. If one man and wife can't get along, they have to separate."

CALM DURING FIGHT

In the ring he's a model of composure. His disposition seems smooth by eight hours a day lockering a 10½ - ton bus in Montreal's heavy, congested traffic.

Between bejs, he leans calmly on the ring apron chewing gum. Then when the round is over he delivers his instructions in soft, unruffled tone.

Three of the five members of the 1960 Olympic team came up under Larivee, a onetime pro boxer who worked as a grocery clerk and butcher before joining the Montreal Transportation Commission 15 years ago.

They were Barbados - born Jeff Alleyne, a telegrpe mechanic, Gaby Mancini, 21, a Montreal bantam, and Marcel Bellefeuille, 21, an apprentice electrician.

Bellefeuille turned professional this year as a lightweight with Roger as manager. Bellefeuille meanwhile is aiming for a berth on this year's British Empire Games team.

Now and again, Larivee promotes a card at one of the smaller halls in Montreal and it's in this field that his ultimate big ambition lies.

BREAKING EVEN

"I'm not a money - making promoter but it's a lot of fun," he says. "In fact, financially, I'm just about even with the game."

His Scottish-born wife Susan — he met her while serving with the Canadian Army overseas in the last war—looks on tolerantly.

"Sometimes she asks me to give it up. I'm away from home at night a lot, you know. But sometimes I say I will stay around and changes her mind."

Cummings Not Downhearted Over Show Coming Cropper

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Actors are a resilient group. They can seek a new project with high hopes, and by no words, but if they show fools, or if they are cowered by the critics, they pick themselves up, dust themselves off—and get on to the next.

Victim of one of the season's cropper's is Robert Cummings, whose comedy series on CBS went off the air earlier this month without even finishing a full season. But is Cummings downhearted?

"No," said the veteran actor. "We knew, by about the 13th show, that we had too much—that it was too expensive to try to do a full adventure show in a half hour — and with six pianos."

Cummings wasted no time mourning the series—it is his third and least successful. My Hero had its network season and went into reruns. The Bob Cummings Show had reverberated seasons and is still being re-posted profitably.

Cummings, unscarred, is in New York rehearsing for an NBC Show of the Week comedy The Action in New Orleans, set for April 15. He is mulling over two offers for another TV series and is planning to star in a summer theatre version of The Tunnel of Love.

"The main thing is to stay active—even if you are very bad," said Cummings. "After all, as things that are really important for him are his health (he has to be able to deliver the body), a knowledge of law (there are so many loopholes in contracts) and—last, I'm afraid—ability."

CBS will do an adaptation of Stephen Vincent Benet's The Devil and Daniel Webster, on April 30 with David Wayne playing the devil and Edward-G. Robinson, Daniel — a switch of roles they played in NBC's color version of the same play two years ago.

Mental Cruelty Covers Lot Of Causes in Divorce Cases

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clyde Mack, the typical Hollywood Clerk, dropped by my desk to talk about Hollywood divorces.

Clyde is a press agent whose realistic view of the Hollywood scene keeps him unemployed most of the time.

"I see you're writing another divorce story," said Clyde as he reading over my shoulder. "Do you know why there are so many divorces come in threes, just like Hollywood deaths?"

"An old wives' tale," I scoffed.

"No, no, old wives don't tell tales in the night," Clyde corrected. "They merely sue on grounds of 'mental cruelty.' It's a matter if their husbands were drunks, chasers or both, the charge always is mental cruelty."

"Very interesting," I said dubiously. "Now if you don't mind . . ."

"Oh, I know these divorce stories inside and out," Clyde continued. "You know what a Hollywood marriage is called—if it has lasted 18 months or more?"

"I give up."

"One of Hollywood's perfect marriages.' And the film colony is 'shocked' and 'taken by surprise' when it breaks up. Nor here is a must: The press reports must carry a photo of the couple's second wedding official event. The caption has got to be 'in happier days.'"

"Is that all?"

"Yes. I know that one. Now if—"

"Another thing. Even if he tried to spur hot lead in her ear, they are 'still friends.' You may start throwing the bone china at the mention of his name, but the announcement always says they are 'still friends.'"

I perked out a few words, but he continued.

"I'll tell you something else that has got to go into the release—and Daniel Webster involved: It can be Debbie-Eddie-Liz all over again, but the publicity please always says: 'No other person is involved.'

"Still—you gotta give 'em a reason, so which one would you like? 'Class of personalities'? Translation: Two big egos are too much under one roof?

I finally interjected: "Look, Clyde, I've got a deadline. See you later. Give my best to your wife."

"My wife?" he said gloomily. "We're getting a Clash of personalities.' She can't stand mine. Too bad. It was one of Hollywood's perfect marriages."

At the Park

Mighty action abounds in "The Mighty Crusaders".

"The Mighty Crusaders", in Super Cinescope and breathtaking color coming to the Park Theatre Thursday, delivers a mighty blow of solid entertainment. Just as the battle axes of the Knights of the Cross shook the earth of the Holy Land, so does this blazing film of pageantry and spectacle capture and project a series of electric blows of mounting action.

From the onset, the audience will witness a host of spectacular scenes. The mammoth battle between Heathens and Knights for the Holy Sepulcher, Towers assailed and battering rams beaten the walls of the Holy City. The dance of the seven orgies. The seduction of Rosalie, the White Knight, by the dark Daughter of Damascus. Men with flaming torches by the flaming pitch of the Infidels. The duel to the death with 100 corpses' battle axes.

All this and much more in color. Richard Egan stars in an era of violent times, released by Falcon Products, Incorporated.

On the same program, also in color are a cartoon feature, adventure and thrills, "Flight of the Lost Balloon", starring Marshall Thompson and Mala Powers. Both spectacles are first Belleville and district showings.

MAKES LEAD STICK

NEW YORK (AP)—Adele L. Rand's Green Ticket took the lead soon after the start and just made it stick Tuesday in winning the $28,900 Swift Stakes, before an opening day crowd of 47,065 at Aqueduct race course. Duc d'Or, a 25-1o-1 shot, nosed out Sunrise County for second place. The winner, timed in 1:10.4, paid $6.80, $5 and $3.50.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Jerry Lewis as "The Errand Boy", Brian Donlevy, Howard McNear, Dick Winslow, 2.35—7.00—9.30.

AT THE PARK — All Technicolor Show — "Devil's Hairpin", Cornel Wilde, Jean Wallace, 1.30 — "The World of Suzie Wong", William Holden, Nancy Kwan, 4.45—8.00.

Canada Outdoors

By DUNC McWHIRTER

TORONTO (CP)—One of the worst winters in living memory is causing heavy losses among the deer herds of central and Northern Ontario.

Starvation conditions in the big Batchawana deer range near Sault Ste. Marie have been reported by District Forester W. W. Lockwood, but game population officials had spread has been hard hit throughout the province.

The winter in the Sault Ste. Marie district has been one of the worst weather - wise since began there in 1888. Well over 100 inches of snow had fallen by the end of February, more than the average for an entire winter.

Examination of deer carcasses found in the area of Batchawana, 25 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, shows the victims died in an advanced state of malnutrition.

Marrow bones from dead deer have been cracked open and studied. They show that the animals' fat reserves had been used up.

Deer in the Echo Lake district, 10 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, recently have been observed to be unusually lethargic, a sign of gradual starvation.

Extremely deep snow, poor crusting conditions, low temperatures and lack of accessible food are the deadly combination.

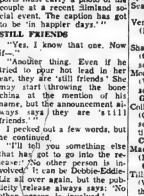
Dr. C. H. D. Clarke, chief of the fish and wildlife branch of the department of lands and forests, said the Sault Ste. Marie area is especially vulnerable.

Winds whip across the great open expanses of Lake Superior and pick up moisture which is converted to snow and dumped on the deer ranges of the bush country.

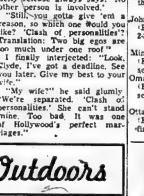
FAMINE DOOMED

"Little hope is held for last year's fawn crop," said Mr. Lockwood.

Dr. Clarke said special snowmobiles are being used to bring much of Ontario stocked this "critical" stage for deer toward the end of February.



Feeding is usually done in the greatest numbers, he said. The Department has been hard pressed to find enough hay for the deer and is now considering the use of pelleted feed.



"It's useless trying to feed deer," said Dr. Clarke. "Everything that can be done is too late. They have to be left up to the weather."

CHANGE GAME TIME

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Candiens have changed the starting time of their home games in the National Hockey League playoffs to 8:30 p.m. from 8 p.m., the league said Tuesday. The Canadiens open their best-of-seven semi - finals against Chicago Black Hawks in Montreal March 27.

Kingston Labor Council Opposes City Aiding C of C

KINGSTON (CP) — John McLean, president of the Kingston Labor Council, said he might called on city council to withhold any future grants to the Chamber of Commerce.

He said he was making the request because of the "insidious propaganda" being put out by the Canadian chamber in the Operation Freedom program.

The propaganda could be compared practically word-for-word with the literature spread by the John Birch Society in the United States, he said.

The labor council was also to ask the Kingston board of education to prohibit any Chamber of Commerce pamphlets from being circulated among school children.

Cross-Canada Survey

Newfoundland, Nova Scotia And Prince Edward Island Still Retain Permit System

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ontario joins most of the rest of Canada April 1 in doing away with a time-maligned system of buying intoxicants by government permit.

The $1 annual liquor permit, defended as an essential control against intemperance and criticized as hypocritic means of boosting revenue, has been abolished in Ontario after 35 years.

The operation has been surprisingly painless for all involved, considering that it concerns a perennial Canadian controversy, the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

But the Ontario government could learn on examples in six other provinces in deciding to do away with permits while avoiding a major fuss.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that citizens of all provinces except Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are free of the permit system—

NEVER IN QUEBEC

Quebec has never issued liquor permits; New Brunswick and Saskatchewan used them only for wartime rationing; British Columbia abolished them in 1947, Manitoba in 1956 and Alberta in 1957.

But all provinces, with or without permit systems, maintain control of the sale of alcoholic beverages through government - appointed commissions and government-operated retail stores. Liquor control in Canada is a responsibility of provincial governments, not a federal matter, and liquor revenue is a major source of funds for provincial treasuries.

Ontario consumers required a book listing purchases from 1927 until 1954, when card permits were introduced. Permits were needed only for "hard" liquor such as whisky, gin, rum, brandy and liqueurs.

Purpose of both books and cards was said to be to prevent sales to minors, bootleggers and others barred from buying liquor, such as reservation Indians. However, Premier Robarts said in an announcement Feb. 21, "the necessity of produce a permit has been a continuing source of irritation to liquor purchasers."

REACTION NEGLIGIBLE

The announcement produced neither jubilation among Ontario permit holders nor outraged cries from temperance groups. The change means little to the average consumer, who must still fill out a form, including name and address, for each purchase of liquor, wine or beer.

Nor is the government out of pocket. Because of a three-per-cent provincial sales tax introduced last September, most prices on the government liquor list ended in odd pennies. By adjusting these tax - included prices upwards to the nearest five cents, the government is expected to recover more than the $1,300,000 lost in revenue from permits.

Other provinces that abolished permits did so for much the same reasons as Ontario and with similar trouble-free results.

British Columbia introduced a permit book system in 1921 as a check on bootleggers. It was dropped as needless red tape 15 years ago.

The Alberta government discontinued its 50-cent permit five years ago on the ground that it was largely ineffective in preventing illegal purchases. Saskatchewan replaced hard liquor to 26 ounces a week per purchaser through $1 permits from 1942 to 1946.

SET LIBERAL LIMITS

The Manitoba government, which abolished a permit book system in 1956 after 33 years, maintains limits on the amount an individual may purchase in one day. But the limits are liberal: 288 bottles of beer, 12 gallons of wine and 32 bottles of hard liquor.

In New Brunswick, where liquor was rationed through permit books during the Second World War, temperance groups last year proposed the revival of permits before a liquor inquiry commission. However, the commission saw "no reason" for adopting liquor permits.

A similar commission in Nova Scotia two years ago advised the government to abolish the 50-cent permits required to buy beer, wine or spirits in the province since 1930. But the government took no action, deeding the system as a check on purchasers and a source of some $100,000 in annual revenue.

FOR MEDICINAL PURPOSES

Until 14 years ago in Prince Edward Island, a doctor's prescription was the authority required to buy liquor. A permit book, limiting purchases to four bottles a month was introduced in 1948 and a no-limit card permit was adopted in 1960.

The P.E.I. permit is the highest priced in the land, $2 a year for residents, but a concession is made for tourists, who can buy a permit for 25 cents. Revenue amounts to about $35,000 a year.

Newfoundland government officials say the $1 permit book system in force since 1922 aiding police to keep a check on bootleggers. The permit, limiting purchases to three bottles of spirits a week, bring the government almost $100,000 a year.

ACCEPTS PAINTING

VICTORIA (CP)—Mayor Dick Wilson said Monday he would be proud to hang in his office the controversial Herbert Siebner impressionist painting of the inner harbor. The mayor's action ends a controversy that boiled up between the tradi-tionalists and avant garde as to whether the abstract should be allowed to hang in city hall.

CANADIAN ARTIST PRAISED — Theo Dimson, 31, a Toronto graphic artist, has been ranked by a Tokyo art publication as one of the leading five designers in the world. He is shown beside the three-dimensional wall mural, made in sand, which he designed for the reception room of a Toronto company. The mural was among many of Mr. Dimson's works praised by the Japanese magazine. (CP Photo).

Toronto Artist One of Top 5 Young Designers in World

TORONTO (CP)—Theo Dimson, 31-year-old Toronto graphic artist, is described in a Tokyo publication as one of the top five young designers in the world.

The praise was in Graphic Design, an international art magazine which carried examples of his art.

The magazine says Dimson is "the champion of the younger generation in Canada whose future promises much in the field of North American type graphic design."

"Dimson's design activities are extremely wide in scope, extending from book illustrations, posters, advertisements direct mail advertisements to packages, various kinds of displays and wall decorations."

Among his work selected for publication in the Japanese magazine was a photograph of the wall decoration Dimson did for the reception room of Art Associates Limited, the company for which he works. It is a three - dimensional mural executed in wet sand.

Dimson, the only Canadian graphic artist awarded a Canada Council grant in 1961, studied in Japan under the grant.

He is a graduate of the Ontario College of Art, where he was a scholarship winner and is a member of the Art Directors Club of Toronto and the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

His name and work are included in Who's Who in Graphic Art, a recent publication of reference to the world's leading graphic designers, typographers, illustrators and cartoonists.

See Stiffening In Resistance To Secret Army

General Strike Called By Algiers Europeans

ALGIERS (AP) — French Army and police resistance appeared today to be stiffening against fanatic European settlers who seem to block Algerian independence.

A strike by European workers demonstrating their resistance to Algerian independence shut down practically all activity in Algiers today.

Railroad service, plane traffic and city transportation halted. Water, gas and electric supplies were cut. Garages and filling stations refused to sell gasoline. Shops closed at noon. No time limit was set for their walkout.

Employees at the air terminal grounded traffic by demanding that passengers and cargo passes from the European Secret Army Organization, fighting to keep Algeria French.

Labor unions gave the strike today, in protest against the arrest Wednesday of the secretary-general of the Railway Union. Fernand Dary, a terrorist movement appeared to be part of the secret army campaign to paralyze economic affairs anywhere.

Business conditions were just about normal in Algiers this morning after a one-day general strike yesterday protesting the ceasefire between the French Army and the Algerian nationalists, which went into effect Monday.

Military patrols battled snipers shooting from darkened balconies in the Arab quarter last night after a day of open street fighting between Algerian nationalists and commandos of the Secret Army Organization in Oran.

For the most part, however, the 7-week army terrorist reasoned unchecked. Officials reported at least 30 persons killed — 27 of them Moslems — and 98 wounded in 30 terrorist attacks across Algeria Wednesday, the second full day of the cease-fire between French forces and the Algerian nationalists.

President de Gaulle's government rushed two companies of riot troops from France to Corsica, apparently to forestall any attempt by the Corsican army garrison to block the Mediterranean island from southern France and Algeria.

FIGHTING TROUPS

Confused fighting broke out in three or four sections of Algiers shortly before midnight. French soldiers, wearing flak-jacket, bullet-proof vests, sent tracers streak, like fireflies, in the night sky as they fired at unseen snipers.

Gen. Jean Olie, the secret army commandos, firing machine-gun bursts from a speeding car, shot down Moslems in Zeralda and Cheragas, west of Algiers, leaving seven Moslems dead and wounding 28.

In Oran, a hotbed of European resistance, the Secret Army Organizers Wednesday clashed openly with members of parliament. The settlers claimed a victory even though 15 of their number were wounded against only five policemen.

FARM PRICE PROGRAM SHOWS DROP IN LOSS

Hogs Main Reason For Sharp Reduction

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government expects to face only a third of the net operating loss recorded last year for supporting various farm produce prices.

The government's supplementary spending estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31 included $29,139,333 to pay the operating loss of the agricultural stabilization board. This compares with $69,504,548 in 1960-61.

Hogs are the main reason for the sharp reduction.

The board buys, holds and sells various commodities. Earlier in the main item today—to maintain price levels at a fixed rate. It also pays straight subsidies on some products such as milk for manufacturing.

ENDED SYSTEM

A year ago, the board still was saddled with the cost of a pork glut, which dissolved when the government ended its system of price support by direct purchase.

However, it still has some losses to show for pork.

At Dec. 31, board holdings of food included a record 174,000,000 pounds of butter worth more than $126,000,000, plus 34,063,000 pounds of pork worth $21,288,000.

Other items held at the end of the 1961 calendar year included some dry skimmed milk — although the board doesn't buy any now — cheddar cheese, lamb and raspberries.

Food disposal cost $29,243,000 last year. Next biggest item was $11,422,000 for the mile-for-manufacturing subsidy, and this will run about $12,500,000 this year as production continues to expand.

Butter storage costs, including conversion of some butter to butter oil which is more easily stored, totalled $2,462,000 last year and this will be higher this year because stocks have continued to rise. Lamb subsidy cost about $1,000,000. Other payments of $111 covered cattle, beefs, soybeans, sunflower seeds and wool.

RELEASE NAMES OF 3 SOLDIERS IN DOPE RING

All Fined $100, Given Reprimand

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness has released the names of three non-commissioned Canadian army officers involved in smuggling opium or gold in Indochina.

He told the Commons Wednesday that Sgt. J. M. Champagne, Sgt. W. R. Carbol and Cpl. A. J. Hill were given severe reprimands and fined $100 each. The men may also be given their compulsory releases from the army.

The defence department has refused to give the hometowns or any information about the three soldiers.

Mr. Harkness' statement follows a March 12 announcement by Prime Minister Diefenbaker that nine Canadians were engaged in smuggling gold or opium in Indochina in 1961 during their work with the International Truce Supervisory Commission.

OTHER CHARGES PEND

The defence minister told the Commons Wednesday that the charges are pending against other servicemen involved in the smuggling.

If the three soldiers convicted by court-martial remain in the army, the sentence of severe reprimand imposed on them would be a bar to their promotions they might be in line for or will be held up.

In other business Mines Minister Flynn said the government has no hope to announce a sale of uranium to the United States government.

Earlier in the day, secret army commandos, firing machine-gun bursts from a speeding car, shot down Moslems in Zeralda and Cheragas, west of Algiers, leaving seven Moslems dead and wounding 28.

In Oran, a hotbed of European resistance, the Secret Army Organizers Wednesday clashed openly with members of parliament. The settlers claimed a victory even though 15 of their number were wounded against only five policemen.

Daily Mirror Defends Duke's Right To Call Express 'Bloody Awful'

LONDON (Reuters) — The right wing Daily Express, described a former Canadian newspaper by the Duke of Edinburgh, defends itself as the pro-Labor Daily Mirror firmly supports the Queen's husband and in a rally against him.

The press vs. royalty battle was touched off when Conservative members of parliament Martin Lindsay put forth a motion in the House of Commons censuring the publisher of The Express, Canadian - born Lord Beaverbrook, for "scurrilous comments" on Britain's royalty.

When the touring duke heard of Lindsay's speech in Rio de Janeiro, he was reported to say, "Even the Daily Express, a Daily Express, was a "bloody awful newspaper" and that it was "full of lies" and "full of scandal."

The Express, in a front-page defence declares that Lindsay's motion was "a silly and ignorant attack on The Daily Express and its sister newspaper The Sunday Express) which bears no parallel."

The statement says that the alleged attack on the Royal Family in The Express and Sunday Express "contain no reflection on the Queen or any importance whatsoever, merely brief mention of Queen's activities."

However, it adds that "The Sunday Express has often criticized Prince Philip for waste in many journeys by yacht, airplane, train and helicopter, and, of course The Express stands by these criticisms."

The Express also says it is standing by its criticisms of Princess Margaret and her husband, formerly photographer Antony Armstrong - Jones, "who needlessly spending £85,000 of public money on their new home when their present one was quite adequate and splendidly situated."

The Mirror, in a front - page editorial, praises the duke's comments, about The Express saying that he was "completely within his bloody rights and has to produce "undifferentiated, uncritically entrusted with responsibilities limited to peaceful uses of outer space. . . . Nevertheless we express the hope that the disarmament negotiations now begun in Geneva will yield practical results which may objectively assist us in achieving international co-operation in our own work."

Italy's Vittorio Zoppi spoke in similar vein.

Barton—in his somewhat technical speech—spoke of the possibility of "dangerous competition" in outer space and the need for "orderly and peaceful" progress.

The UN General Assembly had already commended the principles that international law applies to outer space and celestial bodies, that these also are free exploration and use of all countries, and that they are not subject to national appropriation. But what "principles" are reminded!

Barton does outer space begin? This "very real problem" involved possible trespassing, Barton declared.

"Another important question is the type of regime to be applied to a celestial body on which a station has been established. . . ."

Canada Heartened by Red, U.S. Overtures on Space

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada said Wednesday it is "greatly heartened" by Soviet and United States overtures toward co - operation in outer space.

Addressing the 28 - country United Nations committee on the peaceful uses of outer space, Canadian representative W. I. Barton hailed a letter exchange between Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy.

Before Barton spoke, Russian delegate Platon Morozov read to the committee the text of a message Khrushchev to Kennedy proposing talks at UN headquarters in New York between Soviet and American diplomats.

"People everywhere in the world now are looking to these two great powers to set the pace for disarmament and to guide the research and development of outer space for the benefit of humanity," Barton said.

Barton made no direct reference to Khrushchev's statement that peaceful uses of outer space should depend to a degree on disarmament—but he alluded at a 17-nation conference in Geneva, but he declared:

"Our committee has been specifically entrusted with responsibilities limited to peaceful uses of outer space. . . . Nevertheless we express the hope that the disarmament negotiations now begun in Geneva will yield practical results which may objectively assist us in achieving international co-operation in our own work."

Italy's Vittorio Zoppi spoke in similar vein.

No Stand on State Medicine Taken Says Doctors College

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada has not taken an official stand on the state medicine issue.

This was made clear Wednesday when the college — which speaks for, sets standards and supervises professional discipline among the country's 8,200 medical specialists—made its presentation to the Hall royal commission on health services.

"The college has not developed an opinion on any form of government health plan," said Dr. Malcolm Brown of Kingston, Ont., dean.

He refused to discuss whether medical specialists are being disciplined under a government-run health program—a contention of the Canadian Medical Association which represents the country's general practitioners.

Nor would he comment on whether the college might frequently have to invoke its disciplinary powers to curb abuses of over-utilization under such a program.

At several points in the presentation, however, the college and its chief spokesman indicated they would be prepared to go along with a national health plan.

Replying to Saskatchewan's Chief Justice Emmett Hall, commission chairman, Dr. Brown said specialist standards should be set by the college, "no matter what the scheme."

One question posed at the hearing was whether the specialist medical schools place too much emphasis on the training of specialists, at the expense of general practitioners.

Chief Justice Hall said Manitoba general practitioners complained at commission hearings in Winnipeg "that the GP is the forgotten man in medical education." He asked for comment from the Royal College.

Dr. Lennox Bell of Winnipeg, the college's immediate past president in medicine, replied that the job of medical schools is to produce "undifferentiated, well-trained young men without bias in any direction."

Dr. Brown said that medical instructors provide good courses in both general practice and specialties.

Frondizi Firm Refuses to Let Military Resign

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina today looked for a way out of the country's political crisis, by negotiation after taking a firm stand against disgruntled military men.

The president was deep in efforts to form a new government which would unite all democratic parties in the face of electoral victories scored by leaders or supporters of exiled dictator Juan Peron.

Frondizi Wednesday night announced he had refused to accept the resignations of his three armed services chiefs.

They were Army Secretary Gen. Rosendo Fraga, Air Force Secretary Rear-Admiral Gaston Clement and Air Force Secretary Brig. Rojas Silveira—submitted their resignations under pressure from subordinate military men who wanted Frondizi to quit.

The president had already begun work on the formation of a new cabinet, following the collapse of his government Tuesday under the weight of the polling success run up by a group comprising Peronists and Communists.

MAY NOT PRESS

The general impression was that the military dissidents would not press the resignation of their chiefs and that the situation might remain in the negotiation stage for some time.

BILL REGARDING COUNTY COURT JUDGES PASSED

Strong Opposition Heard in House

TORONTO (CP) — Despite strong and varied opposition, a bill providing for alternatives to county court judges on arbitration boards passed committee stage in the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

Attorney-General Roberts said the bill will not arbitrarily remove judges from outside work such as sitting on labor arbitration boards and police commissions but will provide alternatives, making it unnecessary for judges to do this work.

But the perennial theme from opposition factions in the bill, many closely connected to its passage, that it does not go all the way for removing Ontario's 70 county court judges from any work not connected with the courts.

In addition, almost all delegations, including legal groups from the Canadian Bar Association, the Canadian Manufacturers Association, the Metropolitan Toronto Board of Trade and the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), appeared to the Legislature Municipal Committee considering federal legislation to transfer the duties of county court judges.

ASK WITHDRAW

Only manufacturers, and others, requested the bill be withdrawn and a comprehensive study undertaken by every province. They said, nothing should be passed unless it is the intention to become law.

How can the attorney-general give that undertaking for delay of years?" Mr. Sopha said. "Why borrow trouble in the course of a year he won't be attorney-general?"

MINE-MILL OPPOSES

In addition, Mr. Sopha said he was opposing the bill as representative of the 18,000-member Sudbury local of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) to say he felt the principle is "totally opposed" to the bill.

Specified in the bill is the appointment of judges, presently under the Ontario chief justice which makes a list of "up to" unproved impartial referees and arbitrators for use as arbitrators in labor disputes. The list is mostly handled by the judges.

The bill now goes back to the legislature for third and final reading, with an ammendment in the house before April 11, 1963.

HOUSE OVER BILL

A similar bill affecting the role of judges on municipal police commissions was held over while Mr. Roberts studies the "little more consideration.

Meanwhile, it was decided delegation from the Chief Constables Association of Ontario and the Police Association of Ontario, represented respectively

Hamilton Girl, Once Thought Dead, on Road to Recovery

HAMILTON (CP)—Last November Ardelyn Spelgit lay face down in a pool of blood from her wrecked sports car, and Stryker found, examined, and heard a policeman say:

"Dead. Well We'd better find her relatives."

She summoned her strength and opened her eyes. "I'm not dead!"

Ardelyn, a 19-year-old blonde from Dundas, recalled the scene Wednesday night as she lay in Stryker frame, a complicated apparatus which keeps her body rigid. She was in hospital with a broken back.

"It was mad when I heard them say that about me," she said. "You dogs, I thought, I'm not dead. When I screamed I thought that poor policeman was going to take off down the road."

The policeman had good reason for thinking what he did. Her face was ashen and there was no detectable heartbeat. Doctors later doubted she would live.

But today Audrelyn leaves the Stryker frame, her back held together by steel rods, and in bed for the first time since the accident.

"I've got a better back now than I had before the accident," she declared.

Doctors credit her determination for pulling through. They give her an even chance to walk again.

What also reached the hospital she was paralyzed from the neck down. One vertebra was severed, another damaged.

Three weeks ago doctors rebuilt her spine with two silver pins in an operation that was supposed to take six or seven hours but was completed in three. They figured she'd have to stay in the Stryker frame 10 or 12 weeks.

Her next stop is Nora Frances Henderson hospital for more extensive therapy.

Green Bristles As Arms Parley Nearly Stalls

Canada Leads Revolt Against Marking Time

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says the United States and Russia have encountered disagreements in negotiating a nuclear test ban treaty but that it is too early to abandon hope that some disarmament progress may yet be made at Geneva.

"It would be a mistake for us to feel that there the prospects are finished," Kennedy told a press conference Wednesday as he emphasized that the U.S. insists any treaty must include international on-site inspection of Soviet territory to make sure the Russians don't cheat on a ban.

More heartening, in Kennedy's view, was the response of Soviet Premier Khrushchev to the president's proposals for pooling of Soviet-American scientific efforts in space exploration.

Khrushchev agreed to have Russian officials discuss with the U.S. the possibility of joint efforts in launching satellites for intercontinental communications, weather reporting and other projects along with exploring joint efforts in space medicine and space-ship biology.

MUST BENEFIT MANKIND

Kennedy said the United States is committed to moving ahead "in a spirit of co-operation and not for the benefit of all mankind."

Three days after the press conference, the American, British and Soviet representatives on the 17-nation disarmament committee met in New York.

They promised U.S. interests would be protected in the negotiations — negotiations he said are slow they "as space continues to be more and more under the hazard of being used for military purposes."

Municipal Roads Expenditures Are Approved

Over one and three quarter million dollars is scheduled to be spent on municipal roads in the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward this year, according to the figures released by the municipal roads branch of the Ontario Department of Highways.

The amount includes roads and streets expenditures in the city of Belleville, towns, and villages in the two counties as well as the amounts to be spent in the townships, and by the roads department of the two counties.

Subsidy of from 30 to 80 per cent is paid on municipal roads expenditures by the Department of Highways.

Following are the roads and streets expenditure totals approved by the department for subsidy.

Hastings County $75,000; Hungerford 44,700, Huntingdon 25,000, Rawdon 40,000; Sidney 60,000, Thurlow 70,000, Tyendinaga 35,000; Bangor, Wicklow and McClure 18,500, Carlow 3,000, Dungannon 25,000, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe 12,000, Faraday 20,000; Herschel 25,000, Limerick 11,000, Madoc 27,000, Marmora and Lake 25,000, Mayo 18,000, Monteagle 26,000, Tudor and Cashel 15,000, Wollaston 18,000, Bancroft 26,000, Deloro 1,500, Madoc 15,000, Marmora 13,000, Frankford 7,000, Stirling 10,000, Tweed 9,000, Belleville 270,000, Deseronto 11,000, Tyendinaga Indian Reserve 16,000.

Says her father, Reginald Speight, vice-president of Canadian Structural Steel Company:

"It's the Irish in her. The Good Lord has spared her once and brought her through all this. He'll help her again. We have no doubt she will walk."

Aidrieu agrees.

"Sometimes I wonder why it happened to me. Then I think I've got my whole life ahead of me, I will walk through my wife."

She remembers lying in a darkened room, a month after she was born in hospital, unwilling to see anybody.

"Sister Eileen came in. She shouted at me. She opened the blinds and the window. She told me to get some lipstick and powder on, to get prettied up. I never felt sorry for myself after that."

More Meetings County Council Are Considered

The idea of more frequent but shorter meetings of county council has been presented to members of Lennox and Addington County Council with a view of the members deciding there should be five or even six meetings a year.

The council now meets four times a year — in January, March, June and November.

The matter has been placed before the council's education committee whose chairman Reeve R. W. Green of Bath, has given it careful study.

Strengthening county council meets four times a year in January, April, late August and in December. A. Dobbs, of years ago the frequency of meetings was changed from three to four times a year.

Laundry Owner Hits Intruder With Shotgun

KINGSTON (CP)—A man suffering head injuries and shotgun wounds is under arrest in hospital here after he tangled with the wife of a coin - operated laundry.

Archibald Cameron, 28, is charged with theft from a laundry owned by Barry Hawley.

Mr. Hawley told police he had stationed himself in a back room armed with a gun, the man son who had been helping him sell to money in the coin-operated machines.

"The last thing I wanted to do was use the shotgun," he said. "I only had it with me because I was afraid there might be a fight."

When a man entered his laundry and started tampering with a machine, Mr. Hawley smacked him over the back of his head with the shotgun butt. When the intruder ran, Hawley fired, hitting the man in the upper leg.

Cameron was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Conditions In Africa Talk At AOTS

On Monday evening, Holloway Street United A.O.T.S. Club held its regular dinner meeting with Instructor Bridge Street, Tabernacle and Stirling A.O.T.S. Clubs as guests. Total attendance at this meeting was 65, 21 members and guests.

President, Sam Orr, thanked the visiting clubs for attending.

Mr. Sachings and Mr. Bailey Alyea, and the devotional was conducted by Mr. Dobbs.

"We passed this motion on February 14," said the chairman, "to nullify our previous motion."

"Two or three members of council saw fit to change our motion regarding the Bailey tenders for the service," said Miss A.O.T.S. Club.

rubber stamp for council. Our previous motion stands, as far as I am concerned."

STRONG WORDS USED

"The way council handled the whole situation was a disgrace", said Mr. Topping, "and I consider it unprofessional to carrying on the service from the first of the year with-out a contract. Council was calling for tenders for the service so could have submitted a tender and asked for a $3,000 subsidy. He's a real good chap. The council-lors should be ashamed of themselves."

"Only certain members", interjected Miss Gothard, "the ones who only attend two council meetings. I wish these same gentlemen would attend some council meetings so that for themselves what the work is the frequency of the people, not the minority".

"Well, our Feb. 14 recommendation to pay the subsidy was based on Councillor Todd's motion, a subsidy was guaranteed", said Mr. Pane, "Our resolution still stands".

Another point of contention had to do with council's failure to acquire a Front Street property, presently the subject of a burnen habitation by the board for several months ago. Board members claimed that council could have bought the house for $6,000 and sold it for more. An option was taken on the property, but allowed to lapse. Now the owner is asking almost three times the original amount, it was claimed.

After a lengthy discussion, the board passed a motion, requesting council to proceed with expropriation of the property, (Set 30, on the east side of Front St., house numbers, 405-407-409) at once and to "reprimand those responsible for the delay in obtaining this property with the subsequent increase in asking price, for their negligence".

SEELEY MEETING

Board members will seek an early meeting with town engineer Eric Alderey to discuss the sewage situation on Dufferin Avenue.

Mr. Pane said that Ontario Water Resources Commission authorities had said that if adequate sewers were not provided within the near future, a ban-ing placed on the area must be asked to provide a private method of disposal.

Mr. Topping said that the canning factory was only part of the problem. He said that there was a need in the area for a sewage system to help eliminate the dumping of raw sewage into the bay. Part of this sewage comes from houses in the area and Mr. Topping said that if the "malconstic" development became a reality and the Westmount Park subdivision continued to grow, the sewage problem would become acute. He suggested that the town could explore the possibility of installing a large septic tank to serve the area at a stop-gap procedure until it could afford to install sewers which would hook up with the sewage plant at Dufferin Park.

Mr. Pane said that when council first talked about hooking up the Dufferin Ave. sewer with the treatment plant, the cost had been given as $40,000. "Now," said Mr. Pane, "with plans to reroute the sewer in order to serve a larger area, the cost was said to be $225,000." Mr. Pane will endeavor to find out something about the increase in cost for the installation from the board meets with the engineer.

"I fail to see the need for this 'malconstic' development," said Miss Gothard. "We have enough of these apartments empty in this town now. Trenton is a real good town."

Miss Gothard also said that she was against the town hiring a planning consultant to give their opinion on town development.

"We've got men in this town with brains," she avowed.

Mr. Pane said that he and Fire Chief Cecil Ellis had visited a private nursing home on Dundas Street West and that they had agreed that improvements must be made to assure the safety of the elderly patients in case of fire. Upstairs there is but one small one means of exit. As the operators are aware, it was thought that if the operator and owner of the home would obtain an arrangement with the patients would be protected in case of fire. This, he said, would be equally happy on the second floor. Mr. Pane will contact the fire and engineer about the change.

Board will notify the operator of a department store lunch bar that according to the by-law of the Public Health Act, he must provide washing facilities. Existing washrooms have recently been locked up. The department store manager claims that shoplifters could very well make use of the washrooms to conceal their purchases under their top clothing. However, according to the board, he will have to solve his problem in some other way, as the washrooms must remain open.

Dr. Dow said that according to the Ontario Health Department citizens were consuming water at the rate of 165 gallons per person.

Mr. Pane said that a great deal of this water was being flowing into the basement of a Leopold Street home as there is no sewage system in that area. He

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market stretched its losing string to four days during light morning trading today.

Industrials dropped almost two points on index, and all other sections followed suit, showing smaller losses.

Abitibi declined ¾, BC Telephone ½ and Algoma Steel ¼, while Bell Telephone, Massey-Ferguson, BA Oil and Aluminium slipped in an ⅛ to ¼ range.

Losses of ¼ went to Shawinigan, Salada Foods and Bank of Montreal, while Atlas Steel, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Canada Pipe Line all fell about ⅛.

Among the few gainers were Ogilvie Flour, Consumers Gas, Ogilvie, Noranda, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Canadian Breweries, Imperial Oil, Simpsons Ltd. and Canadian Industries.

Base metals saw International Nickel drop ¼ and Noranda ⅜, while Falconbridge rose ¼ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting climbed 12 cents to $3.15.

Industrial Acceptance, Canada Iron, Dominion Foundries and Steel and Steel of Canada were unchanged.

On the exchange index, industrials dropped 1.81 at 623.71, golds 06 at 97.95, base metals 19.16. Closing volume was 1,133,000 shares — largest since Dec. 26, 1961 — compared with 1,030,000 shares compared Tuesday's 2,946,000.

Base metals were weakened by International Nickel's drop as Falconbridge fell ¼, Noranda ¼ and Ventures ⅜. Among specialties, Lake Dufault was unchanged while Steel of Canada climbed 12 cents to $3.15.

Golds, which earlier in the day dipped to their lowest point on index since November, 1961, closed showing the only gain.

Among industrials, Dominion Foundries and Steel and Steel of Nova Scotia each dropped ⅜, Walker-Goderham and Consolidated Paper both fell ⅛, and Imperial Oil declined ¼.

Distillers Seagrams, in contrast, was active in the day, closing ahead 1⅛ at 46¼. Investment Syndicate climbed three points to 75 in light turnover. Abitibi, Royal Bank and Canadian Breweries are all moved up in a ¼ to ⅜ range.

On index, industrials dropped .20 at 624.96, base metals .10 at 19.22 and golds .06 at 98.00. Volume was 1,133,000 shares — largest since Dec. 26, 1961 — compared with Tuesday's 2,946,000.

Base metals were weakened by International Nickel's drop as Falconbridge fell ¼, Noranda ¼ and Ventures ⅜. Among specialties, Lake Dufault was unchanged while Steel of Canada climbed 12 cents to $3.15.

Industrials dropped almost two points on index, and all other sections followed suit, showing smaller losses.

Abitibi declined ¾, BC Telephone ½ and Algoma Steel ¼, while Bell Telephone, Massey-Ferguson, BA Oil and Aluminium slipped in an ⅛ to ¼ range.

Losses of ¼ went to Shawinigan, Salada Foods and Bank of Montreal, while Atlas Steel, Interprovincial Pipe Line and Canada Pipe Line all fell about ⅛.

Among the few gainers were Ogilvie Flour, Consumers Gas, Ogilvie, Noranda, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Canadian Breweries, Imperial Oil, Simpsons Ltd. and Canadian Industries.

Base metals saw International Nickel drop ¼ and Noranda ⅜, while Falconbridge rose ¼ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting climbed 12 cents to $3.15.

Industrial Acceptance, Canada Iron, Dominion Foundries and Steel and Steel of Canada were unchanged.

On the exchange index, industrials dropped 1.81 at 623.71, golds 06 at 97.95, base metals .30 at 19.16. Closing volume was 1,133,000 shares — largest since Dec. 26, 1961 — compared with 1,030,000 shares compared Tuesday's 2,946,000.

Base metals were weakened by International Nickel's drop as Falconbridge fell ¼, Noranda ¼ and Ventures ⅜. Among specialties, Lake Dufault was unchanged while Steel of Canada climbed 12 cents to $3.15.

FOREST PARK

Northern Ireland's first forest park, the 1,200-acre Tollymore Park at the foot of the Mountains of Mourne in County Down, was opened in 1955.

Three Motor Fatalities Among 3,492 Cases Handled By Police Dept. Last Year

A total of 3,492 cases, an increase of 911 over 1960, were brought before Magistrate's court by the Belleville Police Department during 1961, according to the annual report of Police Chief Walter Probert.

A big percentage of the cases before the court were traffic violations of which 1,243 were for speeding. The number of motor vehicle accidents investigated during the year was 667, an increase of 60 over the year previous.

There were three motor vehicle fatalities during the year (one of them a motorcycle fatality during a race meet) while 74 persons were injured, two more than in 1960. In most cases the injuries suffered were minor.

Of the total accidents investigated only 213 resulted in property damage amounting to over $100.

The number of occurrences reported during the year totalled 9,713, which of $2,218 43 was collected in fines and fees and turned over to the magistrate for distribution.

ONE OF KIDNAPPING

The most serious crime during the past year was that of kidnapping, resulting in murder and the later suicide of the party responsible.

On March 20th, 1960, Thomas McNevin, aged 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don McNevin of this city was kidnapped with a ransom demand of $25,000 being made to the parents.

Two days later the boy's body was found trussed to a tree in a Sidney township swamp. In the meantime the boy's cub-master Thomas Warren Williams committed suicide in the basement of his East Belleville home.

A coroner's jury on May 26th returned a verdict that the McNevin boy had died as result of a rope halter being placed around his neck by Warren Williams while in an unstable mental condition.

Theft was the most common crime with 48 such cases coming before the court. There were 27 cases of breaking, entering and theft and 10 of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

CASES OF ASSAULT

There were 46 cases of common assault; 10 of assault occasioning actual bodily harm, and 16 cases each of disturbing the peace, driving while impaired and of theft over $50. Six licence was suspended. There were 13 cases of driving while ability impaired and 17 cases of false pretences.

There were 660 breaches of city by-laws; seven cases of disorderly conduct, and six breaches of the Liquor Act.

After spending most most frequent traffic offence was failure to observe stop streets with 164 such offences. One hundred and sixteen motorists were charged with making unnecessary noise; 96 parked so as to interfere with traffic, and in even 100 were charged with careless driving.

There were 53 motorists charged with driving without a licence, 32 drove with defective brakes and 34 were charged for driving with defective lights.

And odd as it may seem, one motorist was hauled in for driving too slow.

Another common offence was that of intoxication with 30 being charged as being drunk. Having liquor in a public place accounted for another 16 charges, and 19 minors were charged with consuming liquor.

There were three charges against parents for leaving children unattended (but they left parents) were in a beverage room.

Chief Probert in his report noted that frequent night patrols by police officers lessened possibility of break-ins and thefts, and also reduced the chances of the opportunity of detecting fires.

During night patrols police found 526 insecure doors, unlocked doors or open windows.

The Investigation Branch, set up during 1959 under the supervision of Inspector J. B. McLauchlan has operated successfully in the department's interest as any extensive investigating is responsible for solving much of the city's crime.

An estimated amount of $19,172.41 in stolen property other than motor vehicles and bicycles was reported. The recovered officers, indicated that possibly 11 Canadians may have been implicated in the smuggling racket.

SUSPEND CIVILIANS

The two civilians involved have been suspended and will be dismissed. They signed statements, after questioning by the RCMP, that they smuggled opium and gold for a Chinese in Hamilton.

The Criminal Code does not apply to officers committed outside Canada and therefore the maximum penalty for the two civilians is dismissal from the public service.

Mr. Diefenbaker said earlier this week that legislation will be introduced to extend the Criminal Code so that it will apply to Canadian government employees abroad.

KILLED NEAR PICTON — Dayton E. Wark, 47, was killed in an auto accident near Sandhurst, on Highway 33 early Wednesday morning. Funeral service is being held in Picton Saturday afternoon.

Sales, Ad Club Annual Spiel Great Success

The Sales and Ad Club of this city is a live, active and progressive organization in this community and the annual banquet held by the Quinte Curling Club on Wednesday bears out that statement. It was well arranged, expertly handled and all left for home satisfied that a good time was had by all.

There was fun galore during the entire day, which was climaxed by an excellent buffet dinner served by McEvoy Caters and which included turkey, chicken, ham and all the trimmings including lots of every description.

Although excellent curling was seen the boys were not very interested about their work, they being there principally to have fun. Some were curling that had never thrown a stone before and they were convinced it was a pretty good game. The general chairman of the spiel, Fred Maund, was a man of action during the entire day. His committee of Bill Meagher, who ably conducted the draw, John Trafford, Jerry O'Connor, Art Marshall, Dick Ellis, Wally Partridge and Bill Riley certainly fulfilled their assigned duties and the comfort of the guests was the first consideration.

A couple of draws for cheer baskets kept the interest moving but Dick Beare nearly ruined the show. At the regular meeting on Tuesday night, this member was the winner of a good-sized bingo game, then held the winning ticket on a beautiful table cover and to cap it all he had his ticket drawn for one of the cheer baskets. Jack Murphy, the popular treasurer of the curling club, held the other ticket. A considerable sum was realized and will be used for the furtherance of club activities.

During the supper hour Bill Long of Trenton, an accomplished organist, delighted the gathering with a number of popular selections, while in the morning, Jack MacKay of the ANAF pipe band, piped the curlers onto the rink to start the spiel. In the "if" bridge, cribbage and the odd game of bowling some fine feed and the laughter, that wafted from the the room, intimated that they were having a good time.

PETERBOROUGH WINS

The games were run on schedule and a Peterborough rink of Harley Carr, Ben Neville, John Nameth, Don Rathwell as skip won the three-game high score while Lee Quinn, Dave Grey, Wally Rutherford with T. Hawkins as skip, from Kingston were the runners-up. A Belleville rink of Don Boyle, Richard Barrett, Fred Deacon with Mac White skip won the two-game high score with a Peterborough rink of Len Price, John Harvey, John Tanner with Jack Hewett as skip were the runners-up. The one-game high winner was a rink from Peterborough of Gordon Bryden, Neil Sneyd, H. Anderson with John Lee as skip. The consolation prize was won by a Belleville rink of Doug Storey, Art Marshall, Bill Spinelli with Bill Ellis as skip. A rink of Bill Wormuh, Don Lockhart, Neil Smith with Norman Lever as skip won the prize for the rink that came from the greatest distance to compete in the spiel. The trophy was presented by Don Barrett, president of the club who sincerely thanked the committee for the fine program for the day, the evident success and hoped that all would be back again next year.

To say that the spiel was a success would be putting it mildly.

The nine Canadians named by Mr. Diefenbaker as involved in the indochina smuggling comprised one army officer, one army non-commissioned officer, five army privates and two male clerks of the external affairs department.

On disarmament, strong support was expressed by Mexico for Canada's seven - point formula for "a ding - dong series of agreement" between Russo, American disarmament plans.

But despite support from most of the 17 nations for Canada's plan, it appeared that Russia was deliberately holding up any detailed discussions. The Soviets are thought to be insisting that the Russian draft treaty should be the only basis for discussion.

Social Worker at the Hospital

A letter by O..M. Root which appeared on this page on March 14 was deserving of the most careful reading and study by every person interested in the care and rehabilitation of the sick.

Mr. Root was protesting against the appointment by the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital of a director of social service, at a salary of $6,000. "This," he said, "would seem to be a very unnecessary and slightly ridiculous additional drain on the already burdened supplier of the public coffers."

The Hospital Board has not deemed it expedient to reply to Mr. Root.

The Ontario-Intelligencer's report of Feb. 24 of the appointment of a director of social services gave a clear intimation of the Board's view of the matter. "The duties of a social worker on the hospital staff," it said, "would be to maintain the continuity of patient care and to promote effective rehabilitation of patients so they may return as useful members of society, thus cutting down the incidence of re-admission and of long stays in the hospital."

Mr. Root, of course, read this, but he disputes its accuracy. Some, perhaps a large proportion, of the re-admissions must be because the patient was discharged too early, as he says. But in some cases the fact that the discharge was too early will not be because of the condition of the patient, but the condition of the home to which he went. The patient was ready to convalesce at home, providing he received the proper care there. He did not receive the proper care. Therefore he had to return to the hospital.

It is the writer's earnest belief that a social worker could determine whether a patient would receive the proper care at home.

Mr. Root believes that this is the proper function of the doctor. "If a medical man has no time for the necessary interviewing to gain a complete picture of the patient and the patient's needs, just exactly where does his interest lie?" he asks.

But Mr. Root, we suggest, is living in the past.

Let the reader judge from his own experience. How often has his doctor visited the reader in his home within the past five or even ten years? Compared with the home visits, if any, how often has the doctor been consulted in his office? At the hospital?

In most cases, we suggest, readers will report that home visits are infrequent, certainly not often enough to enable the doctor to judge whether a patient who is recovering from a serious illness or operation would receive proper care in his own home.

Lacking such knowledge, doctors, in some cases, send patients home too early — having regard not to the condition of the patient but the condition in his home. Having made one mistake, the doctor is over-cautious with other cases, keeping patients in hospital longer than is necessary, having in mind the conditions in their homes.

It is to remedy this situation, and in an endeavor to halt the rising length of stays in hospitals, that so many of our large hospitals have turned to social workers.

It may be argued, probably correctly, that doctors could do this work better. But have they the time? The doctors say they have not. Anybody who has had occasion, through his own sickness or the sickness of a member of his family, to be around a hospital much cannot fail to have noted the long hours which many doctors work. It is because doctors are so busy that they have substituted office calls and hospital treatment for house calls and home treatment — or, at least this is one of the reasons. As a result, it is reported that the time patients stay in hospital has doubled in ten years.

Of course, the average doctor's lack of knowledge regarding his patients' private lives is not the only reason for longer stays at hospitals. Without question, hospital insurance has been a major factor. But there are still many people, perhaps the majority, who detest being confined to a hospital, no matter how efficiently and kindly they are treated there. They will beg to go home at the earliest possible date. What the earliest possible date is depends on two factors, their own condition and conditions in their homes.

Whether we, and Mr. Root, like it or not, social workers in hospitals are almost certainly here to stay. Mr. Root thinks that people would prefer their needs to be analyzed "by your own doctor, assuming he is also a trusted friend and confident." But this is a relationship which, in this day of specialists, particularly in large cities, is becoming less intimate.

Ottawa Offbeat

'Oom Paul' Martin of Windsor Never Stops Campaigning

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Notes off the reportorial cuff . . . .

. . . . Both the Conservatives and the CCF-NDP might just as well forget those dreams of election glory of beating Paul Martin in Essex East.

This Liberal Old Pro, canny veteran of 27 years in the House of Commons, confidante of two Prime Ministers, and winner of seven successive Federal elections, currently is campaigning as if he were just now breaking into politics.

Paul Martin survived the Diefenbaker landslide in the 1958 election, which, in Ontario, was the political-trick-or-treat year.

He squeaked in by only 1,823, his thinnest winning margin since he first got his political feet wet back in the campaign of 1935 . . . and it could possibly it was this slash in his majority from a fat 11,000 in '57 and a fine and fancy 14,000 in the '53 election — led the Conservatives and Socialists to thinking that maybe his Essex East constituency was ripe for an easy plucking.

The great difficulty in trying to beat Paul Martin, as they'll discover when they get down to the hard door-knocking work of electioneering, is that he never stops campaigning.

PERPETUAL POLITICS

For to "Old Pro" Paul Martin, every day is election day.

And with him there's no eight-hour day, nor five-day week.

His political life is one intensely personal basis.

In his 27 years as a member both of the old Mackenzie King and the St. Laurent Cabinets, he may have been the "Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare" in Ottawa, but back home in Essex East he was plain "Oom Paul," everybody's friend.

He kept a file of every voter in his constituency.

Still does.

Cross-indexed, too, with dates of birthdays, wedding anniversaries and other important family occasions.

When these cards and dates show up in the revolving file, out go personal cards of greetings.

Out, too, go condolences on deaths, congratulations on graduations, promotions; and sometimes even just a warm, chatty "Belle-bore-ough" note.

No matter how busy the Parliamentary round in Ottawa, regardless of the pressure of time or family events, Paul Martin goes home every weekend.

Sometimes he leaves a few times a year — just as even a stopped clock is bound to be right twice a day.

Never say you know a man until you have sat down to a heavy loser in a poker game; and never say you know a woman until you have observed her behavior in a divorce proceedings.

Speaking of such proceedings, the legal profession hasn't changed much in the two centuries since Voltaire remark. ed wryly: "I know of no more ruined twice — once when I lost a lawsuit, and once when I won one."

An empty stomach is the worst philosopher in the world; but the stomach is acting as secretary of state for half the population of Australia today.

All of us are a little mad in our thinking; the philosopher is simply one who can give his lunacy a high polish.

I've never understood why the French have such a reputation here for being such a "romantic" people — when, in truth, the Americans are by far the romantic people the world has ever known, and the French the most practical and realistic.

People who think they're generous to a fault usually think that's their only fault.

Monday afternoon: Tape TV and radio talks . . . mug beautiful visit,' calling on all patients on two floors of Hotel Dieu . . . call on friends at Institute for the Blind . . . back to Ottawa by plane for night sitting of Commons.

To beat a man like Paul Martin in a constituency like Essex East after 27 years of living with his voters, you've got to get up impossibly early, work inhumanly hard and stay up unreasonably late, day in, week in and month out, until time begins being counted in decades.

In Essex East they will perhaps in Parliament, too . . . Paul Martin has something of a copyright on this kind of operation. Best "Oom Paul?" Not likely!

Half a Love Is Worse Than None at All

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

A certain kind of calculated tolerance is worse than a hatred; no one wants to be tolerated, and everyone wants to be loved.

Unlike half a loaf, half a love is not better than none; for the absence of the other half of an embitters the taste of the half we possess.

He who lives by the maxim "to thine own self be true" rarely stops to consider that his own self might need considerable changing before it is worth the faith he gives it.

One of the chief ingredients of maturity is the calm recognition that the best one can get out of life is a draw.

In his new book, The Substance of Man, Jean Rostand, the French biologist, makes an ironic and telling observation that knowledge about the atomic bomb must at first have made us see what research can do when it is called upon. The problems of cancer and tuberculosis, which are no longer to resolve if a country feels the necessity of resolving them." What stands in the way is that they are important for humanity as a whole." (quotation mine — S.J.H.)

Everyone says something profoundly clever — but only a few times a year — just as even a stopped clock is bound to be right twice a day.

Never say you know a man until you have sat down to a heavy loser in a poker game; and never say you know a woman until you have observed her behavior in a divorce proceedings.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MAKING THE IMPORTANT MOVE

Somebody always has to absorb the loss at a counterfeit coin. To pass it on to others is of course, dishonest. The honest person on whom it finally has been passed takes the loss himself and puts the spurious coin out of circulation.

There are three things we can do with a personal injury. We can nurse a grudge. We can take our spite out on other people. Or, we can absorb the loss. This latter method is, of course, the Christian way to handle such a situation.

In the whole of his teaching Jesus was constantly emphasizing the fact that somewhere in the circle of retaliation for evil, someone has to be big enough to absorb the loss without himself and let the matter end there. Some of us will be willing to give in. Pride, hatefulness, jealousy, envy generally prevent people from giving up. It is only when the situation gets around to a person who has a nature which does not give up in a selfish fashion that a courageous fashion that a matter is really settled.

Somebody somewhere along the line has to be willing to forgive. to forget, to put the matter behind him — or her — as if it had never happened. It is the unwillingness to do this which keeps families, communities, and, indeed, the world order disturbed and out of joint.

Somebody, somewhere has to make the move of bigness and love.

The Belleville police department took out an atmosphere of "bureau of missing persons" on Monday when three of five children who had been reported as missing were located by the authorities. Two small children, residing on Bettes Street, wandered away from home and were found quivering the sights in the vicinity of Holloway Street. The kiddies did not have any fear, homely, they were given a ride in the police car and returned to serious parents.

Presentation of a handsome speaker's desk was made to the Belleville Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon by Mr. Bert Houston, a member of the club. The desk was made at the Houston Lumber Company and was formally presented to the Club. President Bill Morrison conveyed the appreciation of the club for the gift to Rotarian Houston.

Letter To The Editor

Praises Performance By Young Musicians

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Wednesday evening I was privileged to attend the annual Band Concert, presented at Albert Public School by over one hundred of Belleville's youngest musicians.

I was amazed at the skillful and inspired performances of these young people. Their ages range from eight to fourteen years, and yet they played like a group of professional musicians. This must have necessitated a great deal of hard work and self-discipline, both at home and at school, during the past months.

Much recognition for this very successful evening's entertainment, and Mr. Cooper, should be commended highly, for organizing and inspiring this group of diverse group of students.

It wonder if the public realizes how much he is doing for culture, by encouraging these musically youngsters in their love of music.

With more cultural opportunities at the disposal of parents for the natural exuberance of youth, we would have fewer juvenile problems on our hands.

Congratulations to Mr. Cooper and the boys and girls of the Public School Band.

Patricia Downes.

IMPORTANT INTERESTS

A man who can appraise values in this world need have no fear for eventual success and happiness.

All about each one of us are values as represented in our fellow men, in the form of character in human beings, and in the way we place our faith and belief against that of the world.

It's getting the right perspective, and then of living and going down the trail with a firm and decided heart.

When you are able to thus take hold upon yourself and the situation, you should be able to separate the big from the little, the important from the unimportant and pass on toward the goal of your dearest desires.

The trouble with so many people seems to lie in their unwillingness to leave side-tracks and risk their fortunes on the straight road ahead. Sidetracks are only for the emergencies and for loading and unloading.

One of the most important of all interests is that of gathering friends. And when you have gathered them — just a few — you have found them to you forever with hoops of steel, as it were, cemented by the larger confidences of your own worth.

I have seen friends thrown overboard ruthlessly for just a few words that later was all wiped out.

I have seen business associations and romances and often broken by misunderstanding and refusal to compromise or to give and take in happy heart.

The sweeter virtues of gentleness, thoughtfulness, and unselfishness are but a few of the things that make life at all worth while. They combine to beautify all interests so that all efforts and all thoughts and all desires that are true and noble, are important, no matter how seemingly trivial.

To Your Good Health

One Must Change Habits To Reduce Smoking Problem

By JOSEPH O. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I smoked a pipe incessantly for 40 years — while reading, while listening to the radio or looking at television, while gardening, etc.

I love to smoke, but I decided to cut down on it, to only a m.o.k when I'm writing absolutely nothing.

As a result I've reduced my smoking fifty per cent. If you print this, please omit my real name and sign it — Old Timer.

Thank you, Old Timer. There are all sorts of ways to stop smoking, or to cut down, and everybody has to choose the one that works best for him or her.

All methods — and yours is a clear example — depend on changing our habits, changing our pattern of behavior in some way.

I recall a friend who told me that he discovered something important about smoking.

Engrossed in some project in his basement workshop, he looked up to see no less than four pipes, all lighted, along the edge of his bench.

He hadn't smoked any of them. He had lighted them because he really wanted to smoke, but because of the automatic habit of lighting up whenever his hands happened to be otherwise occupied.

Habit is powerful. There's no easy way of changing it. The difficulty isn't in giving up smoking because of the tobacco, but in changing an established habit.

Dear Dr. Molner: What does "hypertensive cardio-vascular disease" mean? — C.H.

It means that high blood pressure, over a period of time, has led to changes in the heart and blood vessels. "Cardio" means heart, and "vascular" means blood vessels. The condition might (or might not) include such things as an enlarged heart, irregular rhythm, and changes in some of the heart and-or arteries.

Dear Dr. Molner: You mentioned a blood problem named cryoglobulinemia, that is precipitated by cold. Could this be what is bothering me? My hands become increasingly sensitive to cold. This began with the tip of my right finger turning white. Now all my fingers turn white and my hands are a mottled bluish red. — C.H.

Cryoglobulinemia refers to an abnormal protein in the blood stream that misbehaves at low temperatures — low may be what we usually think of as cold weather, or in some cases an individual may even need a sweater at sundown on a summer day.

This is treated at the skillful and inspired performances of these young people. Their ages range from eight to fourteen years, and yet they played like a group of professional musicians. This must have necessitated a great deal of hard work and self-discipline, both at home and at school, during the past months.

Cryoglobulinemia refers to an abnormal protein in the blood stream that misbehaves at low temperatures — low may be what we usually think of as cold weather, or in some cases an individual may even need a sweater at sundown on a summer day.

This sort of condition may be more common than has been realized, but can easily be identified by suitable blood tests. However, disorders of the "collagen" tissues may produce similar symptoms, and this possibility deserves investigation, too.

Treatments vary: Drugs to dilate the blood vessels may help. Steroids (ACTH and derivatives) are used, and more recently a class of drugs called mercaptans have been found effective.

Dear Sir: I am 39 and have a splendid appetite but am losing weight, 10 or 15 pounds in the last three months. I drink three to five cups of coffee, smoke 10 to 12 cigarettes a day. Would you advise me to slow down (I put in a very busy day and evening), drink milk and smoke less? — F.C.

I guess I would. That weight loss is too rapid. I'd go to the doctor for a checkup on metabolism, etc., to see if the beginning of some physical ailment is causing this loss.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy of my leaflet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c-in coin to cover handling and postage.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Air travel has taught the more frequently travelling public to travel light. Even on the railways, it is uncommon to see the familiar loads of large suitcases and massive travelling bags with which passengers used to be burdened. The decline in heavy luggage may account for the shortage of redcaps and railway station porters that old-fashioned travellers run into at railway stations around the continent.

Nothing is more exhausting and irritating to an elderly traveller, loaded down with his old-fashioned bags, to be dumped from a Pullman car at the rear end of a quarter-mile long train, with not a redcap in sight, and a connection to be made in thirty minutes.

I imagine the airline and delight, therefore, on arriving in a large American city to have the sleeping car porter point out to me a nest of half a dozen light aluminum bags. I went, was some sort of a convention of them, and assembled drowsily in a remote corner of the station leaning on the handles of their empty trucks.

Detergents Said To Be Creating Water Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Household detergents and other products designed to make life easier are creating water pollution problems that will require concentrated research to solve, the legislature's standing committee on government commissions learned Wednesday.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission said in a brief to the committee that such products as detergents, antibiotics, weed-killers and pest-killers can leave behind wastes that adversely affect water.

The committee heard accusations by Ken Bryden (NDP—Toronto-Woodbine) that its hearings had become a "farce" because they had started so late in the current legislative session.

He said the government "is deliberately holding back on these important matters so that it will be impossible for the members to do an adequate job of review."

Denying there was any deliberate delay, committee chairman John Root (PC—Wellington-Dufferin) said he would try to give members a fair opportunity to present their views and ask questions.

20 Freedomites Given Sentences Up to 10 Years

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Twenty Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, many of whom had given "unique, dramatic and sad" testimony in sazize court, implicating their leaders for years of terrorism, received prison sentences Wednesday.

The sentences ranged from three to 10 years on charges of conspiracy to commit arson and attempted arson. The charges were laid following terrorist attacks on orthodox Doukhobor village last year.

Thirteen of the accused had labelled Stefan Sorokin, sect spiritual leader who lives in Uruguay, and members of the governing fraternal council as the men behind years of terrorism in the southeast British Columbia Kootenay district. It was the first such mass disclosure in the troubled history of the area.

Fred Jameff, already under sentence of 12 years and a $2,000 fine for placing explosives, was sentenced 10 years for conspiracy and five years for attempted arson, all to run concurrently. Jameff testified during the assize.

"Just as sure as the judge orders the recess of this court, it is sure that the fraternal council, all 32 members, are giving orders for the bombings, burnings and lies."

TO BUILD PRISON

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said here Wednesday night construction of a new medium security penal institution in this once-booming coal town is expected to begin this year. He said the project would cost more than $2,000,000. Staff of 125 would be employed providing an annual payroll of $500,000.

Policewomen's Fortunes Told Accurately

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Jean Fraser, 71, had her day in court Wednesday but she wasn't worried for a minute.

She was charged on three counts of telling fortunes and the complaining witnesses were all policewomen.

Const. Kay Burford said Mrs. Fraser told her she came from a family of three, would be married in April and her marriage data would have a two in it.

"All will be clean," said Crown Comas; Peter Rickaby. "How many are there in your family?"

"Three," replied Const. Burford.

"But are you contemplating marriage," Mr. Rickaby asked.

"Yes," said Const. Burford.

"Oh, no," said Mr. Rickaby. "When?"

"In April," replied the policewoman.

"But there's not a two in you, wedding day?" pleaded the prosecutor.

"Yes," replied Const. Burford. "I'm getting married on the 28th!"

SAME STORY

It was the same sort of thing with the second witness, Const. Dorothy Ellis.

Then Const. Shirley Read took the witness box. Mrs. Fraser had told her she came from a family of "five or six" and there had been a death in the family recently.

"All of this was true," Const. Read said.

Mr. Rickaby turned to Magistrate W. B. Rogers:

"I've never seen anything quite like this before."

Magistrate Rogers dismissed the charges.

As the proceeding turned to leave, he remarked to the magistrate:

"I always knew there would be a day like this."

Said Mrs. Fraser:

"I knew it would turn out all right, you worship. I could tell."

Representatives Clash With Civil Servants

OTTAWA (CP)—The dentistry profession's representative on the royal commission on health services clashed Wednesday with leaders of the 6,000-member Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada on the subject of fluoridation.

Dr. C. L. Strachan of London, Ont., an ardent exponent of water fluoridation as a tooth decay preventative, apparently was annoyed by the institute's noncommittal stand on the issue.

He demanded clarification of a statement in the institute's brief that the federal government should take the lead in urging all sides of the fluoridation issue before the public.

C. F. Gilhooly, first vice-president of the institute, said statements so far have all come from "interested parties." Dentists and doctors supported fluoridation, while it was opposed by such champions of civil rights."

Dr. Strachan thereupon demanded to know Mr. Gilhooly's interpretation of the "interests" of the dental and medical professions.

HEE AGREES

Mr. Gilhooly did not directly reply, but later he readily agreed with the commissioner that there was no self-interest involved.

The institute's spokesman said he personally agreed with the advocates of fluoridation, "but many people I know do not."

G. A. Asher, chairman of the committee which prepared the institute brief, said most of the material supporting fluoridation has appeared in scientific journals, "and not enough has been interpreted for the layman so he can understand the developments that are taking place."

Dr. Strachan said simply-written material on federal experiments conducted at Brantford, Stratford and Sarnia is available to anyone who wants to write for it.

It should be made more easily available to the public, retorted Mr. Asher.

The fault lies with the civil service for not circulating the material, snapped Dr. Strachan.

BILL REGARDING

by Chief Georgy Kerr and Detective Gordon Elwood, both of Brantford.

The police groups contended that replacement of imperial judges on municipal police commissions by councils could leave police open to "devious" political pressures.

"The many experiences of the past, where trials have been conducted by a council, manifest quite clearly the absolute need for qualified people to adjudicate" disciplinary problems that arise under the Police Act, their brief said.

The attorney-general, noting their argument that police commission work takes nowhere near the time of judges that arbitration work does, said perhaps the bill was not "as important in the light of future possibilities" as the arbitration bill.

The committee deferred study on it after rejecting an opposition motion that the bill be withdrawn entirely.

Jackie Given Thoroughbred

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistan's President Mohammed Ayub Khan took Jacqueline Kennedy to one of the most colorful horse shows in the world today and then gave her a Pakistani thoroughbred to take home.

Delighted at the gift, the American president's wife said she was worried about how the animal would get back to the United States. Officials told her the 10-year - old bay gelding, named Sadar—Of Chief—would travel by a U.S. military plane. for its performance.

Labor Suggests Mortgage Fund To End Gouging

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor today asked the provincial government to establish a mortgage fund to protect home buyers.

It also sought a crackdown on high - pressure salesmen who evade their responsibilities by persuading the buyer to assign the sales contract to a finance company.

The requests were made to the annual submission to the cabinet of the OFL, which represents more than 400,000 union members in Ontario.

The brief said possibly the worst offenders in the field of high interest rates are those who deal in second and third mortgages, demanding bonuses as high as $500 to $800 for renewals.

"We realise that control of interest rates and such matters lies within the jurisdiction of the federal government. However, we would suggest that the province could establish a mortgage fund to be made available to home purchasers at reasonable interest rates."

CITES CASE

Turning to sharp sales practices, the federation cited the case of a salesman who sold $1,000 worth of storm and screen doors and windows and had the purchaser sign a promissory note, assigning all the vendor company's financial interest over to a finance company. The salesman disappeared after installing one window and the finance company disclaimed any responsibility for performance.

V.O.N. Holds Discussion On Incorporation

The regular monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held at the Y.M.C.A., March 19th.

Miss D. Connor and Mr. F. Folwell contacted Miss Doris Smith, supervisor of nurses at the Belleville General Hospital, to ascertain if there were any nurses, who would be aspiring for a V.O.N. bursary. Miss Smith agreed to post this news in the hospital.

Mrs. R. Brain, convener of the social hour, stated it would be held on May 9th at Christ Church Parish Hall.

Correspondence regarding recommendation of the appointment of Mr. Harold Parker as the representative for District No. 3 on the Board of Management was read by Mrs. Brebeuf Kingston and Napanee, Napanee responded that their branch was in accordance with this appointment.

INCORPORATION DISCUSSED

The treasurer's report was given by Mr. K. J. MacDonald. Discussion followed regarding the incorporated of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses. It was suggested that Mr. K. J. MacDonald attend the next meeting to acquaint the members with the pros and cons of incorporation.

The head nurse, Miss D. Connor, gave her report for February. A total of 113 patients were under their care. The nurses made 440 home visits to mothers and babies, medical, surgical and chronically ill patients. A total of four half days was spent in Special Activities, consisting of 2 half days at Cannifton-Corbyville School and two half days at Douglas Atkin School.

St. Margaret's E. G. Plans Fair Bazaar

The first meeting of the month of St. Margaret's Evening Guild was held on March 5th, in the church hall. The president, Mrs. B. Bishop, opened with the Lord's Prayer. A short business meeting followed; reports were heard and Lenten cards distributed among the members.

The meeting was turned over to the vice-president, Mrs. F. Sorensen, the convener of the fall bazaar who outlined briefly the general theme of this annual event, and conveners for various booths appointed.

The meeting adjourned and the remainder of the evening was spent on various work projects.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Slappee and her group.

The second meeting of the month was held March 19 and took the form of a bowling party at the Plaza Bowling Lanes. Some members are new to the bowling game, and the final scores were varied and interesting! Although the usual crop of beginner and blows could be found in most scores, the evening was pronounced most enjoyable by one and all.

Prizes were awarded to: high, Mrs. F. Bradley; low, Mrs. D. Allan; hidden score, Mrs. B. Bishop.

The group returned to the church hall for a short business meeting, and plans were completed for the upcoming dessert bridge to be held early in May.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Shappee and her group.

Queen Victoria H-S Assoc. Holds Delightful 'Fun Fair'

Queen Victoria School was a hive of activity on Friday evening as swarms of boys and girls accompanied by their parents attended the annual St. Patrick's Fair.

Attractive posters, designed by the art pupils of Mr. Parks, directed the patrons to the various booths and checkrooms. Grab Bag, Fish Pond and Fortune-telling booths were added to the festive occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Welsh, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph, were busy selling tickets to be used as "currency" throughout the fair.

After checking one's coat with Mrs. Marion Salisbury and her helpers, many of the children headed immediately for the fishpond, where their catch was most rewarding. Mrs. Joan Douglas was the busy convener of this booth.

Another popular spot was the handicraft booth where little girls could buy beautiful doll clothes, figurines, bath salts, hand lotion and other items, while alley bags were most popular with the boys. The lustrious conveners were, Mrs. Laura Lott and Mrs. Myrna Dervold.

BOUNTEOUS HOMEBAKING

The homebaking booth was amply supplied with cookies, pies, tarts, breads, rolls cakes of all delights and descriptions. Mrs. Joan Coveney and Mrs. Gladys Palmer with their helpers were very busy selling these delectable goodies.

The "White Elephant" table held many interesting knick-knacks of all descriptions. Story of the young fry found an inexpensive item here to take home to mother or little brother or sister. Mrs. Rosetta Kuchta was in charge of this table and was assisted by other members of the association.

Mrs. Mary Young, assisted by Mrs. Sheila Wright, convened the apron booth, which was gaily decorated for St. Patrick's Day. A beautiful array of homemade aprons adorned this attractive booth.

Refreshments were available in the basement of the school.

Mrs. Joan Hornsby and Mrs. Doreen Bell convened the popcorn booth. Candies, apples and potato chips were also available here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Jones and Mrs. Mundry dished hot dogs by the dozens to a real carnival fashion.

Mr. Gerry Burley was near at hand to quench one's thirst with soft drinks, while Mr. Myles Morton supplied the dessert in the form of ice cream cones.

If one wished entertainment there were movies run by Mr. W. Roolin. While waiting for the next show one could play games supervised by Mr. Stark, assisted by Mrs. Tress Smith and Mr. R. Chaplin.

Throughout the evening, dancing was enjoyed in the auditorium. This was under the supervision of Mrs. Lillian Stenson.

While the juniors were dancing, the parents welcomed a refreshing cup of tea or coffee and a cookie in the nearby tea room. The individual tea tables were attractively decorated with tiny green shamrocks. Mrs. Margaret Eagle and Mrs. Doris Vardy were the tea room hostesses, assisted by a number of efficient waitresses.

The door prizes, donated by Mr. J. Welsh, were won by Mr. P. Squire, Mrs. B. Heisler and Mrs. B. Ruggles.

The success of this annual event was due to the co-operation of all the Home and School members who worked so harmoniously with the school staff, and, of course, to the conveners of the fair who were Mrs. Lois Sprakett and her co-conveners, Mrs. Clara Carmichael and Mrs. Shirley Warner.

Mother's Helper

YOUNGSTERS often need help in getting a party off to a good start. Try this: think up as many families' characters as there are guests. Print the characters' names on slips of paper. Pin one on each guest's back so he can't see it. He must find out who he is by asking questions of other guests. When he knows, he gets a small prize.

Hastings W. Aux. Visits Home, Plans Bazaar

On March 18, the Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings County Home met in the library with 30 members and a number of visitors present. The president, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, welcomed everyone and gave a quotation, "Now is the Time".

The business was conducted in the usual manner with various committee reports being given.

Mrs. Christopher, the visiting convener, reported there had been 39 visits made to the home since the previous meeting, and Mrs. Christopher reported the travelling tuckshop was being carried on most successfully as usual.

THANKS TENDERED

Mrs. Bolgard thanked the many members who had kindly given their assistance in the library room. She also mentioned that the World Day of Prayer had been observed in the house and a service conducted for the residents.

There was a discussion concerning the bazaar to be held at the home in October. Mrs. A. Daniels, 1st vice-president of the Auxiliary, was appointed convener for the bazaar, with Mrs. William Watson, as co-convener.

It was suggested a flash camera in the house, would undoubtedly bring much pleasure to the residents, especially at the birthday parties when all the folks are gathered in the room.

The ladies of the Auxiliary are hopeful someone may wish to contribute a camera, perhaps one which is no longer being used and as yet in good working order.

Mrs. Townson reported on the entertainment for the month of March 10th, at the "The Things Which Remain". Psalm 90 was read. Be watchful and strengthen the things which remain". The cross remains, and man's capacity to respond to it also remains, was the challenge to all. The offering was then received and dedicated.

Norway's Ambassador's Wife Well-Equipped for Her Role

By EDNA MAKEFF

AMBASSADOR'S WIFE — Mrs. Bredo Stabell, wife of Norway's ambassador to Canada, was born in Norfolk, W. Va., and met her husband while studying in London, England. Mother of three children, she had produced and directed several amateur theatre plays. (CP Photo).

OTTAWA (CP)—If an international background is useful to a diplomat's wife, Mrs. Bredo Stabell is well-equipped for her role.

The wife of Norway's ambassador here is a native of West Virginia who got her education in Massachusetts, met her husband while studying in London, learned to speak Norwegian in Norway and gave birth to a daughter there and two sons in the United States.

The former Viola Jordan of Norfolk, W.Va., she spoke no Norwegian when she met Bredo Stabell. During a cruise with her mother to North Cape, on the north coast of Norway, she got into a discussion about learning the language with the ship's doctor.

He said all she needed to know were two expressions—skol, which is a toast, and jeg elsker deg, which means I love you.

"The doctor said he got along with just those two phrases for 27 years," Mrs. Stabell recalls.

NORWEGIAN LESSONS

She decided to carry her education beyond that, however, getting at least reading knowledge of the language by combining herself to Norwegian books for 18 months.

She began to study the language carefully when the family returned to Oslo after the Second World War. One problem was that since most Norwegians learn English from Grade 6 they were more likely to use it in the presence of an English-speaking person.

Mrs. Stabell lived in Norway for a year after her marriage in 1936. Her husband was given leave of absence to study at New York's Columbia University and they move there. They were in the United States when war broke out and remained there during Norway's occupation.

A daughter, Thea, 22, was born in Norway and two sons, Peter, 20, and Charles were born in the United States. Thea is studying at the State Theatre School in Oslo and plans to continue her acting career after her marriage this summer to Eric Iversland, drama critic for Morgenbladet.

MOTHER WAS ACTRESS

Mrs. Stabell herself was an actress. She studied at the Moscow Art Theatre in New York and was taking voice and elocution in London when she met Mr. Stabell, then studying law.

In Oslo she directed and produced several plays put on by English-speaking residents.

She has also written the libretto for a ballet which she hopes will be performed at the Bergen Festival in Norway this spring.

The Stabells lived in Paris and Brussels and spent seven years in Norway before their present posting.

Since coming to Canada last September, Mrs. Stabell has noticed some differences between Canadians and Norwegians.

Norway serves as a bridge between the formal Swedes and the informal Danes in the same way that Canada serves as a bridge between the formal English and the informal Americans, she says.

"To be this link is a very honorable position."

Gamma Mu To Hold Pledges' Tea

Last Tuesday evening, the members of Gamma Mu chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, welcomed their prospective new pledges with a "song title" party. Everyone came "dressed as a title of a popular song, the costumes were excellent, particularly that of Mrs. Robin Jefferys, who came as "Red, Red Robin" and won first prize for the best outfit.

The prospective new pledges present were: Miss Elizabeth Black, Miss Elizabeth Klein, Mrs. Oriel Temple, Mrs. Muriel Nightingale and Mrs. Dorothy Whitmee.

Following a most enjoyable session of charades, Mrs. Margo Hall endeavored to teach every one the 'twist'.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess for the evening, Mrs. Dorothy Heaver and the social committee.

President Doreen Greer invited everyone to the preferential tea, honoring the pledges, next Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Allaneen Murray.

Geography's Point of View Discussed at UW Club

Now that the Bay of Quinte has emerged from its cover of snow, friends can visit more easily. The Picton University Women's Club took the chance offered by fine weather on March 19th to visit the Belleville and district University Women's Club.

The visitors arrived to hear the address of the evening given by Dr. Richard Irwin Ruggles, B.A., M.A., PhD., F.R.G.S., head of the Department of Geography at Queen's University. Date to the club's interest in education, Dr. Ruggles chose the topic, "Geography's Point of View," in academic education. Mrs. H. T. Floyd introduced the speaker explaining his note-worthy past and his present position.

Dr. Ruggles began his address with the statement that the Canadian geographer is "inundated". This is due partly to the fact that the Canadian educational system makes the student geographically ignorant. It fails to develop the natural geographical facility latent in every individual. Part of the blame rests on the lack of interest by Canadians generally. In Britain in the past five years 190 research programs have been started at universities whereas in ten years not one has been organized in Canada.

CAPE-BAY TYPE TAUGHT

The lack of appreciation for geography can also be traced to the adoption by public education of the "Cape and Bay" type of geography taught in Britain at the time. Such a limited study is not sufficient. The knowledge of places, products, capitals is a framework upon which one builds an understanding of the broader concepts. Also, the paucity of geographers has led to insufficient instruction for teachers themselves and to the curricula being developed by non-geographers.

Never since the first honors geographer graduated in 1943 has the subject has moved forward in Canada. There is now an optimistic viewpoint as more students show an interest in geography in Grade XIII. At present there are 22 departments or geography specialists in Canadian universities.

WHAT IS GEOGRAPHY

Some people often wonder "What is Geography?" Geography may be divided into three parts: physical; bio-geography and human. Each of these parts is subdivided into many fields for study; physical —meteorology, climology, hydrography, oceanography, geomorphy, geology, hydrology; bio-geography into, pedology, soils, land utilization, botany, zoology, and human geography into ethnology, economics, conservation, ecology, mathematics, statistics, planning, history, sociology, political economy, anthropology and demography. The broad scope of the subject is quite evident.

Geography is a "natural" concept (an instinct or facility). A baby learns by himself to adjust to time and space. Geography fits logically into the school system as it is an attempt to understand the earth. It is not only a description but also an attempt to analyze the complex nature of the environment of man. It is a study to set relationships (to know what places are like and why they are like they are). Geography itself is a point of view, a way of looking at things. It is an absolute must on this earth.

Many questions were asked of Dr. Ruggles, after which he was thanked by Mrs. Ruth Morden. While the Kingston and Belleville clubs mingled, lunch was served.

H-S Assoc. Plans 'Fun Fair', Views Slides

WELLINGTON — The regular monthly meeting of the Wellington Home and School Association was held last Monday evening in the school auditorium with the Rev. J. Evans at the piano.

1962 OFFICERS

The new slate of officers for 1962-63 was read: president — Mrs. J. Calleri; 1st vice-president — Mrs. E. Robinson; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. J. J. Rogers; recording secretary — Mrs. Otto Bowerman; corresponding secretary — Mrs. Gerald Vandusen; treasurer — Mrs. W. Thompson; assistant treasurer — Mrs. B. Burley; executive — Mr. and Mrs. H. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. R. Parks and Mr. and Mrs. J. Moxam, with more to be added.

The guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Harold Canteton, park supervisor of Tweed district, was introduced by Mr. Rev. Gibson. Mr. Canteton explained there are nine branches headed by chiefs, seven regions and 22 forest districts in Ontario, with a district forester in charge of each. Wellington is in the Tweed district and Mr. J. M. Taylor is the district forester. There are over five million acres in Ontario and over 1,175,000 acres in the fire district. There is a total of 93 parks in Ontario under various stages of development. In 1954 there were six parks, compared to 77 parks in 1961.

In 1961 there were over 6,213,370 visitors at the parks. These parks have been set up so many people, freer today than before, can take advantage of the public water ways and enjoy the natural surroundings.

Mr. Canteton concluded by showing colored slides of the various parks in the Tweed district and also the destruction fire can cause.

Mr. Gibson thanked Mr. Canteton for his fine and interesting talk.

Tea was served in the home economics room.

An open meeting was planned for Monday night at 8 p.m. to finalize plans for the "Fun Fair," to be held in the school, March 30th, 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. everyone please attend.

Career for Girls

Would You Like to Be a Waitress?

Miss Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, has had special training in psychology and vocational guidance. In preparing this series, "Careers for Girls," Miss Clark has interviewed career women in the fields she is covering, as well as employers and guidance counsellors. Doris Clark's human relations column, "Succ ssful Living" runs regularly in The Ontario Intelligencer.

by Doris C. Clark, M.S.W.

(Tenth In A Series for Teen-Agers.)

There were hot rolls in a small basket. It was all there.

As she set Mr. Johnson's dinner before him, her motions were deft, quiet, experienced. She made sure he had the silver he needed; would have been mortified if he had had to ask her for a fork or spoon.

Minnie had been in her present job for eight years and knew most of her restaurant's clientele by name. When a new face appeared she took special care to make the stranger feel at home. In many little ways her friendly personality warmed those she served.

Minnie has been in the waitress business since she was fourteen years old and she loves it. She thinks she was "born to be a waitress." She says she loves to see people enjoy their meals. Her efficiency is fantastic — for names, faces and favorite dishes, so she is able to suggest to familiar customers that their favorite roast or pie is on the menu today.

Now as head waitress, she supervises all dining-room staff. She keeps here eye on the food, too. The chef consults her. She helps him with the buying, does office work and keeps accounts in connection with banquets, about which she handles all special arrangements.

SUCCESSFUL CAREER

Soft-voiced, black-eyed, smiling and alert, Minnie is loved by the help and the customers alike and is invaluable only to the owner of the restaurant. At thirty-two, she has made good at her chosen career.

Has it occurred to you that serving tables can be fun? Just as in many another occupation, knowing how makes all the difference. Does the salad go to the right or left of the meat fork? How should the napkin be folded? From which side do you serve the main course? The beverage? From which side remove the dishes?

These and many other things a waitress learns. She learns to carry her tray on her upturned palm at shoulder height, so that her body is under the weight, balancing and supporting it. She learns what accompanies go with certain foods. Just as a saleslady in a department store comes to know her merchandise, a good waitress knows diets and insists that her customers be served appetizing dinners. And, in the same way as a good saleslady will cheerfully exchange unsatisfactory merchandise, a waitress is prepared to replace an unsatisfactory meal with one that pleases.

A waitress is on her feet almost constantly and carrying heavy trays, so she learns to wear comfortable, low - heeled shoes. She is particular about personal cleanliness. A daily bath, a weekly shampoo, well-kept hands and crisp, clean uniforms are expected of anyone who is handling food.

Payment is in line with that in other service or selling jobs in the retail field. When a waitress works overtime, she is paid extra and hers is one field where it is an accepted practice for those who appreciate extra service to express it by leaving a tip for her. During the summer, it is standard practice that she shall have a two-week vacation with pay.

Since everyone must eat, times of depression affect restaurants less than other retail businesses, so the girl who chooses waitress work as a career can usually depend on having a job. The restaurant industry ranks high in terms of business—a volume which is increasing as more people eat away from home.

So, if the idea of helping people to relish their meals interests you, and if, for any number of reasons, you do not intend to go to university, give some thought to the career of waitress. A summer's job in a resort restaurant may convince you that you are suited to such a vocation.

So, if the idea of helping people to relish their meals interests you, and if, for any one or a number of reasons, you do not intend to go on to university, give some thought to the career of waitress. A summer's job in a resort restaurant may convince you that you are suited to such a vocation.

Many an important hotel executive, many a charming hostess, has begun her rise to the top as a waitress, the kind of girl who believed, like Minnie, that she was born to the job.

(To learn more about waitress work and whether you are suited to it, ask the teacher or guidance counsellor in your own high school.

St. Columba Alpha Group Views Film

Soft music by Mrs. J. Bakker preceded the regular March meeting of the Alpha Group of St. Columba Presbyterian Women. The vice-chairman, Mrs. W. Partridge, presided and welcomed all present.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. D. Taylor. This was followed by a missionary program presented by Mrs. J. Burke and Mrs. D. Taylor. A film strip of the current missionary topic, "British Guiana," was shown and discussed.

During the business period several projects were discussed, among them the catering of a dinner in May. Plans were also made to hold a rummage sale later this month. The members were reminded of the World Day of Prayer which was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with Mrs. R. G. McKay as guest speaker. The meeting of the St. Columba Presbyterian Women is to be held March 26th.

A demonstration on bookbinding was given by Mrs. D. Taylor and Mrs. J. Burke. The members spent some time repairing church hymn books.

Following this, a social half-hour was enjoyed with Mrs. G. Devolin as hostess.

Heartily Recommended Pizza

by Mary Moore

My friend Virginia, from school days, is an expert cook and has sent me, from South Bend, Indiana, a recipe for Pizza which she says "I can add do heartily recommend. The pizzas can be baked and then frozen to be warmed up as needed. I took out 4 of them to a friend Saturday - she was one of the many around here who have fallen and had fractures this winter so thought it would help her out several days."

With that kind of encouragement I made it too and am all set to pass it on.

I take a dim view of pizza as a main dish for dinner so I planned a meal with good things fore and aft: lobster cocktail for a starter, corn on the cob with the Pizza bubbling straight from the oven and fresh strawberries (what a treat in Ice March).

The pizza got full marks from all present.

I made the following recipe as is but there are so many freezer owners in our audience I have put double amounts (in brackets) for those who have freezers and would like to put 2 or 3 pizza pies away in it or take the extras to fractured friends!

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Garlic Spareribs (see Wednesday); Buttered Rice; Parsley Carrots; Tossed Greens (see Tuesday); Banana Sundae; Tea.

SUNDAY

Thick Swiss Steak with Tomato and Basil Sauce; Fluffy Mashed Potatoes or Buttered Noodles; Shredded Beets; Green Salad with Seed Dressing (see Tuesday); Apricot Whip with Nutmeg Custard Sauce; Coffee.

VIRGINIA'S PIZZA (two 9" pies)

(Bracketed figures are for 4 pies)

Dough: 1 (2) cup warm water; ¼ (½) cup sugar; 1 (2) tablespoon shortening or butter; ½ (1) tablespoon salt; ½ (1) cup lukewarm water; 1 (2) sugar; 1 (2) package granular yeast; 1 (2) egg; 4 (8) cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Topping: ¼ (½) lb. Romano cheese; 1 (2) lb. half-and-half mixed ground chuck beef and shoulder pork; ¼ (½) cup finely minced onion (Or 3 (4) tablespoons dried onion flakes); ½ (1) 8-oz. can tomato sauce; ½ (1) 6-oz. can tomato paste; 1 (1) teaspoon salt; ¼ (½) teaspoon oregano; 1/16 (⅛) teaspoon garlic salt; 1/16 (⅛) teaspoon pepper; ¼ (½) lb. sliced raw mushrooms; grated Parmesan cheese (see below).

To make the Dough in a large bowl mix together the first amount of warm water, sugar, shortening and salt and let stand until shortening melts. Soak yeast in lukewarm water with second amount of sugar for 10 minutes. Drop egg into first mixture, beat, then add yeast mixture. Add flour in 2 amounts - beating well each time. Round the top of the dough, grease with a little melted butter or oil, cover tightly and store covered, in refrigerator 2 hours or overnight or longer. Knead dough 100 turns on lightly floured board. Divide in 2 equal parts. Roll out to fit 2 well-buttered 9" pie plates. (Persist in rolling to fit pans. The dough resists rolling but can be made to fit and cling to pie plates if they are well-buttered. Let dough rise at room temperature (Or retard rising, if you care to, by storing in refrigerator) while you prepare Topping: Shred Romano cheese. Panfry meat in dry, fairly hot pan, stirring with fork all the time to break it up, until it is all seared. Add salt, onion, oregano, garlic salt, pepper, tomato sauce and tomato paste. Heat through and remove from heat. Sprinkle shredded Romano cheese over dough in both pie plates evenly, cover each with an equal amount of meat mixture. Cover each evenly with sliced mushrooms. Then sprinkle very generously with grated Parmesan cheese - about ¾ cup for 2 pies.

By this time dough should be well puffed around edges and light to touch. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes; then reduce heat to 350 deg. for about 20 or 25 minutes until well risen and golden and bubbling. Set out to cool. Or cool and wrap and chill and freeze. (To reheat frozen Pizzas, thaw and reheat ½ an hour at 325 deg. Fahr.)

Secretary Sometimes Forgets English Words for Things

MONTREAL (CP)—Go after a frantic three-month search of Montreal Mexican Trade Commissioner Alberto C. Fernandez finally found his girl.

She reads, writes, speaks and takes dictation in Spanish, French and English, and her name, oddly enough, is Kathleen Williamson.

How did a girl with such a facile - sounding name become so proficient in French and Spanish?

Simple, really. Born in Cuba of Scottish parents, Kathleen learned Spanish from playmates and French in school.

She later came to Montreal to attend McGill University and graduated in 1957 with a BA. She remained in the city, took up shorthand, and was working in the export department of a textile firm when Mr. Fernandez heard about her from friends.

As Mexico's first trade commissioner to Canada, Mr. Fernandez was desperately in need of a secretary who was equally as fluent in the language of his own country as in the two official languages of this one.

He had spent three months calling various employment agencies and advertising on his own by the time he heard about Miss Williamson.

Wooed and won, she now has only one problem: "Sometimes I find I've forgotten the English word for some things."

RARE SECRETARY — It took Mexico's trade commissioner in Montreal three months to find Kathleen Williamson, a secretary who could speak and take dictation in Spanish, French and English. Employment agencies could not provide the all-round secretary and the trade commissioner finally heard of Miss Williamson through friends. (CP Photo).

WON'T LAY CHARGES

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning told the Alberta legislature Wednesday there was little chance criminal charges would be laid in connection with a pipeline explosion at Edson, Alta., in January which resulted in the death of eight workers, and injury to four others. He added that charges will be made in pipeline construction safety regulations as a result of the disaster, worst industrial accident of its kind in Canada.

Doesn't Believe Baby Is His

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:—I am 22 years old and attending college. I have been going with a 19-year-old girl who claims she is carrying my baby, but I do not believe it is mine.

She expects me to marry her or support the child. Not only do I disbelieve the fact that it is my child, but I do not love her.

What do I do?—BOB

DEAR BOB:—No one will railroad you into anything. If you are certain this is not your child, you must have some valid reason. You will have to search your conscience.

A marriage in such a case would be very wrong, even if the child were yours. But your girl needs help too. She should seek the help of a social worker, who will talk it out with both of you and indicate a solution.

The agency to contact is: The Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville

TO MRS. J. L.—You have every right to get in touch with your father if you can find him. If you know his name, age and race, and also that he is in Montreal, I would suggest that you write to the City Clerk at the City Hall, Montreal, Quebec. Give him as much identifying details as you can.

Of course, if you can't trace him, you will just have to wait until he comes looking for you.

* * *

(Talk it over with Doris. As a trained social worker, she has studied human problems, and can suggest an answer to yours.)

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

UNIONDALE W.I.

STH SIDNEY — The March meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute (Hastings West) was held at the home of Mrs. George Burkitt and Mrs. Robert Burkitt, 4th concession of Sidney with 24 members and three visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Ernest Anderson will be the president. From this group to attend the conference at Guelph. Mrs. Ross Dafoe again will be historical research member of the Historical Society of Belleville which is under the leadership of G. Boyce.

The expenses of the club girls were acting at this meeting and thank-you notes were received from Harold Frost, Kenneth Faul and Mrs. J. Jancis.

Mrs. Kenneth Faul was in charge of the March meeting based on current events. The report of the Farm Forum meeting at River Valley was given in full detail by Mrs. Gerald Herrington. John Glenn's trip around the world by Mrs. Bert Bush; report of the 85th anniversary in Toronto of the founding of the W.I. Adelaide Hoodless; the trip by Mrs. A. Martyn; the luncheon by Mrs. Edison Sine, and the speakers by Mrs. Morley Sine.

A fine program then followed which included sing-song and musical numbers; piano solo by Mrs. Cameron Sine; duet by Linda Mallory and Bernice Grills, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. Burkitt, and a reading by Mrs. Maurice Dafoe, "The Spy Sway".

Mrs. Milton Grills conducted a contest and a demonstration was given of a silver tray, a pair of pillow cases and table cover from Scotland.

With the election of officers next month, the directors were again appointed as the nominating committee and, written suggestions for next year's program will be appreciated.

Knox Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Marks 25th Anniversary

On March 7th, Knox Presbyterian Ladies' Aid of Fuller observed its 25th anniversary, with the president, Mrs. Harry Redcliffe, presiding over the meeting and service. She extended a warm welcome to the various guests who came to commemorate this event from Trenton, Belleville St. Andrew's, Stirling, Madoc, Tweed, Roslin, Foxboro, West Huntingdon Presbyterian and United, Ivanhoe United, Moira United, Thomasburg Anglican, Standard and Fuller United.

Mrs. Howard Wannamaker presided at the piano. There were two lovely plants at the altar, presented in memory of the late Mrs. Willard McTaggart, by the Ladies' Aid, and in memory of Mrs. John Douglas, by her daughters, Mrs. David Thompson and Mrs. Burton Calvert.

The roll call for the churches represented was given by Mrs. Charles Irvine.

LADIES' AID FORMED

The minutes of the first meeting of the Ladies' Aid, on March 3rd, 1937, were read by Mrs. Irvine, who also gave its history, noting that at the time of church union, in order that the missionary work should not be cut, a group of 13 women from the Fuller congregation met at the home of Mrs. Walter Thompson on March 3rd, 1937, and at the suggestion of Mrs. Jennie McTaggart, it was decided to form a Ladies' Aid, although the Women's Missionary motto, "The World for Christ," should still be recognized.

The meetings were held on the first Wednesday of each month. The officers appointed included Mrs. (Jennie) Willard McTaggart, president; Mrs. Harry Redcliffe, vice-president; Mrs. Walter Thompson, secretary; Mrs. Chester Adams, treasurer; other members; Mrs. J. W. McDonald, Mrs. T. Rollins, Mrs. C. Morland, Mrs. A. Morgan, Mrs. J. Douglas, Mrs. L. Adams, Mrs. C. Douglas, Mrs. D. Thompson and Miss Helen McTaggart.

SMALL GROUP

Fuller group has always been small with 13 members the first year and for 1961. The same ladies who are responsible for the Ladies' Aid are also members of all other organizations at Knox Presbyterian Church, and so all interests are grafted together.

Among the many interests of these dedicated are: the support of the missionaries at home and abroad; one allocation for the new Dewart College has been met; support of a summer school for the children; starting a thriving Sunday School — evangelistic work has always found an open door at Fuller — namely, the Salvation Army; the Faith Mission, with Miss White, the Huntingdon Sunday School Association, and many others. At present they are supporting the work of Miss Campbell of the Bible Club movement, which gives religious instructions in the school each week.

LADIES' AID WORK

The Ladies' Aid also quilted eight quilts in one year; catering at Scott's Sales Barns; knitting for World War II; potluck dinners each month held during the winter at the homes and at the dining of the church during the summer. Realizing the God must always have a part in these activities, the dinner was always followed by devotions and fellowship.

The present has been in office for 21 years, with never more than 12 members. During the first year, the Aid took in $30.81 to help in the up-keep of the church. In 1961, $797.18 were realized. Knox Presbyterian Church has been the centre of this community's activities. May it always continue to hold first place! For pies, icecream the Ladies Aid give God the glory, and although one realizes it is necessary to have funds to keep up a place of worship, its members are determined that, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it".

MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial service was conducted by Mrs. James Wilson in tribute to Mrs. Willard McTaggart and Mrs. John Douglas; "precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints".

Two solos were rendered by Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, of West Huntingdon, "The Breath of God", and "I Am Sure I Will Not Lose the Way".

The offering was presented by Mrs. David Thompson and Mrs. James Wilson and dedicated by the Reverend R. D. MacLean, of Belleville.

Mrs. R. D. MacLean of Belleville, the guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Kazle Wannamaker, and chose for her subject, "Influence", saying, in part: "Christianity" must be catching like the 'flu bugs so that others see Christ in us, and our influence in the lives of others and want Him to take control of our lives, saying in conclusion, "we must make our witness attractive as we are often the only Bible the world reads".

Mrs. David Thompson and Mrs. James Wilson were in charge of the register.

Following the program, the guests were invited to the dining hall where the tables were decorated with blue and white streamers, pink roses and fern. Mrs. Harry Redcliffe placed the knife in the prettily decorated birthday cake.

CANDLELIGHT SERVICE

A candle lighting ceremony was conducted by the Reverend R. A. Sinclair, B.A., of Madoc, with Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. H. Redcliffe and Mrs. B. Redcliffe lighting the candles to represent the past present and future.

Mr. David Thompson donated 25 assorted coffee mugs, one for each year of the Ladies' Aid, for which the president voiced her appreciation, on behalf of the Aid.

Mrs. R. D. MacLean thanked all the churches and organizations for their representation there.

Greetings were brought from the Presbytery by Mr. Sinclair of Madoc.

Tweed Outfit Three-Piece

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Silk and wool tweed, in a white and gray mixture, makes a pleasing three-piece costume that should look well either north or south.

The jacket reaches to just below the waist and fringe-edged tie ends are cut in one with the jacket.

Under the jacket is worn an overblouse of white silk surah. Gathers at the wrist band soften the straight skirt.

100 Members Attend A.O.T.S Ladies' Night

STIRLING — St. Paul's Stirling A.O.T.S. (As One That Serves) Club held their ladies' night in Carmel Jubilee Hall with over 100 members, their wives and guests in attendance.

Following a delicious banquet served by Carmel U.C.W., Mr. Jack Bush, president took charge. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown conducted the assembly singing. George Heasman paid tribute to the ladies and Mrs. Elwood Bateman responded.

Each person stood and introduced themselves and Mrs. Bruce Glendinning contributed a vocal selection.

Dr. George Fahey of Peterborough was the guest speaker. He is public relations officer for a cereal company in the city and gave a most worthwhile message, centred around the theme "Love", and also the training of the children in the home to love their neighbors and their country is most essential.

He was introduced by Dr. Bruce Murray and the Rev. P. J. Hoenmerich, pastor of the church expressed thanks to the speaker.

Grant Potter voiced thanks to the Carmel ladies for the delicious meal.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

A new study of worry habits among Americans reveals as factually true the paradox relitious teachers have known for a long time.

People with anxieties have a greater capacity for happiness than those who worry less.

This is one reason why the "peace of mind" theories rarely lead to personal happiness. Animals are docile and therefore capable of undisturbed contentment.

But men need to be involved in life and the more we participate in the complicated workings of our society, the more likely we are to be enmeshed in its toils.

There is little effective escape from life's continuing circle: the more direct involvement, the more chance for personal fulfillment; yet, the more participation, the more chance for heartbreak.

We cannot truly know the joys of life unless we are sensitive, introspective, critical of values.

Yet, these personal qualities are also at the root of human frustration and disappointment.

Higher education makes a man more capable of an awareness of the satisfactions life has to offer. But the educated will aim for higher goals and thus expose themselves to greater frustrations and disappointments.

Vigorous-minded, spirited folk are less apathetic about life, do not passively resign themselves to the status-quo. They are busy analyzing and questioning, ruggedly pursuing the problems of society.

Their happiness does not come from arrival at a destination; it is derived from the knowledge that they are travelling.

But, they too, must know happiness — this is the price they pay for enthusiasm in tackling life.

The emotionally mature man does not long for that vain "peace of mind" which can be acquired only at the cost of not having a mind. He does not look for trouble nor immolate himself pursuing unnecessary worries, but he understands that anxiety is the twin of happiness. You can't have one without the other.

The beginning of wisdom, Scripture teaches, is the fear of the Lord. The end of wisdom, it might be added, is the fear of fear. For only if we are capable of fear, are we sensitive enough to become fully human.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Judy W. — Just because my children play in her house, I don't have to let hers play in mine.

Mary C. — Judy chases her children out so her house can stay nice and clean. How about mine?

Judy W. — My neighbor, Mrs. L, is driving me nuts complaining all the time about my children playing in her house. She invites them in. Her children love having them over. But she insists that it's about time I invited her children to play in my house.

I'm not going to forbid mine from going there, but neither will I let that force me to let the C. kids in here. When I send my three out to play, it can be indoors or out as long as I know where they are. Mary C. isn't doing me any favors. It so happens my children are in demand as playmates. They're friendly and well behaved. They don't make a mess of a place like the C's.

I happen to be a careful housekeeper. I like things neat, clean and quiet. Those other kids are messy, unruly and wild. I had them over once and that was enough. It took me an hour to clean up after them.

• • •

Mary C. — Judy burns me up. She thinks she's the only one in the neighborhood who cares how her house looks. I care all right, but I also care about my children's happiness and about what's going on in the world outside my home. She'd rather spend hours making her closets immaculate than one hour putting a smile on her children's faces. You never saw such scared, repressed kids. When they get to my house they act relieved, as though they're out of jail for a while. But things have gone too far. Judy's kids spend every day in my house. It would be a relief if she'd reciprocate once in a while and invite mine to play in here. The room isn't as bad as she says. I get them all to help me straighten up the place. Besides the extra work, however, there's the responsibility. She should share it.

The Council — How sad that Judy's children are growing up with a concept of home as a place to tiptoe around in, and other people's homes as the place to have fun and be happy in — and all because of a little dust and untidiness, otherwise known as that lived-in look.

The important thing for Judy to remember is that her highly polished mahogany breakfront will be around, glowing as usual, for generations possibly, but those three little ones, being animate rather than inanimate objects, are with her one day less with every passing day. The time will come when she'll sit staring at the neat, clean, quiet home and realize that it came at a great human cost. Her children had to find their laughter, romps and friendships elsewhere . . .

We urge a more neighborly, motherly attitude on Judy's part. Sending her children out to play, as she does, with no concern as to where or with whom so long as they aren't messing up the house, sounds like a cold-blooded pushing-around, almost as if the kids were pieces of furniture. She is dumping what should be her responsibility, care of her own children, upon the neighbors without so much as a thank-you or a may-I-return-the-favor? to anyone.

Mary is wise to protest. Softhearted and conscientious as she is, it will be hard for her to escort the W. children home once in a while just to remind Mrs. W. that her home isn't the children's zoo. But she must do this. She won't do it often because she obviously enjoys the patter of little feet even if it means muddy tracks to mop up.

But Judy, for her part, can unbend to the point of having the two sets of kids over for a treat several times a month, something organized and controllable like a tea party in the kitchen. This will give her little wanderers a chance to return some of the hospitality that's come their way. And it will give indulgent Mary a break.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I am 30 years old and planning to be married in June. This will be my second marriage. I eloped the first time.

This time, I would like to have a nice afternoon wedding around 2 p.m. Please tell me what type of dress would be correct to wear. Should I have some of the hospitality that customarily then. And it will give indulgent Mary a break.

Answer: A second wedding should be kept as simple as possible. Usually, guests at both the ceremony and reception are limited to family and very close friends. The ceremony may be held in a small chapel or at home, and the reception either at the home of the bride or her parents.

The wedding costume may be a suit or an afternoon dress. Cotton, silk, lace or organza would be suitable for a June wedding. The dress may be any color but white or black, of course. A veil should not be worn, but an appropriate hat or headdress that harmonizes with the suit or dress may be. It's not necessary for the bride who has been married before to be given in marriage. She may, though, if she chooses.

Formal engraved invitations and announcements are never sent out for a second marriage. Friends and family may be invited verbally or by personal notes.

Question: A friend has asked me to be a bridesmaid at her wedding, but before I accept I want to make certain about a few expenses. I know that I have to pay for my own wedding outfit. But, since the wedding will be held in another city, will I also have to pay my travelling expenses and for my hotel room for the two days I'll be there? My friend says her mother will take care of reservations for me. — Miss A.W., New York City

Answer: You'll have to pay your own travelling expense but the bride's parents should take care of your hotel bill. Since the mother is making arrangements obviously she's aware of her obligation on this score.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1962

MODERN DESIGN — Pictured above is the newly erected Emmanuel Baptist Church located next door to St. Joseph's Church, at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Rollins Drive. The structure of the building consists of laminated wood beams supported by stone and concrete buttresses. The roof is of Douglas fir and the building features triangular windows along each side. On each end there are "shaft like" windows with colored cathedral glass, depicting the fish symbol on the north, and the "Green Hill Far Away," on the south. The stone facing on the building is of Kingston Hue sandstone.

New Emmanuel Baptist Church Will Be Dedicated Sunday to Service of God

On Sunday, March 25, Emmanuel Baptist Church will open the doors of their new church building. The guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. N. H. Parker, the Dean of McMaster Divinity College, McMaster University.

The morning service will be held at 11 o'clock and the evening service at 7.30 p.m. In the morning there will be a service of dedication to the new congregation and their new building. The evening service of Thanksgiving and rejoicing will be a joint service with Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The music in the evening will be provided by the Victoria Avenue choir with William Connor at the organ.

The church will be open to the public from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

On Tuesday, March 27, a service of recognition will be held at Emmanuel Church when the Trent Valley Association will accept the new church body into the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec. The Convention president, Rev. Emlyn Davies will be the preacher of the evening. All baptists in this area are cordially invited to attend.

HISTORY OF EMMANUEL BAPTIST CHURCH

In 1948, under the leadership and foresight of Rev. H. G. Eastman, the members of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church felt compelled to take action to provide for the spiritual life of the fast growing East Belleville. They purchased three lots at the corner of Herchimer Avenue and Porter Street. In the spring of 1949 a more suitable site became available at the former golf club on Fairway Avenue. On June 18, 1949, William Hales, superintendent of the Victoria Avenue Church conducted the first Sunday School in the newly acquired building. Part way through the service, a young girl of about five years, was attracted in by the music.

For the next thirteen and one half years, under the leadership of Rev. H. O. Eastman, Rev. K. Daniel and Rev. Gordon Woodcock, the Sunday School was maintained as a successful venture.

FEW ATTEMPTS MADE

A few attempts were made to hold evening services under the guidance of student ministers. In the main however, it was a Sunday School venture.

Early in 1960 it was felt that the time had come to put down more permanent roots in the east end. Victoria Avenue Baptist Church purchased property on the corner of Victoria Avenue and Rollins Drive. An extension committee, under the chairmanship of E. A. Orr, was set up to make a proposal concerning the formation of a new church body. By January, 1961 sketches and estimated costs for a new church building were ready for approval. Detailed plans were carried to be getting up.

In the spring the zealous of a new congregation was formed and held mid-week prayer services in various homes. In September they approved the detailed plans for a church building. On September 20, 1961, Victoria Avenue Baptist Church accepted the tender of Hugh Murray Limited for the construction of the edifice.

The new congregation acquired Rev. Eric Quirk as the new pastor. Mr. Quirk spent 37 years in India as a teacher and minister. Following several years as the minister of Farmer Memorial Baptist Church, he accepted the principalship of Deerortio High School, where he is at the present time. Mr. Quirk conducted the first service of the new congregation in the Fairway Avenue premises, last October 15.

On October 1, 1961, the breaking of the ground ceremony was held. The cornerstone was formally laid last extension, Baptist Convention January 7, by the Rev. Robert Henderence, director of church extension, Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, with Mr. Quirk, Rev. Gordon Woodcock, Dr. Arthur and E. A. Orr participating in the service.

A debt of gratitude is owed to the members of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church who have and are assisting Emmanuel Baptist Church, both spiritually and financially.

WELL LIGHTED

The church will house the Christian Education department in a well-lighted cheerful basement, with facilities for every age group including a nursery department. A small kitchen and stage are included.

The Nave has a centre aisle with seating accommodation for up to two hundred. The baptistry is in an elevated position on the second floor and features a cross on a white background. The interior is finished in natural wood stains with gold textured fabric walls, and recoding green carpeting and tile. The building was designed by Watson, Lang, Kerr architects and built by Hugh Murray Limited.

LOSES 20 DOGS

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Twenty purebred dogs and 3,000 broiler chickens were lost to death Wednesday night in a fire which destroyed a three-storey barn on the farm of Jim Anderson, seven miles south of here. Loss is estimated at $17,000. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Order to Close Radio Station To Be Fought

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says Donald Cooke, brother of Toronto sportsman-broadcaster Jack Kent Cooke, has told them he will fight an order to close his California radio station.

The order was issued by the United States Federal Communications Commission which stated that station KHJ-A in Pasadena must go off the air April 16.

In a Washington dispatch, The Telegram says Donald Cooke stated in a telephone interview:

"We're not going to close down on April 16."

The commission contends the station engaged in fraudulent practice and was allowed to fall off the air "as of the last time when he was a Canadian citizen, U.S. law forbids foreign control in American broadcasting.

"We are sticking in business and we will fight this all the way." The Telegram quotes Donald.

Couples Wed in '62 and 1912 Honored by Senior Citizens

WHICH ARE THE NEWLY WEDS? — Seen above are two couples honored yesterday by the Belleville Senior Citizens Club — one on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary and the other as newly weds. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook are celebrating their 50th anniversary, while Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson, right are the newly weds.

The Belleville Senior Citizens Club doesn't exactly lay any claim to being a Lonely Hearts Club, but within the past five years, no less than three different couples have stepped to the altar to become man and wife.

The latest wedding with members as principals took place only last week when 67-year-old John Robinson took 75-year-old Mrs. Margaret Drummond as his bride.

And last night the newly wedded couple were honored by members of the senior citizens club who, along with their congratulations, presented Mr. and Mrs. Robinson with an electric frying pan.

WED 50 YEARS

At the same time the senior citizens honored another bride and groom, but with a difference. Club members presented an engraved silver tray to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Formed eight years ago, the Belleville Senior Citizens' Club has a membership of over 150. Mr. and Mrs. Cook are charter members of the club, and Mr. Cook served five years as its president.

Mr. Charles Hyde is the current head of the senior citizens' group. Last night club members were hosts to the Campbellford senior citizens' club, with about 55 persons from the Hydro town making the race to Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook who live at 6 Strachen Street, came to Belleville from Bobcaygeon 35 years ago. For 30 years Mr. Cook was a baker at the Ontario School for the Deaf. He retired seven years ago.

Questions Annoy Red Ambassador At Press Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Russian Ambassador Annassap Aroutinian was visibly annoyed Wednesday night by reporters' questions about the Berlin wall, which he blamed on the "provocations" of the West.

Talking to reporters at a "meet the press" party in the embassy, Dr. Aroutinian cut off a string of questions about the wall which the East Germans have erected between East and West Berlin.

"I am not responsible for the East German action," he snapped at one point. "I won't go into details."

Earlier he defended the wall, saying East Germany was "justified to use any method against such provocations" as the West had employed.

It had been erected because of "provocation after provocation" by the West.

NO SPECIAL EFFORTS

What about the pre-wall flow of refugees from East to West Berlin?

Dr. Aroutinian said East Berlin made no special efforts to attract people from the West. There had been "provocations" to encourage the westward flow from the Communist zone.

He was asked if Premier Khrushchev's famous "we will bury you" remark was not a provocation.

The ambassador said it was "one in a sophisticated sense" and had been misunderstood.

He insisted Russia is sincere in its efforts to find solutions to all the outstanding East-West issues.

Packing Houses Have Been Caught in Price Squeeze Ontario Hog Producers Told

TORONTO (CP) — Packing houses have been caught in a cost-price squeeze in recent months, Ontario hog producers were told Wednesday.

J. R. Kohler, general manager of the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board, said that while producers have been receiving closer to their share of the consumer dollar since the teletype auction system began 10 months ago, it has been a rough period for the packer.

Mr. Kohler addressed the annual meeting of the Ontario Hog Producers Association, Marketing Board and Cooperative.

"It is a well known fact that the meat-packing business has always been on possibly the narrowest percentage of profit basis of any type of business," he said.

IN STRONG POSITION

He told Ontario hog producers have a modern sales organization and a grading method which puts them in a strong position. The packer is in the middle between the hog-selling agency and the determined buying for the chain stores and other retail outlets."

Food chains are creating forces which tend to encourage the big operator, he said. Integrated operations which have grown up in eggs and chicken had been disastrous for all and the same thing could happen with hogs if competition by a number of packers bidding for the product were eliminated.

"If we break down this system by allowing some packers from members or non-members, regardless of size, setup, to go directly into a plant and not be sold over our teletype system, where all buyers would have a chance to bid and bid competitively, then you are nearing the end for successful co-operative marketing."

He predicted a trend to the discount food store, which will be able to exert pressure for lower prices because of volume buying. Many new techniques of food discounting are being studied by retail outlets he said.

These factors all would put more power into the hands of buyers thus influencing hog prices.

YOUTHS SENTENCED

TORONTO (CP)—Two youths convicted by a jury of robbery and violence, were sentenced Wednesday to one year in jail. Crown counsel Lloyd Graburn said Barry Nelson, 17, and George Micheau, 18, both of Toronto, gave a victim and severe beating to 35 - year - old James Butterfield, also of Toronto, last July 1. He was robbed of a ring, a cigarette lighter and $4.

Claims Slaying Accident or Self Defence

HAMILTON (CP) — Defence counsel John Agro said Wednesday at the preliminary hearing of Raymond Groenewege, 18, charged with manslaughter in the death of his father, that he only evidence the Crown produced was that the slaying was either an accident or an act of self-defence.

Groenewege was committed for trial on the charge and continued in cash bail of $5,000.

"The boy was being choked, that's defence," said Mr. Agro. "They'll deem the knife went into his father's back. That's the accident."

Magistrate Walter Tuchtie, hearing the case, said in committing Groenewege:

"Did the boy use more force than necessary under the circumstance? That's up to the jury to decide. I have no alternative but to commit him for trial."

DESCRIBES SCENE

The grim statistic was contained in a report issued by the Canadian Highway Safety Council Wednesday.

The council reports increases in the number of traffic accidents, injuries and deaths in 1961 compared with the previous year.

One bright note is that the rate of traffic death is steadily going down in Canada when the number of cars and the distance they travel are taken into account.

The rate last year was at an all-time low 7.5 deaths for every 100,000,000 miles travelled, compared with 8.9 in 1960.

The 1961 traffic toll was 3,390, an increase of 107 fatalities from 1960, or 3.2 per cent. The number of injuries jumped 8.1 per cent to 97,703 from 90,410.

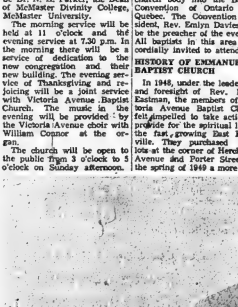
There were 265,630 highway accidents in which damage reported by police exceeded $100. This represents a 7.5-per-cent increase over the 247,435 accidents reported in 1960.

Kingston and Moncton, N.B., were the only cities with 50,000 or more population to report fatality-free records last year.

While the number of traffic deaths has doubled in the last 15 years, the number of vehicles has multiplied nearly nearly 6.6,000,000 and the distances travelled have grown steadily.

Three provinces — Alberta, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick — and two cities—Montreal and Toronto — bucked the national trend last year and reported fewer traffic deaths.

The report showed that the country's 40 largest cities, accounting for 39 per cent of the total population, reported only 16 per cent of the fatalities. Others, for instance, had two deaths.



Montreal reported 120 traffic fatalities, eight fewer than in 1960, Toronto had 106 deaths, a drop of 14.

A total of 414 Canadians were killed in October, as the snow and hunting season began in most areas. This is the highest monthly traffic toll ever recorded.

The fatality breakdown by provinces, with 1960 figures in brackets: Newfoundland 50 (45); Prince Edward Island 16 (13); Nova Scotia 152 (168); New Brunswick 154 (185); Quebec 838 (853); Ontario 1,288 (1,166); Manitoba 132 (121); Saskatchewan 158 (155); Alberta 728 (288); British Columbia 370 (294); Yukon and Northwest Territories 5 (8).

Traffic Death Rate Steadily Going Down in Canada Says Highway Safety Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Every day last year, an average of nine Canadians were killed and 267 injured in highway accidents.

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker and Mrs. William Baker drove to Trenton and back on Saturday to visit Mrs. Baker Sr., and sister Mrs. Fitzgibbon.

On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Phillips and Mrs. Gordon King drove to Bancroft and back on Saturday to visit their daughter, Mrs. Frank Johnson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson are the proud parents of another daughter, born in the Bancroft Hospital on Friday at 6.45 p.m.

On Friday evening Mr. K. McAlister returned from his two weeks' refresher course of study at the Five Oaks College in Paris, Ontario. This course is sponsored by the Home Mission Board of the United Church. This institute serves the five central conferences of the United Church of Canada and include Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Bay of Quinte and Hamilton.

Miss Brenda Hess of Oshawa spent the weekend at her home here, returning to Oshawa Sunday evening.

On Sunday evening Mr. McAlister gave the congregation an outline of the course he had just finished. The Scripture reading was from Luke 5:1-11. "Launch out into the deep".

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of Havelock and Misses Edith and Barbara Phillips of Trenton were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phillips.

Over the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Phillips and Gaia motored to Belleville to see Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert VanAllen and family. There to Hopeine to see son Jackie and family. Later to Trenton, Deseronto and Kingston to visit other members of their family before returning home on Sunday.

On Tuesday the Rev. T. G. Davies, of the Voice of Prophecy, Kingston, called upon Miss Ann Mills while en route to Bancroft to make other calls.

CONTROVERSIAL CHAPEL — This grey-skinned chapel, last resting place of John Graves Simcoe, Ontario's first lieutenant-governor, stands in a secluded grove five miles from Honiton, England. Simcoe's Old Chapel Stands in Secluded Grove Of Holly and Laurel Trees

HONITON, England (CP)— John Graves Simcoe's long-stoned chapel stands in a secluded grove of holly and laurel trees five crooked miles from this mid-Devon market town.

The last resting place of Ontario's first lieutenant-governor and Toronto's founding father seems impossibly remote in time and space from the unexpected controversy it has excited.

There is no sign of the manure or farm implements that the Toronto Historical Board has claimed were stored in the chapel until recently.

Efforts have been initiated in Canada either to have the chapel removed stone by stone to Canada or have it declared a historical site by the British government.

Few Honiton residents have ever heard of Simcoe or know where the chapel is. Even the local publican, the area's ultimate geographical authority, couldn't provide directions.

The structure is approached by a narrow elm-lined side road that winds through the Wolford estate. The building and its small yard are owned by newspaper publisher Geoffrey Harmsworth.

DENIES CHARGE

Harmsworth has denied the chapel was ever used to store manure and says his family has been trying for a number of years to sell some Canadian interest in preserving the site.

The chapel has an air of simplicity and firmly rooted permanence. A contractor company recently reported it was impractical to transfer the building to Canada.

"It's so peaceful it would be a great pity to disturb it," said a farmer's wife who lives across the way.

"I don't understand what all the fuss is about, construction people and all that down here. We've been here for just over nine years and I don't think more than half a dozen persons have visited it in all that time.

"Those rumors you know about manure and farm equipment being stored there. It's all nonsense—at least in our time. Maybe it happened a long time ago but it never looked as if anything had ever been kept in the building.

"An old man up the road, he was 89 something, used to, after the place, He'd mow the lawn, trim the hedges and air the place now and then. But he died last summer."

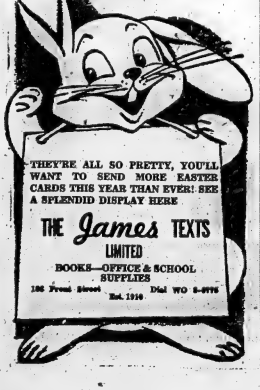
SIGNS OF DECAY

Inside, the chapel smells of decay and neglect but not of manure. A fresh coat of whitewash covers the plain plaster walls and the battered oak pews and miniature pulpit had recently been dusted.

Light from two half-stained windows, small but clean, casts a weird radiance through the interior. Sunbeams from the open door stream towards the stone altar and its uncomplicated cross.

Outside tombstones marking various Simcoe graves are inscribed in the foundation wall of the chapel. Lt.-Gen. John G. Simcoe's grave can be found at the back of the building.

Those who think the man deserves a grander resting place might be satisfied by the memorial plaque erected in ancient Exeter cathedral some 20 miles away.



Framed by white marble figures of an 18th-century infantry officer and a North American Indian, the plaque reads:

"Sacred to the memory of John Graves Simcoe, lieutenant-general in the army and colonel of the 22nd regiment of foot, who died on the 26th day of October, 1806, aged 54.

"In his life and character the virtues of the hero, the patriot and the Christian were so eminently conspicuous that it may justly be said he served his king and his country with a zeal exceeded only by his piety towards God."

CHARGES INTRUSION

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China charged Wednesday that two U.S. warships had intruded into Chinese waters since Tuesday afternoon. There were no details. China's foreign ministry called such acts military provocation and issued its 183rd warning against the United States.

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Inspector Harold Graham of the provincial police criminal investigation branch said in a Supreme Court conspiracy trial Wednesday an OPP investigation went on for more than four months in secret before he was called into the case.

Joseph McDermott, 41, Port Credit, Ont.; Vincent Feeley, 38, Toronto; and Robert Wright, 31, former OPP anti - gambling squad constable, are charged with conspiring to obtain information illegally from a police officer.

The information, concerned tip-offs on police raids on clubs suspected of gambling operations.

McDermott, conducting his own defence, asked Inspector Graham when he was first called in on the case to arrest Wright. The inspector said it was only six days before the arrest on May 29, 1960.

CIB UNAWARE

Insp. Graham said no one in the CIB knew the investigation was going on before May 21.

"Then it was a secret investigation?" asked McDermott.

"Yes, it was," said the inspector.

"Why was the investigation stopped?" McDermott asked.

"The investigation hasn't stopped yet," inspector Graham answered.

Insp. Graham testified he arrested Wright in Belleville, where he had been transferred from the anti-gambling squad.

The inspector told McDermott he opened a safety deposit box with keys found in Wright's home.

"And did you find the $50,000?" asked McDermott.

"No, I found two property deeds and $1,200 worth of Saving Bonds belonging to Mrs. Wright," said Insp. Graham.

Const. George Scott, undercover agent of the OPP anti-gambling squad, earlier in the trial testified Wright claimed he had made $50,000 for giving tip-offs on raids.

OPP Const. James Wood testified he accompanied Wright to Toronto on one occasion when Wright bought a car for $1,500 cash.

Special prosecutor J. P. Milligan continued the Crown's case Wednesday after calling as witnesses seven Bell Telephone operators who identified a number of long-distance calls made from Belleville to Toronto.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — The Rev. Miles Gowdy and Mr. Orval Gowdy from Cherrill, Alta. were Wednesday dinner guests with the Rev. and Mrs. A. Carson.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sine of Peterborough were weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rose.

Mrs. Louis Reid and daughter, Tracy, of Belleville, spent Thursday afternoon as guests of Mrs. E. Baker.

Miss Patsy Hills returned home from hospital on Tuesday afternoon.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wannamaker and family in the loss of a dear husband and father.

Mrs. Clarence Howes is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. H. W. Rose and Mrs. Warren Aslles motored to Peterborough, accompanied by the Frankford Ladies' Euchre Club. After a shopping tour they went to the home of Mrs. Ken Sine for a potluck dinner after which they played euchre.

The winners were, ladies' 1st, Mrs. Sam Kirkey; 2nd, Mrs. Jean Sine; men's 1st, Mrs. Ken Sine; 2nd, Mrs. Harry MacDonald. Lone hand prize winner was Mrs. Ken Sine.

Still ahead is the tail-end of the seasonal unemployment period, extending into May, when benefits generally take more out of the fund than is out in by contributions from employers, employees and government.

The government indicated in the throne speech last January that it would be prepared to put up further loans if needed to safeguard the rights of workers until the report of the Gill committee "has been received and been acted upon."

A source indicated that if the government received the report this summer — possibly in June — it would probably take several months for legislative measures to be drafted.

Whatever the report recommends, it may be 1963 before its proposals can be implemented, the informant said.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

SEOUL (AP)—President Yun Po-sun, only constitutionally, elected official left over after South Korea's military coup last May, resigned today despite pleas of military leaders to reconsider. In a statement he said it was mainly in protest against a recent government decree banning thousands of politicians from running in elections for the next six years unless cleared by the junta.

Report on Jobless Fund Expected by Mid-Summer

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet will likely get the report of the special committee of inquiry on unemployment insurance by "mid - summer," a reliable source said Wednesday.

The four - man committee, headed by Toronto insurance executive, Ernest C. Gill, was set up last July 17 to examine all facets of the unemployment insurance program.

The committee is pressing work on its investigation as the unemployment insurance fund appears to be heading under the $100,000,000 mark by the first time since it was on its way up 20 years ago.

If the fund runs dry, the government will have an extra $25,000,000 on hand as an emergency loan to safeguard the fifty against claims by jobless workers. The special loan was approved last week in the Commons.

Since 1950, the fund has been shrinking under pressure of mounting unemployment.

LESS THIS YEAR

So far this year, benefit payments have been running under those paid at the corresponding time last year, due largely to "good" job conditions this winter.

WHAT PRICE GLORY?

News reports had it that Roger Maris, the Yankees Number One Bat Boy threatened to punch the nose of a sportswriter who wrote something about La Maris that the home-run king did not like.

Well, perhaps the chap had a right to bounce a single off the proboscis of the scribe, for the price of publicity glory comes high, mental-wise.

Maris was more or less hounded to death last fall, before and after he broke the Babe's record of 60 home runs in a season regardless of games played — and since training camp started the typewriter quotes-hunting laddydbucks have been haunting the Maris with stereotyped questions.

"How many this year?" "Can you beat your own record?" How are you hitting?" "Will you top Mantle again? and such hackneyed queries must have some effect on the Yankee slugger.

It is the same with Bobby Hull. I've heard and read several interviews with Marse Robert, and the interviewers must have set a master record and run off copies.

In Toronto last Saturday Bobby was pestered with telephone calls to his room in the Royal York where the Hawks were quartered. He taped an interview and two and from there on the phone jangled with calls from admirers who followed up wishes for good luck with the request for tickets.

After what Maris threatened to do to the scribe, this reporter is staying clear of Master Hull. I'm not looking for a poke in the snoot from one of those bulldozer fists. I always forget to duck.

The "bird-blasting" officials and members of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club are making quite a name for themselves in the sports tournament circles.

The VIP's of the Central Ontario Badminton Association have placed the stamp of approval on arrangements, play and general facilities of the Garrison Club.

So much so that two tournaments have been approved for the "Garrisonnes". One has been played. The other, the Belleville Invitational Doubles Tournament, is scheduled for this Saturday on the Bridge Street Armouries courts.

And, I am told, visiting "bird-clouters" like to play here. Players from Peterborough, Picton, Oshawa, Napanee, Trenton and other centres where local clubs are active, approve the courts and general tournament activities and enjoy the fine post-tournament hospitality provided by the host club.

The tournament this weekend, as the name implies, is for doubles play only. Play begins at ten a.m. with the ladies and men's doubles holding the spotlight. The mixed doubles will be played in the afternoon and finals of all events will take place in the evening. Consolation rounds will be played for all events.

The armouries, long the home of city badminton clubs, has eight fine courts and all will be in action during Saturday's tournament. Garrison club officials have gone all out to make the courts an indoor playing facilities as attractive as possible. Even the windows have been covered.

Presentation of awards and trophies will be made following the conclusion of play to the winners of the various classes and the consolation event. Afterwards lunch and refreshments will be served and a dance held in the officers' mess.

Tournaments hosted by the Garrison Club have proven highly successful in the past, and with the large number of players, both from the city and outside clubs, Saturday's tournament should rate with the best of previous events.

Can Bobby Hull do it?

That's the most popular question in big-league hockey circles these days as Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' golden boy, continues his razzle-dazzle rush towards the National Hockey League's 50-goal scoring record.

The answer will be soon. Chicago has only two games left in the 1961-62 schedule — at Montreal Saturday night and New York Sunday night.

Hull popped in his 46th goal Tuesday night.

Maurice Richard, retired Montreal great, set the 50-goal mark in 1944-45, and Bernie Geoffrion, also of Canadiens, equalled it last season.

Left winger Hull has been hot since Jan. 11, the night he scored his 16th goal. He has been almost unstoppable since, scoring 32 times in his last 28 outings.

Others have had difficulty hitting the 30 mark.

GOT ONLY 48

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs had 48 goals after 69 games last season, but he went into a tailspin and wound up with only 48.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings came closer. He scored 49 his 45th and 46th goals in December's 68th game in 1953-54, but couldn't get No. 50 in two remaining games against Chicago and Montreal.

There is one striking comparison between Richard, Geoffrion and Hull. Richard and Geoffrion each scored in nine consecutive games during their historic seasons and Hull matched that when he potted his 47th goal at Toronto last Saturday. No other NHL player has been able to score in that many consecutive games.

While Hull rests until Saturday night, two games are scheduled tonight with the big one at Boston where the Bruins face New York.

The Rangers are struggling with Detroit for the fourth and last playoff spot and a win tonight would push them three points ahead of the Wings.

After tonight, the Rangers have only one more game—against Chicago Sunday night. Detroit, meanwhile, have two more games—at Toronto Saturday night and at home to Montreal Sunday night.

In tonight's only other game, the Canadiens will be at home to Toronto.

Remembers Ranger Jibes

Watson Wants This One!

BOSTON (AP) — If Boston coach Phil Watson ever has wanted to win a National Hockey League game, tonight's with New York Rangers, at Boston Garden is it.

Watson and the Bruins might come close to knocking the Rangers out of a Stanley Cup playoff berth by whipping New York. The Blues currently hold a one-point lead over the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings and have only tonight's game and one against Chicago Sunday night left to play.

In addition, fiery Phil remembers well the taunts and jibes by Ranger players this season about his coaching and Boston's inability to win. The Rangers accused Watson only as coach last season and most of this season's New York players formerly were under Watson.

"We'll use our checking line, Charlie Burns, Larry Leach and Jerry Toppazzini, against their top line of Andy Bathgate, Dean Prentice and Earl Ingarfield," Watson said. "I'm hoping to finish the season with four straight wins."

Seals Dull Blades in 3-2 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winger Bob Bailey's overtime goal at 3:20 gave Vancouver Seals a crucial Western Hockey League win over Los Angeles Blades Wednesday night. The victory, before a homeowon crowd of 5,322, cuddled the Seals to clinch the Southern Division third and final playoff position.

Meanwhile, Seattle Totems all but assured themselves of a second-place finish in the Northern Division by whipping Calgary Stampeders 7-4 before 2,500 fans at Calgary.

Bailey won it for the Seals after Real Chevrefils had twice given Los Angeles the lead.

Al Nicholson and Bob Solinger scored the other goals for the Seals, who will meet Spokane Comets in a best-of-three semi-final. The winner goes against the first-place Portland Buckaroos for the division title.

Clyde Fielder scored twice in pacing Seattle to its win. Ed Ehrenvirth, Gerry Leonard, Don Chiska, Rudy Filion and Bill Macfarland added one each for the Totems.

Gord Veiveas, Lou Jankowski, John Kosiancic and defenceman Fred Hucul answered for Calgary.

Lose to Hamilton 5-3

Flyers Drop Junior A Opener

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Red Wings scored four goals in the third period Wednesday night to defeat Niagara Falls Flyers 5-3 in the first game of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A best-of-seven final before 3,942 fans.

Second game will be played in Niagara Falls, Friday night and the third here Sunday afternoon.

Wings, conquerors of St. Catharines Teepees in the semi-finals, had to come from behind three times to gain the victory.

Flyers, who disposed of first-place Montreal Junior Canadiens in the other semi-final set, scored the first goal only to see Wings tie it up before the end of the first period.

The losers tallied the only goal of the second period and still held a 3-2 lead as late as the four-minute mark of the final session.

Pit Martin, Lowell MacDonald, Paul Henderson, John Gordon and Howie Menard scored for the Hamilton goals. Niagara Falls scorers were Wayne Magner, Bill Gleahan and Ron Herriott.

Menard's goal was disputed by Flyer netminder Wayne Rutledge, who showed his displeasure by returning a fan's rubber with an overhand heave.

Rutledge collared Menard beside the net and the next time the Hamilton team captain went around the goal and Hamilton's Ron Harris, and Flyers' Don Awrey took over with a fist-swinging duel behind the net.

The latter pair drew majors while the instigators escaped with minors.

Wings outshot the losers 41-34, although they were kept in the game in the early stages by some spectacular netminding by Buddy Elcon.

Beavers Clip Kingston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers, fighting to keep within range of first place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, outlasted Kingston Frontenacs 4-3 Wednesday night with the help of some fine goaltending by Jack McCartan.

The Beavers moved into a record-place tie with the Frontenacs, three points behind Hull-Ottawa Canadiens. The Fronts, however, have five games left to the 70-game schedule while the others have four each.

The Frontenacs outshot the visitors 34-31 but McCartan, former U.S.-Olympic goalie, was solid and drew good support from his defence.

DEPENDS ON TV

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Middleweight champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, will defend his title in May against Denny Moyer at Boseman, Mont., if television details can be worked out. This was announced Wednesday by Fran Haun, managing director of the Intermountain Boxing Club. Haun said Fullmer and Moyer have agreed to terms.

Mother Prays For Liston

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)— Sonny Liston's mother prays every day that her boy will win the heavyweight boxing championship.

Liston will meet title - holder Floyd Patterson this summer. The date and site haven't been set.

Mrs. Helen Liston, who lives in this east Arkansas city, has seen Sonny fight five times, and all were easy victories.

Mrs. Liston said she believes her daily prayers will help Sonny dethrone Patterson. "If God is for you," she said, "the devil can do you no harm."

'Bar Flies' Win Mess Darts Title

Art Crane's "Bar Flies" are the new champions of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Sergeants' Mess Darts League.

Individual trophies were presented to team members Art Crane, Dick Burns, Ken Carswell Frank McGerick, Percy Kelly and Henry Smith by Mess President Sgt. Gord Carter at the final play of the season last night.

The "Ray Fletcher Award" for the most number of singles won during the regular season, was presented by its donor to Frank McGerick.

A new award "The Tom Gill Memorial Shield" presented to the league by this year's team captains in memory of one of the league's most staunch supporters, was won by Ron Tapp with a high three darts of 152. Presentation of the shield along with a individual trophy was made by Jim McLuskie representing the team captains for this year.

Lewis Evans Jr. and Peter Gander two first year men in he league were presented with awards as the most improved players of the season.

Receiving special prizes for perfect attendance were Joe Soule, Al Kirby, Bert Shepherd, Ray Fletcher, Gord Carter, Art Hobbs, Bob Suykens, Ken Carswell and Howard Kokesh.

Appreciation of the members for a highly successful season was voiced by Ben Feathers while a special award was made to league chairman Howard Kokesh for the excellent conduct of the play during the season. A buffet lunch rounded out the evening's activities.

Enters Senior Finals

Maroons Oust Athletics

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons moved into the Ontario Senior Hockey Association final series Wednesday night as they beat Woodstock Athletics 7-4 to give them the best - of - seven semi-final series 4-2.

George Aitken paced the victory with three goals. Copper Leyte added two and Bob Pole and Jim Connelly got singles.

For Woodstock Tommy Wilson fired three goals, with Ed Avis adding the other.

Maroons, who have been a come-from-behind team throughout the series, followed the same script for this game. Maroons tallied early in the first period, but the Athletics came back to hold a 3-1 lead at the end of the session. Chatham fired two second period goals to tie the count, and outscored their victors 4-1 in the final 20 minutes to wrap up the victory and the series.

Woodstock held a 2-0 lead in the series at one time, and were leading 3-0 after the first period of the third game. But Maroons came back to win the game, and capture the next three.

Maroons dominated play after the first period. Woodstock goalie Al Cullen blocked 30 shots in the game. Al Bennett, who has been a standout in the series, blocked 15 shots in the Maroons' cage.

The game was played before the largest crowd of the season here—1,600 paid fans.

Chatham will now meet Windsor Bulldogs in a best-of-seven final. Dates have not been set yet.

'Never Heard' Of Leafs, Canadiens

By LARRY ROSE

VANCOUVER (CP)—"Montreal? Never heard o fthem." Leafs? Never heard o fthem." The remark, which would astound even the most casual Canadian hockey fan, was overheard as members of the touring New Zealand university all - star rugby team watched their first hockey game.

The Kiwis, as they are called, were impressed by the speed and robust bodychecking in a Western League game between Vancouver Canucks and Spokane Comets, here Tuesday.

"Stone the crows!" exclaimed one of the visitors as a Vancouver player handed out a hefty check. "Splendid play," cheered four Kiwis as Jim Baird of Vancouver scored into an open net to clinch an 8-5 victory for the Canucks.

The Kiwis opened a four-game British Columbia tour Saturday.

WHY CHANGE?

One of the visitors asked why each club sent a "second team" on to the ice after almost every whistle. "Can't they play the whole game?" he questioned in reference to th, frequent line changes.

Mike Willement, fullback; Warren Koyes, hooker; and Kelvin Tremain, breakaway and captain of the Kiwis, had the rules of the game explained to them by former NHL great Babe Pratt. The former Toronto and New York defenceman had a captive audience.

Tremain, a member of the famous New Zealand All-Blacks and considered one of the best forwards in the game, summed up the Kiwis' impression of hockey.

"Gotta keep yuh 'ead up out there," he said, "no room f' dawdlers."

Macs Edge Kingston 4-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Building a 4-1 lead in the first period when they held a big edge over the Frontenacs the Belleville McFarlands hung on to defeat Kingston 4-3 here last night before a crowd of 723.

The victory tied the best-of-seven OHA Eastern Junior "B" group finals at two games apiece. The clubs play back here Monday night and in Kingston next Wednesday.

Pug Kellar visitors 10-11, but every time they scored they had to check hard both ways to keep the Frontenacs from catching up.

Gordie Parker returned to the Belleville goal and came up with a tremendous effort. He robbed Kingston time and again as the Frontenacs outshot the Macs 18-11 in the middle heat and 12-3 in the last twenty minutes.

Parker's key saves came against Fred Curran, twice in the third period from point blank range, and Ron Brown. He also came up with two great stops in the first minute of the second period and backed his mates well, when the club was shorthanded, while Kellar sat out a major penalty for spearing midway through the second heat.

Kingston got one goal back in the second period to cut the lead to 4-2 but were unable to dent Parker's armor again until 19.10 of the third. They took out goalie Kurt Demmler in favor of a sixth attacker for the final 13 seconds but could not get the equalizer.

"Pug" Kellar and Pete Weston looked after all of the Belleville scoring with two goals apiece. Dave Smith led the playmakers with three assists while Moe Hunter, Buddy Ethier and Paul Zakos had one each.

Gary Lavallee, pick of the Frontenacs, scored twice and assisted on the other, fired by Chuck Convery. Robertson, Rawson and Cashman had assists.

After a close-checking ten minutes, Weston put Belleville in front 1-0 at 10.16, finishing off a ganging play with Smith and Hunter while Kingston had a man in the sin-bin. A minute later Lavallee tied it with a shot from the side boards that appeared to deflect in off a Mac player.

Kellar put the Macs out front to stay at 12.40, Zakos' shot from the blueline was deflected up and over Demmler by Keller standing at the corner of the Kingston net.

Cashman was off for the losers when Weston made it 3-1 on a shot from the side that cleared Demmler's shoulder. Belleville never eased the pressure and Kellar got his second goal at 17.10. He broke in, was hauled down from behind but tapped the disc under the sprawling goalie.

Kingston carried the play in the second and shortly after Kellar had returned from his major sentence, Convery backed a backhander under Parker's arm for a 4-2 score at 19.38.

Belleville started forechecking well in the third but then backed into a shell and only Parker's fine goaltending held the Frontenacs at bay. Lavallee finally closed the scoring with a low 25-footer to the corner in the last minute.

Kingston picked—up eight minor penalties, scoring two goals, while Belleville drew five minors and one major.

KINGSTON: Demmler, Long, Curran, Convery, Cashman, McMillan, Bryant, Brown, Lavallee, Robertson, Ball, Rawson, Shaver, Harkness.

Orioles' Nest Affected

Injuries Hit Birdlings

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore Orioles' prized kiddie corps consisted today of Chuck Estrada, a possible weekend recruit, an expendiths case and a big question mark.

The question mark was penciled after the name of Jack Fisher, towering young right-hander jolted by a series of sharp pains in his right shoulder while warming up to pitch Wednesday's exhibition game against Cincinnati Reds. He is being flown to Baltimore for x-rays.

The sudden loss of Fisher left only Estrada as a full-time, able - bodied member of the Birdie big four.

Steve Barber, the club's big winner last season with 18 triumphs, is toiling for Uncle Sam, but may be available to pitch weekends. Milt Pappas, 13-9 last year, is recuperating from an emergency appendectomy.

The series of setbacks forced rookie manager Billy Hitchcock to realign his starting quartet using Billy Hoeft. Hoeft, acquired from Detroit Tigers, pitched five innings as the Orioles whipped the Reds 12-6 Wednesday.

GET GOOD HURLING

Meanwhile, Kansas City Athletics got strong pitching from Norm Bass and Bob Grim to edge Washington Senators 2-1 and then announced that $125,000 bonus hurler Lew Krausse was being shipped to their minor league camp.

Elsewhere, top pitching performances were turned in at Chicago Cubs shut out Cleveland 2-0, New York Mets blanked Detroit 1-0 and St. Louis downed Chicago White Sox 2-0.

In other games, New York Yankees belted Philadelphia 13-10 at Clearwater for their 10th victory in 11 games, Los Angeles' Angels blasted San Francisco 16-3 at Palm Springs, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh 4-3 at Port Myers and Boston edged Houston 8-7 in 13 innings at Scottsdale.

BOOTS CHANCES

LONDON (AP) — Ron Woodard of Indianapolis, Ind., owner with a long standing ambition to win the Grand National Steeplechase, took over a second horse in the race Wednesday. Woodard bought Ernest, a 10-1 outsider owned by Mrs. L. Brotherton. He already owns Team Spirit, an 28-1 shot. The race is scheduled for Aintree March 31.

Sasky Rink Leads by Two Games

FREDERICTON (CP) — Undefeated Saskatchewan opened a two-game lead over three other provinces Wednesday in the national Royal Canadian Legion championship bonspiel when the match to drop off the pace being set by Burley Townsend and his hard-sweeping Regina rink.

Prince Edward Island, with only one victory in the first three rounds, put on a sizzling performance to take three matches and jump into a second-place tie with B.C. and Alberta.

The island rink, skipped by Danny O'Rourke, downed Alberta's R. J. Woods , skipped fourscore 10-8 in fourth round play Wednesday morning, won 9-7 over Roger Fournier's Quebec rink in the fifth and tripped Rod Bethune's Nova Scotia quartet, 9-3 in night action.

Townsend's three victories were 9-7 over Ivan Forbes of New Brunswick, 8-3 over Nova Scotia and 14-6 over Scotia On. tario defeated New Brunswick 12-10 in other round-robin action in the round-robin, nine - draw affair.

Manitoba, skipped by Dusty Millar of Winnipeg, had two wins and a loss Wednesday to give it a 33- win-loss record. The prarie rink downed Nova Scotia 12-7 and New Brunswick 9-5 but lost 10-8 to Newfoundland.

Rustproofing?

Rambler spills more than others use!

Here in Canada, drivers experience some of the worst weather and driving conditions in the world. Most rust and corrosion, which start inside body panels and girders, is caused by the salt spread on our roads. To eliminate this problem, here's what Rambler is doing about it.

GALVANIZING Side body panels below the doors are galvanized. This area is constantly exposed to salt.

DEEP-DIP The entire car body is submerged six times into huge tanks. Each time a solution cleans, scours and prepares the surface of the metal.

PRIMER DIP The car is dipped again, right up to the roof, in rustproofing primer paint. Hundreds of gallons surge inside girders and pillars, reaching all corners, crevices and curved areas. This is more rustproofing than any other Canadian car gets, and more spilled, literally, than others use. The body then receives a second primer which is sprayed on. Well over 15 pounds of rustproofing primer now coat the steel. After this, the primer paint is baked on.

TRIPLE ENAMELLING A chip-resistant, salt-resistant super enamel is sprayed and baked on. A second and third coat follow immediately, then baked to a durable gloss.

SEALING A corrosion-inhibiting wax compound is sprayed inside girders, rocker panels and fenders. A sealer compound is also sprayed on critical underbody areas to provide additional protection.

The Canadian Rambler is the most completely rust-proofed car in the world. Visit your nearest Rambler dealer soon. Take a test drive for the final reason why Rambler is Canada's best car value.

Greasepaint Smell Probably Brought Grace Kelly Back

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The announcement of Grace Kelly's return to films caused many a wisecrack to nod knowingly.

"They all come back," was the studied analysis.

Many local observers offered a spurious reason for the Kelly return: Boredom at the palace; somebody broke the bank at Monte Carlo.

Clifton Webb probably came closest to the real reason when he said: "I think what brought her back was that hidden urge in everyone who has ever smelled greasepaint. It says, 'I must go back, at least one more time.'"

That yen seems to have afflicted most actors. Oldtimers will recall the succession of "farewell tours" by Sarah Bernhardt and Sir Harry Lauder.

ONE MORE TIME

Movie stars have the same urge for "one more time," no matter how many announcements they have made of retirement.

Fred Astaire has long regretted that he ever said he was retiring after Blue Skies in 1946. The retirement lasted a couple of years, and he jumped at the chance to replace an ailing Gene Kelly in Royal Wedding. Now with movies and a weekly television show, Fred is busier than ever.

Betty Hutton also made a flourish with her retirement after a Las Vegas "farewell appearance." Show business had brought her no happiness, she claimed. Maybe not, but she bounced right back to it.

Most other stars have been careful to make no announcements, even though they vanish from the screen for a number of years.

SHIRLEY CAME BACK

After an unhappy Hollywood marriage, Shirley Temple left the local scene, to a happy non-Hollywood marriage. But she returned to her own television show and sparked the revival of the Shirley Temple doll a generation later.

Helen Hayes won an Oscar in 1932, but returned to the stage when studios decided she wasn't star material. She returned in 1952 for the unfortunate Mr. Sycamore, and again in 1956 for the successful Anastasia.

Only a few of the retired stars have resisted the return: Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Deanna Durbin, Norma Shearer. So far, that is.

Says Downes Owns Seven 'Book' Shops

BOSTON (AP)—The chairman of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission—informed that midslweight Terry Downes is legal owner of seven London bookmaking shops—said Wednesday "we are definitely going to look into this situation."

Herman Greenberg said the commission first will check with London to see whether Downes' bookmaking shops are accepting wagers on the Downes - Phil Pender fight scheduled for April 7 in Boston.

"If we find this is the case," Greenberg added, "we will call upon the attorney-general's office for an interpretation of our law as applied to the Downes situation."

Downes rules as middleweight champion in Massachusetts, New York and Europe. Gene Fullmer is champion in the rest of the boxing world.

Bookmaking is legal in England but Massachusetts law forbids the wagering or selling of pools on a boxing match.

Played For The Prince, Suspended

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) Presidents João Goulard and Premier Tancredo Neves of Brazil went to bat Wednesday for a soccer team suspended because it played an exhibition game for Prince Philip.

The Palmeiras team was suspended for six days after breaking the rule that players must have 72 hours rest between matches. Palmeiras played the Santos team for Philip's benefit Sunday.

Palmeiras claimed it played the game at the behest of the Brazilian foreign office because the prince wanted to see Santos' star "King" Pele, regarded by Brazilians as the world's greatest soccer player.

Goulart and Neves asked the National Sports Council and Brazilian Sports Confederation to a way out of the suspension could be found.

Scots Win Over England

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters)—England's World Cup hopes had a sharp setback Wednesday night when almost the full England team, representing the English League, was beaten 4-3 by the Scottish League.

It was England's strongest available side with the exception of Jimmy Greaves, who was on European Cup duty with Tottenham Hotspur.

The Englishmen were two goals down at one stage, although they went ahead 3-2 after trailing 2-1, they gave a thoroughly disappointing display.

The Scottish League's winning goal came in the last minute and gave left-winger Davy Wilson three.

Spurs Lose 3-1 Opener

LISBON (AP) — Benfica of Portugal, holders of the European Cup of Champions, defeated Britain's Tottenham Hotspur 3-1 Wednesday night in the first leg of the semi-finals.

Benfica scored on by a roaring crowd of 70,000, led 2-0 at halftime.

The result means that the British champions must win by at least three goals in the second leg in London April 5 to clinch a place in the final.

European Cup games are decided on aggregate goals after home and away games.

Benfica scored in the fifth minute with a goal by centre forward Aguas and went ahead at the 13th minute on a goal by right winger Augusto.

Centre forward Smith scored for Tottenham in the 53rd minute, but back came Benfica to make it 3-1 on another goal by Augusto in the 64th minute.

Now Benfica is a strong favorite to reach the final of the European Cup games in Amsterdam May 2.

The Portuguese team's skill was too much for the Spurs in this match before a sellout crowd.

Reds Don't Like Him

Lebel Liked World Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert LeBel, embattled president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday he believes the recent world hockey tournament was "a darn good one" despite the protests of Russia and Czechoslovakia.

The Communist countries, who have two of the world's strongest amateur hockey teams, refused to attend the tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., because the Allied travel office in Berlin would not give the East German team travel visas.

The Russians have since called for LeBel's ousting and the drawing up of a new charter for the IIHF to prevent "the interference of politics into sports."

"If they want me out," LeBel said, "they can do it at our summer congress in 1963 when my term expires anyway. It's Europe's turn to have a president, so I'll be gone and I suppose a few of the members will be happy."

The presidency goes between Europe and North America every three years. Next year's congress is in Stockholm, Sweden.

"The calibre of play was good and the Swedes won a deserved championship," LeBel said. "Nothing stopped the Russians and Czechs from entering if they wanted to."

Bears Grab Berth in AL Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hershey Bears have clinched a spot in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs while keeping Quebec Aces from moving up in their bid to grab a berth.

The Bears wrapped up a post-season spot by beating the Aces 4-2 Wednesday night. The loss left Quebec in last place, two points behind Providence Reds in their battle for the final playoff position in the Eastern Division.

In the only other game played, Springfield Indians whipped Pittsburgh Hornets 6-3. The Hornets last in the Western Division, have only one tie to show for their 10 meetings this season with the eastern pace-setters.

Trailing 3-1, the Bears won it within the space of three minutes during the second period as Ray Kinasewich scored the tying marker his second of the game, Willie Marshall notched the winner and Les Duff tallied an insurance goal. Bob Barlow and Danny Lewicki scored for Quebec.

The Hornets overcame a three-goal deficit to tie the score at 5-5 before Springfield pulled away with goals by Bob Kabel and Kent Douglas. Other marksmen for the Indians were Jim Anderson, Don Johnson, Dennis O'Brien and Bill Sweeney with two. Bo Elik, Ray Rose, Dick Mathiest, Norm Corcoran and Ray Brunell tallied for Pittsburgh.

KILLS 3, SELF

EMPHROIUM, Pa. (AP)—Four persons were found shot to death Wednesday night. The coroner, Dr. George Dorman, said the deaths appeared to be three murders and a suicide. He said Jay Riffle, a young woodcutter, apparently shot his wife, Bonnie, about 17, their 10-month-old baby, Roy, and a next - door neighbor, Sidney Long, also a woodcutter. Riffle then shot himself, the coroner added. No motive was established.

Says Track Licence 'Incredible'

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton said Wednesday she is "satisfied" a proposed new harness racing track near Uplands air terminal means a shift there of people driven out of Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont., by U.S. crime inquiries.

"No matter who the promoters are you can guess what the patronage will be," the mayor told an Ottawa Transportation Board meeting.

Because the proposed track is so near the airport, she said American patrons could fly into Ottawa, make their money, and fly out again in a three-hour festival.

The board was discussing possible transportation services, to the track.

Earlier, Miss Whitton said she had informed Municipal Affairs Minister Cass it was "incredible" that the Ontario Racing Commission should license a track to a "company which has not yet been formed . . . to a track which is not yet located."

Mr. Cass, in Toronto, said he had not heard from Miss Whitton about the track and had received no letter concerning it.

He had no comment, "and I don't think I'll have any comment when I do get it—at least, not for now."

GETS FOUR YEARS

CALGARY (CP) — Fred H. Armitage, 46, former manager of Cedaries Corporation, Wednesday was sentenced to four years in penitentiary after he was found guilty by Supreme Court on three counts of false pretences. The company now is defunct.

Many High Favor Programs Named for Main Character

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—This season's successes, Dr. Kildare and Ben Casey, apparently have kicked off more than a television trend for medical adventure series. They have returned to high favor programs named after their central character.

In recent years—as a matter of fact, ever since ABC's 77 Sunset Strip had its initial, spectacular popularity—the "numbers" and "address" titles have been very much in vogue. We have Dobie Gillis, Cain's Hundred, Route 66, Car 54, Where Are You? 87th Precinct, and Twenty-ninth Century.

But now it is changing. Among the shows scheduled for next fall are Adam Fable, Vic Judson McKay, and Our Man Higgins. Even positive of the new fashion in titles is the recent switch that changed a fat show 333 Montgomery Street, into Sam Benedict.

Sam Benedict, incidentally, is a story built around the real exploits of a San Francisco lawyer, Jake Erlich, and will be shoved into NBC's Saturday night line-up, 7.30-8.30.

CBS will be moving Perry Mason to Thursday nights come autumn to make room for Jackie Gleason's new series. But with the NBC show coming into Perry's familiar old time period, lovers of courtroom dramas can stick to their established Saturday night viewing habits.

This week's Dick Powell Show with William Bendix playing a heavy, quite obviously was one program that the producers hoped could be blown into a future series. It wasn't much of a show—just the umpteenth television story out of the Hollywood mills about truck drivers and the illegal "pep pill" trade.

AT THE PARK — The sinister and dramatic Janice Lanphier now appearing in the Woodner, Marquette, Juran production "Flight of the Lost Balloon", in Color, which starts at the Park tonight. On the same program in Color, "The Mighty Crusaders", with a cast of thousands.

Astrological Forecast

Friday, March 23

By SYDNE OMARYR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — How long has it been since you thought about the real meaning of the word recreation? Take time to gain strength, inspiration through constructive recreation, hobby or friendships.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) —There is much joy to be found very close to home . . . today this fact is emphasized. Basically, you are the kind of person who seeks frankness, simplicity.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Favorable aspects today indicate you are ready to expand sphere of activity, influence. No time to withdraw . . . you can profit by investing in your own talents, judgement.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) —Feeling of restriction could become very evident. Temptation will be to break down "fences". But in order to really gain the most, proceed with caution and care.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — What you want may seem out of reach. But you accomplish nothing by modesty. Take first step toward goal, even if that be a short one. Superiors will back you, aid your progress.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —Break destructive habits. Put your back to wall and take measures which help you to help yourself. Analyze your situation . . . take intelligent action . . . on your own.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Spotlight on initiative, originality. Following the crowd today could only spur you along. Specific needs then act to meet them. Make your actions count.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) —It is not unlikely that you feel better about security now. Future begins to crystallize . . . you gain vision. Trust what you see . . . because you see clearly today.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Thrift and responsibility are key words. Walk in the sun . . . avoid tricks. Associate may ask for your help in matter not entirely aboveboard. Be fair.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—You may have to choose today between duty and friendship. Try to combine the two. Temper actions with consideration . . . or you may find yourself with bitter results.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Favorable lunar aspect early today indicates morning hours best for creative activity, including letter writing, formulating of future plans. Relax and entertain tonight.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Day . . . test extrasensory perception (ESP). You seem able to obtain intuitive flashes that eventually prove valid. Trust first impressions of new situations, persons, propositions.

If today is your birthday . . . your greatest asset is courage of convictions. Greatest fault: tendency to act first, think later. You can be entirely too trusting when friends are concerned . . . and too suspicious when it comes to considering possible merits of strangers.

General Tendencies: Key word might well be sexuality. Scandal involving well-known persons in entertainment or world of could erupt. You could profit by studying Cancer interpretation for today.

Three Conservative MPs Cannot Stump for Votes Until House Is Dissolved

By JAMES NELSON

OTAWA (CP)—Three Conservative MPs, the prisoners of tradition, are, sitting idly by while their fellow members in stump for votes in the general election expected later this year.

The three are the presiding officers of the Commons—Speaker D. Roland Michener and his deputies, Paul Martineau and Gordon Chown. Tradition requires from them absolute impartiality on political questions. They can't set out on the campaign trail until the house is dissolved and an election called.

Mr. Michener, 61, first elected to the Commons in Toronto St. Paul's in 1953, will run for Parliament again and has a constituency organization working for him. But he has not yet been formally nominated and will not attend political meetings until the election is announced.

The Liberal and Social Credit parties have already nominated candidates to run against him. Liberal Ian Whan, 46, a Saskatchewan - born lawyer and Rhodes scholar has been campaigning actively for almost two years. Mr. Michener, incidentally, was secretary of the Rhodes scholarships committee for Canada when Mr. Whan won his in 1937.

NO PERMANENT SPEAKER

Mr. Martineau, MP for Pontiac-Temiscamingue in Quebec, and Mr. Chown, MP for Winnipeg South, also expect two or more candidates to oppose them.

The contest in St. Paul's appears to dim any chance that Mr. Michener may be named permanent Speaker of the Commons.

The Canadian practice has been to alternate the speakership with each new Parliament between English - and French-speaking MPs. The speaker is nominated by the government party and elected by the Commons.

The last Speaker to serve more than one normal term was one of the Commons' greats, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, from March, 1922, to June, 1930. In addition to serving the present Parliament since 1958, Mr. Michener was Speaker for the one-session Parliament between the 1957 and 1958 general elections.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had hoped to break with tradition and achieve the permanent speakership — an idea nearly everyone on Parliament Hill favors—by nominating an opposition member in 1957.

KNOWLES SAID NO

He offered the nomination to Stanley Knowles, then CCF MP for Winnipeg North Centre and generally regarded as the most expert member on Parliamentary procedure.

Mr. Knowles, however, declined on grounds he would have to leave CCF activity for the non-partisan post. He was defeated in 1958 and now is vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress. He was one of the founding fathers of the New Democratic Party and has announced he will leave the CLC to stand for election to Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker's view was that if Mr. Knowles had accepted the precedent would have created a permanent speakership.

In the United Kingdom, the Speaker is customarily granted acclamation. He serves through several Parliaments, even if there is a change of government, until retirement to some senior diplomatic or vice-regal post.

Since they are prevented from active political campaigning and from expressing partisan viewpoints, how do the Speaker and his deputies in Canada keep their political records and names alive among the constituents on whom they must depend for re-election?

WRITE LETTERS

All three men maintain a large volume of correspondence. They are not prevented from dealing with immigration, taxation, pensions and other problems referred to them by their constituents.

Mr. Michener has attended a large number of banquets and other functions in Toronto St. Paul's arranged by non-political but politically important groups, such as associations of various ethnic groups. He keeps in close but private touch with his constituency executive.

Mr. Martineau, 40, was appointed Deputy Speaker this session after serving more than two years as one of Mr. Diefenbaker's parliamentary secretaries. In his former capacity, he was active in partisan politics publicly on behalf of the prime minister and the Conservatives in not only his own riding but in other parts of Quebec and eastern Ontario.

He continues to make fortnightly broadcasts to his riding, started when he was a backbencher. But now the broadcasts are factual reports of parliamentary developments and he shies away from partisan remarks.

NEVER AT CAUCUSES

Mr. Martineau has two opponents already in the field against him, Liberal and Social Credit. There may be a third from the NDP.

Mr. Chown, who will be 40 in August, will probably also have two opponents, representing the Liberal party and the NDP in Winnipeg South.

His position, however, is not quite so hemmed in by restrictions since the assistant deputy speaker — more correctly, the deputy chairman of committees of the whole House—is elected by the Commons on a sessional basis, rather than for the life of the whole Parliament.

But, to carry out the spirit of the job, Mr. Chown has adhered to the principles followed by his seniors. In his, for the deputy speakership in the new Parliament if the Conservatives are re-elected, Mr. Chown subscribes to the view that the presiding officers of the House must not engage in partisan politics.

He does not attend Conservative caucus meetings or speak at political gatherings. One of his predecessors at one time served both as deputy chairman of House committees and as chairman of the Liberal party caucus.

Bandmaster's Fondest Dream Becomes Reality

WESTBROOK, Me. (AP)—Few men have the dream John B. Gooch had. And fewer still see it realized as he did.

Gooch works in the research laboratory of S. D. Warren Paper Company. In off hours he conducts the company's 15-member band.

Tuesday night, on his 42nd birthday, Gooch went to rehearsal as he has been doing every Tuesday night, except in summer, for 14 years.

And there was his dream come true.

Waiting on the stage of the small auditorium was a 110-piece band.

Friends had organized the group as a birthday surprise. They knew Gooch's great dream was to conduct a really big band. So musicians were gathered from throughout southern Maine.

The band set up big only a few friends and company officials could squeeze into the auditorium. The musicians threw open windows so others outside could hear. And for four of the happiest hours in John Gooch's life they made music.

And how did this musico. salute strike Gooch?

"I got a great kick out of it," he said. "I'll be thinking about this for a long time."

Govt. To Reduce Consumer Price Of Butter 12 Cts.

Will Maintain Support Price of 64 Cts. Pound

OTTAWA (CP)—A consumer subsidy designed to lower butter prices 12 cents a pound and to maintain production will go into effect May 1.

The subsidy, announced in the Commons Thursday, will cost the public treasury an estimated $34,000,000 a year.

Butter prices now average 66 cents a pound in Eastern Canada and 71 cents in the west. Consumption is in a sharp decline.

The plan is for the government to pay farmers at the present support level of 64 cents a pound—their guaranteed minimum price—and sell to wholesalers at 52 cents.

Under the present setup the government buys and sells at the 64-cent level. But the combination of rising production and declining sales has left the government stuck with a huge surplus stockpiled in warehouses across the country.

SURPLUS IS HIGH

The present surplus amounted to 197,000,000 pounds —about a quarter of it in cold storage. Last year the government's economic use has been found for 50,000,000, the whole butter worth $126,000,000.

By March 1 the surplus was down to 147,000,000 pounds because of the normal winter decline in farm output. It was just about due to shoot up again.

Butter organizations, which have been urging the government for several months to adopt a direct subsidy, welcomed the plan. They bank on it to boost consumption, which stood at 34 pounds per capita a few years ago and last year sank to 15.4 pounds.

Margarine, the vegetable oil substitute which sells for about 30 cents a pound less, has displaced butter in a steadily-growing clip. Between 1956 and 1960 margarine production rose to 184,000,000 pounds a year from 145,000,000.

SUPPORTS UNCHANGED

Defence Minister Hellyer, rushing for ailing Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, told the Commons that the support prices for butter, cheese and other dairy products will continue at present levels.

Opposition spokesmen lauded the subsidy plan.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said the plan is a logical suggestion made by the National Liberal Council last January and proposed by Liberal MPs in the Commons.

Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming) asked whether the government intends to make additional changes in the dairy industry as a whole but was told out of order by Speaker Roland Michener.

NEW MEASURES IN CAR ACCIDENT LAW ANNOUNCED

Fund Will Pay Up to $35,000

TORONTO (CP)—An increase to $35,000 in the maximum payments for death or injury caused by uninsured drivers was pro-vided Thursday by Transport Minister Rowntree in an overhaul of Ontario's Unsatisfied Judgment Fund.

Mr. Rowntree introduced legislation concerning the increase and other changes.

In a press statement, he said the new act provides, for out-of-court settlement, tighter restrictions against the uninsured driver, and streamlines the procedure for making a claim and collecting on it.

Henceforth, the fund will be called the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. The term Unsatisfied Judgment Fund was never regarded as official.

WILL BE HIGHEST

The present limit of $35,000 for one or more persons in any single accident—up from the present $10,000 maximum for one person and $20,000 for two or more—"would be the highest in North America," the minister's statement said.

The act also increases to $5,000 from $2,000 the limit of payments out of the fund for property damage.

The Unsatisfied Judgment Fund, which has paid out more than $23,000,000 since it was established in the mid-1930s, is designed to reimburse victims of accidents in which uninsured drivers are involved or left-and-run drivers leave the scene of an accident.

The presene revisions, and others introduced earlier in the session, follow the recommendations of a select legislative committee, on automobile insurance.

PROVIDES FINES

The new act provides for fines up to $100 for drivers convicted of operating a vehicle without having paid an extra $20 fee when registering the insured drivers at the time of the purchase of licence plates.

Under the revised law, a motorist involved in an accident with an uninsured vehicle must report immediately to the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. Adjusters will investigate the claim and try to get immediate out-of-court settlement. Failing that force, the parties involved into legal-formal legal procedures," Mr. Rowntree said.

There are also new provisions allowing the fund to demand from accident to serve a writ on the registrar of motor vehicles "as agent for the uninsured person."

Thus, the victim will not have to track down the defendant and the fund's long court delays caused in the past when the defendant couldn't be located.

COAL REMAINS IMPORTANT POWER SOURCE

Minister Favors National Grid

TORONTO (CP)—Despite the future development of Hydro's nuclear power system, coal will remain for many years as important source of Ontario power, Energy Resources Minister Robert Macaulay told the legislature Thursday.

Introducing his department's estimates, the minister said the province is considering purchasing 100,000 tons of Nova Scotia coal in the near future and may continue "buying a large proportion of Nova Scotia coal" as long as the price is economical.

Nova Scotia coal purchased last year, alongside American coal, has showed it is an excellent product.

Mr. Macaulay said Ontario Hydro alone will probably be consuming 14,000,000 tons of coal a year. However, Hydro power is not developed to the point where now is predicting. Hydro might need 20,000,000 tons of coal—worth $300,000,000.

The minister outlined "very strong" opposition in favor of a national power grid but said Ontario is concerned about the economic implications.

NEEDS STUDY

Replying to a question from Donald Fleming (PC—Eglinton), he said he felt the grid "is technically feasible" but must be studied from all angles.

In Ontario's view, he said, a national grid serve three possible purposes:

1. Make power available to areas which have no power at all.

2. Develop resources more quickly.

3. Assist industrial development.

The grid, is a system by which each province could keep lower cost generators in use. Each would be operated independently by drawing from other provinces in peak periods.

The system, Mr. Macaulay said, would encourage industrial development if the end commodities can be delivered at a price comparable with power developed on site."

ASKS SUBSIDY

Earlier, the Liberal party called for government subsidization of coal to enable it to undercut power rates to keep and expand industry in the province.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) challenged Mr. Macaulay to "put the unequivocal terms" in his inflexible government policy and ask Hydro will never use the device of subsidy to strand industry or keep it here.

"If it is needed, the government has paid matching grants to Hydro to encourage construction of new pulp and coal lines. This was far different than paying parties of the power rates.

HURT NEAR SAULT, DIES

Problem in Reporting Viet Nam War Is to Find Out Where It Is

SAIGON (AP) — One of the battles being fought in South Viet Nam involves the problem of finding out what is going on, and reporting it.

Many correspondents here feel they are losing. On this battle, they say:

The Vietnamese government is against us, they figure, we're spies or Communist propagandists. The U.S. government tells us much beyond the broad outlines of policy, and we can't even be sure of that. After policy, we have to get a story from unofficial sources, or we may end up being blocked by the government.

Underlying the efforts of correspondents is the belief, among some at least, that Viet Nam could become the cradle, of a more widespread war.

The United States has sent nearly 5,000 servicemen to the country, along with major transfusions of equipment for the Vietnamese forces.

Internally, both the government and the Communist Viet Cong have been active in operations.

Ho Nam's seeming inhospitality to correspondents arises from frequent press criticism of President Ngo Dinh Diem's administration. In a country where the nation's powerful first lady, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, condemned "pseudo-democratic" elections "elements" in the West who she said seem more interested in undermining the Diem administration than in winning the war.

Mrs. Nhu's blast was directed specifically at Saigon correspondents but also included all foreign correspondents.

The war here is where you find it, and unless a correspondent can get to a military unit by runs into a Viet Cong ambush, he's not getting much of it at all. Getting permission from officials in Saigon to accompany military operations is sometimes difficult.

As a result, Vietnamese sources regard as taboo questions of stories about political arrests or related police activity.

U.S. officials are reluctant to show reporters military operations in which U.S. servicemen are performing combat roles. Often, because of the nature of U.S. and Vietnamese military air activity, is off limits to the public by correspondents.

Labor Minister Warns Rail Strike Would Be Disastrous

MONTREAL (CP) — A meeting between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, (that) and the strike-threatened CPR and CNR will be held today following a government warning that any tie-up of rail operations would be "utterly disastrous" to Canada's economy.

The meeting, the first since the 4,500 members under announced plans for a walkout against the railways, was called after all sides were asked by Labor Minister, Starr Thursday to make another attempt to settle their contract disputes.

The walkout is closely the Crown-owned CNR is set for noon local time Monday. April 2, and against the privately-owned CPR 24 hours later.

Mr. Starr told the Commons he had urged the resumption of negotiations in a telegram sent Tuesday.

He said he asked the participating to keep him closely in touch with developments and it

B.C. Supreme Court Freezes Assets of B.C. Electric Co.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Supreme Court placed a guard over the assets of the powerful British Columbia Electric Company Thursday, setting off a mass of speculation on what happens next to the province's power picture.

In an action said to break new ground in constitutional law, Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes from Hamilton, Ont., issued an order effective at 10 a.m. PST.

The corporation, former parent of BCEE, asked for the receivership order.

Dr. Harry Purdy, former president of the company and now an economics professor at the University of British Columbia, was named receiver. The court said he must preserve "the undertaking, property and interests" of the company pending trial. While guarding the $800,000,000 assets he will have nothing to do with the day-to-day affairs of the company.

B.C. Electric said it would appeal the order. The hearing is to be Monday.

Shortly after Mr. Justice Mc-ay under the new legislation.

Resistant TB Bacteria Causes Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—Virulent tuberculosis bacteria, resistant rather than vanquished by their encounters with the wonder drugs, present a grave danger to the health of Canadians, the royal commission on health services has been told.

Dr. Lemuel Goodings, executive secretary of the Tuberculosis Association which said drug-resistant TB bacteria are becoming an increasingly troublesome problem.

". . . There is grave danger that resistant strains of tubercle bacilli might cause an epidemic," the association declared.

The TB death rate had fallen spectacularly, but the case rate is still quite high, it said.

Last year in Canada there were 6,254 first admissions to hospitals and sanatoriums, and 5,000 readmissions. This compared with 9,440 cases in 1946 and 4,000 readmissions 10 years earlier.

FEAR OF ROCK

Two big insurance firms—Great - West Life Assurance Company and Metropolitan Life Insurance Company — announced a joint statement to the commission on the role of insurance companies in the health field.

The statement said the "basic characteristic" of health insurance they write—benefits for illness—"is to provide health coverage in some form for as many Canadians as possible—is that it is voluntary.

Commissioner O. J. Firestone questioned David Kilgour of Winnipeg, president of Great-West, on the mechanics of starting a group plan.

Mr. Kilgour said the general practice is to approach the employer first and then the employees to join.

Mr. Firestone said, referring to group plans, "it seems to me there are some compulsory provisions."

Mr. Kilgour said they were not compulsory in the sense that a government-run plan would be compulsory "because both employer and employee could be discontinued or even fired." "That has not been our experience with governments."

MOIRA SECONDARY TEACHERS ON TOUR

Moira Secondary School pupils enjoyed a holiday today as the school doors were closed. Teachers from the school left on a tour of various schools throughout the province. The tour is for one day only.

Teachers are authorized to make this tour once a year. Mr. R. Dulmage of the Quinte High School Board said Quinte Secondary School was closed about three weeks ago for a similar reason.

YOUTH REMANDED FOR VAGRANCY

On Oshawa youth, James H. Campbell, aged 17, was remanded for one week here in city magistrate's court on a charge of vagrancy.

Inspector J. McLauchlan asked the magistrate to remand the case for one week for further investigation.

FALSE PRETENCES CHARGE DISMISSED

Earlier this week Alfred G. Jones, a former Belleville citizen, appeared here in city magistrate's court on a charge of obtaining food and lodging from a local motel under false pretences. He asked for a remand to obtain legal counsel and entered a plea of not guilty.

Today the same accused Mr. Jones was dismissed by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when the crown offered no evidence.

Two Impaired Drivers Fined

Two Belleville men were each fined $100 and costs after city magistrate's court here this morning when they appeared on a charge of impaired driving.

Wilfred P. Fitzgibbon of 180 Avondale Road, was charged after he was involved in an accident with another car at the intersection of Moira Street West and Sidney Street. It is alleged Mr. Fitzgibbon failed to stop at a stop sign, striking a car which was proceeding north on Moira Street.

Mr. Fitzgibbon pleaded guilty to the charge.

Ronald F. Archer was fined $100 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving. A car driven by Mr. Archer was involved in a motor vehicle accident on Hillside Street on Wednesday.

Inspector J. McLachlan told the court that the accused had been proceeding south on Hillside St. and while driving on the wrong side of the road, came into collision with a motorized vehicle driven by William Farrier of 24 Alfred Drive.

Magistrate Wills told the accused, in passing sentence, he was lucky he wasn't being sent to jail.

Start on New Level Bridge, Substantial Road Program Seen for P.E. County

PICTON — Capital construction program at the Ontario Department of Highways 'for fiscal years 1962-63 includes several projects in Prince Edward-Lennox.

Among them is the high-level bridge linking Prince Edward from Mountainview Range to Hastings County and Highways 2 and 401 near Desoronto.

Paving is to include the 7.5 miles between Bloomfield and Crofton on highway 14, which was prepared last year.

Grading, drainage and granular base work is planned on highway 62 from the village of Hillier northerly, including the Consecon by-pass and 1.6 miles of old highway 33 from the Picton County road to Consecon by-pass, a total of 4.1 miles. This is a new work. This new highway will follow a route up Pleasant View Road to Pleasant Bay School, through Partridge Hollow, coming out above Consecon Hill. The by-pass will take heavy traffic from Consecon's main street and avoid the sharp turn there. Instead, it will run east of the village to join up with the present highway at Mc-Kills' garage. The diversion includes building of a concrete bridge across the Consecon Riv-er.

Re-location of part of this highway not only eliminates sections with bad turns, but will avoid two dangerous railway crossings, one near Ross Bush's and the other in a cutting.

In the Lennox section work will include grading, drainage, granular base and paving of highway 33 at Millbrewn northerly to Napanee, including 0.4 miles of highway 33, a total of 6.3 miles. This will permit heavy traffic to reach Napanee without having to pass through the built up areas nearer Kingston.

Morris Whitney, M.P.P. for Prince Edward, who confirmed these plans, stated that the development road work would also continue.

The municipal road program for 1962 shows Prince Edward County to spend $175,000 and town, villages and townships $191,000 a total of $366,000 eligible for subsidy. Subsidies are 50 per cent for towns on mileage; 50 per cent for roads and 80 per cent for bridges in townships; 50 per cent for roads and 80 per cent for bridges in villages, under the municipal road program of the Province.

JACKIE'S TIGER DIES

NEW DELHI (AP) — One of two Bengal tiger cubs presented to Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy on her Indian visit died at Prime Minister Nehru's official residence Thursday night. Doctors said someone wrongly fed the nine-month old cub raw meat, resulting in the death of the female partner, Mohini. The male cub, Mohan, was seriously ill.

Barbershoppers Will Take Part In Competition

On Wednesday night's gathering of the Belleville Barbershoppers a time feature was added to the meeting. The fellowship and harmony were there, but also added was that well-known dentist 'hard work'.

The chapter agreed to enter its chorus in the spring competitions at Kitchener to be held April 27, and Chorus Director Don Sexsmith put them through their paces in order to have every part just right. Ray Williams, Assistant Director, also had a hand in this by preparing the group in steps and harmony. The art of blending like a chorus is just as important as sounding like one and singing in one key are days to some. The members seemed to appreciate the extra efforts given to them and were very pleased with the results it has produced in so short a time.

After chorus rehearsal, the quartet competition was held directed by master of ceremonies Ross Sedgwyer. The program consisted of quartets chosen at random, group singing of many old favorites and Belleville's newest quartet, The Bell-Villains were on hand to size up the competition. The new quartet consists of Dalton Keys, tenor, Ray Williams, lead, Keith Chandler, baritone and Ross Sedgwyer bass. Out of town guests for the evening were Harold Fralick Napanee, Roy Keys, Newmarket.

The chapter wishes to welcome a new member Don Gibson of Trenton.

President Dalton Keys announced great plans for the 1962 meeting — 'Old Timers' Night', March 30th at St. Mary-Moodie-Hill at 8.30 p.m. and that enemy ex-Barbershoppers will be attending. An invitation to all men to attend this meeting was extended.

The meeting wound up with the singing of 'Keep America Singing' and 'Let's Get Together Again'.

PLAN HYDRO DAMS

NEW YORK (AP)—The South African government plans to harness the country's biggest river, the Orange River, with a major dam for a $650,000,000 hydro - electric and water conservation project, it was announced here Thursday by the Hamilton Wright Organization.

Planning for the entire Orange River will be the largest in Africa, and is expected to take more than 25 years.

Kiwanians Told Of Link Between Smoking, Cancer

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club the guest speaker, Donald told the members of what science has discovered about the relationship of smoking to lung cancer.

Dr. McDonald said that scientists were getting "very close" to an answer in their search for the cause of cancer.

He said that in spite of arguments to the contrary, (arguments, it would seem by the most part, by tobacco manufacturers), it was just impossible not to conclude that smoking and lung cancer were related.

Dr. McDonald said that cigarets were the worst offender. Pipe and cigar smoke also and or pipes are not taking the same chance as do cigarets smokers.

While Dr. McDonald admitted that the smoking habit was hard to break he said that it was not impossible to cut down, and a consumption at least, and that it would be better for young people if they did not start smoking at all.

Dr. McDonald showed the film "Cigarets, Fun, TV, Smoke or Not to Smoke," which has been shown to the school children of the town.

Paul Tripp was presented with a gift for his regular attendance at club meetings and Carl Weese received his 25 year membership pin.

Carl Weese reported that the Trenton Police Ball had been a very successful club project and he thanked all those who had helped. Mr. Weese is the general chairman for the project.

Bruce Todd who will be leaving Trenton the first of the month was introduced by Frank Hand of Kingston, as a potential new member.

Learn Condition Of H. Haggarty Still Critical

TRENTON — Word was received in Trenton yesterday that Harold Haggarty of Wooler, injured in a head-on car crash in Toronto on Monday, had undergone brain surgery Tuesday night in the Memorial Hospital at Savannah, Georgia, and that he was still considered to be in critical condition.

Yesterday, Mrs. Jacqueline Haggarty, the former Jacqueline Bourgoin of Trenton who moved from the Memorial Hospital at Savannah, Georgia to the Savannah hospital where her husband is a patient. Mrs. Haggarty is in very reasonable improvement, according to reports, but is still considered to be in a critical condition.

A number of the couple's close friends have gone from the east to Georgia to be with Mr. and Mrs. Haggarty.

Douglas Whitley of Trenton, Mr. Haggarty's insurance agent said he had received word from his head office that Mr. Haggarty was in very reasonable for Monday's, accident, which took place 11 miles north of Louden, Georgia. Police say that the driver of the other car involved was driving on the wrong side of the road when the accident occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Haggarty were returning from a vacation in Florida.

Temple Warns Civil Liberties Are in Danger

TRENTON — In an address to members of the Trenton Kiwanis Club last night, Rabbi Silla barzker, Robert Temple, warned that many of the basic assumptions Canadian citizens entertain in regard to their civil liberties and individual freedoms were nothing more than assumptions.

Mr. Temple said that there was a move on foot by some people to abolish the "trial by jury" system, where the decision pertaining to civil cases were concerned. Once this was accomplished, said the speaker, the instigators would go on to the next step, abolishment of the jury system in criminal trials.

The speaker said that most people think it is for granted that, in accordance with English law, if found guilty on a charge a person has the right to appeal. He said that this was not necessarily true. Some judicial districts have no right to such an appeal. He said that the individual can suffer through the application of some arbitrary powers.

"A man's home is his castle" was a privilege formerly entertained by the rank and file, said the speaker.

As a case in point, Mr. Temple said that if a man were suspected of having committed a crime, police officers or others must obtain a warrant to enter his home and search premises. However, under the liquor control act, if a man is suspected of having liquor in his home, purchased illegally, in his possession, no warrant is needed to search his premises.

Mr. Temple said that a growing tendency to put the onus on the individual to prove innocence, the individual would, in the long run, interfere with the individual's rights and liberties.

Once we start tampering with our basic concepts of justice and permit the "state" to do away with rights and freedoms, said the speaker, we are more or less asking for a complete reversal of our traditional system of meting out justice to the individual.

He urged his listeners to examine every piece of legislation brought down by the government in power . . . be it Liberal or Conservative . . . and if proved to their members of parliament if, in their opinion, any rights of the individual are violated by this legislation.

Company Will Start Sewer Work Monday

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldersey said yesterday that the firm of Underhill & Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers for the town that work on the installation of sewers on Front and Sidney Streets would commence on Monday, March 26.

Later, Mr. W. C. Tetham of the Tetham Construction Company at Rossmore said that it would be impossible to say at this time just where the crews doing would commence operations. He indicated, however, that it was feasible that work might be started in the government section of the area, adjoined by Front Street, because of the drainage problem at this time of year.

Mr. Tetham said that two and possibly three work gangs would be engaged in the laying of the pipe.

The Tetham Company won the contract over seven other tenderers at the town hall, when it was let. The installation will cost the town $175,000.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Mild strength prevailed during moderate morning trading on the stock market today.

Industrials showed a mixed gain on index.

Consolidated Paper, Bell Telephone and Atlas Steel all rose ¼. Imperial Oil, Canadian Canadiene and Abitibi were each off ⅛.

Price Brothers and Dominion Foundries and Steel each dropped ⅛.

On the exchange index, industrials rose .12 at 626.02 and western oils .43 at 118.50. Golds dipped .18 at 87.20 and base metals .21 at 204.90. The 11 a.m. volume was 863,000 shares compared with 829,000 at the same time Thursday.

Base metals were weakened by losses of ⅛ and ¼ to International Nickel and Ventures respectively. Labrador rose ½.

Among specialties, Canada Malting gale climbed 35 cents to $6.35 and Lake Dufault 10 cents to $5.35.

Calgary and Edmonton gained ⅛ in western oils. Pacific Petroleum added ⅛ and Bailey Selburn A gained five cents to $9.15.

The market Thursday extended its losing string to four sessions. Trading was light.

Industrials, down more than two points on index at mid-afternoon, recovered slightly late in the day but still ended more than one point below Wednesday's closing level. All other sections showed minus signs.

Industrial losers included Abitibi, down ¾, Interprovincial Pipe Line, off ⅝, Shawinigan down ¼ and Atlas Steel, off ⅛.

Banks provided an undertone of strength, with Montreal up ⅜, Nova Scotia ¼, Toronto-Dominion ¼ and Royal ¾.

BC Power gained and Algoma Steel ⅝, while Dominion Foundries and Steel climbed 1⅛ to 86¼. Foundation Company, subject to its heaviest trading since an annonymous takeover bid was announced last week, rose ⅝ to 14¼.

On index, industrials dropped 1.06 to 623.96, golds .03 to 87.20, base metals .84 to 205.11 and north-western oils 1.09 to 118.07. Volume was 2,878,000 shares compared with Wednesday's 2,153,000.

Labrador dropped one point in base metals and International Nickel ¾. Ventures rose ½. Speculatives saw Northgate gain 30 cents to $2 and Lake Dufault 10 cents to $5.25.

Other western oils, Calgary and Edmonton fell one point to 23¼.

LIBERAL CHIEF HONORED — Close to 200 persons attended the two-dollar a plate dinner held in honor of Lester B. Pearson, Liberal leader, at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon. Shown above conversing with Mr. Pearson are (left to right) Jerry O'Connor and Mrs. O'Connor, Mr. Pearson, Robert Temple and South Hastings' Liberal candidate Robert Temple.

Liberal Leader Says Govt. Record Deplorable in Talk To 200 at the Hotel Quinte

Lester B. "Mike" Pearson, Liberal Leader of the Opposition, stated yesterday that he agreed wholeheartedly with Canada's Prime Minister that the forthcoming federal election should be fought on the Conservative government's record over the past four-and-a-half years. He was addressing a close to 200 local Liberals and citizens who attended a luncheon in his honor at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon.

He criticized the recent attempts by government supporters to attack personalities in the Liberal Party and citizens who were coming forward to offer their services as candidates in the coming election.

"This is not good enough for Canada in 1962", he exclaimed and requested that the Conservatives keep their political discussions to policy matters since the world situation is too serious to waste time by indulging in character assassinations.

Included with his request that the Conservatives discuss vital policy issues rather than verbal attacks on prospective Liberal members of Parliament, Mr. Pearson accused the Diefenbaker government of "indecision, confusion, fumbling and bumbling" on vital policy matters and charged that this constant indecision has cost Canada much in international prestige as a former leader of world opinion amongst the middle powers.

Abroad foreign newspapers and diplomats say "what has happened to Canada?" he declared.

Defense, he insisted, was too important to be submerged in partisan politics and no less important to have no firm policy set down. He termed as "irresponsible" the government's decision to purchase $400,000,000 worth of new aircraft for the RCAF squadrons in NATO when these aircraft were especially designed to use nuclear weapons and the Diefenbaker cabinet had yet to make any decisions as to whether they would accept the use of nuclear arms.

There has been a suggestion that these fighters could be unarmed in a matter of 30 minutes to an hour in the event of an emergency and if the Conservatives did approve of the use of nuclear warheads and rockets, he advised. With it taking but 17 minutes for a missile launched in Russia to reach North America this period hardly offered enough time he suggested.

Currently, Mr. Pearson stated, these warheads are filled with sand. No doubt this material is being used because it is the same as that into which the government heads appear to have placed most of the time, he added.

The Conservative government has been guilty of failing to produce an adequate policy regarding unemployment and a failing Canadian economy, the Liberal leader accused. Although figures have been produced to show that more people are now working than ever before these figures reflect only the natural increase in the population of Canada and are not at all supported by the per capita figures which show that the individual Canadian has, on a national scale, suffered a decrease in his real income and his productivity, he advised.

During the last 10 years of the former Liberal government Canada's productivity was increasing at a rate of 4.6 per cent per year. Since the Conservatives took power in 1957 this figure has fallen to an average of only 1.5 per cent per year, he declared.

Mr. Pearson promised that Canada has been the only country in the western world to be in a constant cycle of recessions and recoveries whilst countries such as in Western Europe have experienced enough but prosperity and almost full employment. Canada has the highest unemployment figure any comparable western country while under the Conservatives. A by-product of this situation is the unfortunate fact that Canada is losing many of her best educated and trained personnel to the United States as there has been an increase in emigration which almost matches immigration every other year, he advised.

There is a lot of disenchantment in Canada over the present government, the Liberal leader advised. Canada has not depend on this to win the next election, however. This must be won by convincing the people of Canada that the Liberals can form a government which can produce positive policies and do the best possible job of running the country, he urged.

"We will put on a campaign worthy of commendation to the Canadian people," he concluded amidst a standing ovation from those present.

During his preliminary remarks, Mr. Pearson noted that he always seemed to stop by in Belleville whenever he was on his way to Kingston. This practice first developed in 1956 was a coach for the University of Toronto football team and they would stop overnight in Belleville for a rest on their way to Kingston to play against Queen's University. This was always an enjoyable experience, he advised.

That evening Mr. Pearson addressed a dinner and ball having over 900 people for a Liberal nomination convention in the Limestone City. Earlier he stopped in Napanee to address a crowd of about 200 people.

During his luncheon in Belleville, Mr. Pearson was introduced by local Liberal candidate Robert Temple as the "next prime minister of Canada." Mayor A. McLean Haig welcomed on behalf of the city and noted the distinction which he had brought to Canada as an architect of both the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Roy Sills, president of the South Hastings Liberal Association was chairman for the meeting.

Canadians' Leading Worries Seem to Be About Defence, Unemployment - - Pearson

What questions are most frequently asked of the leader of the Opposition during his visits around the country? This was asked Hon. Lester B. Pearson during a brief informal chat in the Hotel Quinte yesterday morning.

Unemployment and defence policies appear to worry most Canadians, he answered.

Unemployment queries are accompanied frequently by a concern as to how the upcoming generation is to be trained to meet the world ahead of them. This part of the problem is in the field of provincial affairs but the unemployment situation is a federal government matter, Mr. Pearson observed.

People are taking a very personal interest in Canada's defence and not as a political issue but as a real problem for which there has been no firm policy established, Mr. Pearson commented.

Social security especially in the pension and health fields, also attracts the interest of the Canadian citizen across Canada, the Liberal leader said.

PENSION PROPOSALS

Most people have been confused about the Liberal pension increase proposals and have interpreted them as being an attempt to outbid the Conservatives. Hence a number of questions come up on this subject, Mr. Pearson said. Actually the Liberal plan for increased pensions is based on a contributory system involving both the individual and his employer and pensions would not come out of general revenues, he explained.

Commenting briefly on social security in general, Mr. Pearson said that he felt it was most important not to allow it to develop to the point where the individual's identity and independence would be compromised or forfeited.

A distinctive Canadian flag and national anthem are still subjects of considerable interest also Mr. Pearson remarked.

RESPONSE PLEASING

Asked to comment on his party's prospects in the coming election, Mr. Pearson responded quickly and enthusiastically. Increasing interest was being shown in the Liberal Party by those in all walks of life in every section of Canada he had visited, he said.

He expressed particular delight in the very high quality of Canadian citizen who was stepping forth and offering his services to the Liberal Party as a candidate or worker. Many of these people, he declared, had little or no previous interest in politics and they were offering their services because of a sense of public responsibility.

This attitude is vital to democracy and to a party if it is to form the best possible government for the people, he stated.

The large attendance, especially of young people, at Liberal meetings also augured well for the Liberals, Mr. Pearson suggested, in that it showed that more and more people were looking to them for positive leadership.

Approve New Sub-division, 145 Lots, on Haig Sideroad

The booming residential development in the east end of the city still continues to roll.

Last night the Belleville Suburban Planning Board approved of plans for a 145-lot housing sub-division on the east side of the Haig Sideroad between No. 3 Highway and Victoria Ave.

The latest smaller sub-division of about 40 lots in the same general area is still to be approved, is expected to be later tied in with the same development.

Principal in the sub-division development is the Maple Glen View Realty Ltd., of which local realtor Don Whalen is the president. Other local men associated with the development are realtor Fred Joyce, builder Maurice Rollins and Wm. Argue.

Mr. Whalen said today plans call for commencement of construction in the early summer.

Labor Retains Yorkshire Seat

PONTEFRACT, England (Reuters) — The labor party easily retained parliamentary seat in a by-election here Thursday with a big majority over the conservative party challenger, it was announced today.

Labor candidate Joseph Haseldine was given a plurality of 19,528 votes in the Yorkshire constituency. The results:

Harper—26,461 votes; Paul Dean, Conservative—6,633; Russell Eckley, Independent—1,146.

In the 1959 general election, Labor had a majority of 24,310 votes in a straight fight with a Conservative. Labor candidate, G. O. Sylvester received 25,134 votes to 10,884 for Conservative E. T. Bowman.

Possible Break-Through

It would be easy to over-estimate, but just as easy to under-estimate the importance of Premier Khrushchev's agreement with President Kennedy's program for co-operation between Russia and the United States in space exploration.

There will be some who will regard Khrushchev's assertion that possibilities for such co-operation will be limited without general and complete disarmament as an effort, in the very act of agreement, to pave the way for later refusal to co-operate.

This, though, is to refuse to face facts. Khrushchev's point was valid. As he said, "it would be better if we see all the sides of the question in a realistic light." Indeed, President Kennedy himself, in outlining his proposed program for co-operation, had obviously been keenly aware of precisely this same limitation of possibilities. The importance of Khrushchev's acceptance is that he agreed with President Kennedy as to the general areas in which co-operation is possible at this time. From what has been reported of his message, the Russian Premier did not mean to infer that those co-operative projects suggested by the President were not feasible, except in a world which was disarmed. Indeed, the very fact that both nations are armed to the teeth, and that the cold war divides them, makes some of Kennedy's proposals doubly attractive to Russia. For instance, Kennedy suggested that the two nations co-operate in the field of satellites for weather observations, mapping the earth's magnetic field and experimenting in intercontinental communications. Khrushchev agreed in principle to all these projects, and it is easy to see how such co-operation would be immensely to Russia's advantage. It would provide her with assurance that such satellites were being used for the purpose designated, and not to spy out her missile bases and similar defence sites.

It would be naive, though, to suppose that such a mere agreement in principle assures co-operation. It will be immensely difficult, in the present state of world tensions, to work out the practical details for such co-operation. For instance, are the co-operating satellites going to let each other into the secrets of the rockets which must be used to launch the satellites? If the co-operation proposal goes on the rocks over what some may regard as mere details, we ought not to be surprised.

There is other hand, it is found possible to put this agreement of co-operation into practice, the result could be tremendously significant. Co-operation, like any other habit, grows stronger the more it is practised. If the two nations learn to trust each other a little, there will inevitably arise some project, which both are eager to undertake, which will further the mutual trust. If the desire to co-operate has grown strong enough, by virtue of past successes, this trust may be forthcoming.

Incidentally, we have been talking about Khrushchev agreeing with President Kennedy. But it would be equally accurate to refer to Kennedy agreeing with Khrushchev. Khrushchev first proposed co-operation, after early, disappointing triumphal orbits of the earth. Kennedy replied with specific proposals. Khrushchev has agreed to these proposals. What may have started as a propaganda move may blossom into a real achievement, because neither Khrushchev nor Kennedy has been afraid to appear uncooperative. This may prove to be their most significant asset. But to dismiss the whole possibility would be to exhibit a pessimistic disregard not only for the logic of the whole plan but also for the powerful impetus which fear of a propaganda defeat gives to it.

No Culture Prevents One Becoming Old

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Can any culture prevent people from becoming rigid and stratified: as they grow older?

Can any culture help them remain flexible and inquisitive, courageous in challenging their own beliefs as well as the beliefs of others?

This may be the central problem of mankind, if we survive the physical dangers of the present. I ask these questions not rhetorically, but because my daily mail forces them upon me.

The letters I receive from adolescents and college students are by far the most interesting, the best thought-out and the most self-searching. They are, for the most part, honestly trying to get at the truth.

The letters I receive from older people, with a few exceptions, are as tightly closed as an oyster shell. Their opinions have calcified years ago; they are now just repeating formulas that have given them comfort, rather than openly investigating the grounds of their beliefs.

We know that the joints harden as we grow older; that we forget is that mental processes harden, too, and that mental arthritis of the mind begins to set in by 40, and sometimes earlier.

Age may bring wisdom; more often, however, it brings cynicism, resignation, and the hardening of the arteries into a system that shuts out all change, all fundamental inquiry.

Whatever the faults and follies of youth — its rashness, its stubbornness, its indifference to the past — our correspondence indicates that more young people than older people are genuinely interested about the basic problems that confront all of us.

Not only their thoughts, but also their feelings are freer; they are not afraid of emotional upheavals, probably because they do not have as much of an emotional investment in life. We who have given hostages to fortune have to too much involved in the immediate to think much about the ultimate; only the very young and the very old can afford this.

Yet, the future of mankind rests upon our flexibility in the face of changing conditions. Technology is moving along at a mile a second; but our mental processes, with their fixations and social patterns are lagging far behind.

It is ironic that man, the only animal that can control and modify his environment, is now being pulled along, willy-nilly, by his environment he has created. Only the young seem to be questioning the direction, the velocity and the ultimate destination of our journey.

A Shilling a Nail-Hole

Stratford Beacon-Herald

"A shilling a nail-hole" is the phrase that leaps up out of memory, with the news that the bleak old barrack blocks at Aldershot, in the southern England county of Hampshire. There are some hundreds of thousands of Canadian veterans of two world wars who will agree that they have come down about 50 years later than they should have been. The one thing that reconciles us to the possibility of a Third World War is that cheery reassurance that if it happens, Aldershot barracks will not be there, and the Canadian troops can be transferred in them.

There may have been some profoundly clever plan which called for regiments and battalions to be quartered in and out of Aldershot barracks during the unpleasantness of 1939-45, for the effect on their morale. Almost anything, one supposes, would be better than the no other horror of war could seem quite as horrible, and it may have had a beneficial, if some incredibly high level on the War Office, that the heart of the British Army should not be lifted by allowing them to march out of Aldershot.

The second line on the Aldershot training area, and from life in the drab, depressing, unbeatable barracks there was always spoiled, however, by that special Aldershot device, "Barrack Damages". Some Canadian battalions were in and out of Aldershot four or five times during the Second World War, and each time they marched out, their regimental funds were leveled by the barrack damages system. The permanent camp staff always presented the outgoing unit with a list of "damages", and the bill was always shockingly high, and there was no good way to beat the ironclad system for which it existed for collecting it.

One of the unbeatable wrinkles of the barrack damages racket was to charge the outgoing unit shilling a nail-hole, for every dint and dimple that could be pointed out in the dingy old woodwork of the barrack rooms. There are worm-holes in that old wood which must have netted fortunes for Aldershot Camp; we do not know of any case in which a Canadian unit, in thehaste of departure from Aldershot, succeeded in proving that an allegedly nail-hole had been there before the unit marched in. At a shilling a nail-hole, Canadians bought those buildings; the bright side of the picture is that we did not have to take them.

Would Finish An Old Joy

Richmond Times Dispatch

From an article in the current issue of a nationally circulated woman's magazine, we learn that parents may, in the near to distant future, be able to decide on the sex of their unborn children.

The authority behind this opinion is a physician attached to a research New York medical school, and he quotes in terms of successful surveys and experiments to prove his seemingly wild statements.

Maybe we're crusty old conservatives, but we admit to finding the implications behind this idea a bit disturbing.

Ever since Adam and Eve, expectant parents have spent joyful hours speculating on whether it was going to be a girl or a boy.

This happy wondering, this sense of mystery, the mounting excitement of the last few weeks and the final revelation when the little stranger appears to confirm or deny the joy of "It's a boy!" or "It's a girl!" seem to us an important and lovely part of the birth.

If and when science let us decide on the sex of our children and, according to the magazine article, the medical discoveries . . . provide the definite promise that predetermination of sex is now a close possibility," it's going to make life more complicated for parents.

We may overhear conversations along these lines: "Let's have a girl next time, dear, because then we'll make a match for her with the Smiths' girl, you know, the sweet Mrs. little boy. They're very well Smith say she was planning a baby for next March."

Or, "Let's make them all girls, Sidney, so that they can wear each other's clothes."

It may be more convenient but it's going to take a lot of the fun out of life.

JFK to Rescue Of Consumers

Christian Science Monitor

Political scientists have long mused about the possibility of harnessing the consumer vote. But only mused. The professional politician's view of this potential everyman's bloc is clear. There never has been a rousing representative of consumer interests in the American government.

During his campaign President Kennedy promised such representation. He has now, directed his Congress, in the most comprehensive summary of government aid to the consumer ever made by the White House, that he intends to fulfill at least half of that promise. A new consumer's advisory council is to be created. The effective scope, beyond present lone-wolf efforts by the Federal Trade Commission, Food and Drug administration, etc., remains to be proved.

Otherwise the presidential message is more notable for what it denounces to the public than for what it offers in the new. In essence, it simply gives the go-ahead signal to the administrator to Senator Kefauver's effort against drug hucksters, Senator Hruska's campaign against deceptive packaging and Senator Douglas' campaign against misleading consumer credit.

We have consistently supported these legislative efforts because they are endorsed by thousands of new drugs with pseudo-scientific names, big packages with little in them, fat inflations, and loan sharks with usurious charges. We continue to do so.

When the industrial age first dawned, man was chiefly a producers. In its present mass production stage people are valued by their consumption — wearers of lipsticks, buyers of Detroit's tailfins. Their government, in its role as referee, should be authorized to set minimum standards for their protection, even though no political consumer bloc may ever exist.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WE WORK FOR OTHERS

It is impossible for a selfish person to be happy. It is easier for the average person to pass through the needle's eye.

On the other hand, unhappy persons are not always selfish. All too often they are the most unselfish of humans.

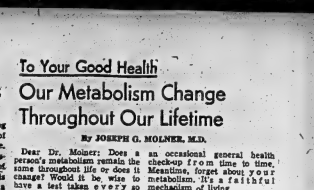
Embedded, enshrined, protected and deeply beloved, there is in the heart of every noble human being of earth some one other human being who is the inspiration, the hope, the one glorified, who lives as the main, loving and all-absorbing object.

After Daniel Webster finished the "Reply to Hayne" the masterpiece of his career — he turned to a bystander and said: "Now, Peter, I am ready to die!" Zeke was his dead brother who had been the inspiration and favorable compassion of his early years.

"When I sing well, I want you to meet me in the wings of the world, and I'll sing me to you arms, kiss my cheek, and whisper it was all right." The great Patti wrote this to her lover.

Unless there is in this world, or in one's self, understanding, someone who is noble and great enough to be willing to sacrifice for the good of another, even when it costs a great deal to do it. Then, as a matter, it triumphs we attain, no matter what successor acclaim, they will be found to be what we remain weary, lonely figures in a world of darkness.

We work for others. No; for the applause of a nation, or a world, but for the love, sympathy and appreciation of but one, or the most but a lovable handful.



There is nothing quite so unlovely in a human being as to take without giving in return an act, a life, understanding appreciation.

Money of itself, can never replace the love and warmth of a heart. There must always be behind, and giving me to, for others, the feel, the struggle, the all of what we are in ourselves.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

With interest, I listened to a group of young men, scholars all, who were gathered behind a fence to see another that our western world is now deep-rooting in the second industrial revolution, due to automation. Like the first industrial revolution, two centuries ago, the new one will result in basic disorganization of industry, they said, and there will be widespread unemployment. Among them, the young men had numerous instances in which the second industrial revolution already resembles the first.

One of them told of the oil refinery in which his father was employed, and which is employed six hundred men. Now it has been automated and but seven operate the refinery which is producing considerably more oil than it did in the hands of the six hundred.

"But," said another, "if the 594 who are laid off don't find gainful employment, who is going to buy the products of the six?"

Automation's biggest problem, they agreed, is the production of consumers.

Yet Your Good Health Can Be Thrown Out of Whack By Your Metabolism

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does a person's metabolism remain the same throughout life or does it change? Would it be true to have a test taken every so often?

The word metabolism means change. Life is a continuing process of changing our food into energy or into tissue. Medically we refer to this as fat metabolism, mineral metabolism, sugar metabolism.

However, the word is most commonly used in reference to basal metabolism, or heat production.

Yes, metabolism changes throughout life, from many causes. At birth it is relatively low. It increases rapidly in a few weeks and continues to climb in early childhood.

There's another increase at puberty, caused by glandular changes. After the 20's there is a gradual and perfectly normal decline to old age. Females tend to be about 10 per cent lower than males of the same age.

Heavy work tends to raise the metabolism rate. Climate can cause a variation of 10 per cent in the rate. Sleep, and tranquilizers, increased in very cold areas.

Pregnancy raises the rate 15 to 20 per cent. Faulty nutrition can lower the rate. Fever is a variations occur in average, normal people.

In addition, diseases can alter the metabolic rate—fever, to take a simple one, raises it. Lack of adequate traces of iodine and other glandular disturbances can upset it, too.

But when you are well, there's no need to worry about your metabolism. It constantly and automatically adjusts to your needs.

Thus there's no reason for "periodic check-ups" of your metabolic rate. Rather, it's the kind of test that becomes useful when something happens to go wrong with you health.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your booklet tests are needed, that doesn't mean that you shouldn't have an occasional general health check-up from time to time. Meantime, forget about your metabolism. It's a faithful mechanism of living.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are you aware that some doctors are now treating hypoglycemia with Orinase? Would you inform me of the theory or basis for this? S.H.W.

Yes, I'm aware of these efforts. Hypoglycemia, you see, isn't always just a matter of low blood sugar. In some cases there is a sharp rise in sugar, followed by extremely low levels.

The use of Orinase has been tried in such cases on the theory that the rise in sugar increases secretion of insulin by the pancreas — and this increased insulin in turn then uses up sugar at a rate which makes the level of sugar (the hypoglycemia) more severe.

This work is still fairly new, and I cannot offer an opinion as to how successful it may prove to be.

The treatment, in any event, is not to be undertaken by all types of hypoglycemia. The test, however, is being used in diagnosis of it.

Dear Sir: A friend told me that a teaspoon of vinegar and sugar can cure an asthmatic person. Have any truth to this? — M.E.M.

None whatsoever. It's surprising, isn't it, how many wild stories as this keep being repeated.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? Postpaid, send Dr. Molner's helpful new booklet, How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed. Write your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Ontario Intelligencer, Box 639, Mount Morris, Ill. Enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

44,422 Cows Inseminated In Six Counties of Assoc. During Year Meeting Told

The Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association did a $267,460 business during the past year, it is shown in the Association's financial report.

The annual meeting of the Association was held yesterday at the Club Canara in Belleville when annual reports on the year's operations were received.

The meeting also elected new directors and heard as guest speakers Edmund H. Fallon, general manager of the Co-operative G.J.F. Exchange of Ithaca, N.Y., and W. P. Watson, Chief, Production and Extension, Department of Agriculture, Ontario.

$5,500 NET LOSS

The financial statement presented at the meeting showed expenditures for 1961 of $267,-679 with receipts of $262,480, or a net loss of $5,200.

Administrative expenses for the Association totalled $80,372; Sales and Service expenses were $131,172; laboratory costs were $41,778 and miscellaneous $14,356.

The revenue from service and other fees totalled $229,-and sales of semen to Kemptville and O.A.A.B. $18,313.

The Association sheet showed assets of $151,406, including fixed items of land and buildings, equipment and livestock with a depreciated value of $76,356.

Cost of land, buildings, equipment and livestock is set at $182,636, which has been depreciated by $106,356.

44,422 COWS BRED

In his master's report, Dr. J. M. McLean told breeders that during the past year a total of 44,422 cows had been inseminated in the six counties making up the breeders' association. This was an increase of 2,840, the largest, increase since 1954.

He said there had been a marked increase in the use of sexed semen since 1959 when only 3 per cent of services had been by this method. In 1960, 25 per cent of the services were with frozen semen and last year 41 per cent. The advantages of frozen semen make it indispensable in the selective service now offered breeders," he said.

But in addition to its operation in artificial insemination, Dr. McLean declared that the local breeders' unit was also in the cattle improvement business and to do this effectively it was important that only the best possible bulls be used.

But to enter successfully into a young-live proving program a much large number of bulls must be owned by the local association, he reported.

NEED 45 BULLS

The Association now has 15 Holstein bulls and at least 45 would be required to embark on the proper bull proving program.

"We would need at least 45 bulls and be able to do it on the volume of business which we have now. Bulls mean money," noted the Association manager.

This, he said, was the prime reason behind the suggested amalgamation of the Quinte District Breeders and the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeding Association at Kemptville.

"Alone, neither organization has the volume necessary for the program. Together we have," he said.

Deputy Speaker To Co-operate With Members

TORONTO (CP)—The deputy Speaker of the legislature assured members, Thursday, that he has no intention of infringing on their rights and asked their co-operation in carrying out his duties.

The unusual statement was made in the legislature by Kelso Brown (PC — Peterborough), who was chairman Tuesday night, when a half-hour ruckus broke between Mines Minister Wardrope and the opposition parties. The opposition moved a vote of no-confidence in Mr. Brown's conduct as chairman after the brawl.

Mr. Brown said he would be the first to admit his inexperience—his is his first year in the post—and "while I may have been mistaken about the correct procedure, I do not think so."

The opposition contended he should have ordered Mr. Wardrope to withdraw statements the minister made. Mr. Brown did not make the order.

Mr. Brown said he found the situation "very confusing and difficult" and had trouble finding order in the chaos.

Both Opposition Leader John Wintermeyer and NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald later offered party co-operation in keeping order.

Peronistas Stage Strike In Argentine

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Followers of exiled dictator Juan D. Peron launched a country-wide anti-government strike today as military pressure mounted for president Arturo Frondizi's ouster.

National police went on battle alert as the strike began at midnight amid fears of violence.

Peron labor unions summoned nearly 2,000,000 workers to strike for 24 hours in protest against Frondizi's decree — ordered by the military — nullifying sweeping Peronist victories in National Assembly and provincial elections last Sunday.

The first effect of the strike was not expected to be felt until later in the day, but officials predicted it would not be particularly telling. The powerful Transport Workers Union said it would not take part. Other unions also refused to join in, but went on record as opposed to Frondizi.

The three-armed service secretaries met with top military commanders at Government House in an early, secret meeting at first described as "decisive." The 90 - minute session broke up at 3:30 a.m. with no announcement.

PRESS DEMANDS

Word leaked out that Interim navy leaders once again pressed their demands that Frondizi resign. Army and air force chiefs, who had stood for retaining Frondizi, were reported wavering under the navy officers' insistence that he be ousted.

60 High School Students From Elzevir, Huntingdon Twps. Moved to Tweed

Except for possible individual cases where extenuating circumstances might make the change inadvisable, approximately 60 high school students from Elzevir and Huntingdon Townships will be transferred next September from the Tweed high school to the high school at Madoc.

The decision to transfer the students to Madoc was made Wednesday evening at a special meeting of the Centre Hastings High School board on recommendation from the Onterio Department of Education.

High School Board Chairman Kel Kincaid of Madoc said today the board took the action for two reasons, 1. to make it unnecessary for the students to travel to the Tweed school and to the Madoc school in the middle of the term when the new Tweed-Hungerford High School area comes into being in 1963, 2. to make the present Tweed high school which would otherwise be forced to add more classrooms to take care of the enrolment, if outside students were to be accommodated.

WILLING TO CO-OPERATE

"No doubt there will be extenuating circumstances where it might cause hardship for certain students from Elzevir or Huntingdon to be transferred to Madoc, but the board is perfectly willing to co-operate," Mr. Kincaid said.

Mr. Kincaid noted that the enrolment at the Tweed high school would be 382 next September if all students in the Elzevir and Huntingdon part of Huntingdon township attended classes at Tweed. The present accommodation of the high school is 430.

"By transferring the students we are saving Tweed and Hungerford $1 first $75,000," Mr. Kincaid said.

Early this year, following several weeks of discussion, county council voted to allow Tweed and Hungerford out of the Centre Hastings High School Area and to allow them to set up their own high school district.

REASONS FOR MOVE

The proposed construction of a technical wing addition at the Madoc high school, was one of the reasons for moving by Centre Hastings to get out of the Centre Hastings Area.

At the time of the requested withdrawal by Tweed and Hungerford the proposed addition at the Madoc high school was one of the reasons given officially for the withdrawal of Tweed and Hungerford was that the municipalities support the new technical school by student attendance.

Plans call for the construction of a technical wing addition at the Madoc school with classrooms being added to accommodate 310 students.

Revised Bill On Portable Pensions Coming

TORONTO (CP)—A new bill on portable pensions will be introduced in the Ontario legislature soon, says Premier Robarts.

But the bill, which replaces one released for study last August, will not be passed this session.

Mr. Robarts revealed this Thursday to an Ontario Federation of Labor delegation which expressed the hope the provincial government would move quickly to enact portable pension legislation.

He said the revised bill is the result of hearings by the Ontario committee on portable pensions which heard views by labor and business after the original draft bill was released.

The revised bill, like the original draft, will have to go through a period of publicity and study, he said.

Kennedy Plans To Reduce Stock Of Minerals

WASHINGTON (CP)—A well-informed source says President Kennedy is preparing to launch a cautious, small-scale disposal of tin, mineral, metals and other strategic goods, glutting a $7,000,000 American defence stockpile.

This informant, who is close to executive offices operations, said sure will be taken by the U.S. administration that items offered for sale will not be of credit do not upset world markets.

In each case, major producers and exporters of the items involved would be consulted before sales are made. The informant said our Canada as we one of those countries sure to be brought into discussions, since many of the items involved would be of the kind produced in this country.

Among the items for which the U.S. will be looking for markets, are aluminum, nickel, lead, zinc, copper and tin. Security restrictions are being lifted so that the public may be made aware of the large quantities of these and other products accumulated in the strategic stockpile.

Worked on Gin, Wants Big Taxes To Cut Smoking

By THOMAS KENNEDY

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain should cure itself of cigarettes the way it got over gin-sodden days by piling on so big a tax that the most inveterate nicotine addict would have to give up, Lord Taylor suggests.

That was just one of the proposals put forward when the House of Lords on Thursday took up a report by a committee of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons linking cigarettes with lung cancer.

Lord Taylor, a physician, recalled 18th-century London when Britons were so addicted to gin that shops advertised: "Drunk for a penny; dead-drunk for tuppence."

Then heavy taxes were imposed on gin.

"Now, unlike France, alcoholism is no problem in Britain," Lord Taylor said.

Even more drastic in her antipathy to tobacco was Lady Summerskill, another doctor and a former Labor government minister.

Her plans for curbing cigarettes, especially among young people, recalled the ancient Greek play in which the women folk threatened to withhold their favors unless the males forsook war.

She declared that "tobacco manufacturers are wicked men" and said British girls should execute the boys of their generation by refusing to go steady with them if they smoked.

However, an objection to taxes being used as a deterrent was people give up smoking was filed by another physician, Lord Brain, who said he hesitated "to add to the misery that we should be taxed for our own good."

"If that principle is once introduced," he said, "it is very hard to know where to draw the line."

Tobacco came in for kindly words from Lord Hawke, a pipe smoker for 40 years, who said: "Tobacco stimulates the brain in some, soothes the temperament in others and helps to move the bowels—and in a constipated country like this that is not, without merit."

Lord Shackleton of Eeeve, onetime president of the Imperial Tobacco Company, also was unconvinced by the committee's report. He suggested sky pollution was a bigger cause of lung cancer.

After all, he said, Irishmen who smoke about as much as Englishmen and in Ireland there were only 30 deaths per 100,000 from lung cancer as compared with 87 per 100,000 in Britain.

Quinte Breeding Association Favors Amalgamation With Headquarters at Kemptville

Members of the Quinte district Cattle Breeding Association believe in efficiency of large operations.

Yesterday at their annual meeting at the Club Canara in Belleville they voted 81 percent in favor of amalgamating with the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeding Association with headquarters at Kemptville, and today members of the Eastern Organization are voting on the same question.

Should the Eastern breeders vote in favor of amalgamation with the Quinte Breeders, the new joint association will be known as Eastern Breeders Incorporated.

Together the two associations have a membership of just over 10,000 breeders with approximately 120,000 cows.

The Quinte breeders organized 14 years ago and last year had receipts of over $262,000.

NEED VOLUME

But a greatly increased volume of business was necessary if a recommended A.I. improvement program was to be put into effect, and Dr. J. M. McLean, V.S., manager of the local Association said amalgamation would provide the necessary volume.

W. P. Watson, Chief, Production and Extension, Ontario Department of Agriculture, who was mainly responsible some years ago in the formation of the Quinte District Breeders, yesterday told local members that amalgamation was possibly the item of greatest importance ever to be considered by the organization.

He said the basic principles of the artificial insemination unit had remained the same over the years although technique have changed.

Cattle Breeders Hear Talk By Head of Big U.S. Co-op

The success of a nation's farming industry depends on what the farmer can do individually inside their line fence and on what they do collectively outside their fence.

This was the statement heard yesterday at the annual meeting of the Quinte District Cattle Breeders' Association as members listened to Edmund H. Fallon, general manager of the big Co-operative G.L.F. Exchange of Ithaca, N.Y.

And Mr. Fallon emphasized that what farmers do collectively outside their line fence in the form of co-operation and organization was the most important phase of the operation.

Mr. Fallon is head of a 117,-000 member farm co-operative organization which does a business of $385 million annually in the marketing of farm products.

CONTROLS AIR LINE

In addition his co-operative, through subsidiary companies, owns its own oil refinery, operates livestock auctions, has a chain of 50 food supermarkets, and has controlling interests in the Mohawk Air Lines operating in northeastern United States.

Such diversification helped to assure a credit balance at the year-end in case of a loss in one phase of operations, he said.

Ever greater efficiency of operations to reduce costs to a minimum was necessary if American (or Canadian) farmers were to meet increasing competition both from at home and abroad. Increased productivity was important, but because of today's fast transportation, production must be considered on a national basis.

STRESSES EFFICIENCY

Mr. Fallon said he was in favor of amalgamation; not merely for bigness sake, but for the sake of efficiency.

An illustration of increased efficiency in operation of a co-operative was the virtual passing of the co-operative store of which 100 at one time were operated by his organization.

"It doesn't make much difference to the farmer whether there is a co-operative store or not, as long as he is able to get what he wants, when he wants it," Mr. Fallon said.

Take as example of cost-cutting, bulk delivery of feeds and fertilizer directly to the farmer from the mill are reducing the farmers' cost by three to four dollars a ton.

But the greatest challenge in agriculture today was said to be marketing. This was in fields such as advertising, research and other phases of marketing. This was in fields which should be placed on the marketing of farm products, by the farmers themselves.

CONTROL PRODUCTS

There was no reason why farmers could not control their products all along the line and, re-emphasizing the importance of marketing, Mr. Fallon said that it didn't make much difference how efficient farmers were on the farm if they couldn't get a decent price for their product.

In closing Mr. Fallon emphasized the importance of farmer organizations hiring the best possible men they could to run their operations.

"Because of competition and imports we have got to have the best men available," We have got to have top men and pay them the market wage."

Mr. Fallon said that a $5,-000 man could line an organization $100,000 a year. On the other hand a $15,000 a year man — with ability a could make an organization $100,-000 a year.

GIOUROUKOS — VASILOPOULOU

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the setting on Sunday, March 11, for a lovely wedding ceremony, when Athanasia Vasilopoulou, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Engelo Vasilopoulou, became the bride of Christ Giouroukos, of Tegona, Greece, son of Mr. Giouroukos, of Tegean, Greece, and the late Mrs. Giouroukos. The Reverend Constantinos, of Toronto officiated.

Given in marriage by her father Engelo Vasilopoulou, the bride was radiantly lovely in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta featuring a dome effect with fitted bodice having a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. The floor-length skirt was of soft illusion veiling over French taffe. She wore a sequin encrusted crown with double tulle shoulder-length veil and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, mingled with white hyacinth bells, gardenia foliage.

She was attended by Miss Metina Vasilopoulou, as maid-of-honor, who was gowned in turquoise nylon chiffon over a taffeta sheath. The fitted empire style bodice which featured a scoop neckline and cap sleeves, was accented by a pleated cummerband in French embroidery with back bow. She wore a sequin and seed pearl headdress with shoulder-length veil, and carried a colonial nosegay of pink roses and white chrysanthemums.

Miss Vasilopoulou, two of whom were in blue and two in pink, were the Misses Helen Gannas, of Napanee; Vouis Arnio, of Belleville, Nina Tchalias, also of Belleville and Christie Arvanitis. All wore gowns in bouffant style in empire design with fitted bodices having scoop necklines and short sleeves. Their headdresses matched the color of their gowns, as did their Colonial bouquets of mums.

The little flower girl, Gina Vasilopoulou, was demure and sweet in her white frock with matching bonnet. She carried a basket of red roses and white mums and scattered rose petals as she preceded the bride down the aisle.

Mr. John Nannos, of Trenton, Ontario, attended the bridegroom, while the ushers, Peter Glamios of Warren, Ohio; Peter Thanos, and Ted Vasilopoulou, both of Belleville and Jim Nannos, of Trenton, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Hotel Quinte, Belleville, where the bride's mother was received by the bride's mother, who wore a green sequin ensemble crown with double tulle shoulder-length veil and carried a cascade of red roses, mingled with white hyacinth bells, gardenia foliage.

She was attended by Miss Metina Vasilopoulou, as maid-of-honor, who was gowned in turquoise nylon chiffon over a taffeta sheath. Women's Institute

CARMEL W.I.

CARMEL — Miss Marguerite Hicks was hostess for the March meeting of Carmel W.I. with 19 members and one visitor present. Owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Hicks, vice-president took charge of the meeting.

During the business portion various items were discussed. Mrs. C. Thompson will attend the presidents' conference at Guelph in May. The district annual meeting will be held at Carmel Hall on May 16th at 8.15 a.m. The annual meeting will be a pot-luck dinner at noon on April 18th, at the home of Mrs. S. Homan. In future, meetings will be held on the third Tuesday evening of each month.

Conveners' reports were given and Mrs. Graham reporting for Mrs. G. Lyons on agriculture spoke on the destruction caused by rats in Alberta and the methods used to eliminate them. Mrs. Brintell, reporting for historical research called with the origin of the O.S.D. Belleville and stated that an American started the school in Toronto in 1858 with only four pupils on October 20th, 1870 marked the beginning of the Belleville school. The education report was given by Mrs. S. Homan. A report, was given by Mrs. Allison in connection with the 50th anniversary of the Institute which was held at Toronto recently. Mrs. Allison as well as Mrs. Whitmore were delegates at this event.

Mrs. Whitmore, convener of the program led in the singing of Irish songs which was followed by a reading, "My Old Home in County Down" by Mrs. H. Homan. The convener used as her topic the life story of William Henry Drummond, who was born in Ireland and came to Canada at an early age and proved to be one of Canada's better poets.

A contest concluded the meeting after which lunch was served.

A millinery course was held at the home of Mrs. C. Thompson in February with 13 ladies who took the course. These hats were modelled at the meeting and were a credit to both teacher and pupil.

History of Children's Aid Given at BPW Club Dinner

The Continuing Education Trust Fund and the work of the Children's Aid Society was the topic of the monthly dinner meeting of the business and Professional Women's Club held in the banquet room of the Rexmount Restaurant, Mrs. Irene Haig presided.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Jane Forrester, former alderman and mayor of this city, who spoke in her capacity as president of the Children's Aid Society of the City of Belleville, County of Hastings, and the Town of Trenton. Her introductory remarks dealt with the founding of the Children's Aid Society.

"From the early days of the white man on this continent, there have been organizations to care for orphaned children. We are told that 40 years before the territory now known as Ontario was ceded to the British by the French, the Ursuline Sisters had founded an orphanage in New Orleans to care for children whose parents had been massacred by the Indians. As early as 1779 there was an Act on the Statute of Canada to provide for the education and support of orphaned children. In this province, however, 100 years later that anything more than concern was expressed for the neglected child.

FIRST CHILDREN'S AID

"The Toronto Children's Aid Society, the first of its kind in Canada, was founded in 1891. The first "Children's Protection Act" was introduced in Ontario two years later in 1893. In 1921 the Adoption Act was passed, the Unmarried Parents Act in 1921, the Mother's Allowance Act in 1920, and the Training in Commission report in 1929, the Ontario Department of Public Welfare was established in 1930 —this provided that the superintendent of child welfare should be a qualified social worker. By 1934 all societies in Ontario were incorporated. They all now operate under the Child Welfare Act of 1954 and its various revisions.

"There are 55 societies in the province of which 37 are autonomous — providing a network of service to children across the province. A society can be formed only with the approval of the Lieutenant Governor in Council and dissolved only on the recommendation of the Minister.

"As early as 1904, a movement was afoot in this area to organize the Society, at the instigation of Mr. J. J. Tobin, who had recently been appointed director and organizer of Child Welfare for Eastern Ontario. Mr. Herbert Wrightmeyer was appointed executive officer of the society.

The following years saw the establishment of a shelter. In 1916 Capt. T. D. Ruston became superintendent and gave long years of service until his retirement in 1940 at which time Mr. W. G. Lockyer took over his work. Mr. B. M. Kerr is the present local director and has an efficient and capable staff. The local Society serves 85,000 people in an area 40 by 100 miles.

ONTARIO CAS

"There are approximately 14,000 children in CAS care in Ontario. Of this number between 50 and 55 per cent live in foster homes. Within the past ten years the number in care child population has decreased by more than 45 per cent. At the same time, the days of service on behalf of children in their own homes doubled. It is felt this is directly due to the increased emphasis on protection or prevention services.

"When a ward reaches 18 years of age — public financial support is cut down by 50 cents. As these wards are quite often deserving students in need of financial assistance to complete their educational training it has been found necessary to inaugurate a "continuing Education Trust Fund". It is hoped that this fund will attract donations, legacies, gifts grants and bequests".

Mrs. Forrester was introduced by Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson. Mrs. Simone McFadden expressed the club's appreciation.

SUPPORTS AFRICAN STUDENT

During the business agenda, a motion was passed to pledge financial support to a young African woman from Sierra Leone, Miss Simone studies at the University of Western Ontario. She is one of 63 students brought to Canada in September 1961 by the African Students Foundation.

The annual pot-luck coffee party will be held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Brownlee, Queen Street, early in May.

Plans are well underway for the regional conference of district 11 to be held on May 5th at the Shrine Club, Belleville. Guest speaker will include Mrs. Margaret Ashdown, Toronto, provincial president elect, and Miss Dorothy Milligan, Ottawa, provincial vice-president.

Pr. Ed.-Belleville Club Enjoys Irish Program

The Monday meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies Club was held at the "Tipperary" on Wednesday. There were 35 members and one visitor present. The president opened the meeting with a welcome to all present.

The corresponding secretary reported three "get well" and one pot of flowers had been sent by the executive. "Thank you" notes were read from Mrs. May, Miss Hong, Mrs. Brickenet, and Mrs. MacDonald.

Six members paid dues.

Mrs. Weese opened the program with community singing of a number of Irish songs, "Tipperary", "Rose of Tralee" and "Mother Machree" and a reading, "St. Patrick's Day" by Mrs. MacDonald.

Mrs. Walters gave a paper on "The Leaders Season" closing her remarks with a prayer.

Mrs. Weese presented "The Life Story" of the president Mrs. James Garbutt, who is also a charter member of the club, giving highlights of her birth, childhood, school days, teenage and marriage, June 6, 1901 by Rev. Dupresse at All Saints' Church, Belleville. She is connected with Belleville Fair since its beginning as an exhibitor and also in the ladies' driving class of some years ago.

Mrs. Garbutt was also the first president of the Local Women's Institute and continued as president for 25 years and still is serving on that organization.

Mrs. Weese presented a lovely scrap book "This is Your Life" to Mrs. Garbutt.

Mrs. Garbutt's response spoke on her "Hobbies" bird watching; wild flower hunting, home plants, knitting, crochet and violets; stamp collecting; and also a time-saving gadget she which she finds keeps her time well occupied since she has retired from her teaching duties. She also brought some of her home economics for the members to view.

Mrs. McCoy thanked everyone who had participated in the afternoon's lovely program.

Mrs. Weese and Mrs. MacDonald and their group served lunch of St. Patrick's decorated sandwiches and cookies. A social best hour was enjoyed.

Edward Brisbois Addresses Catholic PTA on Separate Schools in Ontario Education

A special joint meeting of the Belleville units of the Catholic P.T.A. was held on Wednesday evening, March 21, in St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

Visitors from Kingston and other nearby parishes attended to hear Mr. Edward J. Brisbois speak on role of the "Separate School in the Ontario Education System." A native Canadian, Mr. Brisbois is married and the father of seven children. He resides in Lasalle, Ontario. He has the rare distinction of being a Knight of Malta, and is a member of the Serra Club. In addition he is also chairman of the finance committee of Metro Separate School Board. Mr. Brisbois holds the same position with the Planning Board, town of Lasalle. He is also director of Metropolitan Educatinal Television Association, president of Challenge Manufacturing Co. Ltd., vice-president of Peerless Distributors Ltd., and vice-president of Manning Brisbois Ltd. He is a former member of the RCAF.

In reviewing the gradual advancement of separate school since the B.N.A. Act, Mr. Brisbois paid homage to the courage and foresight of Bishop McDonnell, the first Bishop of Upper Canada, who established the first separate schools in the province of Ontario.

The speaker referred to the outstanding examples of justice overtaken by separate schools in Holland, where three complete school systems are state-supported — Protestant, neutral and Catholic. He mentioned that Quebec ranks second to Holland in justice on this score.

UNEQUAL TAX SHARING

The separate school system in Ontario suffers most from failure to obtain a just percentage of corporation taxes, Mr. Brisbois said. One reason given for this inequality of taxsharing is because of the daily buying and selling of stock in large corporations.

It would be mathematically an impossibility under the present system of school taxation to find out exactly what percentage of shareholders are Catholic.

The speaker remarked that the secondary private schools are saving the taxpayers of Ontario millions of dollars. This is because Catholics pay taxes to support the public secondary schools, and in addition, build and maintain their own. Fair-mindedness on the part of the general public re the just distribution of taxes is becoming more and more encouraging, the speaker stated.

FOSTER RELIGIOUS VOCATIONS

Mr. Brisbois encouraged the parents to foster religious vocations in their homes and to challenge their children to enter the teaching profession. The speaker voiced the highest praises for the dedicated religious teachers of the province and declared that no salary could really compensate them for their untiring efforts to prepare the youth for these demanding times, morally, physically and intellectually.

In closing, Mr. Brisbois reminded all present that the future demands on the separate school system would be the sacrifice required, but the cause is great and people must prepare themselves to give.

The speaker was introduced by E. J. Buckley, chairman of the Separate School Board, and thanked by Carl Casey, secretary of the Board.

His Worship, Mayor Haig, was in attendance.

Fur-Trimmed Leather

BY ALICE ALDEN

What a delicious way to greet spring — dressed in a luxurious coat of white leather and fine fur.

And this captivating coat of white grained leather, soft, supple and gleaming, is one of the handsomest being shown. It makes fashion, in soft beauty, the fruity white fox collar, which is detachable.

The straight, wrappy lines and slit pockets bestow a quiet elegance that makes it a perfect coat for afternoon into evening wear and an added bonus is that the leather is sponge-washable, making it an easy white garment to take care of.

Beulah United Church Elects UCW Officers, Holds Meeting

IVANHOE — At a recent special inaugural service the United Church Women officers of Beulah United Church, Ivanhoe, were installed with the officers from two other appointments, Salem and Bethesda, as follows: president, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Elymer Rollins; recording secretary, Mrs. John Stephens; corresponding secretary, and press reporter, Mrs. Keith Bray; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Wood; stewardship secretary, Mrs. Don Reid; supply secretary, Mrs. Carmen Rollins; Christian citizenship, Mrs. Clare Hagerman; literature and periodicals, Mrs. George Wood; Christian education, Mrs. S. D. Preest; community friendship, Mrs. D. McFadden; finance committee, Mrs. Don Reid, Mrs. S. D. Preest and Mrs. Arthur Wood; nominating committee, Mrs. Keith Bray, Mrs. George Wood and Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan. Representative to the Official Board, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan; Christian education committee of the church, Mrs. S. D. Preest and Mrs. Keith Bray; missionary and stewardship representative from the U.C.W., Mrs. Sadi Twiddy and Mrs. D. McFadden; representative to the Board of Stewards, Mrs. Arthur Wood.

The regular meeting of Beulah U.C.W. for January was held at the home of Mrs. John Stephens in the evening, with the president, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan, presiding, and conducting the worship service as taken from the book, "Beginning Again." Psalm 90 was read, and the Scripture from 1 Corinthians 11-11, by Mrs. Bray.

Thy Bible study was taken from the Acts. Missionary readings were given by Mrs McFadden and Mrs. Stephens followed by the "Vision of the Future," read by the president.

A brief business period followed at which time the allocation for 1963 was presented. Mrs. Arthur Wood closed the meeting with a prayer reading.

A vote of appreciation was tendered the hostess who served light refreshments.

The February meeting of the U.C.W. of Beulah United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Wood with a pot-luck dinner enjoyed at the noon hour.

Following the dinner, the president opened the meeting with the call to worship.

Mrs. Hugh MacMillan sent in the flower fund.

A business period was held, and the offering dedicated by Mrs. George Wood.

The theme for the day was, "What is the Church?" Mrs. Don Reid read from "Beginning Again", and the Scripture was read by Mrs. Arthur Wood followed by a reading "An Open Door to Christian Service", by Mrs. McFadden.

MARCH MEETING

For the March meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. John Stephens, with the president presiding, the Lenten worship service was followed.

Mrs. Don McFadden and Mrs. John Wickens had charge of the program, which consisted of a reading, by Mrs. Clifford Mitz, entitled, "The Spirit of Easter". Mrs. McFadden read appropriate thoughts for the Lenten season, "What the Christian Gives up in Lent" and "Self Denial", and "The Cross of Christ". Solo by Mrs.

The chapter from the study book was reviewed by Mrs. Wickens.

Lunch was served by the hostess, to whom thanks were extended.

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Planning a party? Here are some questions which might occur to you on the subject of invitations. Be our guest, and see how many you can answer correctly.

1. How far in advance should guests be invited to a small informal luncheon or dinner?
2. When should invitations to a large tea or cocktail party be issued?
3. What information should be included in a written invitation?
4. When inviting guests verbally, is it correct to tell them who else will be at the party?
5. In whose name should invitations be issued?
6. What type of paper should be used for written invitations?
7. When is it proper to issue invitations verbally?
8. Is it permissible to send out invitations on visiting cards?
9. When are engraved invitations used?
10. Is it ever proper to make use of printed invitations?

Answers:

1. Invitations to any small, informal party should be sent out about a week ahead of time. Guests like to have plenty notice; it might get the impression the party actually was planned farther in advance and that they are last-minute fill-ins.
2. When a large group is involved, invitations should go out two to three weeks in advance so guests will have ample time to acknowledge and the hostess will have parcelled if need be.
3. Time, place and date are the brief essentials. It's also a good idea to date the invitation to right-hand corner, unless, of course, you're using a visiting card or engraved note paper.
4. The name of any guest of honor should be given. Names of any particularly good friends of the guest being invited also may be mentioned. But, generally, it's not good form to run through all the names on the list when issuing an invitation.
5. Written invitations are issued in the name of both host and hostess, although she signs only her name at the end of the note. If a verbal invitation is extended the host, he always does it in the name of his wife.
6. Any personal letter or note paper is proper. A flat visiting card or a fold that folds over also may be used.
7. Verbal invitations may be issued for any gathering that's fairly small. Invitations to a luncheon, tea or dinner or a late supper or anniversary party often are delivered in person or over the telephone.
8. Party particulars may be written on the face of a visiting card — or inside, a folded one. They may correctly be used instead of notes for teas, cocktail parties, suppers, receptions. This type of invitation usually means the party is large and slightly on the formal side.
9. Engraved invitations are used for weddings and wedding receptions, formal dinners, teas, dances, balls and receptions.
10. Printed invitations are most often used for children's parties, but they may be used for formal, cocktail parties, showers, barbecues and picnics.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The National Council of Women of Canada, founded in 1899 by Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Governor General, is the largest women's organization in the country with 500,000 members.

By DAVID SCOTT

RICHMOND HILL, Ont., (CP) The case history of star No. 214946 lay in an orderly stack of computations on Frank Northcott's desk at the David Dunlap Observatory waiting for translation to manageable statistics.

The head of hardly printed figures would have covered even the masterminds who devise train schedules, but to the newly elected president of the Royal Canadian Astronomical Society it was just another study.

"Not that it's dull, by any means," Miss Northcott said. "Each one of these figures is like an old friend. I get a great deal of pleasure and a certain degree of excitement from investigating the stars."

Since she started her career in astronomy by chance in 1953, Miss Northcott has been snooping in the firmament and exposing the secrets of obscure stars.

Faintly glimmering No. 214946 might be just another collection of gases to the layman, but to astrophysicist Northcott it represents another piece in the mammoth jigsaw puzzle of the heavens.

STUDIES PHOTOS

The bulk of Miss Northcott's work is the interpretation of spectrographs, photographs of photos of stars as they are picked up by the 74-inch reflector telescope at this observatory 15 miles north of Toronto.

The only serious telescope peeping she has done was during the 1962-63 war years when the men were away and the work had to continue.

The major Canadian contribution to the science of astrophysics has been the determination of the velocities of stars in the line of sight.

These velocities, "Miss Northcott explained, are called radial velocities and a knowledge of them plays a major part in the study of the dynamics and evolution of our star system.

Also through a knowledge of radial velocities, stars which are double stars about each other can be examined in detail. This information is of prime importance in understanding the story of the evolution of the stars themselves.

Miss Northcott explained that about one-third of all known radial velocities have been determined at Canada's three astronomy only started in 1930 at Victoria, where only with primitive instruments.

WIDELY ACCLAIMED

Results achieved by Canadian astronomers in the field of spectroscopic double-star orbits, investigation of the very hot stars is our galactic system, a study of the dynamics of these stars, and studies of the dust and gases of interstellar space have received widespread acclaim and recognition.

Miss Northcott, a native of Toronto, is the author of the 1962 year publication of the Royal Canadian Institute's astronomy, published since 1907.

Her career in this life is astronomy started in 1954 when Miss Northcott was a student at the University of Toronto.

"I wanted to be a teacher, not an astronomer," she said. R. K. Young checked all that.

Dr. Reynold Kenneth Young was, until his retirement in 1962, professor of astronomy at the University of Toronto and has written numerous papers on astrophysics and the absolute magnitude of the stars.

PHOTOGRAPHS FENCES

"I was having trouble focusing the spectrograph at school and the professor told me to," she said.

She looked through my notebook and thought my figures and work in them were very neat, so he suggested I would make a good computer at the observatory, which was then about to be opened.

"I may be masters degree in astronomy and came here when the observatory opened in 1935. I've been here since."

Although she spends hour after hour at a desk in her sunny office at the observatory, Miss Northcott says she likes the solitude.

"My hobbies are bird watching and oil painting," she explained, pointing at some examples of her painting of rural scenes hanging on the office walls.

As an enthusiast of 35-millimetre photography, Miss Northcott is also starting collections of native Ontario flowers and native Ontario birds. She photographs the latter, though a 400 - millimetre telephoto lens which works along the same lines as a telescope brings which her stars are seen.

Another hobby pursued by hazel - eyed Miss Northcott is collecting a complete series of pictures of all the different kinds of fences in Ontario.

"I want to try to complete my collection before many of the fences are torn down I think they are very interesting, but I'll only photograph them in artistic settings."

ONE STAR'S STORY

Between her lectures and hobbies this year the character of star No. 214946 comes under observation.

Detailed readings of this star were taken between 1909 and 1958. Miss Northcott said she must first bring all the readings into one chronological period which would make it appear the readings had taken place during 3.01115 days—or the time of the star's orbit.

From these figures, it can then be determined whether No. 214946 turns in a circular or elliptical orbit.

But even when she has figured out these brain-wrenching equations, the work is four years old because that's how far away in time the particular star is now.

Frustrating?

"Not a bit," says Miss Northcott, "we have to start somewhere."

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

Letter: I was very interested to see in your column a recipe for tomato soup. So many cooks rely on canned soups that the skill for making delicious home soups is often never developed. I would like to add a further note to your recipe. Since baking soda is known to destroy vitamins I would strongly advise against using it. So many people will spend outrageous amounts of money on vitamin pills in order to be healthy, when all they need is a little more knowledge of the nutrients that are already in our daily food, and how to preserve them in cooking. By skillful combination of tomatoes and milk in making tomato soup, baking soda need never be used. It depends on two things. First, always use a little more milk (or cream) than tomatoes. Secondly, always add the tomatoes gradually to the milk, stirring the milk mixture continually. The small amount of acid introduced gradually to the milk prevents the milk from curdling. My success with this method has been repeated many times by the inexperienced cook that I meet in the Home Economics course. Also they find the soup is most successfully and quickly made if using the milk solidus making a thin white cream sauce before adding the heated tomatoes. (Emem's note: One tablespoon each butter or margarine, flour and salt to 1 cup milk). I think a column such as yours is a wonderful way to educate inexperienced cooks, and add fresh ideas to the minds of the experienced cooks with "Tried-and-true" recipes, which somehow tend to become "tired" after a time (both cooks and recipes) . . . Barbara R.

Answer: Thanks Barbara.

Question. Have you a recipe for gluten - free loaf of bread you could send me. I find it hard and expensive to buy . . . Mrs. A.L.

Question: I would like to secure a recipe for a white bread with very little gluten made from potatoes and either eggs or milk . . . Mrs. J. H. S.

Answer: I think the following is the gluten-free loaf to which both readers (above) refer.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Fillets with Cheese Sauce; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Frenched Green Beans; Tomato and Celery Salad with French Dressing; Glaze-Down Chocolate Pudding (see Wednesday); Coffee.

GLUTEN-FREE WHEAT STARCH BREAD OR MUFFINS

1 3-4 cups gluten-free wheat starch (may be purchased at many drug stores or drug experiments), 1-3 cup white sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 4 tablespoons shortening 3-4 cup skim milk.

Cut shortening finely into starch and dry ingredients. Add milk and mix lightly. Bake in loaf or muffin pans at 350 deg. Fahr. 3-4 hour for loaf and 1-2-hour for muffins.

Tips About Furniture

Quick Course on Shopping

Because choosing new furniture isn't an everyday experience, a shopper cannot develop a practised eye for good buys. Still there are some simple observations, shopping tests and workmanship that you can apply when selecting furniture. These tests help assure certain standards of quality in a preferred price range.

When choosing chairs, tables or chests of any type, ask to have the piece moved to another section of the floor, then rock it with your hand to be certain it's steady. Tip it up on one leg to further test the proper bracing, jointing and gluing.

If it does not rock or twist — you'll feel it in your arm — it means care has been taken in machining it properly. Inferior furniture is often made from improperly seasoned wood and loaded with glue in the joints, but its woeful reaction should alert you.

DRAWER CHECK

Check drawers of dressers and cabinets to determine free and easy — not too loose action. Front and sides of drawers should be fitted together by dovetail joints (you can see where the two wood pieces interlock) and not by nails. Remove the drawer to be sure there are drawer guides either at the centre or sides. Check to see that the drawer bottom is reinforced with glue blocks at the corners and on the bottom.

The interior of the case itself should be reinforced with screwed and glued corner blocks for strength. Turn the case for a look at the plywood back panel, which should be recessed into grooves in the upright posts, not merely nailed to the back of the case.

BLOCKED FOR STRAIN?

Have the statement torn over chairs and tables for you to assure yourself of proper reinforcement in the places of strain. Good furniture will have blocks of wood screwed and glued into these corners. While you're looking at the underside of a chair, check on spring action. Top quality upholstered chairs have webbing strips supporting the coil spring units. Flat spring construction lacks the deep feeling luxury of hand-tied coil springs.

In all furniture pieces, make certain the joints are smooth, tight and flush in themselves, and not built up with wood filler. Carved detailing in arms and legs means hand labor was used and makes an article costly, so if you encounter excessive carving in an expensive piece, be wary. The "carving" may simply be molded wood filler and easily chipped off.

HOW'S THE FEEL?

Check the "feel" of the finish. Lacquer should be smooth to the touch and over a stain or bleach that has been applied evenly without light and dark spots. Feel the exposed wood ends, too—they should be covered with veneer and lacquer, not rough to touch.

IS IT GOOD?

If you're splurging on a single expensive furniture item, check these features which indicate hand labor and custom cabinetry. Back panels of cases will be finished the same as front and sides: back legs of chairs, will be carved and finished to compliment the front legs, insides of doors and storage spaces will be hand-finished to match exposed areas; drawing edges will reveal the same fine veneer as exterior portion.

On upholstered pieces, check the good spring action of seats with the heel of your hand — bounce it up and down on the extreme front edge of seat, after removing cushion.

WHAT WOOD?

Insist on the fine hardwood you want in your home. The vast majority of furniture, in all price ranges, is finished with beautiful veneer, bonded to several layers of plywood, bonded under pressure to give it lifetime strength. The lovely wood grain or figure is preserved for use in exposed areas where it may be seen and admired.

"Solid" wood, unless in a prohibitively expensive piece, is generally restricted to colonial furniture, which is often made of solid maple or cherry. Other solid hardwoods are used in legs of furniture pieces which are "turned" on machines during manufacture and, therefore, must be solid wood. Check the label — if it says "genuine walnut" or oak or other wood, it means the legs or other structural parts are solid and the surfaces veneer of that wood.

Why Marry Secretly?

Nobody approves of the secret marriage except the socially prominent family without any money.

"Announce your engagement and then run away to be married," is the advice one bridal consultant offers to brides of families in this dilemma.

But ministers and marriage counselors and also many couples who have been married secretly agree that such unions make poor starts.

1. Gossip people jump to the wrong conclusion about the marriage. Did they have to get married? Did the parents disapprove?

2. Secret marriages lead to embarrassing, complicated situations wherever the couple attempts to be together.

3. Such marriage agreed to upon impulse robs the young lady of the wedding of her dreams, for which she may long harbor resentment.

However, as with the poor bride of socially prominent parents, there are extenuating circumstances that make such a ceremony a reasonable solution.

A bride or bridegroom might wish to spare parents who are not well, or who might object to the marriage on religious ground, or who are divorced.

Or they simply may not like the fuss of a formal marriage. Or they simply haven't time or patience for a wedding.

When the marriage secret is out, it is still possible to make newspaper announcements. The bride's mother may also send informal, handwritten notes to close friends instead of formal announcements.

At-home cards are enclosed with formal announcements usually if the couple lives out of town.

Friends are not expected to send gifts to couples who elope. However, some will do so anyway.

It's Perfect Timing

Being escorted by the father down the aisle to the altar is a tradition for which most brides are grateful. Too often too many by their wedding days are too unnerved and exhausted from duties beforehand to be able to make it up there on their own steam.

Here's a tidy solution to a beautiful ceremony with a minimum of backstage chaos is to set up a realistic time schedule. Broadway producers do it—and who is to say that weddings are less or a colorful production?

A time wise bride lists the most minute details that must be attended to before the important day. She will arrive at those after consulting with etiquette books, bridal consultants, her parents and future-in-laws.

Although big weddings can be turned out in less than three months, that's the hard way. With a date set early, here is a typical schedule:

THREE MONTHS BEFOR BIG DAY—

Consult with clergyman, arranging for pre-marital instruction if desired.

● Decide upon type of wedding. Select attendants and ushers, choose sites for the wedding and the reception. Make up a guest list (after consulting with bridegroom's family) and order invitations.

● Select china and silver patterns and register choices with retail sources. Order bridal gown and bridesmaid's costumes.

● Make plans for a honeymoon and buy trousseau accordingly.

● Begin search for apartment or house.

WITH TWO MONTHS TO GO—

● Set date for wedding rehearsal and arrange for rehearsal supper.

● Hire caterer, musicians, florist and photographer.

● Check up on ordered clothes.

● Make plans for furnishing new home.

THIRTY DAYS AWAY—

● Address and mail invitations.

● Buy gifts for attendants, groom.

● Get his ring (he'll get yours). Go with him to secure marriage license. Remind bridegroom to order boutonnieres, and flowers for wedding party and the two mothers.

● Consult with caterer about reception menu and cake. Take up the matter of decoration with the florist.

● Select showers so that you have rest periods between parties. Find time to work out furnishings or new home.

BIG DAY TWO WEEKS AWAY—

● Have bridal photos taken. Send to interested out of town papers with announcements.

● Check on arrival of gowns and trousseau notes.

● Begin writing your thank you notes for gifts already received. Make a list of them in your book.

● Wrap gifts for attendants and ushers.

● Make arrangements for out-of-town guests.

● Ask phone and utilities companies to install service in proper time.

● Check deliveries of furnishings to new address.

ONLY A WEEK LEFT—

● Send wedding announcement to local papers.

● Check on arrival of gowns, trousseau items. Make a beauty shop appointment for hairdo.

● Have bridesmaids' luncheon. (He'll be having a bachelor dinner this week too.)

24 HOURS FROM SHINING HOUR—

● Tell someone your honeymoon itinerary. Be sure husband-to-be has car gassed and ready to go.

● Arrange for someone to check up on new house.

● Go to hairdresser's early, then the wedding rehearsal and rehearsal dinner.

● Check over your luggage which your sweet mother has probably packed for you by now.

● Go to bed early.

THE DAY OF DAYS—

● You should give yourself plenty of time to get ready. Now everything is out of your hands. Concentrate on being the star of all eyes. Remember to leave the reception before it drags out too long.

Synthetics Make Good Travelers

When synthetics were new on the market, they crushed and rustled and undeniably made themselves known as "synthetic".

Now thanks to the multitude of fibres available to dress manufacturers, synthetics go forth, with pride, and stand up under all kinds of stress and strain.

Synthetic fibres are a natural in combining with other materials. Polyesty blends with rayon, wool and cotton. Acetate can look like taffeta, faille or cotton.

Since dresses carry exact labels as to the garments' contents, study them carefully when you're assembling your wardrobe. Most synthetic fabrics drip-dry nicely, needing the iron only for the color. Others, usually in the silken category, respond better to dry cleaning.

Clothes from synthetic fibres are known for their indestructibility. They come out of a suitcase wrinkle-free, Tropical heat will leave them. And they're mighty easy on the budget.

MONEY-MAKING SHOWER

Many nationalities, harking back to the dowry, still cling to the practical idea of cash for the bride and bridegroom. In this instance the couple should thank each person privately for his cash gift, and later write him a note explaining how wisely the money was used.

Bridal Showers

The story goes that the first bridal shower took place in Holland when a maiden fell in love with a poor miller. When her father forbade the marriage, the girl's friends marched to her home bringing gifts, making the marriage to a miller possible.

In the country bridal showers are traced back to the quilting bees and house-raisings given by our forefathers.

At any rate the point has always been to rain happiness on the marriage couple by providing them with useful things with which to begin a home.

Some novel ideas for showers are these:

A Postal Shower — For the girl away from home arrange for friends to mail packages so that all will arrive within a short span of time.

A Paper Shower — Its possibilities are unlimited. It should include an address book which her best friends have already inscribed; a scrap book with wedding announcements; recipe books, stationery and perhaps even a couple of tickets to a good play.

A Party Shower — Save this one until the honeymooners have returned. Arrive with the refreshments and rinks. But also have guests bring enough decorators — cocktail napkins, coasters, casserole, hot accessories, glasses and liquors to enable them to entertain inexpensively for months to come.

A Drudge Shower — For fun everyone can attend this one wearing their dirtiest wash rags. Have them bring mops, pails, cleaning powders and soaps, waxes, brooms, dustpans etc.

A Dancing Shower —Make this a mixed party. Have guests bring albums of Broadway musicals, folk songs, calypso music or hit tunes. Everyone, including the marrying couple, will have a grand time for the rest of the evening.

Rent First Home?

By ANDY LANG

None of the thousand-and-one problems of a bride is more important then where she is going to live — and whether to buy or to rent.

While this will not be the bride's decision alone, the new husband held better reconcile himself to the fact that her views will carry the most weight. He'll appear to be making the final decision, but inevitably it will coincide with what she wants.

The exact location of the young household usually is determined by the result of the verdict as whether to rent or to buy. There was a time when the question of buying a house was answered automatically by the simple matter of economics. If the couple had enough money to make a down payment on a house, they bought.

If not, they rented.

NO MONEY

Today, with down payments virtually at the vanishing point, this consideration is non-existent, although if they do buy a house, they are advised to make as large a down payment as they can afford. The decision on whether to buy or to rent actually is based on a number of other factors.

Buying a house brings with it a feeling of ownership, no small asset in the area of personal contentment, as any psychologist will tell you. From a more tangible standpoint, it also means extra space, that which is ready for immediate use and that which can be utilized when additional members of the family make an appearance.

Owning a house usually goes hand in hand with more congenial surroundings for the married couple and a more practical wholesome place in which to bring up children.

FLIPPED COIN

There are advantages on the other side of the coin.

When you rent an apartment, you don't have to worry about mowing the lawn, trimming the shrubbery, painting and redecorating, changing faucet washers and the thousand and one other maintenance tasks which seem to follow one another in an endless procession. And no matter how much do-it-yourself labor you put in on these chores you'll find they cost money.

If the husband has a job which may require him to move to another city at a later date, it's easier for the family to move from a rented home. Modern apartment leases have clauses which permit the tenants to move under this condition, before the expiration of the lease.

There's a financial angle connected with buying or renting that has many ramifications. If the couple buys a home with little or no down payment, its interest payments over the years will be larger. Presumably, therefore, it's smarter to put down as large a down payment as possible. But a large down payment ties up money that might be otherwise invested. Tenants have no such decision to make.

Veil Tops Everything

Chances are you will wear your hair differently on your wedding day, no matter how pleased you are with your usual hair styles. That's the one day when you wear your curls to conform to your bridal veil.

The veil is styled to conform to the line of your dress, not your hair or your face. And while hair might additionally arrange those tresses to be flattering to the features of your face, this time they must be coifed to go along with the veil's design.

Do you intend to wear a coronet? Then perhaps the hair stylist will feel that the chignon is best for this important day. Or will your veil fall back from a flower ring at the top of your head? A center part waving over the sides may be better. Veils that are long and do not always take beautiful hairdos for much depends on where the veil is to be worn atop the head.

Were You Ever a Bride Before?

Simplicity is the keynote to good taste in planning a ceremony when the bride has been married before.

Whether she was widowed or divorced, she will be in order to be married simply dressed, not in white, in a small informal ceremony.

She will not wear a bridal veil, orange blossoms or myrtle wreath — all emblems of the first bride. She will wear a suit rather than carry a bouquet.

A widow sponsoring her own wedding should have but one attendant (with a best man for a groom). She may have her children as attendants but this is never proper for the divorcee.

Sometimes a widow will walk to invite members of her first husband's family to her wedding. Her decision should be guided by the feeling her new husband or his family may have about her former husband.

Receptions can be larger than the wedding, but some people feel that these should not be as elaborate as if this were her first time at the altar.

Older widows and the divorcees are often married quietly in their own homes, leaving their guests there to begin their honeymoon. Civil and chapel ceremonies are popular.

Wedding invitations and announcements should be sent by the bride's parents. The bride's first, maiden and last married name will be considered in that order in announcing nuptials to the bridegroom's friends whose name she will later receive.

Gifts should not be expected for a second wedding. However friends and relatives frequently send them again.

RICE, OLD SHOES

In the Orient rice means "May you always have a full pantry" and a old slipper thrown on the roof of a house indicates that a honeymoon is in progress.

Among early Hebrews a man gave his sandals as evidence of good faith in exchange of property. Casting a shoe after the bride signifies her father's transfer of authority to her new husband.

Groom Pays But How Do Costs Run?

By tradition and practice, the wedding is supposed to be the bride's' show. But often the groom doesn't get enough credit for his share in the setting.

Just consider what would be missing without the items the man pays for:

—The bride wouldn't have an engagement or a wedding ring. The man pays for both. He gets one break — if there's a double ring ceremony the bride buys his ring for him.

—There couldn't be many flowers. Formal etiquette decrees (although local customs varies) that the groom buy the bride's bouquet, corsages for the two mothers and boutonnieres for then in the wedding party.

—Bride and ushers would not get gifts.

—The clergyman who performs the ceremony would lose a contribution.

—There would be no honeymoon trip.

COST ACCOUNTING

Let's look at what these expenses might add up to:

Diamond engagement rings range from $150 for a tiny stone set in yellow gold to $900 for a perfect one-carat stone. Of course bigger stones cost more, depending on number of carats and quality of the stone.

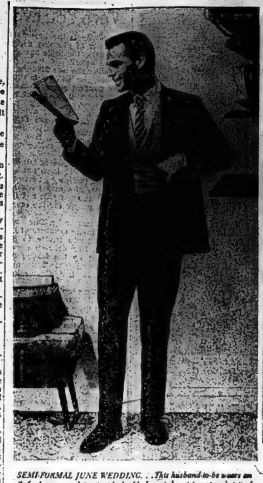
The bride's wedding ring, usually a plain, untooled gold band, can cost as little as $10. Set with 10 or 12 tiny diamonds it might run up to $200. The groom's wedding ring is larger and wider than the bride's and costs about twice as much.

The bridal bouquet can run from $15 to $25 while corsages for mothers start at $5. (The bride supplies bouquets for her attendants. Usher boutonnieres cost $1 each.

Jewelry or a similar lasting object is the usual choice for the groom' gift to his bride. This could be a pearl necklace, a locket or a plain stone on a chain which could be worn with the wedding gown. It's generally a $25 item.

FOR THE BEST MAN

Necktie, cigarette lighters or men's jewelry are customary gifts for the best man and ushers. Average price is $5 to $10 each.



The clergyman's fee generally depends on the size of the wedding. For a small ceremony $5 or $10 is considered enough, while it may run up to $30 for a larger affair. In a big social wedding the clergyman might receive as much as $500.

The average wedding trip, according to one survey, lasts two weeks, is by automobile and costs about $400. Package trips are also popular to New York City, Miami Beach, southern California, Nassau and Bermuda.

So don't write the groom off as an incidental item, and a vital part of the wedding formalities!

REHEARSAL PROCEDURE

The wedding rehearsal is usually held in church the night before the wedding, but it may be a day or so earlier. The usual rehearsal ceremony will require not more than an hour rehearsal. For longer services, or where some of the members of the wedding party will need instructions about procedures in a faith that is not their own, the rehearsal may last longer.

SEMI-FORMAL JUNE WEDDING . . . The husband-to-be wears an Oxford gray tack coat with double breasted waist coat and stripped pants. The outfit combines the dignity of style with the ease of ft. Satet collar and tie are the formet touch.

FORMAL DAYTIME WEDDING. . . The bridegroom wears single breasted waistcoat, wing collared shirt, an ascot cravat and a black silk topper.

What to Wear?

Decision Not His

When the music is the Wedding March the bride calls the shots. Only when she has chosen her own wedding costume and the hour for the ceremony does the bridegroom know what to wear.

Long established sartorial customs dictate the male's wedding apparel.

Simplest of all marriage ceremonies is the daytime service in town or country. For this the bride wears a suit or street dress which dictates that the groom wear a navy blue, charcoal or gray suit, with white shirt, conservative tie and black shoes.

A country garden wedding offers the groom a choice of white suit with white shoes, or navy blue or black blazer with white trousers, dark or white shoes.

For the formal wedding correct attire becomes definitely and mandatory. Moreover, with only the slightest variations of cravat and boutonniere, all the male members of the wedding must be garbed identically.

For instance, formal evening weddings are the most formal of all timed for after 6 p.m. — finds the bride in a long fancy gown and veil. The the bridegroom is in full evening kit — white tie and tails, matching trousers, starched bosom shirt, wing collar, white evening vest, black socks, black patent leather oxfords or pumps, white gloves and a shiny topper or dull grosgrain opera hat.

For the semi-formal evening wedding, the tuxedo takes the place of the tail coat, or in summer the shirt, dinner jacket, Black bow tie, of course, pleated white shirt with either a white evening vest or a cummerbund. The white bow tie is never worn with tuxedo.

Weddings before 6 demand from the groom so-called morning kit, formal or informal.

The formal daytime wedding with the bride in wedding gown and long train, prescribes for the groom the cutaway coat in black or oxford gray, striped black and gray trousers, single or double-breasted vest to match the cutaway pleated or starched bosom shirt with separate starched wing collar. The cravat may be either preferred ascot or the familiar four-in-hand, in small black and white checked silk or gray moire. Gray gloves and topper complete the outfit. Spats, if worn, should match the waistcoat.

The semi-formal morning outfits for the bridegroom and male attendants are like the formals, but with these important differences. The jacket worn with striped trousers, for instance, is the short cut coat or so-called walking coat, similar in cut to a regular suit jacket. It may be in black or oxford gray. And it may be worn with a regular shirtcollar instead of the detachable or separate wing collar. Homburg or derby hats are appropriate.

Matrimony At Sea

Getting married by the captain even before the ship leaves the dock is a novel and colorful wedding which honeymoon-business conscious steamship lines are encouraging these days.

A small informal wedding is held in the ship's chapel followed by a cocktail reception in one of the lounges. The guests combine the connubial salutations with ones for 'Bon Voyage'.

Arrangements are made with the ship's officers for catering music, flowers and photographs.

In some cases the clergyman may be permitted aboard to perform the ceremony. But in other instances, the ship has rules restricting this privilege to the ship's captain or chaplain.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Steven T. — Instead of getting scalp treatments, she'd buying wigs!

Zelda T. — My hair keeps getting thinner. A wig's my best bet.

Steven T. — How would you like to come home to a wife who's a blonde one day and a brunette the next and who's hair changes from long to short and back again overnight? That's what's going on in my home these days and it's getting so I have to look real close to make sure I'm in the right apartment!

I admit Zelda has a problem with a couple of shiners and a spots. I thought she'd contracted for a series of hot-oil applications and neat treatments. Instead she's taken the shortcut of buying three wigs. I know she's always wanted them, and now her hair condition plus the wig craze have made her give up trying to correct the basic problem. Besides looking so grotesque, she forgets one thing: When the style for wigs ends, she'll still be left with the job of correcting her hair loss.

Zelda T. — What's the use of struggling with long drawn-out and expensive sessions at the hairdresser's? I tried a couple of treatments and I didn't notice any difference. It was discouraging. With my hair falling out so easily, I decided the less often I handled it the better. So a wig is the answer.

I'm fortunate that they are so fashionable today. Through a friend I found a place that imports them from Spain. They're not expensive, and when I want the coiffure changed I can send them back for restyling. It's such fun. I can even turn gray "overnight," although I wouldn't agree that on Steve!

I might as well use my money to take advantage of the vogue. Once it dies down, I can tackle my thin-hair problem again. Meanwhile, I look good, even though Steve won't admit it.

The Council: Regardless of the availability of wigs, Zelda should attend to the health of her hair and scalp. If her natural hair isn't exactly her crowning glory, it can still be prized and pampered as a standard normal adornment. A wig is a separate consideration — much like a hat in this instance. Zelda can take 'em or leave 'em — and fight it out with Steven — once her failing-hair problem is solved.

Dermatologists report an increase in worried patients who complain of thinning hair. But the good word is that the condition is usually temporary and the regrowth ensues. Possible causes are numerous. Some authorities even blame air pollution. Many believe emotional upsets are involved. Pregnancy is often associated with loss of hair. Tracing down some of these clues may enable Zelda to solve her problem herself. With attention, it's usually a temporary, not a permanent, condition. But if it persists, a dermatologist may have to be consulted.

Wigs come and go. So does hair. Zelda should keep herself from going, no matter how many wigs keep coming.

Change of Heart

If one of you suddenly realizes the marriage will not work, don't be too embarrassed to call off the wedding plans. It is no social disgrace to avoid a broken home.

Have your family send an announcement to the papers stating that the engagement of so-and-so and so-and-so has been terminated by mutual consent.

Send telegrams, make phone calls, if it is a last minute decision. But avoid discussing the "why's." Return all gifts of any value whatsoever with brief notes, if possible, thanking the giver for his thoughtfulness.

But curb your confidences. The less said, the sooner all will be forgotten.

FIRST NOVEL

First novel published by a Canadian was "The Nun of Canada," written by Julia Catherine Hart in Fredericton in 1824.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Boy Friend Is Fooling Around

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My boyfriend and I have been going steady almost a year. The problem is that in school he fools around with all the girls. It seems to me whenever I'm there he fools around all the more. And I don't like it. Because I know if I fool around with the boys in school, he really gets jealous, I don't fool around.

Sometimes I get so mad that I feel like tossing his ring at him and some day I think I'll do it too, but then I'll regret it. So what shall I do? Just keep letting him do it or what?

I know he loves me because he's told me so many a time.— HEARTBREAKING.

• • •

DEAR HEARTBREAKING:—What he does, not what he says, is the answer. Giving you a ring, telling you he loves you, only have meaning when he treats you like a loved one. Fooling with other girls is not considerate — to say the least!

He may not be ready yet to settle down to one girl.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—We have been married for 30 years. We were happy until I got sick in 1952. I had a nervous breakdown. I had been drinking heavily and taking sleeping pills to excess, until I got to the mental hospital two years ago. We quarrelled a lot.

Now that I feel better I feel very sorry for what I have done to my dear wife and family.

I have asked my wife many times for forgiveness. She says she forgives me all right, but she has lost confidence in me. She can't forget what I had done.

I can't remember what I did or what I said when I was intoxicated. I love my wife but she doesn't love me any more. She says she can't help it. Please can you help me?—POOR LOWDOWN.

• • •

DEAR LOWDOWN:—Try acting less lowdown. Your wife still needs your love. When you were drinking and mentally depressed she suffered from your abuse. Now that you are well, start courting her.

Prove you love her by doing the many little, and big things that woman appreciate. But don't act like a mouse. Act like a man.

• • •

TO UNHAPPY:—What you have heard about your father's family makes you feel jinxed — unreasonably. Even if his parents were first cousins, yours weren't. Lots of people have big jobs and crooked fingers.

You are too serious because your self-pity makes it impossible for you to relax. You can learn to make friends by mixing. Don't withdraw — reach out for people.

Deliberately get into groups of your contemporaries and practise friendliness, laughter, helpfulness to others. Always dress nicely and forget about your fancied imperfections.

• • •

(Is it a question of etiquette that's bothering you? Ask Doris for her advice in a letter to this column.)

Sunday School Lesson

The Greatest Commandment

By ROY L. SMITH

Whatever their loyalty, the great Christian theologians have done Jesus a major injury. They have so long represented Him by means of theological doctrines, that we have well nigh lost sight of the fact that He considered Himself and was considered by His neighbors, as a great teacher.

Nicodemus was one of the great scholars of His day, and was accustomed to sitting in the company of the learned. And when he met Jesus for the first time he called him "rabbi" which was the equivalent in that day of the word "Doctor" in our day. It was just a little as if a famous professor at Harvard might salute a carpenter from Winton, Iowa, and address him as "Doctor."

THE LAWYER'S QUESTION

The rabbis of Jesus' day, all of whom might have been called lawyers, had found no less than 613 commandments in the old Hebrew law, and there was no end of amusement among them as to which was the most important. The question put to Jesus which is the greatest of all the commandments? — was a perfectly natural one.

Not only were the rabbis forever debating the matter, but the plain people were also interested. And in replying, Jesus made it very plain—so plain, indeed, that the humblest of them might understand. And, let it be noted, the thing He talked about was not a theological doctrine but a moral and spiritual attitude which each person was to assume.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 25 is "The Greatest Commandment." Their memory is: Luke 10:25-37.

This is one of the unique aspects of Jesus' ministry. He would not forever joke about examination marks on the subject of their studies, their orthodoxy. Instead, He seemed to be intensely concerned about their attitudes they had chosen for the domination of their lives.

In other words, Jesus did not come as a theologian, but as one who had mastered the art of living, and was ready to share with His friends the principles of life, which had succeeded in such a great fashion in His own life. He never recommended any attitude without having first demonstrated it in His own living.

MOST IMPORTANT COMMANDMENT

From the earliest times the Hebrews had made it a rule to repeat the Shema, which appears in the Scripture for this week (Deu. 6:4-9). And then He added a bit of Leviticus (as it (19:18) but it is necessary for us to note the fact that he acted at least once word on his own authority — with all thy mind.

Between the time of the Old Testament and the time of the New Testament, there had been sufficient development that the total scope of the commandment had to be enlarged.

It would be easy to comment at length concerning this ancient commandment of the Jews, for it is a great statement of the whole field of religious philosophy. But it seems necessary to comment on Jesus' use of the word "mind" in His greatest commandment.

Among the Jews of Jesus' day the question of learning was one of the major issues. Every child was expected to get an education, and the rabbi was responsible to his community for the organization of the school facilities of the synagogue. The training of the mind took equal place with the training of the body.

It is true, of course, that Jesus was insisting that every man should serve God with his whole being. But he was laying emphasis on the intellectual life of the individual and the community alongside its economic and political life.

In a time when the sale of books is skyrocketing, we are buying an increased number of religious books, but not in proportion to the total number of books sold. Yet if Jesus' comment is correct the man who is not developing his mind is as much of a sinner as the man who commits thievery.

It is a matter of great concern to the religious leaders of America that we are, for the most part, spiritually illiterate. Literally millions of individuals are self-thinking about God, faith and religion about the time they dropped out of Sunday School. And that is a national tragedy.

Built-ins Provide Useful Storage Space in the Home

From the standpoint of functional contemporary design, there should be a place for everything in the home . . . but "it ain't necessarily so."

There are so many things that you're likely to need standing space for — new acquisitions that must be accommodated, discarnished always components that simply have no place to go, etc.

Here are a few how-to's on the subject of better, more attractive storage . . . the pearls of built-ins which can provide a place for the "place-less."

Built-ins fall generally into three categories: Straight storage, living walls which are sometimes called entertainment walls, and furniture combined with storage.

Units built solely for storage are the easiest for which to plan. The most effective way in which to plan them is to list all household items that need storing. Include general sizes and shapes, how they are stored (hung, slide-by-slide, vertically, etc.) and the areas of the house where the stored items will be near the point of use.

Balance this against available space in those areas, then combine the elements into the built-ins you need.

KEY STORAGE AREAS

Key areas in which additional storage space might be used are kitchens, bathrooms, laundries and hallways.

In bathrooms, for instance, underused space often goes to waste. This area might be enclosed to accommodate linens or cleaning items.

Kitchen storage is often poorly organized, and additional built-ins can usually be incorporated above counters and surface appliances.

The ends of a hallway is more often than not wasted. But this valuable space would be suitable for built-ins to hold linens or perhaps infrequently used china or glassware.

Forgotten places such as underneath stairways or beneath attic eaves can also be put to use for storage use and thereby do double duty.

TWO-SIDED UTILITY

In addition to creating distinct activity areas, a partition between living and dining areas might house china and such on the dining side and perhaps books on the living room side.

The second built-in category — the living wall — serves as an activity centre as well as a wall and its design is limited only by the family's interests.

A wall can be designed with one special activity in mind such as hobbies.

For instance, in a home workshop a wall might be devoted to drawer space, cabinets, racks, etc. to house tools, materials and blueprints for woodcraft projects.

Entertainment walls are self-explanatory and are geared to family interests as well. Such walls include television, framing bookshelves, hi-fi or stereo components, vertical storage space for record albums, a pull-down movie screen and a special cabinet to store a movie projector.

The third category of built-ins — furniture-storage combinations — include those items such as banquettes and window seats, bunk beds, desks, bars, desks and headboards. Since this type of furniture is usually stationary, special care must be given to planning.

State Medicine Said Inferior to Present System

KITCHENER (CP) — Socialized medicine has produced inferior medical care at a vastly increased cost, a Sudbury psychologist, said here Wednesday night.

Dr. M. J. Lynch, speaking to the Kitchener - Waterloo Academy of Medicine, listed the advantages claimed by advocates of socialized medicine.

He said it is claimed to be the only system under which preventive medicine can be practised to best advantage. So, claimed medicine, he said, also promises to reduce illness, to provide better care for all, a better distribution of doctors and to remove worry about medical bills.

"But based on actual performance, after 17 years in Germany, 45 years in Russia and 14 in England, socialized medicine has failed on every single one of these promises," Dr. Lynch said.

"The big reason it has failed is because doctors are so busy with petty claims. They haven't time to give attention to the seriously ill."

Dr. Lynch claimed at least 1,000 doctors a year would emigrate to the United States if socialized medicine were introduced in this country.

NEW STYLE SAP GATHERING — Mechanization has invaded the maple sugar business in Quebec's Eastern Townships. This tank-like vehicle specially designed with rubber treads for travel anywhere in the woods is used to gather sap on the land of Rolland Boudreau near Ascot Corner. Driver Gerard Coe takes sap from pails strung to maple trees and pours it into two 430-gallon tanks on each side of the vehicle.

Quebec Farmer Will Tap 11,010 Trees in Syrup Run

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— For farmer Rolland Boudreau, the days when one or two men set out with horse and pleigh to tap neighborhood maple trees for syrup are as dated as a Cornelius Krieghoff landscape.

Mr. Boudreau and his eight helpers plan to tap 1,000 trees a day until sap is being taken from all 11,010 trees on Mr. Boudreau's Eastern Townships farm at Ascot Corner.

A tank-like vehicle that can make its way practically anywhere in the woods with its rubber treads makes the Boudreau mass-production methods possible.

The men collect the sap and pour it into two tanks, one on either side of the vehicle, which hold 430 gallons.

After about an hour, in the bush the sap is taken back to Mr. Boudreau's modern sugar house where it is pumped directly into a reservoir and then into evaporators.

In contrast to the fire and kettle of the old days, the evaporators stand on concrete foundations which are heated entirely by gas.

The business is a family tradition and Mr. Boudreau recalls the time when his father Emile started work in the sugar bush.

"He had one horse then and we thought it was quite a big business."

Maple syrup and sugar production goes back more than 250 years in Canada. Even before that the Indians used to tap the trees, using a tomahawk where in later years an auger came into operation.

Modern methods haven't taken the romance out of the business. In many parts of Quebec, biggest syrup producing province in Canada, children still get a chance to hold sugaring parties, pouring thick, hot syrup on clean snow to make toffee.

Last year Quebec produced 2,413,000 of the total Canadian output of 2,616,000 gallons of syrup and $27,000 of the total of 797,000 pounds of maple sugar. Ontario accounted for 319,000 gallons of syrup and 24,000 pounds of sugar, New Brunswick 13,000 gallons and 42,000 pounds and Nova Scotia 4,000 gallons and 14,000 pounds.

If the sap runs well this year,

Sailors Rarely Have Girls' Names Tattooed on Arms or Chest, Once Popular Custom

VICTORIA (CP) — Sailors rarely have their girls' names tattooed on arm or chest once a popular practice, says A. Hendry (Doc) Forbes, veteran tattooist who has opened a parlor here.

"Change girls and they have to get the old name removed," he said in an interview in what might best be described as his surgery."

And if styles in tattoos have changed, the tattoo parlors have also changed.

Health authorities in Canada and the United States have launched a campaign to clean up tattoo parlors because some cases of serum hepatitis, a liver infection, have been traced to unclean needles.

"We always did run a clean place but now we've really got everything," Doc Forbes said.

"There are only about four other artists in North America who work like this — folks for that stainless steel sink, $80 for the laminated plastic top and those medical books cost $100 apiece."

SOME ARE SCARED

The surgically clean appearance of his room was in contrast with the examples on the wall—hearts and skulls pierced by daggers, eagles, panthers and dragons and a tangle of hearts, dice and cards inscribed Don't Gamble With Love.

"You know, some of the boys are scared of a place like this," said Doc, who wore a professional-looking sleeveless plastic coat which showed arms covered with an assortment of dragons, hearts, roses and snakes.

"They're used to going some dark little hole under some stairs in Seattle, the way it used to be. They come into a place like this, they're even scared to use an ash tray.

"They put the cigarette butts in the cuffs of their pants instead."

A popular design with army personnel, he said, is one that shows the name of the regiment, the flag and One Flag, One Girl.

REMOVES TATTOOS

He has been doing a lot of removing on women lately, especially on the hands.

"They'll be baby-sitting, a boy friend with them, get some needles and tattoo something on—and they have to dig up $10 to get it off."

One of his customers was a restaurant owner from Connecticut who had lost all of his hair, including eyebrows, as the result of an illness. Doc Forbes tattooed new eyebrows on him.

In his spare time he is collaborating with a veteran Texan tattooist to write a how-to-do-it book on the skin — decorating game which will sell to would-be tattooists for $25 a copy.

Crofton

CROFTON — Mrs. D. B. Munro spent Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Vargeson at Gleneora.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury of Belleville were callers at the home of his sister, Mrs. E. Crook on Saturday.

Mrs. G. Hutson is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Patterson of Burlington.

Mrs. W. J. Gray and Mr. and Mrs. L. Lefort spent Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. H. Parsons and family at Bowmanville.

Mrs E. Crook was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. Calnan on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro and Keith spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. Soble and family at Belleville.

Mrs. E. Crook was an overnight guest of her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury at Belleville and attended the travelogue at the B.C.I auditorium on Thursday evening.

Canon A. S. McConnell of Belleville was a caller on this street on Tuesday.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of Mrs. G. Oram who passed away on Saturday. Funeral services were held at the Ainsworth Funeral Parlors at Wellington Tuesday with Interment at Burr's Cemetery.

Mr. Boudreau expects to gather enough to make more than 1,000 gallons of syrup, a new record, worth nearly $4,000.

He's also hard at work in the family basement producing sugar, some of it cast in moulds of tiny animals, and butter.

Drive Started to Purchase, Restore Allan Macpherson Home in Napanee by Society

A promotion banquet held recently in the auditorium of Napanee Collegiate (that seated two hundred and thirty-two guests, from as far away as Toronto, Montreal, and Ottawa) marked the end of a one-year struggle, and the beginning of another, one that may last twice as long.

The banquet, organized by Lennox and Addington Historical Society and sponsored by Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton, started off a fund-raising drive to purchase and restore the Allan Macpherson house, on First Street in Napanee. Adjacent parkland will be acquired also, which, it is hoped, will be the nucleus of a recreation area, a green belt along the Napanee River.

The Allan Macpherson house was built some time in the early 1820's.

Allan Macpherson, a Scotsman, son of Colonel Donald Macpherson, of Kingston, was the second owner of the grist mill which had been built at the foot of the falls in Napanee in 1786. The mill had spelled surveyor Loyalist settlers of the surrounding counties. Macpherson also kept a general store, which was the first Napanee post-office. He owned a distillery, and was a justice of the peace.

Macpherson's original home was on the Clarkville side of the river. When he selected this site, in the wilds of Richmond township, the house now known as the Macpherson house, his fellow townsmen must have doubted his judgement. His home was the first dwelling in the area.

STAYED IN KINGSTON

The Macphersons had relatives in Kingston. Macdonald who decided to emigrate to Canada. They stayed with Colonel Donald's family in Kingston until they were able to establish a home of their own. When one of the young lads, John Alexander, articled to a Kingston barrister, was sent by his employer to open a law office in Clarkville he was a frequent guest at the family's. As Allan Macpherson was known, and enjoyed the company of the young people there.

He wrote a Christmas masque which he and his cousin Helen Macpherson staged at Allan Macpherson's home, presumably in the ballroom on the second floor. It was later taken to the Macdonald home, itself a stone Mills, Glenora, and played there at Christmas.

The house was in Macpherson hands until 1873, when it passed to Dafoes, then to Carmans, Servis, and afterwards to Mac Vine. Fortunately, none of the occupants had the inclination, or means, to change the house greatly. It is considered by experts to be one of the finest examples in Ontario of the builder's art in the period following the war of 1812-14.

Although the house was well known in Ontario, and fully cognizant of early buildings it was not until 1957 that an effort to preserve it was made, organized in the county, by Lennox and Addington Historical Society. The society, virtually without funds, sought a sponsor to forstall the purchase price of the house and surrounding park area, or some government agency to maintain the house, ensuring perpetual care. The committee soon found society was willing to shoulder, counting on public-spirited citizens to go behind the project with generous donations.

McFARLAND APPROACHED

For five years nothing happened, and executive told their plans to deaf ears. The first ray of hope came with a change in the very McFarland of Picton was approached.

Realizing immediately when he saw the house the amazing soundness of the structure which had stood for close to a hundred and fifty years, he offered to pay for a building fund-raising drive to purchase and restore the Allan Macpherson house, on First Street in Napanee. Adjacent parkland will be acquired also, which, it is hoped, will be the nucleus of a recreation area, a green belt along the Napanee River.

Realizing immediately when he saw the house the amazing soundness of the structure which had stood for close to a hundred and fifty years, he offered to pay for a building fund-raising drive, and start the campaign off with a donation for two thousand dollars.

On Saturday, February 24, Mayor Harvey McFarland did just that. During the previous night, and the morning, one of the worst storms of the winter clogged county roads and provincial highways as well. Side-roads were impassable. At six o'clock, though warnings had gone over the radio that no one was to go out, Prince Edward county unless it was essential, he was in Napanee.

Maple Ridge Women's Institute, a group of women, many of whom live at Selby, were catering for the banquet. Turkey, jellies, and pies were snowed in the back of Nevada. By compilcate the situation county road workmen went on strike that morning.

PROCEED WITH BANQUET

A federal cabinet minister, Mr. Walter Monteith, had arrived Friday evening. Dr. Alexander Fraser, the other key speakers of the promotion banquet, had also arrived the night before. By noon Saturday word had spread that the banquet must go on.

Two hundred and thirty-two people sat down to tables spread with linen cloths, drank pressed cider from antique goblets, sprinkled on their salt from Lennox and Addington wild turkey, (so the menu said), from old-fashioned salt cellars.

Behind the point of the stage behind the head table was a mural of the Bay Burrows 1830 sketch, done in color by art collegiate students, Mike Normile and Glynn Connors. A painting of Manly Macdonald of the Macpherson house as it will be when restored and landscaped, pictures of its proposed green belt setting, by Mr. Mirsky. Mrs. Chubb, sketcher of local places of historic interest by Orval Madden, a model of the old house, park area and pastoralland, all covered bridge were also on display.

MEANS OUTLINED

Speakers of the evening held the attention of guests for over two and a half hours. The attendance of the society over the years to find means of preservation of the house were outlined by Mr. N. Hutchison, Mr. Allan Macpherson spoke briefly. Mrs. Ruth Dafoe, a descendant of Dr. G. Stanley was detained in Ottawa, told the story of their family's connection with the residence of Allan's father, Colonel Donald Macpherson. Mr. David McFall, president of the Ontario Historical Society, brought greetings and best wishes from his organization.

Mr. J. Waldo Monteith, Minister of Health and Welfare, told the story of the house and the green belt in his home town, Stratford. Also present from Ottawa was Mr. Ernest Bell, Dominion Archives. Mr. Guy Moore, Deputy Minister of Travel and Publicity, and Mrs. Moore, had come from Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Boyce of Belleville represented the Hastings County Historical Society at the banquet.

Dr. Allan Brown, Associate Professor of Medicine and Physician, University of Toronto, a native son of Napanee, spoke in detail of the history of the region, and of the important part the Napanee Mills played in the survival of the Loyalist settlement. He pointed out that Sir John A. Macdonald began and ended his career in Napanee. The last political speech of his last campaign was made in the town hall in Napanee. He took ill afterwards, and died a short time later.

SPOKE OF URBS

Of Dr. Walter's enthusiastic words perhaps the most important were these: "It is a mark of maturity in men and in nations when they honor the past while building the future".

Mrs. Jeanne Minhinnick, Curator of Furnishings, Upper Canada Village, spoke briefly on the possible use of the house. She emphasized the fact that people of the community may help in doing the work that must be done in restoring, furnishing and decorating. She also pointed out that the house should be used by community organizations.

Mr. Peter Stokes, consulting restoration architect, working on the mile of history, Ottawa, who with his team was responsible for producing the model of the restoration, described outstanding features of the house, and the probable course of restoration.

Slides were present at the house on Sunday afternoon, providing a constant stream of visitors through, as he pointed out his curious and puzzling features, and its possibilities.

Highlight of the evening came with the presentation of two cheques of one thousand dollars each to Judge G. F. Steele, Simpson Lecture, and by Mayor H. J. McFarland and Mrs. McFarland. Chairman of the finance committee, Mr. J. H. Miller, outlined the campaign for the fund-raising, pointing out that approximately thirty thousand dollars is needed for the whole project.

The musical feature of the evening was provided by Mrs. Grant Scramlin, who sang two songs of bygone days, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Miller.

And so ends for a great historical undertaking prodded at Napanee.

The old Allan McPherson home in Napanee which has been purchased by the Lennox and Addington Historical Society and will be renovated and restored to be used as a historical museum for the district.

Lutherans Approve Plans For Victoria Ave. Church

The members of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Belleville, recently approved the plans for their new church as drawn by local architects Watson and Wiegand. The church will be built on a site located on Victoria Avenue East at Stanley Park Drive (beside Moira Secondary School).

The architect's sketch shows a portion of the ultimate church plan. On the left is the church sanctuary which will seat 225 persons. The unit on the right will contain a fellowship hall, (with room to seat 160 at tables) kitchen, washrooms and four Sunday School rooms. This unit and the church sanctuary will be joined together on the south side by a vestibule and on the north side by a third unit (not seen in sketch). This latter unit will contain a nursery, choir room, and an additional five Sunday School rooms. The entire Sunday School area will accommodate 150 pupils.

In the centre of this rectangular plan is an open court with access from the vestibule and the north Sunday School area. There will be a parking area for 75 cars, with access from Victoria Avenue and Meadowvale Avenue.

An interesting feature of the church plan is the absence of basements, which will mean natural lighting and ventilation for all rooms. Also, no stairwells will be necessary.

The entire plan was designed to facilitate building the church in two or three stages. The unit on the right will be built first. Construction of it is expected to begin this fall. The church sanctuary, north unit and vestibule will be built as the congregation grows and its needs increase. The first unit will serve temporarily as worship area and Sunday School. What will ultimately be the fellowship hall will at first be used as the worship area will also serve as the initial Sunday School rooms will have movable partitions so that this area will also serve as the initial fellowship hall. Kitchen, washroom, and vestry facilities will also be provided in the first unit.

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church was organized in May, 1960 and has grown to a present membership of 211 persons. Services are now held in the Women's Institute Hall on Sunday Street, East, while the new shopping centre. Sunday School classes are held in the parsonage on 27 Melrose Crescent in the Stanley Park area. The pastor is Rev. Harold R. Lindeman.

Two Gamblers and Former OPP Constable Given 18 Months for Conspiracy

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario gamblers and a former provincial police constable today were sentenced to 18 months of definite and six months indefinite for conspiring to obtain confidential information from a police officer.

Judge McDermott, 41, Vincent Fenley, 38, and former constable Robert Wright, 31, were sentenced by Mr. Justice J. F. Donnelly shortly after the jury returned its verdict Thursday by a Supreme Court jury.

In handing down sentence, Mr. Justice Donnelly commented briefly on the type of work he had done while conducting his own defence during the nine-day trial.

The information concerned police activity between January and June 1960 on clubs suspected of gambling operations.

The jury deliberated for nearly three hours Thursday, after being instructed by Mr. Justice J. F. Donnelly for an hour and 45 minutes. It advised the 12 not to be prejudiced against the accused "because of lack of title."

The three men were acquitted in a Supreme Court trial last May and June of conspiring to bribe Chief. George Scott of the provincial police anti-gambling squad.

FENNIES PAYOFFS

Addressing the jury Thursday, Mr. McDermott repeatedly declared that he only paid money to Wright for tip-offs on police raids from Coast, Scott.

He charged that because he is a well-known gambler the case "has been made into a political football and the newspapers have built it up into a royal commission."

McDermott admitted he was a gambler and said he openly paid income tax on his earnings.

"When a gambler appears in front of you he's already got nine strikes against him," he said.

There is no evidence at all against Fenley, Mr. McDermott said, "he was put here just to keep me company."

Wright, who accused did not present defence evidence.

SLAMES McDERMOTT

Summing up the Crown case, Mr. Gilligan urged the jury to convict him because he made was that McDermott was the man behind the scenes.

Tax returns showed McDermott and Fenley had been in partnership.

The end of the trial today was a dramatic one, by way for the provincial royal commission on crime to resume its hearings Monday. The commission adjourned after less than an hour Tuesday because of the trial.

But Mr. Milligan said he expects to proceed today with three charges against Wright of bribing Const. Scott with $1,000 in monthly payments.

A joint charge against McDermott and Feeley of keeping common gaming house is likely follow, Mr. Milligan said.

Negotiations To Be Speeded

BRUSSELS (AP) — Negotiations to get Britain into the European Common Market are to be speeded as result of decisions taken by the foreign ministers Thursday.

They instructed their deputies to prepare by Easter a broad survey of all the work done since Britain and the Six first contacted each other on Oct. 10. That survey will be studied by the ministers before their next Brussels meeting May 8-9.

Capuchin Friar Tells How He Collected Money

MESSINA, Sicily (Reuters)— An 83-year-old Capuchin friar said a court Thursday how he collected money for the widow of a landowner for extortionists to whom a monastery gardener claimed to be acting.

Father Carmelo is on trial with three other friars and the monastery gardener Ang. Canada, extortion and threats.

Father Carmelo said that in October, 1957, Canada asked him to see an extortion letter asking for 10,000,000 lire ($16,000) in which Father Carmelo's name was mentioned.

Canada said he could not pay the requested sum, but only 250,000 lire ($400). Asked what advice he had given, Father Carmelo replied: "I limited myself to saying that I could not give other advice than to pay and tell the police."

Canada was shot May 26, 1958.

OFFERED ADVICE

Asked by the court whether he told a relative of Canada's that gangsters had paid up he would not be dead," Father Carmelo said he had actually said that the relative should have advised Canada and there should not have been blood spilt.

The court then asked Father Carmelo about alleged extortions of Canada's widow and Canada's death with letters threatening death to her and her son, 12.

Father Carmelo said that the widow's brother came to see him pleading for his intervention "but he threatened on grounds that he knew no one who could help."

Later he told Lo Bartolo, the monastery gardener, that Canada's widow was willing to pay 1,000,000 lire, ($1,600) and subsequently the widow's brother had said he would pay half of this in the spring and the balance at Christmas.

The brother later paid Father Carmelo the first 500,000 lire and said the widow refused to note, among the bills asking the gardener to pay, was that of Canada.

Father Carmelo said that Lo Bartolo later came and said the extortionists were willing to reduce due at Christmas and a few days later the widow's brother brought the money, wrapped in paper, which he passed on to Lo Bartolo without looking at it.

The trial is continuing.

Princess Visits Youth Club

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret and rock 'n' roll singer Cliff Richard drew crowd of 700 screaming, cheering teenagers to a London youth club Thursday night.

Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, were given an uproarious welcome when they arrived at the club, set up in London's east end by the Church of England three years ago to help bring local children and the church together.

They smiled their way through 15 minutes of continuous applause which grew louder when Richard, a club president, stepped onto the stage behind the princess.

The princess, president of the Church of England Youth Council, said later she and her husband "really enjoyed" their visit.

Britain Expected to Build 1957 Commitment to Buy 12,000 Tons of Uranium

OTTAWA (CP)—Britain is expected to agree late next month to fulfil a 1957 commitment to buy 12,000 tons of Canadian uranium.

Edmund Morris, Trade Minister Heed parliamentary secretary, told the Commons Thursday night that current British-Canadian negotiations on uranium purchases are expected to be completed by late April or May.

Mr. Morris, MP for Halifax, gave no details as to the price Britain will pay for the uranium or the dates that it will be delivered.

He made his announcement during debate on a $2,400,000 supplementary estimate vote for Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, the trade department agency which buys uranium from Canadian producers and sells it abroad.

Eldorado will use the money to buy uranium concentrates from Macassa Mines Limited at Bancroft, Ont., until late in April. The agency will own the company's mine to remain in operation for a period of six months after it has completed all the concentrates for delivery under the present contract with Eldorado.

Mr. Morris said by late April "it is expected that production will have been completed with the Macassa ore allocation."

Arnold Peters, (CCF—Timiskaming) asked whether the agreement is with Macassa and not Bicroft Uranium Mines Limited. Mr. Morris replied that although the Macassa has "inherited the Bicroft ore allocation as this uranium matter is concerned."

Mr. Peters asked why the Faraday mine, in the Bancroft area, has not been given the same kind of consideration.

Mr. Morris said that "Faraday's contract will not expire prior to the time we expect the United Kingdom negotiations to have been successfully completed."

Many Rural Districts Show Decline Despite Country's Over-all Population Growth

OTTAWA (CP)—Many rural districts across Canada have not shared in the country's over-all population growth in the decade of the last five years.

While urban centres nearly everywhere have got bigger, this has been offset by a dwindling rural population in a number of areas — particularly in Eastern and Northern Ontario.

The widening disparity in the rate of urban and rural population-growth is clearly shown in 1961 census figures of counties and census divisions, issued today by the bureau of statistics.

Although Canada's total population grew by 18.3 per cent, from 16,080,791 between June, 1956, and June, 1961, half of this increase was accounted for by growth in counties or census divisions, embracing cities with a population of 100,000 or more.

The widening disparity in the rate of urban and rural population-growth is clearly shown in 1961 census figures of counties and census divisions, issued today by the bureau of statistics.

Significant, though smaller gains were recorded in dozens of other districts containing important urban centres.

By contrast, in less than 28 predominantly rural counties, or census divisions in six provinces, showed population declines, while many others made only small gains.

The most general and widespread population decrease occurred in Saskatchewan. Nine of that province's 18 census divisions lost people during the time as the divisions including the four largest cities of Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Prince Albert, recorded increases.

Meanwhile, the big metropolitan areas were ahead at a rapid pace. York County, which includes the city of Toronto, grew from 1,115,054 to 1,733,160 from 1,440,601 in the five-year period. Montreal's island area increased by 240,043 to 1,747,686 from 1,507,653 with neighboring Jesus Island up 56,331 to 124,741 from 99,410.

Croll Unhappy, Crerar Opposes Eskimos Voting

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Senator David Croll said Thursday he is "very much embarrassed" over another Liberal senator's opposition to a bill which would give Eskimos of the eastern Arctic the right to vote in federal elections.

The Toronto senator spoke as the Senate agreed to send a health committee report on the bill. It asks Newstin and Franklin districts to the federal riding of Mackenzie River, and gives the franchise to about 4,000 adults, mostly Eskimos. The bill is to receive third reading today.

Senator Thomas Crerar (—Manitoba), a cabinet minister under Mackenzie King, said last week it would be a mistake to give the vote to Eskimos. He said many of them can't speak English and are not able to cast an intelligent vote.

The Public is Invited to Inspect the 3 New Model

Stanley Park 'Open House' Features 3 Model Homes

On Saturday and Sunday, another Spring "Open House" is being promoted by the prominent real estate firm of Gerald Joyce Realty Limited.

Each of the three houses to be shown to the public is in the moderate price range and being to the Belleville public a preview of the high quality workmanship and material they can expect from the respective builders throughout the coming year.

In all cases the builders have selected Stanley Park as the site for their quality homes.

Situated at 546 Victoria Avenue is the model offered by Maurice H. Rollins Construction Limited, a company which is no newcomer to the Belleville homeowner. Mr. Rollins in selecting the "Birkshire" is presenting to the public a larger 3-bedroom split level home with centre hall plan. The centre hall gives access to the living room, kitchen, "rec." room and bedroom area without crossing any of the other rooms.

Visitors will notice two decided departures from earlier styles in that the kitchen is at the front, where surveys have shown the homemaker prefers it. The living room is at the rear with the idea of overlooking the garden. Mr. Rollins points out that for very little extra a set of thermopane sliding doors can be installed, filled of the present picture window, thus affording direct access to the rear garden or patio.

The master bedroom also incorporates a new innovation with the inclusion of a separate wardrobe area, taking the place of the clothes closet on one wall. In this manner all walls in the large master bedroom can be used for furniture placement.

The attached garage and rear entrance to laundry and "rec." room are other features of this ultra modern home, furnished through the courtesy of Ireland's Furniture and Appliances.

NEW BUILDER HERE

The next "Open House" presentation is by a newcomer to the Quinte district. This company, F. A. DuMoulin Construction Limited, has as its president, Mr. F. A. (George) DuMoulin, who for the past several years has enjoyed an excellent reputation in the Peterborough area, and just prior to his arrival in Belleville completed a large church in that city.

Mr. DuMoulin's offering, the Montclair is a model from his own drawing board which received enthusiastic acceptance in other cities, so much so in fact, that it has, along with the efforts of DuMoulin's team, incorporated into one of the larger National Builders' plan books. This model features first of all a "complete" home. Nearly everything one needs in a home is already there; such things as outside planter, storm doors, storms and screens thermopane, exhaust fan, vanity in bathroom, full wall mirror and many other little extras. One feature attraction of the home is that the garage can be used as a "mud room" with direct access to the house via the rear landing, which is of split level design leading upward to the living level or downward to the double "rec." room and laundry area.

F. A. DuMoulin Construction prides itself in the use of mahogany trim throughout, including louvred doors on all closets.

The use of top quality burnt brick and angel stone is in keeping with the high standard of construction by DuMoulin and quality furnishing by David's Furniture and Appliances.

Last but by no means least is the "Quinte" offered by Don Keller Construction, another well known local contractor, who chose the popular "Quinte" because of its national acceptance. It is found in the NHA book on plans. However, Mr. Keller has added his own modification which has, without a doubt, enhanced the kitchen to no end. Also through his modification the garage is reached through the rear, without going outside.

Mr. Keller has added many extras to this model including storms and screens, thermopane, double sink, mahogany cupboards, yard goods on kitchen and bathroom floor, etc. The entire house is very handsomely decorated, setting off the furniture installed through the courtesy of Morley Lovaine of Lipson's Furniture House.

At the completion of a tour through the open houses, Joyce Realty invites visitors to tour Stanley Park and visit other models in various stages of construction. All these houses have the name in the window and all will be open.

Two Telephoned Death Threats Sent Lawyer

NEW YORK (AP)—A lawyer investigating the death of a social figure on her honeymoon last week in Haiti said Wednesday he has received two telephoned death threats.

The lawyer, Sheldon J. Kravitz, was personal counsel for the woman, the wife of Manfred von Linde. She was the former Mrs. Lucille Rogers of New York and Kansas City.

Kravitz said he has asked for police protection but he intended with his law partners to continue "endeavors to get to the bottom of this whole thing."

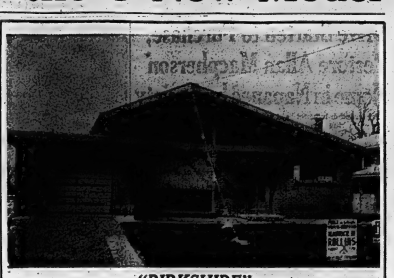
Kravitz also said that the office of Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan was investigating the death.

The woman was at first pronounced a heart attack victim, but her body was exhumed for an autopsy, the outcome of which has not yet been announced.

The lawyer said Hogan's office already was investigating the death of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Pauline Falk, 80, in New York on Feb. 7. Mrs. Falk had lived with Mrs. Linde prior to the latter's marriage.

Von Linde is being held at Fort au Prince, Haiti, pending outcome of the autopsy.

Kravitz said von Linde a New York plastic surgeon, had represented himself as a German count.



SERENE PASTOR

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP)—Rev. Bernard de Brienne, a Roman Catholic priest who thinks people may be forgetting the serenity and joy of their youth, pleased an adult audience at the Petit Salon des Arts here by singing his own compositions with a soft accompaniment on his guitar.

Australia and New Zealand Defence Long Way From Being Fully Co-ordinate

AUCKLAND (CP) — A combined Australia and New Zealand Army Corps stormed ashore on the beaches of Gallipoli nearly 50 years ago in the First World War and won undying fame. The word Anzac, formed from the initial letters of this corps, is revered in both countries as a symbol of heroism.

Yet Australia and New Zealand defence is still a long way from being fully co-ordinated. Policies have often been in conflict and only now are determined efforts being made at integration.

During the Second World War, defence policies were in some respects in direct opposition. Australia withdrew all her forces from the Middle East and concentrated on the war against Japan. New Zealand continued to make her main effort in the Middle East and Europe.

The two countries are both members of the Seato Pact for defence of South-East Asia, and of the Anzus Pact, a joint defence treaty among Australia, New Zealand and the United States.

They often conduct joint naval exercises and operate exchange training arrangements for officers of other services. However, some equipment is non unified, and there is as yet no question of a joint command for any Australia-New Zealand forces.
